Maid Smoking "Careless" Second Survivor Says Saw Her In Linen Closet

Thought Fire Located And Not Serious
First Mate Did "Marvellous Job"
Captain "Desperate Man" With Dry Hose

TORONTO, Oct. 7.—(CP).—It was a "careless thing to do" for a maid to smoke in a linen closet, the Kellock Commission inquiry into the Noronic fire was told today by a survivor from Detroit. Miss Ethel Clawson said she saw a maid in uniform smoking in the C deck closet where it is believed the fire which left a toll of 103 identified dead and 20 missing started Sept. 17. Miss Clawson, who told of having taken cruises on the Noronic each year since 1942, said she couldn't remember when the maid-smoking incident happened. She believed it was the day before the fire.

"I remarked at the time," she said that it was a careless thing to do. She was the second survivor to testify to having seen a maid smoking in the closet.

Miss Clawson, who described herself as a person who does not panic said she was aroused early Sept. 17 by the sound of some one running down the corridor. She saw no one when she opened her cabin door.

Noticed Smoke

"I looked toward the companion stairway and saw smoke. Some one was coughing there as if fighting the fire."

She returned to her room for a coat, warned her sister in a nearby cabin "not to panic."

"By the time I was ready to get off," she said, "the fire had burst into flame. It was blazing red like a sunset."

Miss Clawson described some substance she saw dripping down onto D deck from an opening in the upper deck as "probably melted paint."

She testified that she watched another passenger, Emmett Long, attempt to play a hose onto the flame for "two or three minutes."

"....Nothing came out of the hose," she testified. She said she heard no alarm.

Using Extinguisher

Mrs. Irene Pavey, another survivor from Detroit, said she saw no reason for panic when she noted a crew member with a fire extinguisher after seeing a haze of smoke.

"I thought the fire had been located tnd it wasn't serious," she said. She described the scene that

A. R. MOSHER was re-elected president of the Canadian Congress of Labor at the annual convention today. He has held the post since 1940.

Re-elect Mosher President Labor Congress

OTTAWA, Oct. 7—(CP)—A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor since it was founded in 1940, was re-elected for another year at the C.C.L.'s annual convention today.

The 68-year-old Labor leader, who also is president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, won by a wide margin over a candidate put up by the Congress left-wingers.

The vote was 503 for Mosher to 147 for Robert Haddon, of Montreal, Canadian chief of the International Union of Fur and Leather Workers.

For national secretary-treasurer Pat Conroy was re-elected, scoring a 534 to 139 win over William Stewart, Vancouver shipyard worker.

Vice-Presidents

The convention re-elected as vice-presidents C. H. Millard, of Toronto, national director of the United Steel Workers of America, Sol Spivak, of Toronto, manager of the Joint Board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and Alex McAuslane, of Vancouver, Canadian chief of the Oil Workers' International Union.

They were returned over two left-wing candidates—Steve Anco, Toronto auto worker, and J. K. Bell, of Halifax, secretary-treasurer of the Maritime Marine Workers' Federation.

Rumor Princess To Visit Canada

LONDON, Oct. 7. — (CP). — Neither confirmation or denial came from royal circles in London today to a report that Princess Margaret may make her first visit to Canada next year.

While admitting that such a trip was a possibility, these sources hastened to add that anything said on the subject at this time would be nothing but pure speculation since "nothing is known of her plans so far in advance."

The report appeared in the "inside information" column of the London Daily Graphic. It quoted "court circles" as saying it was "almost certain" that the princess would visit the Dominion in 1950.

A spokesman at Buckingham palace said he could not confirm nor deny the report but emphasized the fact that it is being left undenied should not be taken as lending substance to it. The palace could not deny it simply "because we don't know anything about it."

It Pays To Advertise Spinsters Included

STOUFFVILLE, Ont., Oct. 7 (CP)—Last week town assessor E. R. Good announced that by a queer quirk of fate there were exactly 99 spinsters and 99 bachelors at large in this small village a few miles north of Toronto. Today he wished he hadn't.

It looks as though Assessor Good will have to add the job of being a marriage broker to that of valuating real estate.

Already three application have been received from wife seekers. Two Toronto men wrote letters and one impatient bachelor from Woodbridge, Ont., hustled up in a taxi.

They outlined their specifications of the qualities desired in a mate to Mr. Good, then left negotiations in his hands.

Service Fight Flames Over Low Navy Morale

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—The flaming controversy among the branches of the United States armed forces over the best way to fight any future war brought Admiral W. A. Radford of the U.S. Navy to the firing line today to argue that giant bombers alone can't do the job.

The House of Representatives powerful armed services committee gave Radford, commander of the U.S. Pacific fleet, a chance to speak today in a public hearing.

What the committee is trying to find out is why some U.S. naval officers—like the suspended Capt. John G. Crommelin—think navy morale and fighting efficiency are being worn down by friction within the U.S. armed forces.

Yanks, Dodgers Tied In Fourth-Pressure Hot

DODGERS	0	0	0	1

EBBETS FIELD, Brooklyn, Oct. 7—(AP)—It will be Tommy Byrne, the half-tamed wild man for New York Yankees, against Ralph Branca, the big right-hander, for Brooklyn Dodgers in the third game of the all-even world series today.

Yankee manager Casey Stengel originally was going to pitch Ed Lopat, but he switched to Byrne (15-7) after Thursday's 1-0 loss to the Dodgers, which tied the series at one game apiece.

Burt Shotton, Dodgers' pilot, was undecided until this morning on whether to go with Branca (13-5) or Rex Barney (9-8). When he was cornered by newspaper men in the clubhouse Shotton said: "I guess it will be Branca."

Byrne, a 29-year-old southpaw, hurled some important games for the Yanks, and specialized in low hitters. He tossed one one-hitter, two two hitters and one three-hitter. He also walked 178 in 196 innings.

Minimize Argument

Branca, who was counted on as one of the Dodgers' top pitchers before the season started, had words with Shotton toward the end of the campaign, and a mild "rhubarb" developed. It all ended peacefully, however, when both minimized the argument.

Effects of a shower at dawn were hardly noticeable as the infield was completely covered with a plastic glass tarpaulin.

It was a damp, humid day but there was a fair breeze blowing across the field from right to left.

With Byrne working for the Yanks, Shotton planned to use Eddie Miksis at third base and Luis Olmo in left field. That benched Spider Jorgensen and Gene Hermanski.

Other Shifts

Stengel, after a clubhouse conference with Yogi Berra, who still has a painfully swollen left thumb, decided to start Berra behind the plate. Stengel made other shifts, too. He benched both outfielder John Lindell and third baseman Billy Johnson.

Gene Woodling, the rookie from San Francisco, was inserted in Lindell's place, and Bobby Brown replaced Johnson at third. Cliff Mapes, who played the opener, again was back in right instead of Hank Bauer.

Those changes produced this official batting order:

Doc Mixed, Babies Right Blood Tests Save The Day

RAVENNA, O., Oct. 7 (AP)—Those babies born Sept. 21 were given to the right parents, after all, the parents involved agreed Thursday.

After reviewing blood tests from three separate laboratories, the two sets of parents issued a statement. They said they had the right children all the time and the whole thing was just a mix-up.

Dark-haired Gerald goes to Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Shanley, and blonde Michael goes to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Strayer.

The mothers shared a room here in hospital and Dr. Edward Meacham delivered both children within a few hours the same day.

Later he called at the Shanley home and noted that the youngster there had a scratched chin and a tiny bump on the back of his head. This raised doubt in the doctor's mind. He recalled that the Strayer lad, not the Shanley boy had been instrument-delivered.

He called in Thomas Hunston, hospital superintendent, and the investigation was on. Blood samples were tested by three separate laboratories.

Both the Shanleys and the Strayers retained lawyers.

A nurse was suspended.

Thursday all the blood tests came back. The findings were identical.

The parents statement said they gave "clear and decisive" evidence that the children had originally gone to the right homes.

CCL Expels Mine Union Amid Uproar

Left-Wingers Stage Demonstration As Quick Vote Called

OTTAWA, Oct. 7 — (CP). — Wild pandemonium broke out at the Canadian Congress of Labor convention today as left-wingers staged a violent demonstration on the heels of a convention decision to expel the Communist-tinged International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

Boiling mad, backers of the Mine-Mill Union fought angrily but unsuccessfully to bar a quick vote on the issue and then some of them rushed the officer's platform amid a deafening uproar of screaming, jeering and table-pounding.

One girl opponent of the expulsion move—youthful Pat Rooney of the United Electrical Workers in Hamilton—strode determinedly to the platform, made a few tentative swipes at President A. R. Mosher and grabbed his gavel as she tried to get a hearing

Grabs Microphone

Then she shoved exective councilman J. E. McGuire away from the platform microphone, seized it and began a shouted denunciation of the expulsion move while delegates milled around the big hall in the wildest demonstration witnessed in the CCL for many years.

Another angered opponent of the convention action rushed the platform to join Miss Rooney, but he was shepherded off by Sam Baron, another executive member.

After the angered Miss Rooney had held the centre of the rostrum for several minutes with the executive members uncertain how to handle her, some of her union colleagues eventually coaxed her off the platform.

She was led away in tears, shouting insults over her shoulder at the executive as she made her way back to her seat.

The bedlam erupted as the Congress voted to shut off the debate on the Mine-Mill issue and to adopt an executive recommendation for expulsion of the Mine-Mill Union while a large group of Mine-Mill supporters still were clamoring to get to microphones.

Miss Rooney and a group of other UEW delegates made a concerted rush for one of the floor microphones as President Mosher vainly asked them to take their seats.

While they shouted for a hearing, Mosher told them to take

CPR Challenges Board Ruling

OTTAWA, Oct. 7 (CP) — The Canadian Pacific Railway today challenged a ruling of the Board of Transport Commissioners and asked the Board's permission to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

It based its appeal on two questions of law in connection with a board ruling last Sept. 22 authorizing an interim increase of eight per cent in freight rates.

The CPR claimed the board had failed to perform its functions by postponing a final decision on freight rates until the Royal Commission on Transport makes its report to parliament.

The company's application for permission to appeal will be heard by the board Oct. 17.

The Canadian National Railways did not join in the application.

The railway said in its application that it is a matter of "widespread public importance" that the Supreme Court should determine:

1. If it is the duty of the Board of Transport Commissioners to decide to what extent increased freight rates should be authorized because of changing conditions in the cost of transportation.

2. If the Board failed to carry out this duty by postponing a final decision on the railways' application for higher rates — made on July 27, 1948—until after the Royal Commission reports.

Report Robinson Sold To Braves

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP).—The Washington Times Herald says today in a dispatch from New York that Jackie Robinson, National League batting ace, has been sold by Brooklyn Dodgers to Boston Braves.

The story adds that the Dodgers will get $250,000 and two players for Robinson and that the deal will be announced after the world series.

However, in New York, where they are gathered for the world series, Braves officials termed the report "ridiculous."

"I haven't heard of it and I am sure I would be consulted," said Billy Southworth, manager of the Boston team who was given a late-season leave of absence, "I am sure there is nothing to it."

Billy Sullivan, director of public relations, declared, "you can say absolutely the report has no foundation."

"There are several reasons it can't be true," he added. "In the first place, we don't need a second baseman. We feel we are more than adequately protected at that spot with Eddie Stanky and Sibby Sisti."

It was indicated in the Times Herald dispatch that transfer of Robinson was decided upon as a result of salary discussions with the Brooklyn management.

Gang Teen-Agers Rob Musician In Bath

TORONTO, Oct. 7.—(CP).— A gang of teen-aged youths attacked Terrace R. Dibbs, 20-year-old C.B.C. musician in a west-end steam bath today, and forced him to give over $17 which he had in an upstairs locker.

Police arrested John R. Ryan, 18, of Nova Scotia and William Stewart, 19, of Toronto, and charged them with assault and robbery.

This is the second assault and robbery at this steam bath in the last six months, police said. A carpenter was beaten and robbed of nearly $1,000 some time ago.

Refuse To Include Packers Under Federal Labor Code

OTTAWA, Oct. 7.—(CP).—CCF representatives in the Commons found opposition in all quarters yesterday to a bill which would have brought Canada's meat packing industry under the provisions of the federal labor code. Progressive Conservative and Social Credit members lined up solidly with the Liberals and Independents to defeat the bill by an overwhelming 171 to 10.

Introduced by Alistair Stewart (CCF, Winipeg North), the measure would have made that part of the meat packing industry operating in two or more provinces subject to federal labor legislation.

"In matters of collective bargaining," the bill's explanatory note said, "the industry will then be able to negotiate on a national basis and the Government of Canada will have the authority to deal with disputes in an industry whose smooth functioning is essential to the national economy."

Operate In Province

Meat packing companies operating wholly within one province would not have been affected by the measures. Collective bargaining for those companies still would have been under provincial regulations.

In a brief renewal of debate on the measure before the vote M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, and Stanley Knowles (CCF, Winnipeg North Centre) expressed belief the government has the power to bring the meat packing industry unuder federal jurisdiction.

C. E. Johnson (SC, Bow River) disagreed and said no change should be made until it is requested by the provinces.

Used To Be Local

Mr. Coldwell said that at the time of Confederation there was no meat-packing industry as it is known today. It was a local business. Today that local business has given way to a country-wide industry, mainly in the hands of Canada Packers, Swift Canadian and Burns Limited.

These large firms purchased through commission agents and sold their meat in the same way Anything that interfered with the

Pair Rob Bank of $16,000, Third Holdup In Month

MONTREAL, Oct. 7 (CP) — Montreal police today are investigating the third bank holdup in suburban Montreal bank branches within a month.

The latest of these robberies occured shortly after 3 p.m. Thursday when two armed bandits held up a branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in suburban town of Mount Royal and escaped with an estimated $16,000.

Police said they were not certain whether the bandits were the same pair who were responsible for the other two holdups in September.

Bank Manager A. A. Taylor told police the pair gained entrance shortly after the 3 p.m. closing time by knocking on the door.

As he opened the door to inquire what the men wanted, Taylor said the pair, unmasked, but with guns drawn, entered the building and ordered a female clerk, a male bookkeeper and himself to lie on the floor behind a counter.

Moving quickly the bandits tied the three together, scooped up the loot and fled in a waiting automobile.

There were no customers in the bank at the time.

The first bank holdup here in more than a year since two policemen were killed in an east-end robbery Sept. 23, 1948, occurred last Sept. 7. Two bandits held up a branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale in adjoining Bordeaux and escaped with $4,000.

A week later, two armed men took $4,000 from a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada in west-end Montreal.

Reserves Up $130 Million Abbot Says

U.S. Dollars, Gold Now $985,000,000 Double 1947 Level

OTTAWA, Oct. 7 — (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott today announced that Canada's reserves of gold and United States dollars were $985,000,000 at the end of September.

They were $987,000,000 at the end of August, $973,000,000 at the end of July, $977,000,000 at the end of June.

At the end of September a year ago, they totalled $855,000,000.

It will be two years ago next month that Canada first started to take emergency action to build up reserves which had fallen to "dangerous" levels.

At that time the reserves were approximately $461,000,000.

In making his announcement today, Mr. Abbott said all the figures given for the gold and dollar reserves were expressed in terms of U.S. dollars and thus not affected by the recent devaluation of the Canadian dollar.

He also said the figure for Sept. 30, 1949, does not include $98,800,000 in U.S. funds set aside for retirement on Oct. 1, Nov. 1, 1949, and Feb. 1, 1950, of government bonds payable in U.S. dollars.

These funds were part of the proceeds of the $100,000,000 issue of government bonds sold in the U.S. in August.

Gets 7 Years On Murder Try

TORONTO, Oct. 7 — (CP). — Benjamin Lofsky, 25, convicted a week ago of attempted murder and wounding of his sister-in-law was sentenced today to seven years.

Evidence during the trial was that Lofsky, an unemployed furrier, took a revolver to the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Emma Lofsky, last August when he went to seek endorsement of a loan. The pistol discharged and Mrs Lifsky fell to the floor. It was found later that she had a nick in her left ear.

Lofsky told the court he intended to shoot himself if he did not get the endorsement. He said before he could turn the weapon on himself two shots were accidentally fired.

Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier told Lofsky as he sentenced him to seven years on the attempted murder charge and two years, to run concurrent, on the wounding count:

"It was only by a few inches that the charge was not murder."

Ready, Aim, Fire! Skunk Fast On Draw

KITCHENER, Oct. 7 (CP) — A police drive against skunks came to a halt Wednesday when one of the striped residents beat the cops to the punch.

Called in to give shot-gun treatment to a skunk that had been burrowing under the chicken house in a garden, police were out-witted.

Details have not been released but it appears that the attacking force laid down its weapons to help hunt the skunk. While they were searching the skunk came out and gave its usual treatment to the shot gun, left standing against a chicken-pen.

The eradication campaign has been temporarily suspended while the firearm is hung out to air. The skunk hasn't been seen since.

U.S. Charges East Germany Police State

Seek To Counteract Dictator Government Forming In Russ Zone

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—In a new tough-talking, tough-acting mood, the western powers may make Berlin the scene of their next move in the heated dispute with Russia over Germany.

Diplomatic officials said Britain, the United States and France are considering adding their zones of Berlin to the West German Republic to counter the creation of a Communist-run government in Eastern Germany.

The three powers earlier had turned down an appeal for such a move from German officials in Western Berlin, on grounds it might anger Russia and further complicate four-power relations in the former German capital.

They apparently feel now that relations have reached a point where such action wouldn't make any great difference.

The United States Thursday blasted Russian conduct in Eastern Germany in two of the sharpest statements ever aimed at the Russians by the west.

Webb Protests

First the U.S. State Department sent the Russians an angry note, bitterly denouncing the "shocking mistreatment" received at Russian hands by Americans who wandered into Eastern Germany by accident.

Then James E. Webb, undersecretary of state, issued a strongly-worded statement charging that Russia, having already reduced Eastern Germany to "an oppressive police state," is now trying to set up a "dictatorial unrepresentative" government there.

Webb rejected Russia's charge that the west is responsible for splitting Germany by sponsoring the West German government.

"Obstinate Soviet opposition" to western proposals, he said, is the real reason for the east-west split.

Webb further accused Moscow of (1) looting the natural and industrial resources of East Germany; (2) reopening concentration camps; (3) strangling free economic life; and (4) creating such fear that hundreds of thousands of East Germans have fled to the west.

Play Down Crime Papers Urged

OTTAWA, Oct. 7 (CP)—Solon Low, Social Credit leader, and Rodney Adamson (PC — York West) urged Thursday night in the commons that daily and weekly newspapers play down gruesome crimes and juvenile-gang warfare.

Mr. Adamson, member of a citizens committee established to deal with problems arising out of the operations of the juvenile beanery gang in Toronto, said he wished to appeal to newspapers to reduce voluntarily the publicity given to the "anti-social" behavior of some youths.

He said that when gang warfare was at its height in Toronto the daily press "played it up." The names of those in the gangs, a description of what they did and the location in which they operated were given. This made heroes of the participants.

Both he and Mr. Low spoke on a bill, sponsored by E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops), that would provide severe penalties for the publication and distribution of crime comics.

Mr. Low said he wished to plead with newspapers not to overplay the gruesome, unwholesome details of murder and other crimes. Anytime a murder was committed he suggested that newspapers should not go into lurid, sensational details.

Be Worldly Wise In LA Dennis' Friend Says

"Be worldly wise when you come to Los Angeles," said Betty Ritchie, of Fenelon Falls, "and if you meet someone you like, take him home to mama."

Miss Ritchie, who admittedly hadn't practiced what she preached, left by plane for Chicago, first leg of a deportation trip to her home in Toronto.

The 24-year-old schoolmarm was found in Dennis' Beverly Hills apartment when he was arrested in Cleveland. Some $120,000 in loot from society burglaries was found in his apartment.

Fraser Urges 'Clean Funnies' Not Crime Trash

OTTAWA, Oct. 7—(CP) — Hush-hush, hand-to-hand circulation of hair-raising, crime-laden comic books is frustrating the attempts by responsible parents to stamp out this menace to the morals of young Canadians.

Parliament was solemnly told Thursday night how young people are perpetrating the ill effects of lurid crime comics by engaging in voluntary circulating libraries in a secretive manner.

This, said H. P. Cavers (L, Lincoln), is why parents—as well-meaning as they may be—are unable to keep these vice-ridden comics from children. And this was why the Commons might well take some action to clamp down on these magazines which were doing little more than glamorizing crime in the minds of impressionable young people.

There was virtual unanimity in the Commons on the offensive publications.

Fraser Okays Clean Comics

"Give our children the funnies but let's give them the clean ones," said G. K. Fraser (PC, Peterborough West).

Leading off the discussion, Mr. Fraser said British Columbia had attempted to take action against crime comics in 1945 but had run into difficulty because the publishers were in Eastern Canada. Since this could not be dealt with provincially, it was a matter for the Federal Code, he said.

He noted that there is no duty on plates and mats coming into Canada from the United States for the purpose of printing comic books.

In addition there was no sales tax on the books while daily newspapers were forced to pay such tax. There is only one weekly newspaper in Canada not paying sales tax and that is the Toronto Star Weekly, Mr. Fraser said.

In all fairness to Canadian children, every member should support this amendment, he said. He didn't like the "trash" contained in the dime crime comics. He had read them.

"We all like comics," he said. "But we like clean comics."

Kiwanis Agree

Mr. Cavers said he had been asked to take a stand in the Commons by the Kiwanis Club which had passed a resolution urging action against crime comics.

They have a bad influence on the moral standards of young people, he declared.

In many cities there were bands of hoodlums, known as beanery gangs, which, he said, were probably influenced by the poor literature.

Mr. Cavers said he knew of one druggist in St. Catharines who conducts his own censorship. However, individual censorship could not be generally depended upon to stamp out the harmful crime comics.

He gave credit to newspapers for what he described as high standards in comic sections. This, he thought, was probably the reason newspapers were not included in the amendment.

Angus MacInnis (CCF, Vancouver East) said he supports the principle of the bill although he is not sure their influences can be overcome strictly by negative action. There should be positive action. Young people should be given enough interesting things to do to take their minds away from comic books.

Discusses Bill

Mr. Cavers, a St. Catharines lawyer, spoke in debate on a bill to make the criminal code apply to distribution and publication of crime comics.

Sponsored by E. D. Fulton (PC-Kamloops), the bill would provide in general terms for making illegal, comic books of the crime variety.

It would, however, leave the final decision on any suspect periodical to the courts which would decide whether any comic book came within the definition of an objectional publication.

R. R. Knight (CCF-Saskatoon City) said he is not sure he favors the bill. It involved censorship and he didn't know whether the courts were competent to do the job.

He felt there was a dearth of literature fit for juvenile readers. What was available was costly.

Instead of censorship, efforts should be made to cultivate among young people a taste for good literature.

New Cheese Factories To Be Built By Board

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 7 —(CP)— The Ontario Cheese Producers' marketing Board Thursday announced they propose to construct a number of cheese curing and storage warehouses strategically placed throughout Ontario. The first will be located in Belleville and another in the eastern part of the province. The announcement was made following meeting of the directors of the association here.

Funds for construction of these storages has been appropriated by the Ontario government. Agriculture Minister Kennedy informed the marketing board through his director of dairying, C. E. Lackner, that the Ontario cabinet have approved funds necessary for the project.

Campbellford Man Injured When Machine Shatters

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 7.—(ENS). — While operating a grain grinding machine in the Co-operative grist mill here, Claire Lockhead was struck by flying fragments of metal from a high speed grinding plate that broken into several pieces about 8 p.m. Thursday. It was earlier reported an explosion had occurred.

He suffered a broken left arm and ribs and a long gash across the throat.

Fellow employees rushed him across the street to Dr. C. A. Bright. He and Dr. W. W. Baker, after rendering first aid, had Lockhead taken to Belleville. His wife accompanied him in the ambulance.

Dr. Baker said that he had a fair chance to recover, providing there were no internal injuries.

There were no eye-witnesses to the accident, but it is believed the grinding plate flew to pieces when Lockhead was making adjustments to the machine.

Companion Not Hit

Archie Dewey, working a short distance from Lockhead, escaped being hit.

The casing that houses the grinding plates was completely shattered and chunks of metal were hurled with terrific force through the open back door, 50 feet from the grinder.

Constable W. E. Cargin investigated.

Shot Once By Police Thief Caught Again

TORONTO, Oct. 6 — (CP) — Charles Brittain, 34-year-old alleged shopbreaker whom police claim was shot in an abortive safecracking attempt several months ago, was arrested at gunpoint Wednesday night on a charge of breaking into the North America Vinegar Company plant here.

Police said Brittain was found hiding under a nearby verandah by Detectives James McLaughlin and Constable Robert Clarke after they had searched the vinegar factory and the roofs of a number of adjoining buildings for more than 30 minutes. Police were notified of the breakin by a burglar alarm at the factory.

Police claim that Brittain is the same man who was shot through the back by an East York police officer after a safe had been taken from a Donlands Ave. store a few months ago. Brittain was free on bail.

Instead, they yelled more loudly for a chance to go on debating the issue. Supporters of the executive joined in with cat calls and table-thumping to drown out the voices of their opponents.

Then, a phalanx of UEW and other Mine-Mill backers made a rush for the platform, with Miss Rooney spearheading the movement as white-haired President Mosher shouted and rapped vainly for order.

The Union was suspended for failing to obey a CCL order to withdraw from the Northern Ontario mining field.

Members of the union, barred from the convention floor, watched the battle over the fate of their union from the sidelines of the meeting.

Robert Stewart of the United Mine Workers of America at Glace Bay, NS, led the fight on behalf of Mine-Mill declaring he condemns the action of the CCL executice in suspending the Mine-Mill Unions.

1947 Strike

This was shown by a 1947 strike in the industry. Stock ready for market was held up for weeks by a strike, and farmers suffered serious losses. The consumer was embarrased by the shortage of meat.

In 1944, 1945 and 1946 the government used wartime powers to settle strikes in the industry across the country. But in 1947 jurisdiction had been returned to the provinces. The packinghouse workers were forced to negotiate with each province separately. This delayed settlement.

"The industry should be declared a national industry because it is of nation-wide concern," he said.

He believed that the British North America Act provided the government with authority to bring the industry under the provisions of the national labor code.

N.B. Taxi Driver Beater To Death

SAINT JOHN, N. B., Oct. 7 — (CP)—The brutally-battered body of a 72-year-old taxi driver was found here early today lying in a roadside ditch on the outskirts of the city.

Police said William Puddington had been beaten over the head with a heavy car bumper jack found near the body.

Police were called out shortly after midnight when a passer-by William Connell, reported an unoccupied car in the middle of a street.

Finding the car empty and recognizing the taxi as a vehicle operated by Puddington, police checked to find out that the driver had been called out an hour earlier and had not been seen since.

The police had no explanation of how the body came to be found about two miles from where the car was left.

ensued one of people running about with hair and night attire afire, women being pulled out of their cabins through windows.

Mrs. Pavey said she saw three members of the crew "rushing about." They were First Mate Jerry Wood, Boatswain Bob Morrison, and an oiler.

"Jerry—Mr. Wood—was trying to direct people into the bow of the ship."

She said there was no panic, but the passengers seemed dazed.

"The little old ladies and old men just did not seem to want to move or perhaps were afraid to try going over by the ropes."

Used Rope Sling

Mrs. Pavey, who said she finally left the ship by a rope sling rigged by members of the crew, testified the only alarm she heard was the ship's continuous blast like a "distress" signal.

The witness said that in a city hotel later she saw special officer M. R. Brown who told her he was asleep when the fire broke out.

"Did you at any time see the captain?"

"While still on the bow of C deck, I saw this man . . . and heard him say, 'Are you people all right there?' . . . . I recognized him from his voice and said, 'My God, that is Captain Bill.'

"He had such a grief-stricken look on his face . . . He had a fire hose and ran round to the port side which was burning. As far as I saw . . . the hose had not been inflated and I saw no water."

Mildrette M. Briggs of Detroit, said she shared a cabin with Mrs. Hazel Mackalow who perished in the fire. The witness said her cabin mate was still in the lounge when she retired.

She said she was roused by a fellow-passenger. Earlier she had heard the sound of breaking glass and some one shout "fire."

"It didn't sound like an alarm but more like someone horsing around and I thought at the time it was a silly thing to do."

Escaped Through Window

Miss Briggs said flame crept through a grill into her cabin, caught in some paper, a hat box, clothing and quickly enveloped the room. She fled through a window, the train of her night gown aflame.

She too, told of the efforts made by First Mate Wood and Boatswain Morrison to assist passengers from the ship.

"Jerry (Wood) was doing a marvellous job," and it was his work in directing people, urging them to keep calm that prevented panic, she said.

Miss Briggs said she saw Captain William Taylor. He didn't look himself but "like a desperate man," making motions with a hose as though dousing fire. No water came from the hose.

Miss Briggs told Frank Wilkinson, counsel for Canada Steamship Lines, ship's owners, she had seen only three members of the crew, including the captain, during the night.

Miss Briggs said when she returned to the ship from a visit up town, she saw no member of the crew.

No Excessive Drinking

James C. Miller of Cuyahoga, said he saw nothing unusual in the behaviour of passengers, or excessive drinking, during the post-season cruise.

He told of a conversation he had heard about 11 p.m. EST between "two members of the crew in uniform" aboard ship.

Miller said one remarked he had a date, while the other talked of arranging one. One of them said "But I can't go over there because I am on duty until one o'clock."

Miller said a uniformed member of the crew came to him during the fire and gave him directions where to go to leave the ship. He heard no alarm apart from the ship's whistle.

Can. Red Cross Returns $25,000 To U.S. Society

TORONTO, Oct. 7.—A cheque for $25,000, sent by the American Red Cross to the Canadian Red Cross in appreciation of rescue work among American victims of the Noronic disaster, was on its way back to New York Thursday.

"We feel we cannot accept your offer of financial assistance," Dr. W. Stuart Stanbury, national commissioner wrote on behalf of the Canadian organization, "realizing that our sister society would have performed equal or better service for Canadian citizens had the circumstances been reversed."

"Moreover," he continued, "the people of Canada hold fresh in their memories the gigantic contribution of the American National Red Cross during the disastrous explosion in the City of Halifax during the First World War."

The cheque—which arrived last week—was enclosed in a letter from James T. Nicholson, executive vice-president of the American Red Cross. It was sent as a contribution to the relief fund here, as a result, Mr. Nicholson explained, of the reports of victims chapter representatives and others who witnessed the disaster relief work "and whose praise has been very eloquent."

The letter quoted Basil O'Connor, president of the American National Red Cross, in expressing admiration and appreciation of the outstanding services the society rendered, and expressing the gratitude of the American Red Cross and the American people.

Rizzuto fouled off Branca's first pitch, then went out on a routine grounder to Miksis.

Henrich sent a smash down the first baseline to Hodges who made the unassisted putout. Berra went down swinging, after he had fouled off four pitches.

First Inning Dodgers

Byrne burned over the first pitch for a called strike on Reese, who worked the count to 1-2, then was hit on the right leg by a low inside pitch.

Berra caught Miksis' high pop foul in front of the Yankee dugout, and threw to Coleman at second to double up Reese who had attempted to go to second after the catch.

Second Inning Yankees

DiMaggio struck out on four pitches, missing a fast-breaking curve ball. Brown popped to Robinson on the edge of the outfield grass. Wooding fouled to Miskis near the third base field boxes. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Third Innings Yankees

Mapes walked on a full count, after Campanella failed to hold on to a foul tip which would have been a third strike. It was the first pass given up by a Dodger pitcher in the series.

Coleman was called out on strikes and Mapes was nearly doubled up as he got back just in time to beat Campanella's fast throw to first.

Byrne singled sharply past Robinson into centre field, and Mapes, with the hit and run on, went all the way to third.

Rizzuto flied to Furillo. Mapes tagged up and scored after the catch as Furillo's throw came in far over to the third base side of the home plate. Byrne held first.

Insurance Act Changes Urged

OTTAWA, Oct. 7 (CP)—Changes in the Unemployment Insurance Act were proposed today by the Canadian Congress of Labor. Adopting report of its unemployment insurance committee, the CCL's annual convention asked:

1. Increases in benefit payments to unemployed workers from the insurance fund. The congress said payments in class B to which most workers belong should not be less than $25 a week.

2. Reduction of the nine-day waiting period to six days or less.

3. That workers be allowed more leeway in spare-time earnings while drawing benefits.

4. Wider coverage under the act, with an increase in the $3,120 wage ceiling above which workers are not eligible for coverage.

5. Payment of sick benefits.

6. Payment of benefits to strikers after the second week of a strike.

7. Payment of enforced vacations without pay.

The report expressed belief that the fund—now over $500,000,000—is large enough that it may be capable of withstanding the shock of a period of severe unemployment.

Discuss Recognition

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(AP).—The Cabinet will supply the request of the new Chinese Communist government for diplomatic recognition next Thursday, official sources reported Thursday. They stressed, however, that Britain won't act on recognition before consulting the rest of the commonwealth and the North Atlantic Defence Alliance.

Report U.S. Cancels Plane Order

Toronto Planes Cost Million Dollars; U.S. Officials Deny It

TORONTO, Oct. 7 —(CP) — A Toronto paper says today in a newspage story that the United States has invoked an obscure piece of legislation to cancel an order for 24 Toronto-built military planes at a total cost of $1,000,000.

It says the By-American Act of March, 1933, was used to block purchase by the United States Air Force of 24 deHavilland Beaver planes intended for service in Alaska. The Canadian craft was requested by Col. Bernt Balchen, commanding the 10th Rescue Squadron at Elmendorf air base in Alaska.

Under the law enacted during depression days, U.S. government headquarters and agencies may purchase for public use only products manufactured in the United States from U.S. raw materials—except in emergency situations.

Deny Story

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7—(CP) —A United States Air Force official denied Thursday night a newspaper story that the United States has cancelled a $1,000,000 order to purchase 24 Beaver planes from the deHavilland Aircraft Company of Toronto.

Commenting on the story, carried by a Toronto paper, an Air Force official said "the U.S. Air Force never had any interest in this plane from either the standpoint of research or construction or with intent to purchase."

Plane Crashes Five Injured

LAC DU BONNET, Man., Oct. 7 (CP)—A Central Northern Airways plane ploughed into the ground and burned in the wooded area fringing Undertaker Lake, 35 miles northeast of here, Thursday. The pilot and all five passengers were injured.

Brought to hospital in Winnipeg by ambulance were:

Perry Norwell, 35, of suburban Norwood; Edward Worketin of Winnipeg; Metro Kirby, pilot; Robert West, of Durban, Man.; James Hepburn, and Kitty Jackson of Long Lake, Man. All are in fairly good condition.

M. E. Ashton, general manager of the airline, said the craft was a total loss. He said there had been high winds and rain squall over the area, and that radio communication had been almost negligible because of static during the flight.

A search craft took off soon after the last message, and sighted the burning plane.

Find Painter's Body In 12-Foot Deep Well

TORONTO, Oct. 7 (CP) — The body of a 70-year-old bachelor house painter, who lived alone, was recovered Thursday from the bottom of his 12-foot deep well in nearby Lorne Park district.

Police said they believed the body of James Ryan had been there a week.

Police were called when a breakfast salesman, Allan May of Toronto, noticed a pile of newspapers, a stale loaf of bread was still on the porch of the three-room shack.

Police said they found two bottles of wine and one partly full on the kitchen table. They said Ryan may have toppled into the well while under the influence of liquor.

Forest Fire Loss

OTTAWA, Oct. 7 (CP)—Forest fires destroyed $29,500,000 worth of Canadian timber during the years 1940-1948, Resources Minister Gibson Thursday said in the Commons in reply to Dr. Pierre Gauthier (L-Portneuf). Flames ravaged more than 17,000,000 acres during that time, including 10,600,000 acres of well-stocked forests. The figures do not include the Yukon and the North west Territories.

Uphold Conviction

MELBOURNE, Oct. 7.—(CP).—The Australian High Court today upheld the conviction of Laurence L. Sharkey, general secretary of the Communist Party of Australia, for seditious utterances. Sharkey is free on £1,000 bail, awaiting sentence. He was convicted June 20 by a Sydney criminal court jury of having uttered seditious words to a reporter in a telephone interview published March 5.

Held One Week Men Acquitted

Two men who have been held in custody on remand since they were arrested Sept. 26 were today acquitted by Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C., at city police court on charges of wandering abroad and not giving a good account of themselves when questioned by a police officer. Constable Don McKay told the court that the men had been suspected of passing counterfeit bills when they were arrested.

Constable McKay said that he and Constable S. Kelelle had been walking on George St. when Mr. Cullen ran out of Mason's store and asked for their assistance in catching two men who had short changed a clerk in the store. After running along George, Brock and Chambers Sts. the constables caught up with the men in the laneway between the Bell Telephone building and Percival's furniture store.

The accused were George Bonick and Robert Langlois.

They gave their names but the information about their addresses and recent whereabouts did not tally with the papers they were carrying, the constable said.

Constable McKay said the papers carried by one of the men indicated that he had travelled from California north through the States to Canada. The other one appeared to have travelled through the States and Canada from Alberta. Bonick claimed he had been "working with the shows" in Canada all summer and had "never been in the States in my life."

Both men admitted having previous police records.

In dismissing Bonick, the magistrate said there had obviously been some suspicion. The accused appeared to have given some misleading information about his movements—not of a particularly serious nature. The crown offered no evidence against Langlois after Bonick's dismissal.

Concert Series Off

COBOURG, Oct. 7 (ENS) — This town is out of luck as far as concerts are concerned this winter. For the past two years the Community Concert Series of New York presented programmes but when Mrs. Bertha Bright Knapp announced an all-Canadian series of concerts for the coming season, it was decided to cancel the community concert series. However Mrs. Knapp has advised the local committee that she will be unable to present the concerts this year. That leaves local music lovers with no prospect of any high class musical presentations this season.

Planes Back In Use

LONDON, Oct. 7 (CP)—Five Canadian-built Argonaut Airliners, withdrawn last month from the British Overseas Airways Corporation Far East routes, will be reinstated next Tuesday, BOAC announced today. BOAC said trouble in the cooling pumps of the engines, which cause the planes to be withdrawn, now has been rectified.

Youth Acquitted

TORONTO, Oct. 7—(CP)—An assize court Thursday acquitted 16-year-old Gordon Graham on a charge of manslaughter in the rifle slaying of his father Douglas Graham, last Aug. 5. Gordon told the court he was carrying the rifle "at the point" when he entered the room where his parents were quarreling. He said the weapon discharged accidentally and he was not aware at the time the slug had struck his father.

GERHART EISLER, above, was named minister of propaganda in the Communist East German government, German news sources reported. Eisler is the 53-year-old German-born Communist leader who jumped bail on two prison sentences and escaped from the U.S. aboard the Polish ship Batory last May.

Pollution Worry Up To Provinces Chevrier Says

OTTAWA, Oct. 7.—(CP).—Provincial governments mainly are responsible for solving the problem of pollution of Canadian waters with oil, chemicals, raw sewage, rubbish and similar materials, the Commons was told Thursday.

Transport Minister Chevrier, saying that the international joint commission has been asked to investigate causes of the pollution of international waters, told members his department has power only to see that navigable channels are kept open.

The department has jurisdiction to keep out of the channels of navigable waters logs, sawdust, edglings, slabs and such things which may pile up in the channels and impede navigation.

He spoke before the House rejected "on division"—without a formal vote—a private member's bill that would have given the Government power to deal with the pollution of waters with any noxious products.

Wants Plants Compulsory

The bill, sponsored by Rodney Adamson (PC-York West), also would have required municipalities with a population of 3,000 or more to build sewage-disposal plants. It would have given the Government power to appoint inspectors to plants likely to discharge noxious substances in navigable waters.

Mr. Chevrier said the bill was clearly ultra vires—outside the jurisdiction of parliament — because it asked the Federal Government to handle matters involving a direct interference with the provinces' jurisdiction over property and civil rights.

However, he said, the international joint commission now is varrying out a survey on the pollution of international waters. He offered to extend the survey from the head of Lake Ontario to the international boundary at Cornwall.

War Of Ideologies

REGINA, Oct. 7 — (CP) — Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan said Thursday night an atomic war, should it ever become a reality, would be primarily a struggle between two ideologies. He said in an address "The conflict will arise between those people who believe in sacrificing their freedom for security and those who have lost their security because of their struggle for freedom."

Public Library Sees Increase In Circulation

Total increase to end of September in the circulation at the Public Library is 33,577 over the last year's figures. The increase is due largely to the addition of the branch library where there is a circulation of 8,987 books in the adult department and 15,400 in the juvenile department. In the adult department of the main library the increase is 2,842, while the juvenile department is up 6,348.

The circulation in the adult department of the main library fell slightly during September Mr. William Graff librarian reported. This he said was due to the Collegiate students who are not using the Library as much this year. Circulation in the juvenile department was 4,627 which was 1,729 over 1948's September circulation. Figures at the branch library for September were 1,174 in the adult department and 1,404 in the juvenile.

Total circulation in the Public Library and the branch library to the end of September was 141,763 with 83,627 books being circulated in the adult department and 58,136 in the juvenile.

Mr. Graff reported that Peterborough was close in competition with the libraries of Ottawa and Kingston as far as the movie section of the library was concerned. From figures received at a conference of the Federation of Film Councils of Eastern Ontario at Kingston September 30 and October 1 Peterborough had 1149 showings to 128,258 people while Ottawa had 1126 showings, 146,302 attendance and Kingston 1421 showings with 109,354 attendance.

Aged People Given Holiday

COBOURG, Oct. 7 (ENS) — The final group of old people arrived today at Illahee Lodge for a two weeks stay and the lodge will close for the season on October 14. Situated on Lake Ontario, the lodge was formerly the lovely summer home of Dr. and Mrs George Dennis of Chicago, and after his death was donated by Mrs. Dennis to the Kinsmen Clubs of Toronto.

Primarily it is for children suffering from chest, heart and diabetic ailments and each group of children in the summer gets three weeks stay in its healthful surroundings. However two groups of old people stay there from the middle of May until the middle of June when the children come. Three more groups are looked after here from August 29 until October 14 and each group stays two weeks. They are made up of people in the old age pension group. Each old person has two trips during his or her stay, in the new station wagon which Mrs. Dennis this year donated to the lodge and they are driven through some of the beauty spots of Cobourg district. The entire Illahee Lodge project is financed by the Toronto Kinsmen Clubs and operated by the Neighbourhood Workers Association.

Frank J. Mitchell

Mr. Frank Mitchell of Windsor, whose sudden death Wednesday shocked business associates and friends in Peterborough, won a place for himself in the city's annals because he put the first passenger bus on its streets. That was in 1927 after the collapse of the street railway system. When the Ontario Hydro Commission absorbed the local Radial Railway Company, notice was given that the tram system would be abandoned. It was, rather suddenly, and until Mr. Mitchell stepped in from Windsor and offered or was persuaded to set up an adequate bus service, Peterborough pedestrians had a few inconvenient days of compulsory walking. During the last twenty years of city expansion, Mr. Mitchell's company has proved that private enterprise can give good public service. Successive councils had had little cause to regret the franchise awarded Border City Transit, who operate the Peterborough Bus Lines.

Mr. Mitchell was even better known in Windsor than in Peterborough, and served two terms as mayor of the Border City. He had a reputation for alert business dealing, enthusiastic civic and social welfare work, and amiable sporting instincts.

Impressions Of Britain (4)

Many British business men think that if the complex net of regulations which covers all their work could be abandoned, they would be able to increase production and export trade enormously. They may be right, but there is no likelihood that the Labour Government will relax its hold on business, or admit that business is being strangled by it. All bureaucracies have a tendency to complicate matters; socialistic bureaucracies are worst of all; they have a genius for the complication and indeed the fantastication of business affairs.

It is debatable, however, if the abandonment of all regulations on business and trade would be posible. The Conservative party has been very cautious about promising any such thing. The economic stand of the Conservative party has, upon the whole, been vaguely stated. The Liberal party has been more specific in its suggestions, and its point of view has been attracting a good deal of attention. At the present moment the Liberal party is gaining popularity in many sections of Britain, and it may make a good show at the next General Election. It could hardly lose any of the twelve seats which it won in the election of 1945 without disaster; party optimists hope for perhaps forty seats in the coming election —a number which might put the balance of power in Liberal hands. If a future Labour Government were compelled to come to terms with a Liberal bloc in Parliament we should see a pretty display of fireworks at Westminster, for the Labour Party dislikes Liberal principles quite as much as it dislikes those of the Tories, and it knows also that the Liberal policy could seduce many Labour supporters who are not wholeheartedly convinced of the need for wholesale nationalization and a strictly controlled state.

* * *

The detestation in which the Liberals are held by the Labourites is not greater than the dislike which the Conservatives have for the Liberal party. The Conservatives feel that the Liberals merely waste votes which could be better used in defeating Labour. The Conservative press repeatedly urges Liberals to abandon their dream of party revival, and to get behind the Conservative cause. The Liberal party refuses to listen to such arguments. Liberalism, it says, is just as far removed from Conservatism as it is from Socialism—perhaps farther, and there seems to be little doubt that if the Liberal party were to disappear the bulk of its voters would carry on as right-wing socialists, acting as a brake on socialist ambition. The Liberals in England at present are not numerous, but they are remarkably perky, and they appear to be gaining adherents. The Cromwellian arrogance of some of the Labour leaders — Herbert Morrison and Aneurin Bevan in particular—has done as much for the Liberal party as the efforts of its own leaders.

* * *

The General Election, which cannot long be postponed, will be hotly contested, and certainly the complex subject of devaluation will be presented to the electorate in some misleadingly simple forms. The present writer lays no claim to prophetic gifts, and offers only tentatively the opinion that Labour will be returned with a marked loss in strength. But such a loss of strength will be almost as serious as a defeat, for the Labour Government has become accutomed to great power, and its socialist program demands great power if it is to be carried out at all. There is no room for half-measures. In a final editorial tomorrow we shall attempt to conclude this brief survey of the present state of Britain as it appears to a Canadian traveller.

Flurry Of Fire Reels

Three or four times a week our office serenity is wrenched by a roaring, raging, screaming and puffing along Hunter Street. (No, we shall have to omit the puffing; that is outmoded). 'Tis (or 'tare) the fire reels. On these occasions, like the gentleman who sprang from his bed, cap and all the night before Christmas, to see what was the matter—

Away to the window
I flew like a flash,
Tore open the shutters
And threw up the sash—

And we peer down the street. Now the siren is close, now the roar of the engine is right under our window! And now it is beyond, and the reels are blazing into East City.

It is terribly thrilling for the minute or three until we realize the anti-climax. Really the truck was not racing by our window at death-defying speed; the siren and the red paint camouflage the 25 m.p.h. waddle. And, most disappointingly, there is usually only one truck. We crane our neck out the window, looking and listening for more and lustier devil-dousing machines, but none is forthcoming. The excitement is less than we bargained for. We reluctantly pull down the sash, slowly close the shutters, turn to our desk like a disappointed drone, and clump away from the window. Show's over, and it was no show at all.

No matter how regularly we are cheated by the sirens, we fly to the window at every wail. Once, indeed, the reels stopped right under the window, and moreover the firemen dashed into our bulding. We continued to peer excitedly out the window, but it was difficult to see what was going on, for whatever the firemen were doing, they were doing it inside, on the floor below us.

On such rare occasions it is better to go below and see, rather than to rubberneck from above.

New Chinese Government

After Mao Tze-tung's official proclamation of a "Central Government of the People's Republic of China," Russia's quick formal recognition of Mao's Peiping Government is no surprise. It is a Communist government, but nationalistic as is Tito's Yugoslav government, though the Chinese Reds are not yet at odds with any Cominform. This new Government has by no means control of all China, but its successful military campaign, together with its promises of agrarian reform have given it as wide authority in China as the Kuomintang had excepting where there was a semblance of unity during the late war against Japan.

Will the Western Powers now give the tottering Kuomintang Government increased support, with or without Chiang Kai-shek, or will overtures be made to the new Government, in the hope of wooing it from Moscow? Britain is already dealing with the Chinese Reds in some parts, in order to safeguard British interests. At the same time she has vastly strengthened her Hong Kong defences.

It is an anomaly that in U.N. organizations such as the Security Council and the Trusteeship Council China is one of the "Big Five" by statute, yet the Chinese delegates now represent a Government which has comparatively no authority over China. The truth is that China is not in these times a Great Power. It seems that some modification of U.N.'s charter has been dictated by circumstances.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Football success, says a coach, depends chiefly upon the legs. Yes, even those of the cheer leaders make a difference.

We read that a single cactus plant may contain 100 gallons of water. This would solve the water problem in the desert, except that most people have a prejudice against drinking water that a cactus drank first

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

ALPHA: Are there any nudists camps in this district of Peterborough. I belonged to one in England, and would like to join one here. I enclose [illegible]ed, self-addressed envelope in case you wish to answer my question privately.

ANSWER: There is no need to answer privately; for one reason, there are no nudist colonies around, as far as I know. The district is either too hot, too cold, too mosquitoish or too too, for nudist camps. (I believe that one had an abortive beginning some fifteen years ago . . . was it in the Madoc area?)

Rent a tree-bordered piece of land, go swimming up the lakes at night, or get on a roof. Of course, none of these occupations is sociable; though I confess to seeing nothing attractively social about nudist camps. . . Men and boys swim in the Y.M.C.A. pool naked. Swimmers in the Y.W.C.A. pool are frocked, to some extent.

There seems to be no legal barrier to starting your own nudist colony. Nudity on private property and not in the public eye is not an offence, I believe, under the criminal code. Public nudity is an offence. Punishment: up to three years' imprisonment.

ANSWER to last week's question about the Rogers of Rogers' Rangers and whether his uniform is in the old Rogers home on the Norwood Road, between Inverlea and the High level bridge across the canal. This is a partial answer, because there is too much information for one gob. Several of the Rogers have very helpfully come forward with items of interest.

The family is of Norman French origin. Count de Rogier was an officer in the army of William the Conqueror. The family came to Britain, took part in the conquest of Ireland, and settled in the North of that country.

James Rogers, born 1700, emigrated from Londonderry to North America in 1740 and settled in the English colony of New Hampshire. This family seems to have been in fairly good circumstances, for it received the grant of a whole township. James Rogers died from the effects of a gunshot wound received in the woods near his own house. He was mistaken for a bear in the dusk of evening, and fired on by a party of hunters. He had five sons and three daughters, I am concerned here with the second Robert, and the third son James.

Robert was the famous Ranger. In 1775 he organized a company of scouts or rangers for service against French and Indians in New England. This developed into the "Queen's Rangers", which Robert commanded during the Seven Years' War.

When Quebec fell to Wolfe in 1759 Robert Rogers with 200 of his Rangers was sent by General Amherst to take Western Canada—that is the area between Toronto and Detroit. The French garrison of Fort Detroit surrendered to him in November 1760. This was the final French capitulation in British North America.

He later went to England and wrote his "Concise Description of the Colonies in North America, 1765". His portrait is in the British Museum. During the American Revolution he sided with the Loyalists. He reorganized his Queen's Rangers, but had to go back to England again, and Colonel Simcoe, later first Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada, took over command. Major Rogers died unmarried in England in 1784. No uniform survives, in Canada at least. James, the third son of the first North American Rogers, brother of Robert the Ranger Rogers, was the progenitor of the Peterborough Rogers and great-great grandfather of Mr. Claude Rogers, Mr. Heber Symons Rogers of the Liquor Store, and a number of others in the district. I shall bring the Rogers' family tree up to date from this great-great-grandfather next week.

DEAR ALPHA: (1) An Examiner headline spoke of a "Flyer". Is this spelling correct? (2) In what manner is Mrs. XXX spending the huge fortune which last spring your paper reported she was to receive?

ANSWERS: (1) "Flyer" is often spelt "flier"; but the two volume Oxford dictionary prefers flyer to flier. I could make out a case for "flyer" but I shan't. Try it yourself, through comparison with such words as fry, frier, fryer, and friar; flee, flea, fleer, flear; fie, fy, fyer, fier and fire; fytee, fight and fete; phutt, phlatt, phit and phyt.

(2) This is not a gossip column, and even though I might tattle a bit now and then for sheer pleasure, I do not know the lady you name, and consequently I am not on her warm side, and cannot give you the inside tale.

SIR: Why is Inverlea Park called Inverlea, and why do old-timers refer to the Inverlea bridge over the Otonabee as "the Black Bridge"? It is not black; it is white concrete.

ANSWER: Inverlea is so-called because the land and house which used to stand there, Judge Deninstoun's, father of Judge Dennistoun of Winnipeg, were called Inverlea. Why that name was given to the estate I do not know. Nor do I know why the bridge is called the Black Bridge. Can any of my readers help me out with this question?

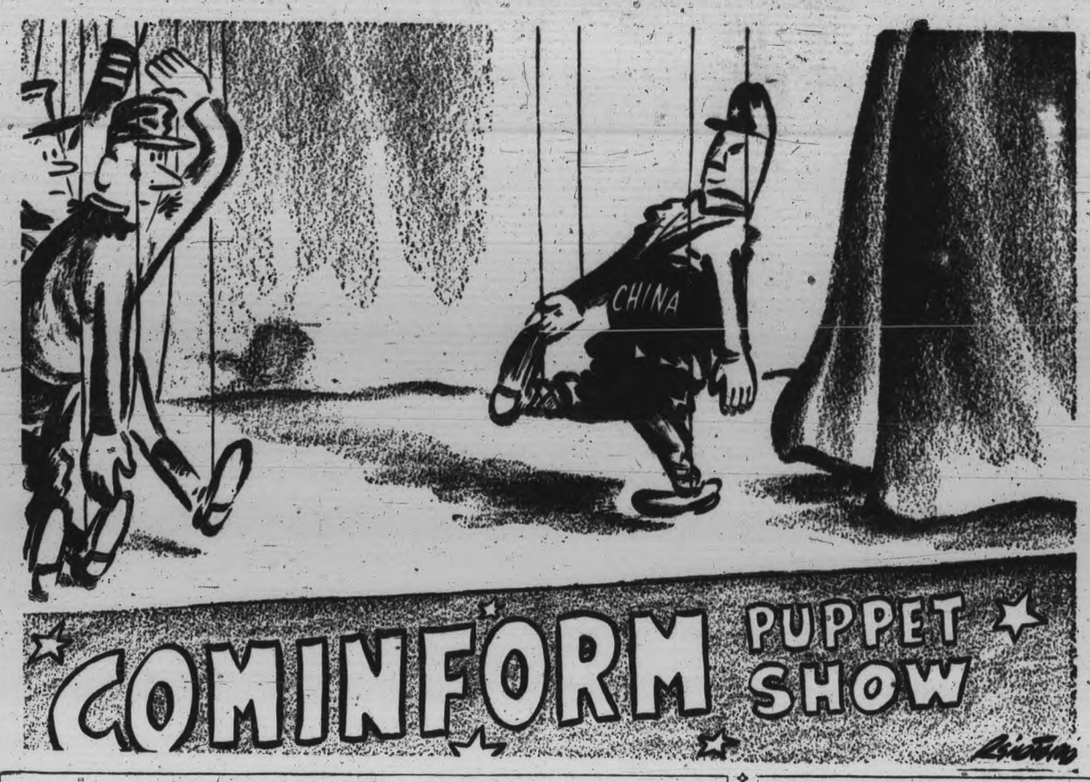
ALPHA: I never know when to keep and when to drop 'e's in such words as excitable, milage, truely. Can you give me a simple rule to follow?



ANSWER: Your question covers thousands of words. Does stale make staleish or stalish? love—loveing or loving, lovly or lovely? move—moveable or movable? singe—singeing or singing? mousey or mousy? notice—noticeable or noticable? whole—wholely or wholly? change—changable or changeable? judge—judgement or judgment? Here is a rule: If the suffix (that is, the -ing, the -ly or the -able) begins with a consonant (as -ly does), keep the 'e'; if the suffix beings with a vowel (as does -ing) drop the 'e'. Therefore you get excitable, milage, stalish, lovable and lovely, movable, mousy, judgement, changling and changing.

Exceptions to this rule are: the 'e' remains if the soft sound of 'c' or 'g' would otherwise be made hard; or if (as in singeing) it has to be insisted upon to distinguish two words —singe from sing. Examples of the common exceptions from the list above are singeing, changeable, traceable, (in the two last the vowel 'a' of the -able would have made the 'g' and 'c' hard in sound, if the 'e' were dropped).

There are some oddities, such as duly, truly, wholly. The 'e' is kept in gluey and bluey, for fear that guy and bluy might be pronounced in the manner of buy and guy. It's not hard, really. Keep the 'e' if the suffix begins with a consonant, drop it if the suffix begins with a vowel, except if the vowel is 'a' or 'o' and follows upon a soft 'c' or 'g' in the stem.

FOR THE RECORD: For the first time in the history of Peterborough, there has been ice-skating as early as October 1st. The reason is that this is the first season that Peterborough has had artificial ice on a rink. By last December the "Civic Arena", once known as the Secondary Rink, was built and open. But it had only the ice which natural frost would provide. Little was provided all winter. The City Fathers decided that really the place should have artificial ice, so at considerable cost to the citizens (via rates), artificial ice now surfaces the rink.

Letter To The Editor

BRITISH REPLY TO MRS. ADDYMAN

Sir: After just having read an article in your newspaper dated Aug. 4, 1949, a copy of which my mother has just brought back with her from Peterborough where she has recently been on holiday, I feel compelled to write a reply which, although promising to be rather lengthy, I trust you will find space to publish.

The article to which I refer is headed "English Women Change Dresses at Rummage Sales", edited by Margaret Lancaster, being a report by the President of the Peterborough Council of Women on how she found the Old Country during her stay here this summer, and it is to this person that I beg leave to direct my remarks through the medium of your columns.

When I read the article aloud to the rest of my family their first reaction was one of utter amazement, followed by one of uncontrollable mirth.

We frequently read reports, Mrs. Addyman, in our own newspapers of some of the things that many Canadians and Americans say about our country after having spent brief holidays over here. Most of the reports seem so far-fetched that we usually discuss them with a smile, but I have one such report before me now and far from being amused, I find it difficult to adequately express my deep indignation at the falsehoods contained in your report. I'm afraid that you, like so many of our visitors have been tempted to spread abroad some of the Tory propaganda so cunningly issued to our overseas visitors, particularly those of you from the New World.

Please do not think for a moment that I, in my turn, am desirous of spreading Socialist propaganda in the same way, through the medium of this newspaper. One does not have to have Socialistic tendencies to realize that you could not have seen for yourself all the things you state are taking place in this country. They were obviously things told to you by certain people here who cannot buy all the luxuries to which they were accustomed before the war. These people, I'm afraid, are doing their utmost to give you the impression that the British are a sorely oppressed people.

Believe me, not one person in this country today can truthfully say that he or she does not get sufficient to eat or is unable to buy new clothes. The idea is totally preposterous. As for us exchanging our clothing at Rummage Sales—well, I certainly have never heard of it being done in this city, or anywhere else for that matter. Before the war it was always a regular occurrence at most of the churches in this country to organize what are termed Rummage or Jumble Sales, particularly in the poorer class districts. They were, in those days unfortunately, a necessary evil for many of the poorer working class.

No doubt, Mrs. Addyman, you reported in good faith that these Rummage Sales do exist, but what you should have added was that they existed before the war when there was a far greater need for them.

At the beginning of your report you say "almost everything is rationed and prices are very high. If you can afford to buy on the black market or stay in high class hotels and pay prices prohibitive to the average person you can do all right".

I presume, after reading the rest of your report that you are mainly referring to clothing and food. In the first place let me inform your readers, although many will no doubt already be aware, that no clothing of any kind is or has been "officially" rationed for months before your arrival here in England. I say "officially" because such luxuries as nylon stockings are still difficult to obtain, but I wouldn't go as far as to say that this shortage of a luxury makes us objects of pity. None of my family, nor any of my working acquaintances or friends complain, apart from nylons, of not being able to go and buy whatever they need in the way of clothing and all are average wage-earners of between £6 and £7 per week.

To emphasize your point you quoted the example of a "little old lady wearing a threadbare dress with a lengthy history of ownership." But surely you have poor people in your country too Mrs. Addyman who find they cannot afford to buy a new dress and who would be only too pleased to purchase a second-hand one at a Rummage Sale. To quote this old woman as an example of national poverty is a trick, which we in England generally associate with the Tory propaganda office of Lord Woolton's Fighting Fund.

Another point you raise, the one of queueing, is a very sore point indeed with us over here, but certainly not in the same way that you imply.

Queueing has become a national habit, having been of necessity first adopted during the war years. There are good and bad habits however the world over, and although many overseas visitors find the custom rather amusing at times, most of them have been favourably impressed by the general improvement which the habit has brought about in our national behaviour. After all it is so much better to form an orderly queue for a bus or train instead of all waiting in a mob until it arrives, then stampeding towards the door like a herd of cattle. I would recommend the habit to many of our Continental friends in particular.

As for your comment "I don't see how the women have time to do anything in their homes when they spend all day standing in queues"—the answer is of course that except on occasions when the local shop has something special to sell, there is absolutely no need for the busy housewife to waste her time that way.

I am going to be even more outspoken to you on the subject of our diet Mrs. Addyman as your remarks about our bread looking as though it were made from floor sweepings is just about the most untruthful part of your report.

It may not be quite so white as the Canadian variety, but to suggest that it is so far removed as to be even grey would be a lie. I myself have eaten bread in both your country and in America during the war years and quite candidly, ours is only slightly inferior in taste and very, very slightly off-white. I have just eaten some for my evening meal Mrs. Addyman and do not anticipate in the least having any stomach pains afterwards.

"The average Englishman is putting on a good front but down deep he is very discontented" you state next. I think if you had met a real average Englishman over here you would never have written such a grotesquely inaccurate report and so I fail to see how you can make such an assertion. However, for your information, the average Englishman is putting on a good front and is discontented, not "down deep" as you suggest but quite openly.

He is discontented, a mild description really, at the stupid lies and reports which are published so frequently in transatlantic newspapers about the way he and his family live, and how everyone is clamouring for a General Election. He hopes that the next time you visit our country that you will move amongst our people just a little more and after attending your next meeting of our Tory sponsored "British Housewives' League", that you pay a visit to the housewives that really matter over here. The ones that have no time for such frivolities but only time and money to spend looking after their families.

They will tell you the same as I have been endeavouring to do Mrs. Addyman, that as much as we in this country have been knocked about by our enemies during the war and by some of our so-called friends since, we are still a proud nation and intend to remain so in the knowledge that our country will eventually recover her former prosperity as long as we are given a fair chance and a helping hand. Am I being un-British in saying that I think we deserve it?

In winding up my lengthy reply which I felt compelled to make to your report Madam, I trust that it will reach you and that you will accept it as a true comment on life in England from one who has no desire whatever to spread abroad any particularly brand of English policies, but only to refute your entirely erroneous report in your capacity as the President of your Women's League.

Let it be more generally known over your side of the water that Britain is not "out on her feet" as is so popularly supposed in America. We may be down on one knee still a little dazed but we certainly do not appreciate the booing from the ringside seats.

An occasional cheer would help us no end.

Yours faithfully,
JOHN L. TATLOW.
70 Hartley Rd., Nottingham, England.

PLEASED WITH BOOK REVIEWS

Sir: I am delighted that the book reviews will be continued. Although we all read reviews in other periodicals, I have found the ones appearing in the Examiner very interesting and have not been disappointed in a book recommended. Many other people feel the same way, I am sure.

Yours sincerely,
BOOK LOVER.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And he turned him unto his disciples, and said privately, Blessed are the eyes which see the things that ye see: for I tell you, that many prophets and kings have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them. (Luke 10: 23, 24.)

And he was casting out a devil, and it was dumb. And it came to pass, when the devil was gone out, the dumb spake; and the people wondered.

But some of them said, He casteth out devils through Beelzebub the chief of the devils. And others, tempting him, sought of him a sign from heaven.

But he, knowing their thoughts, said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and a house divided against itself falleth.

If Satan also be divided against himself, how shall his kingdom stand? because ye say that I cast out devils through Beelzebub. And if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your sons cast them out? therefore they shall be your judges.

But if I with the finger of God cast out devils, no doubt the kingdom of God is come upon you. (Luke 11: 14-20.)

Royals To Use Dan Bankhead

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 7 (AP)—Dan Bankhead of Montreal and Mel Queen of Indianapolis got the nod today to try to pitch their respective teams out in front in the little world series tonight.

Clarence Podbielan pulled the Royals even with Indianapolis on Wednesday night with a two-hit 7-1 victory. It was bankhead who got the International Leaguers off the mat with a triumph Monday night after the Indians had won the first two games at Montreal.

The Royals eased the pressure on Podbielan before he took the mound, getting him a pair of runs in the first inning, and made the score 6-0 in three.

Chuck Connor's home run in the third was the big blow of the nine-hit Montreal attack and was the Royals' first homer of the series. Rocky Bridges got three of the hits.

The Indians scored their run in the fourth by combining their two hits with two of the five walks Podbielan yielded.

Joe Muir, who whipped the Royals in the opener Saturday night, was nicked for seven hits in three innings and was lifted for a pinch-hitter.

STEAL STRIKE—Pee Wee Reese slides into second base safely on his stolen base in the eighth inning. The Yankee's Phil Rizzuto had to leap in the air to catch Yogi Berra's high throw. The umpire is Art Passarella. Reese was left at second, and the Yanks went on to win, 1-0, in the first game of the World Series at the Yankee Stadium, New York.

Toronto Leafs Hit By Injuries

By The Canadian Press.

Injuries are hampering Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League—just as they're preparing for the All-Star game at Toronto Monday.

The Stanley Cup champion Leafs, none of whom had been placed on the all-star team, Thursday lost the services of Frankie Mathers, who suffered a broken toe during a practice session. He is expected to be out of the lineup for at least two weeks.

Mathers is the second rearguard sidelined for the "big" game. Gus Mortson last week suffered a minor leg fracture at the Leaf's St. Catharines training camp.

However, Mortson is expected to be in shape when the Leafs open their NHL League schedule Oct. 15 against Chicago Black Hawks. The League starts Oct. 12 with Boston Bruins at Detroit Red Wings.

Rangers Shaping

The New York Rangers' roster is taking more definite shape as the Blueshirts whirl through practice sessions at their Lake Placid, N. Y., training camp.

Manager Frank Boucher and coach Lynn Patrick Thursday talked new contracts with players following their 4-1 win over New Haven Ramblers, their American League farmhands, Wednesday.

Boucher started Chuck Rayner in the nets with Wally Stanowski and Gus Kyle, star rookie from Regina Capitals, holding down the first-string defence posts.

Would Delete Dominion

OTTAWA, Oct. 7 (CP) —The Commons Thursday gave first reading to a private member's bill that would eliminate the word "Dominion" from the revised statutes of Canada. Bona Arsenault (L-Bonaventure), sponsor of the bill, said it would substitute "Canada" for "Dominion of Canada" wherever it appears. Where "Dominion" is used it would substitute "Canada, Canadian, Federal or such other adequate word."

Is O.A.T.A. President

TORONTO, Oct. 7 (CP)—G. M. Parke of Toronto was elected president of the Ontario Automotive Transport Association here Thursday at the association's 23rd annual convention. L. G Teakle of Woodstock, was named vice-president and J. O Goodman of Toronto was elected general manager.

Ladies' Lawn Bowling Club Re-elects Officers For 1950

Augmented by many guests, about 60 members of the ladies' lawn bowling club attended their annual banquet and meeting, on Thursday night in the club's parlor, McDonnel St.

President Robert Gamble occupied the chair and in opening the meeting he paid tribute to the ladies for the splendid dinner and the big attendance. He congratulated the ladies for the good work they did all summer and hoped they would continue to do so.

The secretary's report read by Mrs. H. Wilson was favorably received as was the treasurer's report given by Mrs. J. Adams.

Many items of business were discussed, the main one being just how the schedule rinks were to be chosen. This was a real live issue and it was finally decided by a close vote to have a blind draw.

Robert Hendry led the singsong with Mrs. W. Greenslade at the piano. Many of the men guests spoke and all agreed that the ladies had enjoyed a fine season.

The highlight of the meeting was the presentation of a life membership to Mrs. W. Greenslade. Mrs. Greenslade richly deserves the honor, being one of the oldest and most faithful member. Mrs. Greenslade is the first lady lawn bowler to be so honored.

So completely satisfied were the ladies with last year's officers that all were re-elected:

Mrs. H. Staunton, president; Mrs. L. Bearne, vice-president; Mrs. H. Wilson, secretary; Mrs. J. Adams, treasurer; membership convener, Mrs. L. Ackford; games convener, Mrs. L. Bearne; social convener, Mrs. H. Staunton.

After the prizes had been distributed to the successful winners one of the best annual meetings came to a close.

During the evening the gathering was favored by recitations by Mrs. A. Aitkenhead and solos by Mrs. L. Grainbridge.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

Two grid games under the arcs at Morrow Park tonight. Lindsay and the junior PCI-ers tangle at 6.30 in what should be a nifty number. Scugog squad is reported pretty strong and will be meeting a husky crew in Alex Londry's lads. This one is followed by a senior school fixture betwixt Oshawa Collegiate and Bev Goulding's good PCVS pack. Both are group scheduled scraps and they rate a real crowd. The rugby offering for Monday (Thanksgiving Day) here is at 2.30 in the Oval when St. Mike's of Toronto tackle St. Peter's in their annual exhibition match. Same day sees the ORFU Panthers off to Oakville for a league tussle.

Coach Bev Goulding of the Collegiate seniors is shooting for his fourth straight COSSA senior title this semester, and that in his sixth year in Peterborough. A mighty fine record. Son of George Goulding, Olympic walking champion back in 1912, Bev Goulding didn't have the opportunity as a student to play Canadian rugby, but did play English rugger out in Vancouver. He attends every coaching school he can, and it has paid off in successful grid squads at PCVS, a school with a long and triumphant football record under former coaches like C. S. Browne, Ernie Legon and H. L. Bamforth. Players with McGill, Queen's, Western and Beaches — like Blair Thomson, Moe Richardson, Jack Sisson, Jack Matthews and Don Lech—played here under Mr. Goulding. His team will go shortly in the Red Feather tournament of champions in Toronto.

Kansas City A-Comin'

Hockey comes to Peterborough the earliest on record this Monday night at 8.30 on Civic Arena's artificial ice. A swell exhibition expected when Hank Blade's pro Kansas City Mohawks meet a bolstered Petes' team under Ed Foley. Sugar Jim Henry, who played goal for Rangers and Black Hawks, will be in the net. Doug Baldwin, formerly of Leafs, Johnny Harms—ex-Hawk—and Blade, who played for Hawks, will be on the KC crew. It is a potent pack, recently trimming Oshawa Generals handily, and the show will be good. Reg Hamilton, chief scout for the Chicago Hawks, has promised to be on deck to referee. Yeah, a fine attraction to open hockey here.

We'd like to mitt some of the workers for minor ball in the city the past season. Chaps like Alex Kay, Al Watkins, Ray Pammett, Bill Murphy, Jack Heffernan, Bill Post, Ed Woodcock, Gord Young, Walt Dinesen and several more. It was just a so-so season, with lack of grounds and early organization making for too few frays for the boys. One of our clubs went into OBA playdowns with just six or eight games under their belts and met a Toronto team that had played 30 games this year. However, minor ball was kept alive through the efforts of these and a few more officials, and they and the young players deserve credit.

Preacher Roe shaded Vic Raschi on the mound yester aft as Brooklyn Dodgers pulled out a 1-0 win o'er New York Yankees. So the World Series is squared at a game each, both by 1-0 counts. That's championship ball. Some 70,000 fans saw the lanky southpaw dish up some great spot flinging in a six-hit chore, with Raschi giving but seven bingles. Jackie Robinson's speed on the paths paid off in the lone run as he took third on a pop foul and later scored. Next three games are in Brooklyn and then, if necessary, the series will wind up back at Yankee Stadium. The players' cut comes out of the first four games, so they never try to prolong this big series.

Civic Arena is in great demand now by the puckists here as they workout every chance they get. Drills there (all opens tomorrow morning as follows: Northend bantams at seven, midget Marines at eight, and junior "B" Oddfellows from nine to 11. Following this last drill, many of the 60 or so prospects will be cut loose. Any of last year's PMHA teams not yet entered must do so by a 7.30 p.m. meeting Thursday in the "Y", when entries close. All executive, managers and coaches should attend, since too many teams want in and some will have to be left out. Those interested might phone Les Mountney at 4219. Some talk now of the PMHA-ers playing from six to eight free Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, though these are OHA nights, and likely those clubs will insist on the place being cleared shortly after seven. Minors will also be worked in in a few other spots.

McCormack Rolls High Of 1014 In Men's League

In the Men's City Five-Pin League Frank McCormack rolled 325-368-321 for a grand total of 1014 for high three and high single for the night and a new high three for the season. McCormack's performance puts him in the bowling hall of fame, for to this writer's knowledge, only two other bowlers topped the thousand mark in competition, Leo Martyn and Harold Legrow. It was a smart effort by McCormack who is one of the city's better bowlers.

McCormack's effort gave his team high pinnage and also a four-point win from the Sunoco squad. Shockey's had high single game of 1341 as they blanked Babe's Place.

Tem upset the strong Cavanagh entry six points to nothing. Charlotte Credit Jewellers won by the same margin from Dunn's Tailors. Empress Old Timers, Esquires, Bond Clothes and Clapper's scored four-point victories.

Bill Martin rolled 883 and Harold Legrow 827 behind McCormack. Other good singles: Bill Martin 328, J. Stewart 323, Roy Lewis 321, Harold Killen 312, El Downer 308, F. Martin 310, and George Hunter 301.

Gets Minor Bruises

SASKATOON, Oct. 7.—(CP).—Ralph Fox of Napanee, Ont., escaped with minor bruises Thursday night when an automobile collision hurled him into a ditch near Dundurn, 30 miles southeast of here. Fox had stopped to clean mud from his car's headlights when a second vehicle, driven by Thomas Leach of Regina, crashed into the parked car.

Warn Robinson Stop Criticizing League Umpires

NEW YORK, Oct. 7—(AP) — Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn's explosive second baseman has been given a sharp warning by Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler to "behave himself."

On the carpet as the result of an outburst in the spring and banished for a run-in vith an umpire in one of the late season games, the Negro infielder drew another rebuke for criticizing the umpiring in the first world series game.

After the opening series game, won by New York Yankess 1-0, Robinson beefed about the work of Plate Umpire Cal Hubbard.

Jackie said, "I've never seen such bad strikes called. He actually called a pitchout a strike."

Later when he had cooled down the infielder said he was sorry about his remarks and wanted to make a public apology.

"I lost my head," he said. "We were beaten legitimately and I thought, all in all, Hubbard called a good game."

In the meantime, Chandler instructed Robinson, through Manager Burt Shotton, to be more circumspect in dealing with umpires in the future and "act like the big league ball player he is."

The commissioner said he wanted Robinson to quit "popping off" about umpires.

Brooklyn Ties Up Series With 1-0 Win, Odds Down Moving To Ebbets Field

BROOKLYN, Oct. 7.—(AP). — Once again Preacher Roe's crafty left arm has turned night into day for Brooklyn. Now it's up to Rex Barney, Ralph Branca, Don Newcombe and the strong, young arms of Burt Shotton's staff to subdue New York Yankees. Roe did his bit by squaring the World Series with his 1-0 victory over Vic Raschi in Thursday's second game. If it goes six or seven, as seems likely now, the "Preach" from the little hill town of Hardy, Ark., may be in there again. But not before Monday or Tuesday.

Even the odds-makers saw the light in Roe's homespun masterpiece. Instead of the easy-does-it 1 to 3 favorites of Wednesday, the Yanks now are o nly 3 to 4.

If Barney or Branca, whoever gets the nod from Shotton, can beat lefty Tommy Byrne today as the scene moves to Ebbets Field for three games, the Brooks will be the choice. Barney has a 9-8 record, Branca 13-5 and Byrne 15-7.

Brooklyn fans figured Newcombe, beaten despite 11 strike-outs in the 1-0 opener by Allie Reynolds, won't lose another one like that.

There won't be half as many people present in Flatbush as the 70,053 who decorated Yankee Stadium Thursday, but you can bet they will make more noise.

No matter what happens today, baseball people will be talking over the Roe-Raschi and Reynolds-Newcombe duels for months to come in the hot stove league.

First Shutout

Mixing well his sweeping curve, change of pace and "fast ball," Roe handed the Yanks their first shutout of the season at Yankee Stadium.

The Dodgers and Yankees go into the record books as the first to play two 1-0 games in the same series, let alone in succession. There have been shutouts galore, especially in 1905 when all five games were whitewash jobs, but never two like these.

Jackie Robinson provided the run Roe needed Thursday in the second inning. Robby doubled, took third on a foul pop and scored on Gil Hodges' single. That was it.

Only once did the Yankees have more than one man on base at the same time. They never did get two hits in the same inning.

It was the eighth when the pressure really was on Roe. Casey Stengel, searching his bench for a pinch-hitter, sent big Johnny Mize up to hit for Charley Silvera. Mize celebrated his first world series chance in 17 years of waiting with a single.

Bobby Brown, the 1,000 pinch-hitting ace of the '47 classic, was called out on strikes but Roe fumbled Phil Rizzuto's sacrifice bunt for an error. There were men on first and second with Tommy Henrich, the home run hero of the opener, at the plate.

Heat Off

Roe took Henrich to 3-2, and then retired "Old Reliable" on a hoist to Luis Olmo. Hank Bauer, another long ball hitter, drew three straight balls and then a strike before he forced Rizzuto on a bouncer to Spider Jorgensen. The heat was off.

Joe DiMaggio, who had gone 0 for 6 in the series, beat out a slow roller for a single starting the ninth and Roe again was threatened. But he struck out Johnny Lindell, made Bill Johnson pop out and ended the game with Jerry Coleman's outfield fly.

All this time, from the fourth inning on, Roe was working despite a painfully injured finger. A smash to the box by Lindell tore hal fthe nail off the fourth finger on his right hand. Doc Wendler, the club trainer, drilled a hole in the nail to let out a pocket of blood after Roe batted in the fifth.

Hasty-Pees Senior Infantry Unit of First Brigade In City For Annual Reunion

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment now holding its fifth annual re-union in Peterborough is one of the oldest, if not the oldest, rural regiment in Canada.

Recruited mainly from farms, the rocky highland region and small urban centres of Eastern Ontario, the Hasty-Pees in the Second World War showed that these regions settled first by United Empire Loyalists still produce first-class soldiers.

It was the senior infantry (rifle) battalion in the First Brigade in the First Canadian Division. And it was one of the first non-permanent units called for active service when war broke out in 1939. When it went overseas in that same year, similar to 1914, it went over as part of the First Canadian Division.

Contributed Two Generals

The Regiment was also distinguished by the fact it contributed two generals to the Canadian Army Overseas. Lt.-Col. H. L. W. Salmon, MC, the CO in 1940, was promoted to Major General in command of the 1st Canadian Division but he was killed in an airplane crash in 1943.

Lt.-Col. Howard D. Graham of Trenton who went overseas as second-in-command, succeeded him as CO and later was promoted to Brigadier in command of the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade.

As part of the first Brigade Group the Hasty-Pees were one of three Canadian units that got to France before that country fell before the onslaught of the German army in 1940. The others were the 48th Highlanders and the Royal Canadian Regiment.

After it got back to Britain having undergone shelling from enemy coastal artillery and dive bombers as the embarkation took place in France, the unit was credited with being the first Canadian one to bring down an enemy aircraft.

Forced Moro River Crossing

Battle honors were added in the brief Sicilian campaign and the long bloody battles in Italy The HPE's made an outstanding contribution in the drive toward Ortona by being the first Canadians to force the muddy Ortona River and dislodge the solidly entrenched Germans.

Although re-organized in 1921 to form the present Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment the record of those two UEL county units dates back to the 1700's

Nominal rolls preserved in the Regimental HQ at Picton go back to 1800 when the militia began training in that centre under Governor Simcoe. Picton got its name from Sir Thomas Picton, a British general who served under the Duke of Wellington at Waterloo.

The first actual war experience the militia had was in the 1812-14 campaign against the United States. In 1837 the unit was again called on to repel the Fenian Raid. A number from the district took part in the South African War.

Forty-one Picton men went overseas with the First Contingent in 1914, fourteen days after war had been declared. Prince Edward County alone sent more than 800 men of which 150 were casualties. A similar contribution was made by Hastings County.

The Regiment was re-organized in 1921 to include the 49th Battalion of Hastings Rifles (1866) and the 16th Prince Edward Bttalion of Infantry (1863). It also included the 39th, 80th, and 254th Battalions, recruited in the Bay of Quinte district in the First World War.

Battle honors of the First World War include Mount Sorrel, Somme 1916, Arras 1917, Hill 70, Ypres 1917, Amiens, Hindenburg Line Pursuit to Mons.

Library Club Aids In Work

PCVS' library circulation for September was 2,136, which was 221 over the same period for last year. In the first four days, the library opened, the circulation was 819, Miss Genevieve Fowler, librarian, said Thursday.

Over half of the books read during the month were fiction, LIII. Biography books were fairly widely read with 308 taken out, travel, 225, literature 222 and history 139.

"We just couldn't cope with a circulation this large without the help of the girls," said Miss Fowler, referring to the 32 girls from the diferent grades and departments who assist her in the library before and after school hours. These girls form the library club of the school.

Besides offering reading material to the students Miss Fowler conducts periods in library science once a week for each of the classes in grades 9 and 10, commercial 12 and 13.

Left Wingers Take Defeats In CCL Meetings

OTTAWA, Oct. 7 (AP)—Communist sympathizers are not wanted in the Canadian Congress of Labor.

Delegates made that point clear at the big labor organization's annual convention Wednesday as anti-Communist forces routed left-wingers in a day-long running battle.

In a series of noisy, rough-and-tumble debates the red-liners absorbed four resounding defeats and took thumpings on a number of minor issues.

With the 800-odd delegates voting about 10-to-one against the leftist fringe of the convention, approval was given to an executive-sponsored foreign policy resolution declaring support of the Atlantic Pact, ERP, and world inspection of atomic control and disarmament.

Same Majority

The noisy, hard-struggling left-wingers lost by the same majority as the convention registered support of a new union set-up by the CCL in Northern Ontario in the mine-mill field.

The move virtually sealed the doom of the Communist-influenced International Union of Mine Mill and Smelter Workers. The union has been suspended and the CCL executive will propose its expulsion later in the convention.

The Leftists also took a thumping defeat as approval was given to a trade resolution in which the Congress urged a five-point plan to meet Canada's "Foreign Trade Crisis" by cutting down imports from the United States, stepping up exports to the U.S. and stimulating markets in Commonwealth and other countries.

They failed, too, to jam through a proposal for re-affiliation of the Congress with the Russian-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions. The CCL broke away from the Federation earlier this year.

Accidents Cost Ontario $23 Millions

Management and foremen must assume their share of the responsibility for accidents which occur at the rate of 443 a day in Ontario in manufacturing shops of all kinds, T. A. Rice, vice president of International Harvester Company of Canada told about 100 members of the Lindsay-Peterborough section of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations Wednesday night.

He said accidents cost Ontario more than $23,000,000 last year. He pointed out only through management and workers co-operating could accidents be cut.

A large percentage of industrial accidents were attributable partially or wholly to management. Too often the supervisory aspect of safety was lax.

He said it was the job of the supervisory force, works managers and foremen, to see that safety equipment was in good condition and was used.

Removed Glass

He told of the case of a man who lost an eye during his work. The man was supposed to wear goggles constantly on his job. When the goggles were inspected after the accident, it was found there was no glass in them. The victim said he had taken the glass out, because it was too hard to keep clean.

Even in this case, management must take its share of the blame, Mr. Rice said. The day the man lost his eye was not the first day he had not worn his goggles, he pointed out. He should have been checked.

It was the responsibility of the employee to know the safest and most efficient way to do a job; to co-operate in using all safety measures; and to be willing to correct and point out the unsafe methods used by other workers.

In a similar manner, said Mr. Rice, it was management's job to see each employee was trained to do the work expected of him; to provide machine guards and safety clothing; and to see that every safety rule was lived up to.

Mr. Rice was introduced by L. H. Ingram and thanked by Ian McRae. The meeting was presided over by Dave Leether, the section's new president.

Latvian Freed On Rape Charge

SAULT STE. MARIE, Oct. 7—(CP). — Aleksandres Logins, 28-year-old Latvian displaced person, was acquitted Wednesday on a charge of rape. The complaint was laid by a 20-year-old girl who alleged that Logins criminally assaulted her the night of July 19.

The jury deliberated two hours before bringing in its verdict.

Mr. Justice Schroeder, after discharging the jury, warned Logins that he has made a bad start in Canada by associating with bad companions and drinking indiscriminately.

The charge arose out of a driving-drinking trip engaged in by five young men and two girls. The girls had met the men in Thessalon, had a few beers, and arranged for a ride with them to the Sault where one of the girls was to have visited her mother.

PAPER BOY'S BRAVERY AVERTS DOUBLE-DROWNING

Jack McCallum, 15, of Matachewan, Ont., rescues youngsters from runaway raft

Two young boys had pushed a small, home-made raft out from shore and the swift current had quickly carried them out where there were dangerous rapids and whirlpools. Newsboy Jack McCallum heard their cries and, kicking off his boots, dove into the river and swam toward the pair. He reached the raft just as it was entering a swirling eddy. Trying to calm the youngsters down, the gallant youth began to push the raft against the current — swimming with one arm! Finally, with his two charges safe, he reached shore. We are proud to present The Dow Award to 15-year-old Jack McCallum.

THE DOW AWARD is a citation presented for acts of outstanding heroism and includes a $100 Canada Savings Bond. The Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Canadian daily newspapers, selects winners from recommendations made by a nationally known news organization.

Asbestos Mine Producing Soon

MATHESON, Ont., Oct. 7 (CP)—Canada's newest asbestos mine is expected to go into production nine miles east of here by next May 1.

Since development started last March, more than 45,000 feet of diamond drilling has been done at the Munro mine of the Johns-Manville Company and officials says at least one ore body has been outlined.

Work on the project is to be continued during the winter by the company, which already has a big plant at Asbestos, Que.

Mining men here say the Northern Ontario asbestos deposit was revealed by a prospector from this area, who went to Asbestos, Que., to borrow from a friend enough money for a grubstake. While there, he watched shaftsinking operations at the mine and was amazed to learn that the greyish white fibres in the rock were asbestos. He is reported to have remarked:

"If that's asbestos and it's worth money, I know where there's a whole country full of the stuff!"

Men Lost 5 Days Turn Up Unaware of Wide Search

MORIN HEIGHTS, Que., Oct. —(CP)—Tony Muller, 27, and Lawrence Dymashuk, 26, Thursday night walked into this Laurentian resort town and announced they were safe—unaware that they were the objects of a widespread search.

The two young men said they became lost five days ago while on a hunting trip but kept going until they sighted Morin Heights at 8 p.m. Thursday night.

Muller and Dymashuk walked into a general store here and asked the proprietor if they could use his phone.

"Sure," he said. "Say, did you fellows hear anything about those two young men who were lost in the woods?"

Muller and Dymashuk looked at each other for a moment.

"Why, I guess he means us," they said to each other.

They said they were unaware that their plight had drawn enough interest to organize a search.

For four straight days parties have been searching the dense woods northwest of here in an effort to find the young men, who went on a duck hunting trip Sunday morning that was to last two hours.

Elizabeth May Fly To Philip In Malta, Leave Charlie Home

LONDON, Oct. 7 — (UP). — Informed sources said that Princess Elizabeth was expected to leave baby Prince Charles in Britain and join her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, in Malta shortly before Christmas.

The Duke is scheduled to join the British Mediterranean Fleet, based on Malta, as first lieutenant in the destroyer Chequers on October 17.

No definite plans have been announced from Buckingham Palace. It was understood the Princess was torn between leaving her 11-months-old baby or joining her sailor husband.

Sailing Two Years

Prince Philip's seagoing appointment will last about two years and he is likely to be at sea three months at a time.

It was agreed Elizabeth would fly to Malta to join the Prince whenever he returned from his tours of sea duty. It was understood she would stay at Malta while the Prince's ship was in port, but would return to Britain when he went to sea again.

This will be the third time that Princess Elizabeth, as heiress presumptive to the throne, has left Britain.

In 1947 she went with the Royal Family on a tour of South Africa. A few months after her marriage she and the Duke spent a few days in Paris.

Baby Prince Charles, one year old in November, will remain at Windlesham Moor, the country residence of his Royal father and mother.

First Long Separation

It will be Prince Charles' first long separation from his mother. Last June the Princess and the Duke visited the Channel Islands for three days, leaving the baby at home.

The Princess has told friends she does not want to take the baby for fear of upsetting him.

She was reported afraid the long journey, the change in climate, and the "new way of life" might affect him adversely.

At Malta, Princess Elizabeth undoubtedly will stay with the Earl and Countess of Mountbatten at their palatial villa on St. George Cross Island.

Lord Louis is Commander-in-Chief of the British Naval Cruiser Squadron in the Mediterranean, and also is Prince Philip's uncle.

Princess Elizabeth probably will lead an active social life at Malta. The base is judged one of the gayest in the world.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—The United States government on Thursday backed Kaiser-Frazer plans for a new, low-priced automobile with a $34,400,000 loan to the company. K-F was known to be well advanced on planning for a new model, reported to compete in the Chevrolet-Ford-Plymouth price class, when it began negotiating for the loan about four months ago.

Uses Iron Lung Made By Father

COVENTRY, England (CP)—A home-made iron lung constructed by a Coventry engineer from plywood, sponge rubber and a length of vacuum-cleaner hose, is helping restore the health of his 14-year-old daughter, an infantile paralysis victim.

When she contracted the disease, Ann Evans was placed in a full-length iron lung in Coventry hospital. Doctors said she would do better in a chest-type lung which would permit massage of her limbs. But there was only one such lung in England—in London.

Her father, A. F. Evans, went to London, studied the chest lung and noted how it worked. Then back home in his garage he constructed a model which worked perfectly when given a trial at the hospital.

Now Ann, her chest encased in the lung made by her father, is making progress toward recovery and is getting the daily massage treatment doctor's say is necessary and which the hospital's full-length equipment would not permit.

When Ann recovers, Evans says, he's going to give his home-made lung to the hospital.

Cattle Prices Unchanged During Week

TORONTO, Oct. 7 (CP)—Prices on the Toronto cattle market were unchanged this week, the Dominion Marketing Service reported today. Prices of calves, hogs, sheep and lambs were also steady and unchanged.

A moderate run of 6,500 cattle was added to a heavy holdover from last week. Fresh receipts included 1,500 westerns, mostly stockers. Moderate runs alone prevented further price declines as beef trade was exceptionally slow. Export buying was light and domestic buyers were very choosy. Medium to good weighty steers sold at $20-$22.50. Good light steers brought $19.50-$20 with a few good heifers at $18.50-$19. Plain to medium steers and heifers sold at $16-$18 and boners from $13-$15 a hundredweight. Good cows closed at $14-$15 Canners and cutters were from $9-$11.50. Good bulls were $16-$16.50 with a few fat at $17. Plain light bulls sold downward to $13.50. Fed yearlings ranged from $19-$24.50.

A small supply of good Hereford feeders sold at $19-$20.75. Ordinary stockers were from $13-50 for plain up to $18.50 for medium good quality.

Calves totalled 2,503 head. Prices were firm at $26-$28 a hundredweight for choice quality vealers. Plain to medium varieties sold from $16-$24 and grassers for slaughter brought $13-$15.

Hog receipts totalled 2,865 head. Prices were unchanged at $29.50 for grade A and $29.10 for grade B1. Sows were steady at $19 dressed.

Sheep and lambs offered totalled 3,823 head. Good ewe and wether lambs were $22, with bucks selling at $21 and culls mostly $15-$17 a hundredweight. Good light sheep brought $9-$11 and a few Western ewes reached $11.50. Cull sheep sold downward to $5.

Whitehall Notebook

College Goes Commercial Principal Protests, Quits

LONDON, Oct. 7—(CP)—The old question of being idealistic at a loss or practical at a profit has cropped up to torment intellectuals in all British political parties.

It centres around Ashridge College, a lovely old house set in the woodlands of Hertfordshire. Once it was known as the Bonar Law College, in memory of the Canadian who became British prime minister. At that time it was closely associated with the Conservative party.

More recently, efforts have been made to conduct it as a non-party centre for adult education in public affairs. The college has been run at a loss.

This continuing deficit prompted the chairman of the governing body, Lord Davidson, a canny Aberdonian, to recommend that some changes be made. The chief was the addition of a secretarial and citizenship course for well-to-do young women.

Gen. Sir Bernard Paget, who became principal of the college after a brilliant military career, was given provisional notice to leave, and promptly resigned.

The public soon learned he was not alone in his objections. A number of notables wrote a letter to the Times of London praising Gen. Paget's administration and saying it would be a "national misfortune if, for financial, political, personal or any other reason, this work were not to continue."

The young ladies will begin their course in Ashbridge's new "House of Citizenship" next Jan.

Gen. Paget's chief objection to the Davidson Plan appeared to be his feeling that Davidson was turning away from the "classless" tradition that has prevailed at Ashbridge since 1946. All pupils receive the same treatment, whatever their birth or background.

Washington Spotlight

Li'L Abner, Joe Palooka Helping U.S. Bond Sale

By GEORGE KITCHEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (CP)—L'Il Abner, Joe Palooka, Terry and the Pirates and the rest of the comic-strip gang came to Washington this week to take their place in history.

They brought with them their creators—the 50 top-drawer cartoonists of the United States—for a three-day jaunt around the capital. Their prime purpose was to give a lift to the sale of United States government savings bonds.

The historic aspect of the show came when the comic-strip characters found themselves placed along the staid walls of the library of Congress in an exhibit entitled "20,000 Years of Comics."

There, the cartoonists heard themselves praised by John Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury, as men "whose creations are awaited each day by more people than have ever seen a Rembrandt or a Reubens." Their readers totalled more than 40,000,000 a day and the library itself preserved their work in 10,000 volumes.

The exhibition of which their creations formed a part traced the history of comic art from the caveman era to modern times. In addition to ancient drawings, it included such early modern comics as "Yellow Kid," which started in the old New York World in 1896, "Buster Brown," successor to "Yellow Kid" and "Happy Hooligan," one of the most famous of the early strips.

Cartoonists Visit

The cartoonists took time out to visit—and sketch—President Truman at the White House. After a session of sketching in the White House Rose Garden Milton Caniff, author of "Steve Canyon" and president of the National Cartoonist Society, asked:

"Mr. President, do you want us to leave these sketches of you here or with the secretary of the treasury?"

"You don't think I'm going to let them out of here, do you?" Truman shot back.

From Washington, the cartoonists went on a 17-city tour to push savings bonds.

The Savings Bond Division of the United States Treasury Department decided several months ago to build a promotion campaign around the comic strip because of the universal interest they draw and because of the outstanding work done by the artists in promoting sales through their drawings.

2 Omemee Men Injured, Auto Is Ditched

Two Omemee men were injured on Highway 28 shortly after midnight, when the car in which they were driving went out of control and turned over in the ditch a mile south of Fraserville.

As a result of the accident Ross Johnson, 20, of Omemee is in Civic Hospital with multiple cuts to the face and a head cut. Hospital authorities said early today that his condition was "good."

The driver of the Peterborough-bound car was Norman Graham, 29, also of Omemee. He was taken to hospital where he was treated for lacerations on his chin. Later he was taken home by provincial police.

It was raining heavily when the accident occured. The car is believed to have skidded slightly so that the right wheels hit the edge of the paved surface of the highway. It then went out of control to the west side of the highway, struck a tree, and turned over in the six-foot ditch.

The car was badly damaged.

Johnson, the more seriously injured of the two, was promptly taken to hospital by a passing motorist. Graham remained with the car until Provincial Police Constables R. A. Feeley and G. W. Stevens arrived. They then took him to Civic and later gave him a ride home.

Gives Up Search

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(AP).—The RAF has given up its search for those still missing among the 41,000 men it lost in the Second World War. The RAF Thursday announced disbanding of the missing research and inquiry service, which has found and identified the bodies of 23,000. Many more were located, but were not identified. "It must be considered that between 12,000 and 17,000 others were lost at sea," the service said in its final report.

Refuse Plans To Renovate Public Library

Plans to renovate the Public Library, drawn by L. G. Bridgman, a London, Ontario architect, were refused Thursday by the Library Board. At the March meeting of the Board it was decided to terminate relations with Mr. Bridgman when advised that the plans would be delayed due to a six-week holiday for his health. On September 24 the plans for the revision of the library arrived from Mr. Bridgman.

Upon further correspondence with Mr. Bridgman Mr. William Graff, librarian said Mr. Bridgman denied receiving the letter announcing the termination of relations with the Board.

Frank Hickey moved that the plans be returned to Mr. Bridgman with a letter stating that he was advised last March of the break between himself and the Board. K. S. Wightman, chairman of the Board, requested that a copy of the March letter be also sent. The motion was seconded by the Rev. E. C. Moore and passed by the Board.

Labor Reporting Better Handled

OTTAWA, Oct. 7 — (CP). — Newspaper reporting of labor news improved in the last few years, the Canadian Congress of Labor convention was told today in the annual report of its Publicity Committee.

"A great deal more labor news is appearing in the daily press and the level of reporting is much superior to a few years ago," the report said. "More and more Canadian newspapers are assigning individual reporters to the labor field....

"While there has been an improvement in the handling of labor news, there has been a marked deterioration in the handling of political news and frequently complete distortion in the reporting both of domestic and international political news.

"The case of two Toronto evening papers which received national attention were not isolated examples. Newspapers in some other communities have been guilty of partisanship."

(In the political field, the Congress has designated the CCF as "the political arm" of labor.)

U.S. Diplomats Meet

MOSCOW, Oct. 7. — (AP).— United States Ambassador Alan G. Kirk will leave Moscow tomorrow to attend a meeting later this month in London of American envoys to Eastern European countries. (The State Department announced in Washington Thursday that U.S. diplomats in the Russian orbit countries would meet Oct. 24 to exchange views.)

Famed Regiment Hasty-Pees Meeting In City

Old comrades of the hard-fought campaigns in Sicily, Italy, and Northern Europe will swap yarns of Second World War battles this weekend when the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment holds its fifth annual re-union in Peterborough.

The two day program will include a dance on Saturday night, a memorial service and parade on Sunday afternoon, followed by the annual Association meeting and banquet.

Apart from the social aspect of bringing together the expected 700 ex-Hasty Pees, the purpose of the re-union is to raise money to provide scholarships for children of members of the regiment killed overseas.

Each year at least $800 is earmarked for the scholarship fund, and at present at least 21 applications are on file.

Draw tickets are being sold by all former Hasty-Pees, proceeds going to the fund; and a prize will be awarded to the lucky winner.

Enquiries have been received from members living all over Canada, including the Dominion's 10th province, Newfoundland. And there may be some visitors from overseas as well. It had been hoped that one of the guests would be Lord Tweedsmuir, son of Canada's late Governor-General, but it is doubtful if he can come.

As Major Alastair Buchan he was secoad-in-command of the Regiment in Sicily, and took over command during the attack on Assoro when the C.O., Lt.-Col. B. A. Sutcliffe, was killed by an enemy shell.

The majority of those attending the Peterborough re-union will be from Brockville, Cornwall, Kingston, Belleville Toronto and Picton. All of these have local clubs.

Named After R.S.M.

The Peterborough group is called the "Duffy Club," named after the famous RSM Angus Duffy, of Trenton. It has more than 160 members from the city and district. The Rev. Walter J. Gilling, of St. Luke's Anglican Church, was the unit's wartime padre.

As a gesture of hospitality the Hasty-Pees are inviting any member of the Canadian Army that served with the 1st Corps in Italy. The Association feels that many veterans of the Italian campaign are distant from the Regimental headquarters of their home unit and would enjoy meeting their former fighting buddies.

Picton, the wartime Regimental H.K., was picked for this year's re-union but the Armouries there burned down forcing the Association executive to advance their plans by one year.

The schedule calls for the vets to register at the Armories Saturday afternoon. That evening will be open for members of the Association and their friends. Chief event of the evening will be a dance at the Canadian Legion Hall, sponsored by the Red Patch Club.

A service of remembrance will be held on Sunday afternoon in Confederation Park at the War Memorial. Here the Regiment will assemble to pay tribute to its war dead. A color party, bearing the campaign flags will head the parade from the Armories, and a wreath will be laid on the Memorial.

Major General H. D. Graham, CBE, DSC, vice-chief of staff, and former CO of the Regiment, will take the salute at the march past following the service.

The itinerary of the Regiment as it moves off to form up for the march past will be from the War Memorial down George to Charlotte, east on Charlotte to Water, north to McDonald St., then south on George again past the saluting base.

Band From Toronto

Two bands will be present to lighten the steps of the vets with martial music. One of them will be the crack drum and bugle band of the Queen's Own Rifles Regiment of Toronto, and the other will be the Peterborough Citizen's Band. It is expected that Lt.-Col. A. A. Kennedy, D.S.O., of Owen Sound, will be in command of the parade.

Later a banquet will be held in the Canadian Legion Hall with the Ladies' Auxiliary of Branch 52 catering. All ranks and civic officials will be present for this annual event.

Afterwards the business session will get under way. The year's work of the Association, which sponsors the re-union, will be reviewed, and there will be an election of officers for 1949-50.

Simultaneous with the banquet and meeting at the Legion the ladies accompanying the Hasty-Pees will be entertained at a dinner in the Empress Hotel.

Postal Employees Honor Veteran Clerk Ernest Cook

Postal Clerk Ernest Cook of 52 McDonnel St., was honored on Thursday afternoon by fellow employees with a presentation of a set of pipes on the occasion of retirement after 25 years in the Post Office. Postmaster Charles Lacheur did the honors and Mr. Cook thanked his working associates warmly for their kind gesture.

A veteran of the First World War, he entered the service in 1924 and was posted to the night shift from 5 p.m. until midnight in city sortation and forward dispatch. He has worked on this trick for 25 years.

City newspapermen have a special soft spot in their hearts for Ernie Cook, too, for he way always anxious to go out of his way in giving them every assistance when they too were working late hours.

Mr. Cook locked his last mail sack on Thursday evening to go on a five months' retirement leave and after that time, superanuation. He is not married and as far as could be ascertained had no special hobbies.

"A very eficient clerk," was the praise given to him by Postmaster Lacheur before his fellow workers.

JUDGE AT TEESWATER

Archie Clysdale of Old Orchard Farms was judge of the Hereford cattle class at Teeswater fair Wednesday. It was the regional white-faced cattle show as feature of the fair. Crowd was estimated at 15,000 including Hon. A. C. Taylor, minister of agriculture in New Brunswick. Of the Hereford section, Mr. Clysdale said: "The best I've seen anywhere."

WATER ST. LIGHTING

Mayor Swanston said today he understood it was the intention of the Utilities Commission to extend the new Water St. line of lights to the north end of the city. It is one of the main entrances into Peterborough, he said, and warranted improved type of lights. Some of the others that are being displaced will be used in parts of the city that are getting their first lights.

BIG CHEESE SHOW

Robert Bell, assistant agricultural representative, judged the entries of the boys and girls' calf club at Madoc fair Wednesday. They showed 20 Holsteins. Mr. Bell assisted in the other details of the club's achievement day. The crowd was estimated at 6,000. Centre of the Hastings cheese industry, this branch of the fair brought out 47 cheese of this year's manufacture.

King St. Paving May Attract Bus Terminal

Completion of the King St. paving, within the next 10 days, is largely an investment in another secondary central street.

"We think the Utilities Commission will put up a row of new lights between George and Aylmer streets," said Mayor Swanston today. "If they are as bright as the new lights on Water St., I think they would be entirely satisfactory for the present."

"Then, with a paved and well lighted street we have an idea that Colonial Coach Lines will decide to build on King St. a bus terminal worthy of Peterborough, the company and its growing business."

Mayor Swanston said Colonial Coach has been talking of an ambitious plan for Peterborough ever since they came here. The company has been gradually putting their intentions into effect with the acquiring of franchises.

"That company is not going to be satisfied very long with the shabby office they moved into at King and Louis Streets. We know the government plans for a customs and postal building on that Charlotte St. lot west of the creek and that is going to account for the major development of that central block probably for years."

Traffic Study

His Worship said he felt the members of this year's council had given a lot of thought to traffic matters. A special committee was appointed some time ago to make a thorough study of this problem.

"The council is concerned about reducing traffic on Charlotte St." Mayor Swanston said "To that end, Sherbrooke St. was paved this year from Park St. to Water St., and as chairman of the council I'd like to thank the ratepayers on Sherbrooke St. for their co-operation. We got ahead with that work without any opposition. The traffic planning has not been completed, but signal lights were ordered months ago and the council will gradually get this improvement done."

Mayor Swanston said the council had gone into traffic matters without much booming of intentions, and their work should show considerable progress toward solution before the year ends.

"I would like to say for the council that they have been much concerned with the changes in the central section of the city and I think we have kept up with that pace by the King and Sherbrooke paving and in the traffic improvements which will be set up when the equipment is received.

Other Projects

Mayor Swanston said that the widening of Aylmer St. from King to Dalhousie St. might be arranged next year if it appealed to the council as a desirable undertaking. CNR widened the top end, immediately south of Charlotte St. The block between Sherbrooke and Dalhousie Streets is the property of the Utilities Commission who might be amenable to recognizing pressure of traffic encroachment on midtown boulevards. Finally, the central block between King and Sherbrooke Streets should offer available frontage for a moderate widening project. Frontage owners are CNR and Harold Morrow, the latter's property being where the clapboard terrace has stood for a long time.

"We have the report prepared by Inspector Page of Toronto as one of the ideas to work on," said Mayor Swanston, "and I think we are going to some steps in solution of traffic before the year ends."

Given Two Nights Lodging In Lindsay Rectory Returns To Commit Theft

A youth who had been given two nights' lodging by a Roman Catholic priest in Lindsay now faces a charge of robbing his benefactor.

Provincial Constable G. W. Stevens arrested the youth, John Paul, 20, of no fixed address, when he left an Omemee pool room Thursday night and was about to enter a taxi. He was carrying $100 in United States money.

An alert Omemee storekeeper was responsible for the tip-off. He told police that Paul entered the store and purchased a wallet, at the same time flashing a large roll of American money. His suspicions aroused, the storekeeper informed Constable Stevens, who, then kept an eye on Paul, passing his time in a pool room.

It was ascertained that he had been lodging Tuesday and Wednesday nights at the Rectory of Dean J. V. McAuley of Lindsay. Police claim he returned to the rectory Thursday night, sometime before 8.30 p.m. and committed the theft of more than $100.

At the time of Paul' arrest the theft had not been discovered or reported. The youth, who originally was from Ottawa, was handed over to Lindsay police.

It is expected he will be charged with breaking and entering and theft.

CGE PLAYERS WIN

The CGE cribbage team defeated the Canadian Legion players by 37 points in the first game of the season played on Wednesday night in the Legion hall. The final score was CGE, 8,135; Legion, 8,098. First prize went to Hillier and McKane with 953 points, second to McCartney and A. Bailey and third to W. Suddards and Donahey. All prize winners were members of the CGE team. Next Wednesday night the Letters Carriers will meet the Legion.

Moon Eclipses Behind Blanket Of Dark Clouds

Any of the Peterborough people who stayed up a few minutes longer Thursday night to see the eclipse of the moon were disappointed, for, with thick cloud blocking not only the moon, but the stars also, no one could tell what was happening up above. The eclipse occurred at 10.20 p.m.

Peterborough residents were no more unfortunate than most others in this part of Canada and throughout the States.

A thick blanket of low-hanging clouds drew a curtain across the skies in many areas and blotted out the total eclipse, the second for the moon this year.

From New York to Minneapolis, and from Boston into the southern United States, the phenomenon generally was obscured.

Some western areas and a few in the far north and south reported good views of the celestial show.

Eclipse of the moon—not an uncommon occurrence — occurs when the earth stands directly in line between the moon and the sun.

The refracted light of the sun, which ordinarily gives the moon its pale glow, is then cut off momentarily

Lancaster Plans Circus Film In Competition

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 7 (AP)—Burt Lancaster is proceeding with plans for a circus film in the face of competition from Cecil B. DeMille.

Lancaster appears unperturbed by the fact that the veteran director has been travelling with the Ringling Bros.-Barnum and Bailey circus and plans an epic of life under the big top.

"We aren't competing with him," says the actor, a former circus star. "He's competing with us. He couldn't possibly get the background we gained through personal experience."

Lancaster has arranged a role in the film for his former aerial partner, Nick Cravat. The actor took a couple of writers with him when he toured with the circus this year. He plans the production for sometime next year and hopes that it will do for the circus "what 'Red Shoes' did for ballet."

Burt's acrobatic training comes in handy in his current film, "The Hawk and the Arrow." It's a 12th century action yarn—his first costume picture—"and I jump from cliffs and buildings, ride bareback and fight." He also adds to the current "beefcake" trend by baring much of his manly chest.

Friday Footnotes

Alfred Hitchcock has returned after directing "Stage Fright" in Britain. He'll travel again for his next one. His "I Confess" will be filmed partly in Quebec.

Eleanor Parker has her own way of choosing children's names. She had 20 picked out for her last one—"but when I saw her, she looked like a Susan, which wasn't even on the list." So she's waiting until she sees her next baby, which is due next April.

Helen Wescott, Gregory Peck's leading lady in "The Gun Fighter" is an acting veteran despite her tender years. She served nine years in the local long-run play, "The Drunkard." She's the daughter of the late Gordon Wescott.

Strike Settled

HONOLULU, Oct. 7—(CP)—Agreement for settling Hawaii's stevedore strike, which began 159 days ago, was reached Thursday, with a settlement based on a 14-cent hourly wage boost now and an additional seven cents an hour next March 1. Hawaii's 2,000 CIO stevedores were paid $1.40 an hour before the long strike began.

To Review Act

TORONTO, Oct. 7 (CP)—Appointment of Mr. Justice W. D. Roach of the Ontario Supreme Court to review the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Act was announced Thursday by Labor Minister Daley. Purpose of the review is to enable Mr. Justice Roach to make recommendations as to broadening and improving the functioning of the act, he said.

CHANGES SCHEDULED?—R. C. Vaughan, top, has been rumored as retiring from the office as president of Canadian National Railways. Past the retirement age of 65, Mr. Vaughan has continued in the post at the request of the federal government. Mentioned as possible successor to Mr. Vaughan is M. A. Metcalf, lower, now vice-president of the system. Transport Minister Chevrier has, however, denied the retirement rumors.

ACCUSED ARRIVES—Wedged between hefty provincial detective Martin Healy and a constable in uniform, thin, long-nosed J. Albert Guay, 32, Quebec jeweller, accused of the killing of his wife by planting a bomb in an airliner, is rushed into court for his preliminary hearing. The crash at Sault au Cochon on Sept. 9 killed 23 persons, including Mrs. Guay.

No Further Movement Down

Mystery of Garden Hose Still Remains Unsolved

The Kremlin's spies must have reported that their new type of communistic infiltration has been discovered because the movement of the garden hose which on Friday night mysteriously went into the ground has ceased.

Since last Saturday the hose has not moved further into the ground. Friday night after a two-hour period Douglas Blodgett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Blodgett, 98 Lansdowne St., found the hose with which he had been washing Mr. Blodgett's car embedded 10 feet in the ground. Friday night and Saturday the hose moved another two feet but stopped there.

Such questions as whether the pixies were flushing the area for diamonds; whether the Kremlin was digging through or whether a sea serpent had seized the hose will likely be answered. Mrs. Blodgett said today that the hole which was dug around the hose to a depth of three and a half feet will be filled in to lessen the chances of children in the neighborhood being hurt. She added that since the "Mystery of the Moving Hose" as disclosed dozens of people have visited the area to see the strange spectacle.

However one southender has come up with the explanation that probably there was an old well in the garden. This was filled in and when the hose was left running it was sucked down into the cavity caused by the filling in the well settling. The attempt to pull the hose out failed when the nozzle became wedged between two stones.

DIG OUT FOUNDATIONS

Steamshovels Tuesday afternoon began digging out the foundation for the extension to the Peterborough Bus Lines maintenance depot on Hunter St. That phase has now been completed and wooden forms are being built in preparation for pouring cement.

President Wants Federal Aid In Universities

OTTAWA, Oct. 7 (CP)—Dr. A. E. Trueman, president of the University of New Brunswick, Thursday night called for federal aid to universities.

Addressing a dinner meeting of NBU alumnae how living in Ottawa, Dr. Trueman said universities all across Canada were facing lower revenues with no chance of reducing expenses proportionately.

"The time has come for the federal government to participate in some kind of support of higher education in this country," he said.

Dr. Trueman, former president of the University of Manitoba, said that the heads of universities from all sections of Canada met several months ago with Prime Minister St. Laurent and Finance Minister D. C. Abbott to urge such aid.

"What will come out of it, I don't know," he said.

Despite a student registration of 1,076 students this year, revenues at UNB would be down some $85,000 from last year.

"This is an illustration of what every university in the country is facing. We all have sharply reduced revenues with no prospect of making comparable reductions in our expenditures. We have to find some way for the participation of the federal government in edueation."

OPPORTUNITY AHEAD—Ernest Bevin, United Kingdom foreign secretary, received a rousing ovation when he appeared before the delegates to the annual Canadian Congress of Labor convention in Ottawa. Mr. Bevin, a veteran trade unionist, is shown as he told delegates that organized labor is just now emerging into its greatest period of opportunity.

Propellor Made Trouble For Miss Canada

By HAROLD WILSON

PICTON, Oct. 7 (CP)—Speedboating is the most temperamental sport in the world. Miss Canada IV is proof of that.

Her trials, two in Detroit and two here, have taught us innumerable lessons, and I still have lots to learn after nearly 25 years in the game. I did, of course, expect a normal number of "bugs" to develop after first launching her just 3½ months ago.

Many people probably expected a world-beater. I must admit I was of the same opinion although there is a theory in the speed-racing world that at least a year of trials and experiments is necessary from date of launching before any craft of the unlimited-type class—and Miss Canada belongs in that category—is ready for competition.

In A Hurry

Maybe I was hasty in putting Miss Canada to the test so soon. I was all too aware that my other boat, Miss Canada III, had taken 10 years to achieve any measure of success but I hoped—and sensed—that No. 4 would be an exception.

To a great extent it has been just that, although it has known three major disappointments—the Harmsworth Trophy races in Detroit in August, the world-speed trials here three weeks later and the Silver Cup races in Detroit in September.

However, it was from these failures that we learned the source of our troubles rested on the propellors.

Our razor-edged props were too thin for the great surge of power from the 2,500-horsepower engine. They were being uniformly forced out of shape—all invisible to the naked eye—until the Silver Cup when one propellor buckled almost completely.

Up to that point we had been following a false trail. We thought Miss Canada's ailment was in the engine.

The remedy was a heavier type of propellor, but to this day we have not affected a complete cure. We are still seeking that happy m[illegible]um between—thickness and th[illegible]ness.

Business Men To Discuss Trade Problems

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Canadian business men will get a chance to sit down together and exchange ideas on current problems of trade and finance at two important gatherings this month.

One is the annual convention of the Canadian Exporters' Association, Oct. 20-21, and the other the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, Oct. 25-27. Both are in Montreal.

Forum discussions at the exporters' convention will include:

The world dollar problem, export advertising, foreign credit, air cargo, and international trade arbitration.

These discussions will be mainly devoted to an examination of Canada's position in the foreign trade field, against a background of widespread currency devaluations. They will be led by economists and trades well-versed in them, and there will be opportunity for discussion and questions by all delegates.

Luncheon and dinner speakers will be Sir Graham Cunningham, chairman of Britain's dollar export board; E. E. Schnellbacher, director of intelligence and services, office of International Trade, Washington; and Trade Minister Howe.

About 500 delegates from coast to coast will attend.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce meeting will be the usual big congress of Canadian business men, and will also have talks by economic experts on economic problems. It will be addressed by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Sir Neil Ritchie Prepares For Washington Post

SINGAPORE—(CP)—Gen. Sir Neil Methuen Ritchie will take up his post on the joint chiefs of staff at Washington next year, but right now two other matters seem more important—obtaining living quarters in the United States capital for himself and his Canadian-born wife and waiting for his fractured leg to heal.

General Ritchie will be Commander, British Army Staff, and military member of the joint United States-Britain services mission to Washington next March. His task on the joint chiefs of staff will be to co-ordinate British and United States military policies.

Until recently Sir Neil was commander-in-chief of Far East land forces. He was scheduled to relinquish this command in February, 1950.

Last June his horse slipped and fell on muddy ground, breaking the general's left leg. The fracture is healing nicely but Gen. Ritchie now has to carry about his 203-pound six-foot two military frame aided by two heavy crutches. Consequently, it was decided that he should quit his command immediately.

While Sir Neil frets about the annoying slowness with which his leg is mending, Lady Ritchie joins him in wondering about finding a home in Washington and a school for their two children, Dugald, five and Anne, three.

Formerly of Kingston, Ont.

Lady Ritchie is the former Miss C. T. Minnes of Kingston, Ont. The Ritchies met in 1937 when Sir Neil was a lieutenant-colonel making a trip through the United States. After a brief courtship, Miss Minnes joined him in England where they were married. The tall charming Canadian will leave a busy social life in Singapore, but her social calendar in Washington will probably be just as crowded.

Gen. Ritchie, 52, has been an active soldier for 35 years. At 17 he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Black Watch, famed Highland regiment, after being educated at Lancing College and Sandhurst.

He served with the Black Watch during the First World War, was wounded and decorated twice. He received the Distinguished Service Order and the Military Cross. He emerged from the conflict a captain, after combat service in Belgium, France and the Middle East.

Between the wars he was active in sports. At the outbreak of the Second World War he was a lieutenant-colonel and later rose to full general.

He was in command of the 8th Army from November, 1941, to July, 1942, when he was succeeded by Gen. Montgomery. In 1943 he assumed command of the 12th Corps, which he led throughout the invasion of Europe.

Sir Neil will bring to his new post an intimate knowledge of Far Eastern problems as well as those of the western world. During his 2½ years in Singapore, he has seen at first hand the mounting threat of Communism in Asia.

Winnipeg Man "Shot" Kipling

WINNIPEG, Oct. 7 — (CP) — The man who "shot" Rudyard Kipling was J. W. Gibson, a Free Press photographer.

In Winnipeg to take part in the city's 75th birthday celebration, Mr. Gibson said it was back in 1907 that the Winnipeg Free Press ran a streamer headline with pictures of "Rudyard Kipling and the Man Who Shot Him." Half the front page of the paper was devoted to the story.

"In dark room language, Mr. Gibson did shoot Kipling. He was the first and only photographer who was able to obtain an un-posed picture of the English poet.

Kipling, Mr. Gibson relates, refused to be photographed in an unconventional pose. He always was on guard against photographers and would successfully shield his face.

The photo was obtained through the co-operation of the Canadian Pacific Railways. Gibson arranged with them to have the train stop at a certain point and a marker was raised to indicate the spot to the engineer.

In the station, directly opposite from where the rear exit of the observation car would stop, Gibson had a window removed, a small hole cut in the blind, and two cameras set up. He also arranged to have Kipling leave the train first and when he did so, Gibson asked permission to photograph him.

Seeing no photographer, Kipling "arrogantly declared he would wait but 30 seconds. Gibson then signaled his men in the station and Kipling was "shot".

Now 77, Mr. Gibson still is in the photographic business. He owns an establishment in Saskatoon, which specializes in mail order finishing.

Famous Mascot Be Seen In Hasty-Pees Parade

When the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment stage their march past on Sunday afternoon one of the chief figures at the saluting base will greet them hot with a snappy salute but with folded arms and a fixed stare.

This will occasion no surprise because the stolid onlooker will be Chief Petawawa-Much II, the cigar-store Indian mascot of the unit. And behind him and his ancestor there is an interesting story.

While in Picton in 1939 the Regiment decided the thing to do was adopt a mascot. As the badge of the unit included a stag, a party of scouts, full of high hopes, set out from Bancroft to capture one.

Their scouting proved satisfactory but they had not solved the problem of capturing the animal. When the stag was sighted it was brought down with a barrage of rifle fire and the would-be mascot was fit for eating only.

So the "plow jockeys" as they became known later decided on a cigar-store Indian as their good-luck omen.

The good luck didn't hold too long however, for when the Hasty-Pees made their hurried trip to France in 1940 (and their equally hurried one out again) they were forced to bury their towering wooden redskin at Brest.

A replacement was called for from home. And the present six-foot-six "Little Chief" was carved from a 20-inch pine felled at Pembroke.

The new chief was shipped overseas and soon took the place of his ancestor. His post was outside the door of the Battalion Orderly Room where he could see what was going on.

He was parted from the Bn. when it left the United Kingdom in 1943 to take part in the Sicilian campaign; and he remained behind with the rear party.

After his unit had fought its way from Sicily, up the long narrow leg of Italy, through the south of France to Holland, the Chief rejoined his more mobile comrades in 1945.

The mascot returned with the unit and took up his peacetime duties, but still overlooking the HQ location. He will be present at this fifth re-union, as at the four others, and will arrive in Peterborough for the first time Saturday as part of a HQ motor convoy.

Austere Life In England Fails To Daunt British Housewives

HAVELOCK, Oct. 7 (ENS) — Mrs. J. Feasy of England, who is staying with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Crooke, was the guest speaker recently at a meeting of Havelock Home and School Association.

Mrs. Feasy said life in England was austere and especially so since the war, and that it seemed as though one could become accustomed to almost everything in time. This, she said no doubt accounts for the cheery attitude of the British housewife who often feels harassed trying to provide tasty meals for her family.

"If you Canadian wives were confronted with the English ration of food for a week," he said, "I think you would be faced with starvation for the greater part of that week. Mrs. Feasy said that by careful saving of coal during the summer months, the British people manage to keep one room warm in winter. Some are fortunate to have electric fires but are warned to be sparing of the power so as not to affect industry.

Canada Appeals

Speaking about Canada, Mrs. Feasy said our lakes, rivers and beautiful surrounding scenery as well as the friendliness of the Canadian people have appealed to her very much, and she has found the well filled stores of special interest.

Mrs. L. H. Cooke, health convener, in the absence of Mrs. F. McKay, was in charge of the program and gave a health talk on "Safeguarding the Child's Health." A solo was sung by Mrs. W. Godsby with Mrs. Donald Kirk as accompanist. George Heath of Trent River entertained with two piano-accordion solos. Mrs. James Wilde conducted the installation ceremony for the officers unable to attend the regular installation and the recently elected members of the executive committee.

CAPETOWN, Oct. 7 (CP)—An 11-year-old white girl has given birth here to a baby weighing six pounds 10 ounces. Hospital authorities described condition of both mother and infant as satisfactory. The father of the baby is reported to be a 21-year-old man.

"THE CRADLE OF CANADIAN SURGERY", is the affectionate name given by many doctors to the surgical amphitheatre at the Central Division of the Montreal General Hospital. Surgery was first taught there in 1887 and many a student has received his initiation into the science while sitting in its bowl. Every fall many former students and other doctors crowd in during the convention of the Montreal Medico-Chirurgical Society to learn the latest wrinkles in surgery.

Washington Tries Coal Settlement With Prospects Not Too Bright

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(CP). — Lanky Canadian-born Cyrus Ching, the United States Government's chief mediator, tries his hand today at coaxing soft-coal operators and John L. Lewis into a strike settlement. The prospects looked poor.

Negotiations for a new coal contract were recessed indefinitely at White Sulphur Springs and Bluefield, W.Va., so the Government could bring the interested parties together here.

The Government gave little outward sign of anxiety over either the 18-day coal strike or the shutdown of the country's basic steel mills by Philip Murray's CIO steelworkers.

Ching, born at Red Point, PEI, turned his attention from steel to coal this week, but was expected to call for talks next week at halting the steel strike, too.

Any fact-finding board appointed in the coal strike undoubtedly would delve into $100,000,000-a-year welfare fund which Lewis has tried to carry on from the 20-cent royalty on each ton of coal, collected from the operators but paid by the customers.

The pensions and other benefits were suspended by Lewis and the other trustees Sept. 16, on grounds the fund was running out of money.

That brought the shutdown of hard and soft-coal mines across the U.S., without any public order from Lewis. He directed that anthracite miners in Pennsylvania and the soft coal diggers west of the Mississipi River to return to work last Monday.

Mothers, Teacher Meet At School

HAVELOCK, Oct. 7.—(ENS). — An afternoon tea party for the mothers of pupils in the kindergarten and Grade 1 of Havelock public school was held recently in Miss G. Hunter's room.

Mrs. L. J. Harrison and Mrs. J. Wilde welcomed the mothers on their arrival and Mrs. H. J. McNeely introduced the guests.

Short addresses were given by Miss G. Hunter and Principal R. D. Buchanan. Miss Hunter stressed the importance of co-operation between the home and the school as a necessity if the pupils were to enjoy their school days. An outline of daily procedure was given regarding painting as it is taught in the schools. Developments as to the control of hands in printing, and steps in reading were also outlined.

It was remarkable, Miss Hunter said, how early a pupil exhibits talent in art and said that music and rhythm play an important part in the life of the child.

Afternoon tea was served by the executive of the local Home and School Association.

TURNING THE PAGES OF "CANADA UNLIMITED"

Surrounded by her relatives and future parents, the nervous bride-to-be sat at the loom. Following an early Canadian custom, she must prove she could weave homespun. In the 1600's, all girls had to be able to weave, for the average Canadian family were only home-made clothing.

Spinning bees were a picturesque feature of pioneer Canadian life in the 1700's. Wives would gather for gossip and hard work over their spinning-wheels. Afterwards, a gay and colorful barn-dance would be their reward.

By the 1860's, small shop-owners made clothing and sold it to the people in their immediate neighborhood. In 1879 export had begun in a small way.

World events of this century have helped Canada to take a major part in the production of textiles and finished clothing. Today Canadian woolens and worsteds are among the finest in the world. Our textile industry is steadily on the increase. The future is one of vast opportunity. Yes, there's room to grow—in Canada Unlimited.

"GOLDEN-BROWNEST-TASTIEST-"
isn't grammar" I said but Tommy was right.

"Brenda!" said young Tommy next door, who's the eatingest kid in our block: "Why don't you begin your ad by telling women about the BEANS? See, I've counted 625 beans in this York Wieners in Beans tin. Look at them! They're the golden-brownest, tastiest beans you ever ate, baked in sauce . . . why Brenda, the famous lumber-camp cooks never turned out anything better! And see these wieners—you can tell by the taste this meat is hand-picked for flavour. And listen, Brenda, tell them to be sure to get YORK Wieners in Beans—there's a big difference!"

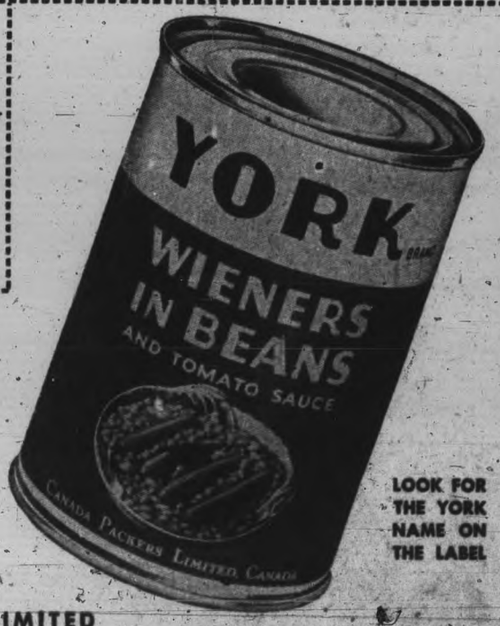
"Hmm," I said. "'Golden-brownest—tastiest' is hardly grammar." But after all, it's the male way of describing a dish all men love, both young and old. And do try these recipes—they're really tops with the men-folk.

Your "Good-Things-To-Eat" Reporter for Canada Packers Limited

YORK BEAN BETTY

Spread York Wieners in Beans or Pork and Beans in baking dish. Cut 1 cooking apple in thin slices and place on top. Mix 1 tablespoon melted Margene with ¼ cup brown sugar and spread over apples. Bake in moderate oven 350°F. until apples are soft (30 minutes), then increase heat until golden brown and tempting. Canned peaches, pears or apple sauce may be substituted for apples. Just try it—the French lumber camp cooks never excelled this recipe.

BEANS AN' TOMATOES



Put layer of York Wieners in Beans or York Pork and Beans in deep dish. Mix pulp from 1 tin York Tomatoes with finely chopped onion. Place over beans. Crumble 3 or 4 soda crackers and sprinkle with softened "Margene." Spread on top of tomatoes. Pepper and salt to taste. Bake about 20 minutes in moderate oven.

YORK BEAN CASSEROLE

Cook partially by frying 4 or 5 slices Maple Leaf Bacon in pan. Remove bacon. Put in hot pan ½ cup chopped green pepper, or celery, and fry or simmer slowly. Mix in casserole with 1 tin York Pork and Beans, or Wieners in Beans. Season with brown sugar, black pepper. Put bacon slices on top, with grated Maple Leaf Cheese. Bake 20 minutes at about 350°F. It's mighty good—and different.

DOROTHY DIX

Boy Tied to Apron Strings Matures Fearing All Women

DEAR MISS DIX—Is the kind of love when one can't eat, sleep and so forth absolutely necessary to make marriage a success? In most marriages don't you think that love is stronger on one side than the other? Can a marriage be a success if the girl's love is stronger than that of the young man? He loves her very much, but cannot say he loves her desperately. Would it be taking a chance for her to marry him?

A READER.

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: If no one got married except those whose appetites and ability to sleep were affected by the tender passion, there would be a terrific slump in the marriage market.

It is only in novels that people in love cease to take an interest in food and sit up all night stargazing, thinking upon the beloved one and go hot and cold and have palpitations of the heart at the sound of a footstep. In real life men and women get just as hungry when they are in love as they do out of it.

A Pity

It is a pity that the poets and fictionists set up these impossible and neurotic standards for young people to check their love by, because it makes many level-headed and common-sense young people doubt the state of their affections. They know that nothing has happened to their appetites or their ability to put in eight hours of sound sleep at night. They are perfectly aware that they would not die of a broken heart if they lost the other and so they doubt the good honest love that would take itself out in trying to be a good husband or wife.

Of course, in every love affair one cares more than the other, because one is capable of a deeper affection than the other. But, fortunately, love is not a bargain. It is a gift and it is literally true that in love it is more blessed to give than to receive and we get more kick out of loving than we ever do out of being loved.

Especially is this true of women, and so it is rather fortunate than unfortunate when the wife is more romantically in love with her husband than he is with her. Because marriage is harder on a woman than it is on a man. She has to make more sacrifices than he does, and it can only be worth while to her if she cares so much for him that just to be near him suffices her and everything she does for him is a joy and a delight.

DEAR MISS DIX: I know a man, an only son, who lives with his widowed mother. He has a strong fear of women, a fear of being dominated by them. He has been loved by some very fine, highly educated girls, but has always broken with them whenever they showed the slightest tendency to boss him. He claims that a college education spoils a girl and makes her determined to rule her husband and make a doormat of him. I am afraid this young man's idea of women will keep him from marrying at all, or make him marry some very inferior girl.

KATE

ANSWER: Probably the young man's mother is one of the possessive kind who has tried to keep him a little boy tied to her apron strings. There are plenty of women of that kind who never let their children have an idea or an opinion of their own and who boss the very life out of them.

But if the young man thinks he will be able to manage a fool, if he marries one, he is tragically mistaken. The stupider a woman is, the more conceited she is, the more set she is in her opinions, the more determined she is to have her own way about every little thing. Education makes a woman bigger and broader and more interesting as a companion, and, taking it by and large, the college graduate is far less liable to henpeck her husband than is the moron.

DEAR MISS DIX: What qualities are necessary for a man to possess to enable him to forgive and continue to live with his wife after she has confessed that she has been untrue to him in three instances and where the three men, who are her partners in guilt, are living in the same town? Isn't this the hardest thing that any man was ever called upon to do?

C. H.

ANSWER: Yes. And it is an added turn of the knife for him to have to meet daily the men with whom she has betrayed him.

As to the qualities that it takes to forgive an unfaithful wife they must be, I think, an almost divine pity for her weakness, and an understanding of a nature that is perhaps constitutionally emotionally unstable.

Social Situations

SITUATION: You are called on to make a short talk.

WRONG WAY: Begin with an apology—saying that you're no speaker, or that you are not prepared, etc.

RIGHT WAY: If you are going to make the talk, don't waste time making useless apologies.

Elizabeth's Dinner Parties Intimate and Small Affairs

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON—(CP)—Small, semi-formal dinner parties, to which guests are invited by telephone the same day, have become a specialty of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh since they moved into their home at Clarence House, St. James's Park.

Very often no more than six friends are invited at one time. First they receive a call from the footman at Clarence House. Then Elizabeth or the Duke will be switched through.

"Would you care to dine with us tonight?"

Casual as the invitation may sound, it is rarely refused except on grounds of ill health, for even in these democratic days an invitation from the King or his family still is in the nature of a royal command.

Dinner is at 8 p.m. which means that guests are expected to arrive not later than 7:45. Ladies usual-wear their most glamorous evening gowns; their escorts dress in white tie and tails.

When the front door opens guests are surprised to find that this royal residence has no hall. They step directly into a long passage which has cream-painted walls and a coffee-colored carpet.

Leading off this passage are the dining-room and a small anteroom. Here the princess and her husband wait for their guests, and in the few minutes before dinner is served sherry and cocktails are offered, poured by the Duke.

Wait On Yourself

Both Elizabeth and the Duke are in favor of self-service, and except at large dinner parties no servants wait at table in the green dining-room.

When guests are seated at the oblong, mahogany table, a footman brings in the first course and puts it on a side buffet table. Then the Duke and the male guests serve each course as it appears.

One of Elizabeth's favorite menus for small dinner parties is lobster soup, chicken Maryland (pieces of chicken dipped in egg and breadcrumbs) and fresh fruit trifle served with ice cream.

Red and white wines accompany the meal. Conversation is spontaneous, but politics are barred and any guest who treads on this forbidden ground is politely decoyed into safer realms.

After dinner guests are usually taken on a personally-conducted tour of the house. This, however, does not include Prince Charles' nursery. Under no circumstances will Elizabeth or Philip allow him to be disturbed during sleeping hours.

The tour over, guests return to the lounge for an hour or two, but unless a movie is shown the party breaks up before 10 p.m. Philip conducts his guests to their autos or taxis and waves a cheery farewell from the foot of the steps, while Elizabeth stands at the front door, smiling graciously.

Soon afterwards the host and hostess retire for the night, but on the way up they pause and listen outside a room on the second floor where a future king of England lies sleeping.

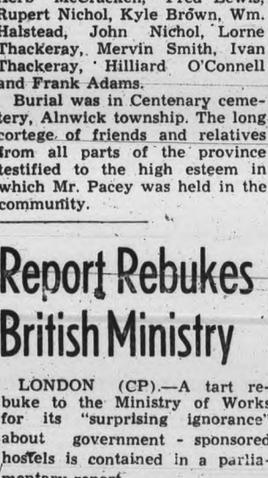
Report Rebukes British Ministry

LONDON (CP).—A tart rebuke to the Ministry of Works for its "surprising ignorance" about government - sponsored hostels is contained in a parliamentary report.

The report said the ministry didn't even know that some of the hostels existed, although it had provided most of the furniture in them and had supplied fuel to them for some years.

The charge was made by the Select Committee on Estimates, known as the "Taxpayers' Watchdogs." It urged the government to do everything in its power to lower costs of administration.

Losses on running the hostels, largely maintained for industrial and farm workers, was estimated at £653,868 ($2,614,744 before devaluation) this year. Some hostels were not full and in some cases charges were not enough to meet expenses.



Financial Position

At the same time, the committee concluded that the financial position of government hostels is "not unfavorable" when compared with those run by private industry.

A detailed inquiry was urged into the ratio of hostel staff to residents. At one hostel maintained by the Women's Land Army, the proportion was one staff to one resident for occupancy and one to two for capacity.

In its reference to the Works Ministry's "ignorance," the committee said that the Agriculture Ministry had 146 hostels of its own requisitioning, "the existence of which was not known at the headquarters of the Ministry of Works until April, 1949."

Despite that, the committee said, the Works Ministry had provided "most of the furniture and had for some years been supplying fuel to these 146 hostels."

THE APPOINTMENT of G. T. Trowhill as general superintendent of Canadian National Telegraphs, with jurisdiction over the Central and Atlantic Regions, headquarters, Toronto, has been announced. Mr. Trowhill was born and educated in Clinton, and started his telegraph career in 1908, with the Michigan Central Railways at St. Thomas.

New Hormones Effective On Some Cancers

TORONTO, Oct. 7 — (CP). — Dr. W. R. Franks, Professor of Medical Research at Banting Laboratories and head of Cancer Research at the University of Toronto, said today that "dramatic results" already have been obtained in treatment of some types of cancer by the use of acth and cortisone.

Acth and cortisone are two new "wonder" hormones extracted originally from the cortex of the adrenal glands.

Dr. Franks said he endorsed a statement in Chicago by Dr. Charles S. Cameron, medical director of the American Cancer Society that "they (acth and cortisone) may well represent a medical advance of history-making proportions in the fields of cancer."

However, Dr. Franks warned against too much optimism. He said studies of the new drugs, which have produced "almost miraculous" results in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis," are only in the very preliminary stages in connection with cancer and they have been tried on only a few cases."

He said that while no cases of cancer have yet been treated with the new drugs in Toronto, he has been in touch with the work already under way in the United States.

"It all depends to which island you are going," said the agencies which are still awaiting final word on "price readjustments" in the wake of currency devaluation.

Charge Defence Chiefs Scuttling Navy, Air Force Claim Flyers Plotting

Services Committee Begins Investigation Into Many "Disturbing" Reports Claim Johnston Cuts Navy $300,000,000

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP).—Rocked by navy charges of an air force bungling and plotting, lawmakers dug grimly today into "disturbing" reports that defence chiefs are scuttling the United States Navy's air arm. The House of Representatives Armed Services committee was scheduled to call on Admiral Avery W. Hopwood, navy budget officer, to tell what is happening to funds earmarked by Congress for naval aviation. Hopwood was brought into the hearing by chairman Carl Wilson (Dem. G.), who said he was "greatly disturbed" by a report that Defence Secretary Johnson had ordered a $300,000,000 cut in navy spending for this year out of funds not yet approved by Congress.

Representative George J. Bates (Rep., Mass.) later told reporters Congress' intentions are being arbitrarily bypassed, and if the proposed cut materializes "there will be no naval aviation left."

The committee inquiry into long-simmering navy-air force bickering got off to a sensation-packed start Friday.

Admiral Arthur W. Radford characterized the B-36 as a "billion dollar blunder," accused the air force of trying to "eliminate" naval aviation, and denounced the whole air force strategic bombing concept as unsound.

The navy's No. 1 airman declared that the air force shot ahead with B-36 purchases without proper evaluation of the big bomber and over the head of the late Defence Secretary James Forrestal.

Before Radford was excused, Vinson tentatively proposed that the committee place sharp restrictions on Johnson's fund-cutting power, call for a new appraisal of strategic policy, and take a number of other broad steps to choke off the heated navy-air force feud which culminated in Radford's explosive testimony yesterday.

Committee members spoke out strongly against reported attempts to take away from the navy money appropriated to it by Congress.

Bates, speaking from information he said was confidential, declared the biggest cut proposed by Johnson would hit the navy's air arm.

Navy plane buying would be reduced to 48 planes a month by 1952—as compared with a 1941 figure of 300 a month, Bates said.

Fear Russians May Win Atomic Race

TORONTO, Oct. 8 (CP)—A scientist who predicted in 1946 that Russia would have an atomic bomb in three years, says what he now fears is that Russia will surpass the West's atomic development.

Dr. Leopold Infeld, 51-year-old professor of applied mathematics at the University of Toronto, predicted that North America possibly will have widespread industrial use of atomic energy within 10 years. But he warned:

"What we have to watch on this continent is that Russia, now that she is really under way, may surpass our atomic development."

Dr. Infeld, a collaborator in physical research with Prof. Albert Einstein, said in an interview it is not in the military sense that he fears atomic competition. "It is in the industrial and economic sphere."

Don't Go To War

The Polish-born physicist who first came to North America in 1936 on the invitation of Prof. Einstein to work with him at Princeton's Institute of Advanced Study, says there is only one de-

Reds To Control Czech Churches

PRAGUE, Oct. 8—(AP)—The Prague press says the state will take over control of all churches in Czechosiovakia Nov. 1 under the Communist Government's church control bill.

The newspaper Svobodne Slovo says the bill which has been bitterly opposed by the Roman Catholics, becomes law that day. It applies to all denominations.

The bill goes before the national assembly when it reconvenes on Oct. 14.

A minstry to govern church affairs will be headed by a cabinet member to be appointed by President Klement Gottwald. The cabinet member will be empowered to demand inventories of church properties, dismiss any priest whose citizenship is questionable and supervise administration of all churches and church societies.

Police prowled the streets of Prague Friday night and early today, extending the roundup which already has jailed thousands of persons in this fear-chilled capital alone.

Purge Continues

There were indications the purge would be widened.

One strong hint came in a broadcast, over the Official Security police radio station, which declared "not only the support and propagation of fascism must be punished, but everything just smells of Bourgeoisie, Nationalism and Chauvinism must be destroyed by the roots."

Most of those reported seized were business men or other property owners. The arrests seemed intended to confiscate their wealth and to force them either out of business or into joining government-owned co-operatives.

Some of these business men might be classed by the Communist-led government as 'Bourgeois cliques" or "reactionaries." But even some managers of nationalized enterprises were reported jailed.

Children's Aid Target For Bullet

CORNWALL, Oct. 8—(CP)—A .22-calibre bullet yesterday crashed through the window of the Children's Aid Society office here but did not injure three women clerks at work at the time.

Miss Angela Larose, Mrs. Hazel MacDonald and Mrs. G. Carr said the bullet struck an office partition and dropped to the floor.

City police said they believed the bullet was fired either from nearby Norwall Island or from a freighter passing in Cornwall canal.

Police thought the incident was "purely accidental."

Love of Girl At Prison Saves Convicted Burglar

BALTIMORE, Oct. 8 (AP). — The love of a girl he met in prison saved a convicted burglar from going back today for 10 years.

The love of blonde Peggy Peterson persuaded the usually stern Judge Robert France to set free her man she had followed across the continent.

But the judge, himself a bachelor, said marriage will have to wait a while.

Up for sentence was 24-year-old William J. Sansbury on charges of forgery amounting to $875. The judge found him guilty, sentenced him to 10 years and suspended sentence saying:

"It is her belief in you that to a large extent is responsible for your receiving a suspended sentence. Do not let her down."

The judge ordered the couple not to marry during the period of one year.

Miss Peterson met Sansbury in San Quentin prison. He was serving 21 months for burglary and she worked there as an office clerk.

When Sansbury was released recently he was returned to Maryland to face the two-year-old forgery charges.

"Judge, I know he'll go straight," she pleaded at the trial.

Friday night the couple had their first date. Prison cells had made it impossible before.

Sun For Series Game

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP).—More than 2,700 persons were in line at fog-shrouded Ebbets Field in Brooklyn early today for the fourth game of the World Series. The weather man promised that the sun would break through during the morning and provide a perfect setting for the game, with temperatures in the 70's. Ed Lopat, stubby left-hander, is to pitch for the New York Yankees, now in front two games to one. Manager Burt Shotton did not announce his pitching choice.

Duplessis Wants Say In Change Of Constitution

QUEBEC, Oct. 8 — (CP) — Premier Duplessis again Friday urged Prime Minister St. Laurent to propose no amendment to the Canadian constitution until provincial authorities have discussed the question at a federal-Provincial conference.

It was the second time in two weeks that the leader of Quebec's Union Nationale Government had made the request which has been the subject of correspondence between the federal prime minister and Mr. Duplessis.

Premier Duplessis issued his latest letter, dated Oct. 5, during a press conference. Two weeks ago he revealed the contents of a Sept. 21 letter to Mr. St. Laurent outlining Quebec's stand against the federal proposal for legislation during the present session of parliament for a constitutional amendment to matters of federal jurisdiction.

Disagrees With St. Laurent

In his latest letter, Mr. Puplessis took issue with a statement from a letter by Mr. St. Laurent that federal authorities "historically" have taken the view that the nature of constitutional amendments having to do with federal matters was "statutory" rather than "contractual."

Mr. St. Laurent, in his letter released Friday night in Ottawa at the "request of the press," said: ". . . "I would simply recall that historically the federal authorities have always proceeded, when there was a question of making amendments to this act which touched exclusively on something within federal jurisdiction, by taking it for granted that those sections at least of the act do not have the character of a contract, but are rather statutory provisions capable of being amended by the legislative authority which enacted them."

Mr. St. Laurent added: "In the present circumstances, we do not ask anyone else to renounce a contrary opinion, but we believe we should proceed in the same fashion as has been done in the past."

Premier Duplessis quoted authorities to support his contrary view on the matter. He said the British North America Act is a contract between federal and provincial authorities. As such it was not subject to any amendment without the consent of the contracting parties.

Quotes Letter

The Quebec premier, who quoted one paragraph of Mr. St. Laurent's letter during the press conference, wrote that the prime minister's interpretation did not correspond with that of parliamentarians who sponsored legislation at Westminster to cover the pact of confederation.

Friend Hurt, Whirling Car Breaks Loose

Hurled From 40 Feet One Died Within Hour Other Condition Fair

SIMCOE, Ont., Oct. 8—(CP)—One boy was killed and another seriously injured Friday in a Midway accident at the Norfolk County Fair here.

James Lalone, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lalone, of Simcoe, died in hospital less than an hour after an airplane-type car plummetted 40 feet to the ground after breaking from a whirling Midway device.

In hospital with abdominal and chest injuries is Gilbert Moultin, his companion on the ride. Young Moultin's condition was described Friday night as fair.

The boys were pulled from the bucket by fair employees and taken to hospital by James Sullivan, owner and general manager of the Wallace Brothers shows.

An inquest will be held in the Lalone boy's death.

Sullivan could give no explanation of the accident. He told police it was the first on one of his rides in 30 years of operating a Midway. He said the bucket became detached from the framework but neither the axles nor a coupling had broken.

Sullivan said he has operated this ride 25 weeks a year for the last seven years without a mishap.

2-Year-Old Girl Beats New Baby

NIAGARA FALLS, Oct. 8—An emergency run by Acting Police Chief Ralph Butler may have saved the life of a month-old infant. It was revealed today that the child was severely beaten for nearly five minutes by her two-year-old sister shortly after the new child and the mother arrived home from hospital.

"I was down in the cellar when I heard my little child weeping and sobbing in the bedroom above" Mrs. Carl D. Johnson, the mother declared.

Used Bottle

"I ran upstairs and found the baby almost in a state of collapse. My two-year-old daughter was standing over her, hitting her on the head with a heavy vanilla bottle.

"I'm sure she thought she was playing with the baby."

The baby was rushed to the Greater Niagara General Hospital by the acting Stamford police chief in a patrol car after being summoned off a patrol beat by Radio Officer Gerald Harries, who received a call for help from the mother.

One side of the baby's face was blackened and one eye completely closed. In hospital, under the care of Dr. T. A. Jamieson, it is reported progressing favorably.

Two Trains Collide Head-on In Thick Fog

WELLAND, Oct. 8 — (CP). — Collision between a CNR and a Wabash freight, six miles east of here, sent three crew members to hospital with minor injuries. The two freights met head-on in thick fog early today. Both trains were moving slowly and no cars were derailed, but sufficient damage was caused to the two engines to block the line until noon today.

Injured were Earl Graham, St. Thomas engineer on the Wabash freight, fractured heel; George Haig, Toronto, engineer on the CNR train, chest and body bruises; and Thomas Bates, Toronto, fireman, forehead lacerations.

Coal Operators Prodded To Try To End Strike

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP) — Prodded by the government, soft-coal operators moved today to resume contract talks with John L. Lewis in an effort to end the mine strike, now in its 20th day.

Conciliation Director Cyrus S. Ching told the United Mine Workers' boss and the representatives of the mine owners that "each day brings the United States closer to a crisis" as coal supplies shrink.

At Chings request, the operators made immediate overtures to Lewis to resume negotiations next Tuesday or Wednesday. The bargaining was interrupted this week when Ching invited the parties to Washington to air their differences.

Ching said he would report the meetings to the White House in routine fashion, but that he would watch future negotiations closely, ready to step in again within a reasonable time if the talks get nowhere.

Ching said his all-day session with the operators and Lewis Friday had given both sides a chance to blow off steam.

The government did not lay down any ultimatum that the miners must go back to work, or that Lewis and the operators must get together by an specific date. But Ching said he wouldn't wait too long.

Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of the President's Economic Advisory Council, said that a month of continued strikes in the coal and steel industries would seriously threaten the national welfare.

Ching said he had kept in close touch with steel developments since the steel strike started last Monday, but he had "no immediate plans" for calling Philip Murray's CIO steelworkers and the steel companies back into government-sponsored negotiations.

Business Shaky Say Economists

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 8—(CP)—Canada's business prospects for next year were scanned Friday by three dominion economists. Generally, they found them uncertain.

Speaking in a panel discussion on the trend of business, held at the University of Western Ontario, William Lougheed, economist for the Canadian Bank of Commerce, said Canada economy depends more on foreign trade than does the United States.

"Trade-wise, we are in a very vulnerable position that does not affect the U.S.," he said.

R. B. MacPherson, economist for Canadian Industries Limited, noted that home-building needs are far from being met but said he would give odds of "8 to 10" that industrial production will drop about five per cent in 1950.

Donald Ritchie of Imperial Oil Limited, said Canada has not followed the past pattern of the United States. Prosperity has been bolstered by injections of substantial sums such as savings, retroactive payments for wheat, and a cut in income taxes.

Free-For-All Discussion Over Veterans Problems May Aid Merchant Seamen

OTTAWA, Oct. 8.—(AP)—A free-for-all discussion on veterans' problems occupied the Commons Friday. Members ran the gamut from pensions to the veterans' charter. With Veterans Affairs Minister Gregg on the receiving end. Opposition members fired suggestions and questions on a myriad of subjects during consideration of estimates for the Department of Veterans' Affairs.

A general appeal for a special veterans' committee of parliament came during the afternoon sitting. However, Mr. Gregg said there would be no committee at this session.

During the night sitting, merchant seamen were brought into discussions.

Mr. Gregg said careful consideration is being given to the question of raising the age limit for wartime merchant seamen who want to take vocational training under the Veterans' Charter.

Former merchant seamen now must be under 35 to qualify for vocational training and allowances. Representations have been made to the Transport Department and DVA to have this changed because there are many merchant seamen over 35 who are not rehabilitated after war service at sea.

Veterans Committee

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes VC. (PC-Nanaimo) opened the series of requests for establishment of a committee on veterans affairs.

Gen. Pearkes also suggested that war veterans allowances — pensions paid to old soldiers burned out before their time as a result of war service—be broadened to take in men who fought with other Commonwealth armies.

The means test, he said, should be modified on these "burnt-out pensions."

Robert Fair (SC-Battle River) John Blackmore (SC-Lethbridge) and Victor Quelch (SC-Acadia) also criticized the means test.

Mr. Quelch said that in many cases old-age pensions are higher than veterans' allowances. Many veterans on reaching 70 were

Forgotten Money Held In Bonds

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (CP) — Haul out those stock certificates you chucked into the attic trunk years ago—you may be in for a bonanza.

A firm which traces missing stockholders estimates there are 137,000 Canadians who own $87,000,000 in stocks of which firms have lost track. Many have forgotten about the shares or thought them worthless.

Tracers Company of America base their estimate on a survey made two years ago. Already they report they have found 46,000 missing stockholders for 135 American clients—success in 85 percent of their cases.

They now are invading the Canadian field. Recently four large Dominion corporations engaged Tracers to find their missing shareholders. They are Abitibi Power and Paper Limited, National Hosiery Mills Limited, British Columbia Power and Light and Montreal Trust Company.

The search for lost partners in the four Canadian firms involves about 2,000 missing shareholders. Tracers say most of the shareholders will still live in Canada although some have been traced to the United States, Britain and Europe.

Tracers say another problem is holders of "obsolete or dormant stocks and bonds." A drive to find an established company's missing stockholders would not directly help these people for they hold stocks which are not listed on exchanges or in ever-the-counter transactions.

Thus their owners think their certificates are worthless. But, Tracers say, there are thousands who are proved wrong. Many such certificates, which can be dated back as far as 1860, are valuable.

Canadian Meat Eaters Average 135 lbs. In Year

OTTAWA, Oct. 8—(CP) — It may make the fishermen unhappy, but the fact is that Canadians are primarily meat-eaters and will probably remain that way.

It's not necessarily that Canadians don't like fish. It's just that they prefer meat.

If all the fish eaten last year in Canada was piled fin to fin, it would be a puny mound compared with the stack of meat wolfed from dinner tables.

The Federal Department of Fisheries recognizes this fact, a little sadly perhaps, in its monthly publication — "Trade News" — which goes out from Ottawa to tell the fishing industry the latest official dope on their trade.

Buried among the statistics are figures which indicate that Canadians eat more meat, more poultry and more eggs than they do fish.

The situation has been relatively the same for years and gives little indication that it will change in the near future.

This is the order of Canadian preference for those four food items: meat well ahead; eggs second; poultry third and fish fourth.

Last year Canadians ate an average of 135.3 pounds of meat. That works out to about 2¾ pounds of meat a week.

Canadians are eating a lot more meat now than they did before the second world war. In 1935-39 period they averaged 118.4 pounds.

Famous Unit In City For Reunion

Spearhead Of Drive In Italian Campaign And Feared By Nazis

More than 700 ex-members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment are gathering in Peterborough today to mark the fifth re-union of the unit. The Second World War veterans are registering this afternoon at the Armouries and this evening there will be a dance at the Canadian Legion Hall.

On Sunday there will be a memorial service including the laying of a wreath, and afterwards there will be a banquet and the annual meeting.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment went overseas in 1939 and took part in the brief expedition to France in 1940 as the Germans were cutting through the Allied defences. It had to make a speedy evacuation under enemy shell fire and dive bombing.

Red Patch Devils

But it was in the Sicilian and Italian campaigns that the Hasty-Pees earned fame as a crack infantry regiment.

As the centre of the original allied push in Sicily they earned with their brother regiments the name of "Red Patch Devils" from the veteran German troops. It was a grudging admission from one group of first-class fighting men to another.

Canadian Tries To Help Nazi

MONCTON, N.B., Oct. 8 (CP) —Fred Lightenberg, a Canadian citizen who came originally from the same district of Germany as imprisoned S.S. Maj.-Gen. Kurt Meyer says he is trying "to bring some joy into the lives" of the general and his family.

The Moncton construction man was disclosed last night as one of a group of private citizens investigating the general's civilian imprisonment.

The group maintains that Meyer, 33, Canada's only enemy war prisoner, should be in a military prison and not in the civilian Maritime penitentiary at nearby Dorchester.

There are no military prisons in Canada. Lichtenberg said that if Meyer were removed from Dorchester he would probably be taken to a military prison in Germany or Britain. But he declined to discuss what he hopes to be able to do for Meyer.

The Nazi general was sentenced to death for responsibility in the shooting of disarmed Canadian war prisoners. The sentence later was commuted to life imprisonment and Meyer was brought to Canada in 1946 to start serving the life term.

If Meyer wer taken to a prison in Germany or Britain, it would bring "great joy" to the Meyer family, Lichtenberg said. To Kate Meyer, the general's wife, and their five children, Lichtenberg is known as "Uncle Fred."

For the last three years, he said, he had been sending parcels of food and clothing to the general's wife, their four daughters and one son and Mrs. Alma Meyer, the general's mother.

Town's Wells Go Dry Acute Water Shortage

WALKERTON, Oct. 8 (CP). — This Bruce County town is on short water rations today. A state of emergency because of the acute water shortage was declared by Town Council Friday after drilled wells began to run dry. Residents have to get along on what water they can obtain from 11 a.m. to noon and from 4:30 to 6 p.m.

The measures were adopted to conserve water for fire protection. While a frantic drilling of new wells began, residents and officials in the town's five factories were warned to be exceedingly careful about fire hazards.

China Front Caving In Before Reds

Fleeing From Canton Report Moving Capital To Chungking

CANTON, Oct. 8 (AP)—Chinese began fleeing from Canton today as the front to the north showed signs of caving in under the pressure of attacking Red armies.

Diplomats in Canton said they expected to hear Monday that the Nationalist capital was being moved to Chungking, wartime capital in western China.

Kukong, anchor city only 125 miles north of Canton, was yielded without a fight. Hengyang, the Nationalist base 265 miles to the north, appeared to have been abandoned.

Press reports said Gen. Pai Chung-hsi, central front commander had quit Hengyang and would set up headquarters at Kwelin, capital of his native Kwangsi Province.

That was a hint he may leave Canton to its fate. His 200,000-man army is the best left to the Nationalists on the Chinese mainland.

A well-informed Commonwealth diplomat in London said Britain will recognize the newly-established Communist regime in Peiping. India was expected to take a like step. Other Commonwealth governments might follow suit. Trade with China is a big factor.

So far only Russia and her retinue of eastern European states have recognized the "Peoples' Republic" of Communist Mao Tze-tung.

The British step would break the front of western powers who so far have remained mute on the question of recognizing Peiping.

An Associated Press correspondent, Spencer Moosa, in Canton said present indications were the Nationalist capital would be established in Chungking within two weeks.

Few Crew Members Seen Evidence Takes Pattern

TORONTO, Oct. 8. — (CP).— Survivors' stories of events aboard the fire-ridden cruise-ship Noronic appeared today to have settled into a pattern.

The pattern, established in eight days of Federal hearings here and in two earlier preliminary inquiries, was of few crew members in sight when the Great Lakes vessel burned at the waterfront here Sept. 17.

It also included the reiterated statements of no fire alarm other than the continuous sounding of the ship's main whistle and of fire hoses that lacked water pressure.

The blaze left a toll of 104 identified dead and 19 persons missing.

Still to be heard are the chief officer and other officers and members of the crew who were on duty that fatal morning. The Commission, under Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of Ottawa, will resume hearings Tuesday.

Sitting Eight Days

It has been sitting eight days and is expected to take all of next week and possibly part of the following week.

Evidence given Friday followed the line of testimony at other hearings in Detroit and Cleveland.

Actions of the crew members were "heroic," Edward Koladsick, Jr., of Detroit, told the federal inquiry. Koladsick, who said he was something of an expert on fire safety appliances, said the ship's break-glass alarm system was "the cheapest any money can buy."

James C. Miller of Cuyahago Falls, O., said he was given directions on how to leave the ship by a uniformed member of the crew. He saw one hose with no pressure and another from which a stream of water was coming.

"One of the crew said to us: 'Folks, if you follow me, we'd better get off the ship,'" Miller testified. "He led us from D deck to E deck."

He said the group was composed of all about 20 persons whom he thought were all passengers.

Frank Wilkinson, counsel for Canada Steamship Lines, owners of the vessel, asked how he knew all were passengers.

"If there were members of the crew among them they were not doing anything," Miller replied. "They were standing around as if dumbfounded."

Order Arrest Of Widow

CANTON, Oct. 8—(Reuters)—The Nationalists executive Yuan (Cabinet) decided today to order the arrest of Madame Sun Yat-sen, widow of the founder of the Chinese Republic.

Her name was listed with those of 85 Communists or Communist sympathizers.

Mao Tse-tung, chairman of the new Communist government, and Gen Chou En-lai, acting premier were also on the list.

A sister-in-law of Generalissimo Chiang Kai shek, Madame Sun is at present in Pekin, the Communist capital of China. Last month she was elected one of the six vice-chairmen of the "Central People's government of the Republic of China."

Hasty Pees Led Eighth Army North In Italy

The Hasty-Pees holding their fifth annual re-union in Peterborough this week-end earned their spurs in Sicily but proved themselves a crack infantry regiment in the Italian campaign.

On September 3, 1943 the Eighth Army landed on the toe of Italy, and by the evening the 1st Brigade, of which the Hasty Pee's were one of the three infantry regiments, was advancing north beyond Reggio into the mountainous Calabrian peninsula.

The long 200-mile quick advance was halted by stiffening German resistance in the Foggia area, and in the Brigade bumped into the Germans of the 1st Parachute Division at Motta Montecorvino. Campobasso, occupied by the Brigade on October 14, was to become famed as a Canadian Leave Centre.

The bloodiest fighting which the regiment had encountered thus far in the war came at the crossing of the River Moro, south of Ortona. It was during the battles for the Moro crossing that the first Canadian V.C. of the war was won by Captain Triquet of the Vingt-Douze.

The Hasty-Pees led the attack on the Brigade front on December 5, and for days the bloody fighting continued. By the night of December 7-8 they were the only Canadian unit able to stay across that deadly river valley and they held their bridgehead stubbornly but at great cost against heavy enemy counter-attacks until a renewed attack relieved them.

Then came the second brigade's long and bitter battle for Ortona Christmas week. The Hasty Pees were pushed forward west of the town, and on December 23, though hampered by rain, mud, and mines, reached their objectives, along with the 48th Highlanders.

This action cut them off from all other Canadian units. No soldier of the regiment who fought there will ever forget that Christmas day of 1943, in the mud, without tank support, and without supplies.

Ortona fell, and after New Year's day 1944 the Hasty-Pees took up their positions in the Canadian winter line, a few miles north of Ortona. The long, wet, hard winter with its constant night patrolling, shelling, "moaning minnies" German 88 shells and sniping took a heavy toll in casualties and fatigue.

The brief leaves to Ortona and San Vito, and the barrels of vino in the peasants' sheds were small comfort for that miserable winter.

Like the other Canadians of the First Division, the Hasty-Pees greeted the spring sunshine, the warmth and their replacement with relief. Back south into areas which the regiment had passed many months before, they went for refresher training, in preparation for the great battle for the Hitler Line and Rome in May.

The regiment distinguished itself in the Hitler Line fighting from May 17 to the 25th through the Liri Valley and Pontecorvo, where the defences were finally breached.

Withdrawn For Rest

After the fall of Rome all the Canadians were withdrawn for a rest. Many pleasant weeks were spent amid olive groves and occasional leaves to Naples and Rome.

In late summer came the brief excursions to the Florence district, which turned out to be a ruse to deceive the Germans. Then again the Hasty Pee's were whisked across to the Adriatic side of Italy, there to begin the long series of battles against the Gothic Line. The names of the rivers Metauro, Fogloa, and Conca, the Panther and Tiger tanks in those hills, and the long battle for the San Fortunato feature overlooking the coastal town of Rimini, will long be remembered by HPER men.

Then there were the sweets of a brief rest at Riccione on the Adriatic, and from October to December came heavy slugging again in mud and rain and flood waters. Names like the River Savio, the Ronco and the bloody Lamone were a full company was lost are heavy memories. Christmas of 1944 brought no respite, even though Ravenna was taken. Another hard winter followed along the banks of the Senio and at Bagnacavallo, with the murderous patrolling, the close sniping, and the alarms and excursions. In all these weary days the Hasty Pees fought staunchly.

Toward the end of February the Hasty Pee's went back with the rest of the division, and at last it was true—they were going to join the other Canadians, to be taken out of Italy and join the main show in Northwest Europe.

It was not until April of 1945 that the regiment again saw action, meeting the Germans in Holland in the fighting for Apeldoorn and Amersfoort. Then came V-E day. The Hasty Pee's had much to celebrate with pride, and much to remember with poignancy. For five and a half years the regiment had been overseas and for almost two it had been in action.

were to be made requests to their district Conservation officer who would in turn submit them to the District Forester and be sent to Queen's Park for final assessment.

Creel Census

District biologist J. C. Weir of Lindsay told of the importance of keeping a creel census and that operators would be doing the Department a great service in recording the fishing hours, the number of catches and barren fishing time. These statistics broken into 100 hour units would form an inventory on which restocking of lakes could be determined. He complimented the Bobcaygeon Guiding Association in turning in the most valuable data to date.

The discussion of levying a resident rod license fee was sanctioned by Fred Young, Jim Fraser, Charles Kingan and George Jeffries but the Hon. Mr. Scott hoped that revenues for restocking could be obtained from other sources without resorting to this measure.

In the matter of establishing drift fishing in the district it was found that this was legislated many years ago by public opinion. It was recognized that this was detrimental to early season fishing on spawning beds. Dr. Harkness pointed out that the department is trying to uphold the muskie reputation of the Kawarthas, even to the sacrificing of other species, in the district's conservation programs.

The issuance of fishing licenses by resort operators rather than business merchants was discussed by Mr. Scott who told the members that (1) it required a great deal of bookkeeping and the necessity of bonding and (2) if a great many operators were granted it more trouble than it was worth.

Some members brought up the question of establishing another fish hatchery, preferably at Rice Lake. Dr. Harkness again took the stand and explained that such establishments had to be operated in environments that were most natural to the raising of certain species of fish and in any case they were assisting but not replacing the natural flow of fish.

Donald Sidey of Bewdley said that he thought there was not enough game supervision in the Rice Lake area but Dr. Harkness showed that there could be supervisors on every five miles of territory and that there would still be poaching. He told operators that it was up to them to report infractions since the fish and game laws were made by the people for themselves.

Among members present were Harry Leonard, Club Whitesands, E. Balmer, Indian Head Lodge; Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, Highland View; Mac McWilliams, Gail Park Carl Sandercock, Art Braithwaite, Art Elmhirst, Don Sidey, Ted Shenkle, H. D. RCAF To Continue Search For Missing

OTTAWA. Oct. 8 (CP)—RCAF spokesmen said today they understood the search for missing fliers will continue despite an RAF announcement of the disbanding of its search and inquiry service.

Spokesmen at headquarters said they understood the RAF organization will continue on a temporary basis until at least the middle of next year to search for from 12,000 to 17,000 airmen still missing. Approximately 25 per cent of those are estimated to be Canadians.

RCAF liaison officers have been working with the RAF in the search.

MORE ABOUT—

Famous Unit

Regalbuto, Lava Hills and Adrano were added to the battle honors of the Regiment.

At Grammichele the unit had its first brush with German troops after previous sweeping up Italian resistance. The enemy was perched on a high peak but fled after their Italian support broke under the Canadian hammering.

At Valquarnera a company of Hasty-Pees ambushed a force of Germans in trucks and slaughtered them, Pte. H. E. Brant, a Mohawk Indian from Brantford, went fighting mad and swept up a hillside mowing down Germans with his Bren gun. It has been described as one of the outstanding individual achievements of the Sicilian campaign. The mountain town was defended by steep cliffs and hills.

It was at Valquarnera that RSM Angus Duffy, together with Sgt.-Major George Ponsford volunteered to make the seven-mile hazardous trip back from the position where the batalion was dug in so that accurate gunfire could be trained on enemy positions.

During the Sicily fighting one war correspondent commenting on the climbing ability of the Hasty-Pees said "they've already done enough climbing to put a mountain goat on a full retirement pension."

At Assoro the Regiment made its most spectacular exploit. Taking the Germans by surprise, the men climbed up a 2,500 foot precipice in a pre-dawn attack and drove a strong enemy force from the peak.

They were heavily shelled during the day but held their ground despite the fact they were cut off for most of the time. After about 30 hours of fighting the Germans finally withdrew and other Canadian units passed through to press the attack.

It was during this action that the O. C., Lt.-Col. Bruce Sutcliffe was killed by shell fire. He was awarded the DSO posthumously.

Major Kennedy directed RCA fire so effectively at this battle that the Huns were completely smashed after three corrections.

After the Royal Canadian Regiment had gone through Nissoria they struck the main German defences east of the town and eventually had to withdraw unable to break the German line. The Hasty-Pees were ordered in and saw heavy fighting but were also forced to withdraw to avoid heavy casualties.

Corporal Ross Bullied of Bancroft and a section of eight men were cut off near Nissoria for a day and night only 40 yards from the Germans. Hiding in bushes and crevices they underwent the Canadian barrage, and Lance-Corporal H. E. Maxwell, also of Bancroft escaped with the information. The position was taken and the section rescued.

East of Regalbuto the unit worked by stars and compass, carrying mortars and ammunition on their backs for three miles. This gave the RCA an opportunity to open up.

When Agira fell the HPE's, the Royal Canadian Regiment and the 48th Highlanders joined with the British Malta force to continue the advance on the enemy. The final phase was the attack that broke the Etna line.

Assistance Fund

Mr. Gregg said this is the case only in a few provinces. In instances of hardship, there was a special assistance fund to augment the pension of any veteran.

The government received plaudits on its veterans legislation for A. C. Stewart (L-Yorkton).

He criticized opposition members for indicating things are not well with Canadian veterans. They had been treated better than any others.

Frank Lennard (PC-Wentworth) brought up the veterans' land act regulations requiring that a veteran hold three acres before he can receive special government assistance for building a home on the land.

This originally had been half an acre but had been raised to three acres by order in council.

Mr. Lennard described the increase in acreage as "stupid.' No man with a job could look after three acres.

Comics came into Commons discussion briefly at the opening of the night sitting.

W. J. Browne (C.C.F.-St. John's West) said the customs department and post office should combine to halt the flow of undesirable crime comics into Canada. Publishers in Canada should be subject to summary trial and conviction.

Mr. Browne, a former Newfoundland district judge, spoke during renewed debate on a bill sponsored by E. D. Fulton (PC-Kamloops) that would provide for court trial and penalties for publication and distribution of objectional comic books.

Debate on the bill which is up for second reading—adoption in principle—was adjourned till next week by L. E. Cardiff.

Boy's Head Kicked By Colt

TORONTO, Oct. 8 — (CP) — An emergency brain operation was performed on seven-year-old Billie Dobbin, of Caledonia, rushed to Sick Children's Hospital with a police escort after a yearling colt kicked the youngster in the head.

The lad's condition is reported by hospital attendants as improved.

Billie, who was fond of the colt his father bought to train as a race horse, went to the pasture to try to catch the animal. The colt reared and kicked the boy in the head. Found unconscious a few minutes later, he was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital at Hamilton.

When it was realized an operation of a delicate nature was needed he was taken to Toronto with a Provincial Police escort.

fence against the atomic bomb: "Don't go to war."

Techniques in handling atomic fission problems had improved greatly since 1945 when the first Allied bomb was perfected. "It is even possible now, although it has not yet been done, to erect an atomic pile small enough to fit into a ship about the size of the Queen Mary." The Queen Mary is 84,000 tons.

But about his earlier prediction which was printed in an article in the "behind-the-headlines" series of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, the doctor said:

"There was no mystery surrounding Russia's getting the atomic bomb. Scientists said there were no atomic secrets, and there are none among scientists.

"One of the things which aided my forecast in 1946 was that I and other scientists gave the Russians more credit for their researching ability than did some persons.

"The Russians also have the advantage of knowing it was possible to build an atomic bomb, a fact the Allies did not know when they started their work three years before."

Canadian Nurse Said Arrested In Yugoslavia

TORONTO, Oct. 8 (CP) — The Toronto Daily Star said Friday in a dispatch from Zagreb, Yugoslavia, that Nacy Bozick, 19 year old Vancouver nurse, was imprisoned in Yugoslavia several weeks ago after she circulated a petition asking Canadian government aid for a group of Canadians virtually imprisoned there.

The dispatch from staff correspondent William Stephenson says that the Yugoslavian Ministry of the Interior Thursday night informed the girls' parents, who are also in Zagreb, that she will soon face trial there on a charge of conspiracy.

Stephenson said the girl was permitted to see a lawyer Friday for the first time since her arrest.

He wrote "like at least 200 other Canadians, she was arrested without warning and for no apparent reason."

Two others—Dortin Cuitkovic, 16, of Toronto, and John Plese, 19, of Port Hope, Ont.—were arrested with Miss Bozick, Stephenson wrote.

"It also became known Thursday night that a small number of Canadians in Belgrade are being permitted to return home."

Thursday night's development followed another report that some 3,000 Canadians are stranded in Yugoslavia after surrendering their passports. The group was among Canadians who returned to their homeland or to the birthplace of their parents following the war.

English Humor Invades Broadway Plays

By PAT USSHER

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (CP). — English humor ranging from Elizabethan to modern was unfolded this week for the entertainment of New York theatre audiences.

The Elizabethan sample was Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night." Representing the late Victorian era was Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado," and by way of current comedy a British company presented "Yes, M'Lord," a trifle about the post-war British political scene.

"Yes, M'Lord," treats lightly an unconventional Peer of Socialist leanings and his butler, who runs for a seat in the House of Commons as a Conservative against the Peer's son, who is a Labor Party candidate. The Peer, the Earl of Lister, is played to perfection by A. E. Matthews, and George Curzon extracts all the available humor from the part of the butler.

The play, marking the 80-year-old Matthews' first acting appearance in New York in 11 years, is by W. Douglas Home and is staged by Colin Chandler at the Booth Theatre.

Shakespeare Revival

A well-balanced company gave a pleasing revival of Shakespeare's comedy, "Twelfth Night," at the Empire Theatre. Arnold Moss was excellent as the snobbish, simpering Malvolio and the broad comedy characters Sir Toby Belch and Sir Andrew Aguecheek, were roundly played by Carl Benton Reid and Philip Tonge. The principals, Henry Brandon as Orsino and Nina Foch as Olivia, handled their roles adequately, and Harry Townes provided a fine singing voice as the clown.

Savoyard Fare

The S M. Chartok Company presented "The Mikado," the Gilbert and Sullivan version of a fantasy Japanese kingdom, and did a good, if not a first-class, job. Some of the humor was broadened to the point of clowning but the singing and the acting generally were done well enough to satisfy the average lover of the Savoy operas.

STEAKS ON HOOF—The annual round-up and shipping of cattle from southern Alberta ranches to market is in full swing. There are more than $100,000 worth of cattle in this herd of 464 grass-fed steers from Rocking P and Bar S ranches, operated by McLeay Ranches Ltd., southeast of Calgary. These steers, averaging 1,203 pounds, were shipped to Toronto and Montreal markets.

Czech Peasants Resisting Red Planning

By SYDNEY BROOKES

PRAGUE (Reuters)—Directives issued over past months from the central headquarters of the Czechoslovak Communist party reveal the central committee's concern with winning over the small and medium peasants to clear the way for what it calls the "transition to socialist forms in agriculture."

But this is evidently proving difficult. The party realizes the stubborness of the peasant in his land ownership and party workers are directed to secure co-operation and understanding. The committee's orders imply that force and coercion will be admissions of inadequate methods.

Meantime, opposition to Communist ideas, even some resistance, is reported among the peasants.

They have shown no great enthusiasm for the "more socialist forms" proposed by the Communists. They have learned that these forms are intended only as a means of covering the transition period before the land is nationalized and all farms worked as collectives on the Soviet pattern.

Communist ideologists have themselves explained that this is the policy. But at present the party is concentrating mainly on getting the peasants used to the idea of unified co-operatives, with state-run big farms and machine stations providing examples of the economic benefits claimed to accrue from working land in big units.

The peasants are also known to be strongly religious. In some places recently, they rallied on the villages to defend the Catholic presbyteries when word was spread, not always accurately, that priests were to be arrested.

The peasants were prepared to use violence. They carried, and used, pitchforks, sickles and staves.

Seek Farmers' Confidence

Such are the circumstances in which party workers have been ordered to win the confidence of the peasants.

Party workers are warned that the peasants are "conservative and mistrustful. They are backward politically, compared with industrial regions; they adhere to conservative ideas and prejudices.

"But that does not mean that we turn our backs on them. If Communists do not understand the situation, there can be no talk of the party's taking a leading role. We should only be isolated from the small and medium peasants, and that would mean disrespect for the party, for the regime, and in some instances even resistance.

The party is to concentrate on winning over the small and medium elements among the peasants, while ruthlessly "weeding out" the "village rich."

But a recent directive said: "In spite of all measures taken this class (the larger peasants) has retained a great amount of influence over the small and middle farmer."

Party members working in the country are told that they must be ideologically well-prepared for their role, ideologically or organizationally."

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Pioneer Airmen Write Canadian Aviation Story

WEST VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP).—An authoritative history of Canadian aviation is being completed by Frank H. Ellis, 53-year-old municipal bus driver here.

"Wings of Memory," started 14 years ago, is expected to be ready for publication shortly.

From the first recorded Canadian flight by Frederick W. (Casey) Baldwin in 1908, the 225,000-word encyclopedia of Canadian flying facts covers every phase of the Dominion's aviation history up to the Second World War.

Mr. Ellis estimates he has received 5,000 letters directly related to his book. More than 500 pictures will illustrate the history.

Recently he received a letter and pictures from R. Booth, one-time commander of the famous dirigible R-100. "I have got in touch with famous fliers all over the world," Mr. Ellis says, "and everyone has expressed keen interest."

His wife, Elsie, does the proof-reading.

Worthwhile Record

Baldwin, who died last year, wrote the book's preface: "It is important that the tradition and background which preceded and laid the foundations for the great future of Canadian aviation should be appreciated and recorded in a book such as this."

A bus driver for 24 years, Mr. Ellis has been interested in aviation since he came to Canada from Nottingham, England, 37 years ago.

He was the first Canadian to make a parachute jump from a Canadian aircraft. That was in 1914 when he and Tom Blakely of Winnipeg built and flew a Curtis Pusher biplane in Calgary.

The author also flew as mechanic on the first flight north of latitude 53, in 1920. Piloted by Hector Dougall, one-time president of Canadian Flying Clubs, the plane took three days for the trip from Winnipeg to The Pas.

Author of many articles for aeronautical magazines, Mr. Ellis is one of three living Canadian members of the "Early Birds." Qualifications for the "Early Birds" was to have flown in non-military aircraft before 1914.

His aim in writing "Wings of Memory" is not to make money. "If it is included in school libraries or other institutions where the inforamtion will be available to young Canadians, I shall be content."

War Veteran Shoots Himself

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 8 (AP)—A demented war veteran shot himself today in front of his mother and wife after holding a policeman and psychiatrist at gunpoint for more than an hour.

The gun wound was not immediately fatal.

The veteran, Roger Kohlenberger, 32, was carried from an upstairs apartment on a stretcher.

He had crep into an attic and there a young psychiatrist and a police captain had attempted to talk him out of committing suicide. All the while Kohlenberger kept his German pistol trained on them.

Kohlenberger was just about to come down from the attack when he suddenly turned the gun on himself.

Impressions Of Britain (5)

What we have said about Britain in the four editorials of this series which have preceded this one has been briefly concerned with British politics. But there is more to a nation than its politics. Its national spirit and its people are both more important than its governmental doings. We may well be asked, what is the condition of the people of Britain today?

* * *

So far as we could judge they are in excellent spirits, far less depressed about their economic difficulties than might be supposed from the news dispatches. For a traveller who has spent a brief time in Britain to express an opinion on the spirit of the nation may seem impertinent; nevertheless, we covered a good deal of ground and spoke to a good many people, and we received everywhere an impression of optimism and energy. We heard no talk about Britain being "finished," or even of Britain sinking to a secondary level of importance in the affairs of the world. So far as we could judge, the general feeling seemed to be that Britain had been in tough spots before, and had overcome her difficulties, and that she would do so again—politics or no politics.

* * *

British ingenuity and craftsmanship are revealed in a great variety of beautiful manufactured goods, which are made entirely for export. Bomb damage is being repaired as fast as possible and much of it has been decently concealed. It is still hard to get painting and decorating jobs done, but in London and other large cities there are signs of a strong desire to repaint and freshen premises which have become shabby. Where there is no paint, window boxes of beautiful flowers do much to supply that lack. Excellent clothing of fine materials is on sale, at prices roughly comparable with what they would cost here—except for luxury goods which are heavily taxed, though they are free of purchase tax to overseas visitors.

* * *

Artistically Britain is far ahead of any standard which she reached between the two wars. Music and the theatre are flourishing and adventurous. The most successful play in London at present is a modern drama in verse, The Lady's Not For Burning by Christopher Fry; despondent and beaten nations do not, we feel sure, blossom forth in poetry and fine music. The national diet, though plain, has had no observable effect on the people, who look healthy; the children are as rosy and as full of the devil as usual, if not more so. Everyone the present writer spoke to, whether a man of business, a farmer or a person engaged in the arts, was full of plans for the future, and quite certain that the plans would be carried out. Despondent people make no plans, except to escape. As for escape, many young people are planning to emigrate, but not in a spirit of disgust with their own land.

* * *

Britain, upon the whole, seems to be in good shape. Doubtless we could have found despondency if we had looked for it, but we took what came, and what we found was optimism, self-reliance, and a determination to rise above present troubles. This is the spirit which made the country great and which will, we believe, keep it great.

Importance Of Constitutional Measures

Tom Paine wrote in The Rights of Man that "A constitution is a thing antecedent to a government, and a government is only a creature of a constitution. The constitution is not an act of its government, but of the people constituting a government." This statement serves to emphasize the basic importance of a constitution, an importance which in this age and in a political democracy like Canada is often minimized. There is so much taken for granted, so much ideological discussion about capitalism and socialism, democracy and communism, public welfare and private enterprise, so much emphasis on the ends, that the means may be neglected.

A constitution is the means under which social or economic objectives are obtained, and by which recognized interests are guarded. Constitutional measures are therefore not dry pedantic affairs of interest only to a few scholars and politicians; they concern every member of the society, and each should be concerned about them. The Bill now before Parliament to abolish appeals to the Privy Council in the United Kingdom is therefore of very great importance, because it touches on constitutional matters.

Canada has still "two badges of colonialism," as the Honourable Stuart Garson, Minister of Justice, said when introducing the Bill. One is that the ultimate determination of Canadian lawsuits and final interpretation of Canadian statutes is the Privy Council, a United Kingdom court. The present Bill to amend the Supreme Court Act will abolish this right of appeal to the Privy Council. The second vestige of colonial days is this: Canada must petition the British Parliament to pass a British law whenever Canada wants to amend its constitution—which is the British North America Act. It is important to realize that the present Bill in no way affects this situation.

In the Speech from the Throne Parliament was told that it would be asked to > "approve addresses praying the parliament of the United Kingdom to vest in the parliament of Canada the right to amend the constitution of Canada in relation to matters not coming within the jurisdiction of the legislatures of the provinces nor affecting the constitutional rights and privileges of the provinces or existing rights and privileges with respect to education or the use of the English and French languages."

The Bill to amend the Supreme Court Act is but preparatory to the important and even more controversial constitutional measure which the Speech from the Throne foreshadowed, and which will be put before Parliament this session. If the measure is adopted, the British Parliament will pass the last Bill it will ever pass on behalf of Canada. It will give Canada the right to amend her own constitution, and the supreme constitutional authority will be the Supreme Court of Canada.

These are historic and important measures, and deserve the close attention of the Canadian people.

The Hasty P's

This weekend Peterborough welcomes the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Association, when present and former members of the Regiment gather for what promises to be a lively reunion. It is natural that the Hasty P's should choose Peterborough as the centre for their meetings and celebrations, for many Peterborough men served in the Hasty P's during the war, and Peterborough is central to the regiment's area which extended from Kingston to Muskoka, though eventually men from all parts of the Dominion came to the colours.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment has a distinguished history and an outstanding record of service and comradeship during the war. It was a principal infantry battalion of the First Canadian Division, and under distinguished and able commanders, stood guard over Britain during three and a half years; landed in Sicily with the first troops; fought its way north through a year and a half of hard Italian campaigning, and was in action at the Grebbe Line and the Ijsselmeer in Holland when V.E. day came, the hour for which it had stood staunchly and striven selflessly for five and a half years until it could rest with honour.

If one were asked to name a regiment which typifies the best in Canadian military qualities and annals, he would not be wrong in naming the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

A Word About Our Carriers

This is National Newspaper Boy Day, and we would like to tell our readers that we are proud of the boys and girls who carry The Examiner, and that we think they do a good job, often under difficult circumstances. Many carrier boys have grown up to be important men in business and in the professions; whether any of our carriers will achieve fame we do not know; but we know that they will all be good citizens, because they are good boys and girls now, and they help us with one of the most important jobs in newspaper work.

It is not easy to be a good newspaper carrier. It is a large responsibility for a boy or girl who has not had much experience of routine, of collecting, and of sticking faithfully at a job six days a week. We hope that you share our liking for the Examiner carriers, and if you do, we suggest that a good word now and then encourages a carrier greatly. This is our annual public good word to our carriers—as fine a group of boys and girls as any in Peterborough.

The Marchbanks Correspondence

To Miss Nancy Frissig

Charming Nancy:

How good of you to take time to write to me when you lead such a busy life! Indeed, I think that people who live entirely for pleasure, like you, work harder than any of us.—Sorry, that sounds as though I disapproved of your way of life, and I don't. To be pretty, elegant and merry, like you—these are justifications for a life in themselves.

But how hard your questions are to answer! Are people in England still managing to have a good time, you enquire. How can I tell? I am having a good time, but I am a traveller and not English. Now and then, however, I have a chance to observe the English in some place to which they have gone in search of pleasure.

Last night, for instance, I went to a new musical comedy, which is one of London's great successes just now. It is called "Tough At The Top". It is usually admitted, I believe, that American musical comedy is superior to the English variety. This is probably caused by Nature's law of Compensation, to make up to the Americans for the fact that they cannot act Shakespeare. Personally I am no great judge of musical comedy, and as I had seats in the front row, I couldn't hear much except the bass drum.

However, I was able to follow the plot, and I found it rather startling. The English, as you know, Nancy, make a great point of their national modesty; they would like us to think that they would rather die than boast. But "Tough At The Top" was enormously boastful about England, and one of its chief songs —"England is A Lovely Land" — made me blush, it was so shameless. I am more than ready to admit that England is indeed a lovely land, but to have that fact impressed upon me by seventy singers at the tops of their voices does not deepen my belief in English modesty.

The audience loved it and demanded many encores. Quite obviously they were enjoying themselves. Does that answer your question, my poppet?

Your admiring,
S.M.

To Amyas Pilgarlic, Esq.

Dear Pil:

I have been haunting London's bookshops by day, and her theatres by night. You would be amazed at the number of books which are now being offered in what the booksellers are pleased to call "fine bindings".

It has always been my belief that a book should be bound appropriately, and that a fine leather binding, elegantly ornamented with gold and blind-stamping, should only be put upon a book which deserves such fine array. But alas!—the tawdriest novels are being dressed up, now, as gifts, I presume from people of poor taste to others in similar condition.

The theatres which I visit in the evenings are not always as good as the entertainments which are offered to me free, every day, in the streets. Behind the National Gallery, as you know, there stands a statue of Sir Henry Irving, erected by the actors and actresses of England to one of the greatest of their number. In the open space at the foot of the statue there perform, for pennies, the humblest actors in the country. They sing, they recite, they play six instruments at once, they allow themselves to be roped, chained and bagged up, so that they may escape in two minutes; they give remarkable entertainments, often to no more than two or three idle passers-by, like myself. And above them stands the god-like Irving, the first actor to be accepted by society as the equal of other professional men. I enjoy the contrast as much as the performance.—No more at present from Sam.

To Raymond Cataplasm, M.D., F.R.C.P.

Dear Dr. Cataplasm:

Do you want to make a fortune? Of course you do. Permit me to tell you how it may be done.

Convince the Canadian people that they need another meal. Already Canadians are addicts of the English custom of morning coffee: convince them that they need afternoon tea and you will be hailed as a medical genius equal with Dr. Abernethy (who invented a biscuit) and Dr. Graham (who invented a new kind of bread).

Canada has a vast sweet tooth. Think of the oceans of pop, the glaciers of ice-cream, the deluges of milk-shakes, and the tons of chocolates that we descendants of hardy pioneers consume every year. You have but to persuade the Canadians that they need a meal consisting of rich pastries every afternoon at four, and your reputation is made! Tell them any nonsense you like—tell them that their efficiency sags at four, and that they need food to stave off heart failure—and the rest will be easy. Look what a success afternoon tea has been in England!

I offer this suggestion quite without strings: of course, if you choose to knock anything off my next pill, that is entirely your affair.

Your perennial patient,
S. Marchbanks.

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.

Dear Mr. Marchbanks:

A most interesting idea has just occurred to me, and I cannot wait until you return from abroad to communicate it to you.

Would it not have been a happy thought if Divine Providence, at the Creation, had made it possible for Mankind to express pleasure by purring, like our dear dumb chums, the cats?

Yours ecstatically,
Minerva Hawser.

To Miss Minerva Hawser

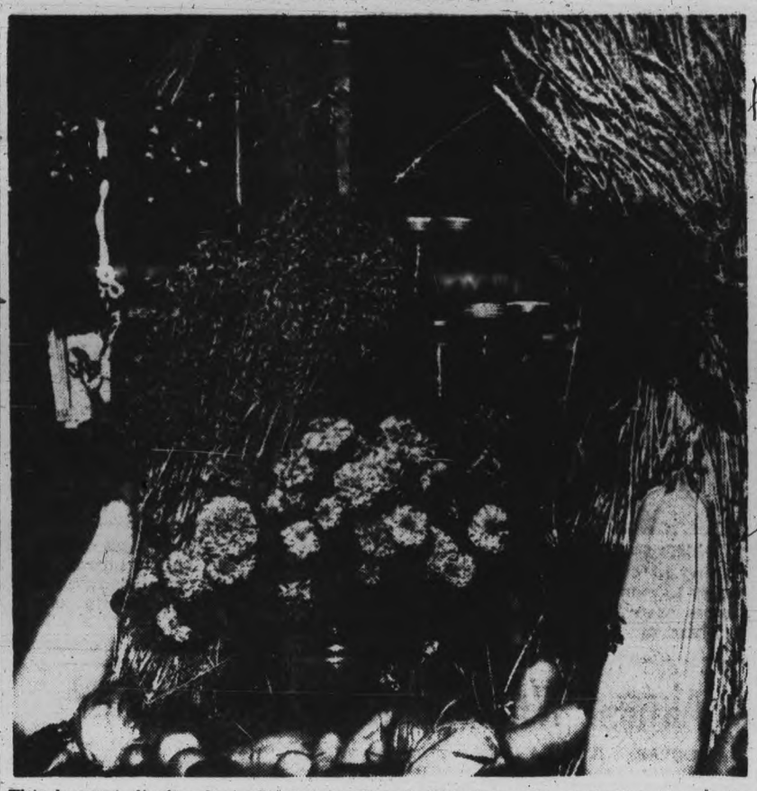
Dear Miss Hawser:

I cannot agree with you about purring. Mind you, it is nice to purr, and I often do, but you could never make it fashionable: it is too animal a noise.

Consider that other delightful noise of satisfaction, the belch. Look what organized society has done to it. Do you ever belch when you feel like it? No. You don't dare. And you wouldn't dare to purr, either. Only cats could get away with it. Cats have the right personalities.

Yours phlegmatically,
S. Marchbanks.

To Haubergeon Hydra, Esq.



Dear Hydra:

As a civil servant you are undoubtedly interested in new categories of human beings, so I write to tell you of one which came my way yesterday, when I stopped for a drink at the Hop Pole Inn, in Tewkesbury, with my Uncle Fortunatus. We had been travelling, as had another man who entered the bar just before us: he wandered disconsolately to the far end of the room, and shortly returned looking more woeful than before. "Gents?" said Uncle Fortunatus, helpfully: "No, only Ladies and Telephones" said the man, and disappeared toward the street.

Yours,
Samuel Marchbanks.

Letter To The Editor

THE EXAMINER'S BARBAROUS LATIN

Sir: It is with sadness, but determination, that I take my pen in hand.

The editorial page of The Examiner has long been a source of great pleasure to me. I read it with care each evening. Indeed, I may say that the reading of it is as necessary a part of the evening meal as porridge is of breakfast. I value it not only for its learned opinions but for the elegance of the language in which those opinions are expressed. I have held it up to young students as a model of good English usage. From a proper distance I have been an ardent admirer of this personification of Canadian journalistic wit and wisdom.

Imagine then my disillusionment, my distress, to find that the erudite Examiner has a foot of clay. I refer, sir, to The Examiner's Latin. An editorial (Friday, September 30th I think it was) on world affairs, entitled American Peace, contains three Latin phrases. On finishing the article what was my horror to find that I had automatically circled each of the Latin phrases with a red pencil and initialled them Syn, F, G, respectively. When I realized the enormity of what these circles revealed, the round tears fell (See Homer passim).

Sir, the phrase pax Romanorum, if not bad Latin, is certainly not the best usage. It is the kind of Latin one winks at in the lower forms, but frowns upon in the upper school. I do not know why the adjective (pax Romana, pax Britannica, etc) is preferred to the genitive. The fact remains that it is. Those phrases, I would guess, have derived some flavour from English law, at any rate in their strictly interpretation of lands where order prevails under Roman law, or respectively British law. Whether in that sense or in the broader sense, as The Examiner used them, they appear so commonly that the correct form is to be found in any good English dictionary (Concise Oxford, Harmsworth, Book of Knowledge, to mention three). And we have enough examples extant to know that the Romans too wrote the phrase with the adjective, immensa pacis Romanae majestate for one.

The second phrase, as it stands, might leave room for slight argument if one were acquainted with certain grammarians of the third century and later, but the spelling appearing in the Examiner is a frequent barbarism of the lower forms, and hence suspect, I, supported by Caesar on the one hand and by Tacitus et al on the other, hold that Britannia rules the waves with one t and two n's, and wage continual warfare to force descendants to spell likewise. The proper phrase, pax Britannica eliminates the argument.

As to the third item, that is the worst boner of all. Pax, whether presented as an ancient goddess of the Romans, or now-a-days as a figure in a Low cartoon, poor Pax has always been a lady. Having regard (as the government says) to The Examiner's propensity for really feminine femininity, I would observe that I cannot recall having seen her even in a pair of slacks.

So too, I cannot recall having seen the phrase, pax Americana. To think that The Examiner might have coined it! A phrase so rich in tradition, so compact (as Latin often is) of all our hopes for a period of order in the world, this time made possible by the prestige and leadership of the United States in her turn, as Rome and Great Britain before us!

Yours, luctuosa tristique,
HELEN R. McGREGOR.

ED. NOTE: We offer no excuse and we apologise. We should not use Latin unless we can use it with authority, and this has never been within our power.

HOW NOT TO VISIT A TAXPAYER

Sir: Yesterday afternoon, hearing voices outside my house, I went out to investigate and found two men measuring my house with great care. When I asked them who they were and what they were doing, they said they were employees of the city assessor's office.

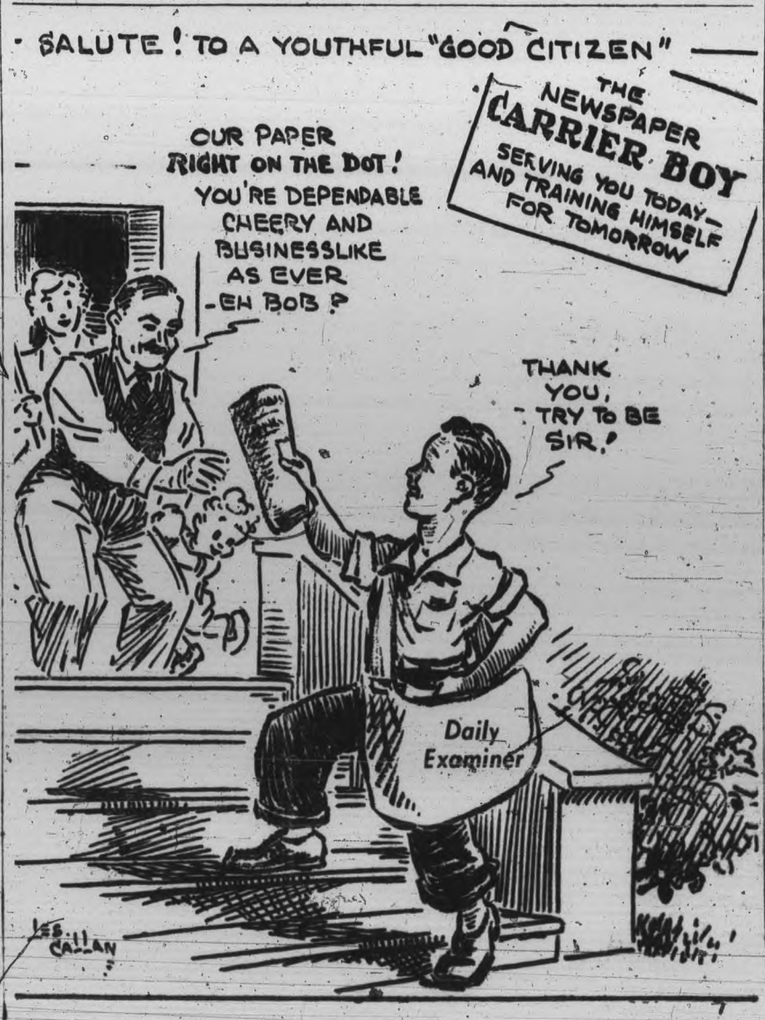
Now why, I wonder, didn't they knock on my door and tell me that before they began their work. If they had done so, I would not have minded. As it is, I have a feeling that city officials have been snooping around my house, trying to put something over on me.

About a year ago I found two men from the Hydro in my cellar, doing something to the wiring. They had sneaked in the back way, without asking me.

City officials should not feel that they can go where they like, without any reference to property-owners. There is a tendency of all officials these days to think that they are above laws and also above ordinary good manners. Sneaky officials very soon make sneaky taxpayers.

Yours,
WEST ENDER.

ASKS FOR CLARIFICATION



Sir: Why don't preachers clarify themselves, their speeches? The other morning, one of them said amongst other things, 'Agriculture will not save the world.' They have never tried to 'save' the world, only feed it. If they had they could not have made a worse mess of it than has been done by churches (sectarianism) and so called witnesses.

In a prelude to 'Labour Day' sermon one preacher (over the radio) said 'work has come to be regarded as a necessary evil.' That we (farmers) believe is the cause of most of our troubles. Yet Christianity teaches service (work) even the washing of feet; but our education teaches (or seems to) sinecurism and a blind self indulgence. Must it take the third world war to enlighten us,—or those of us who are left?

He (Christ) said—For I was hungered and ye gave me no meat: I was thirsty and you gave me no drink; sick and in prison and ye visited me not—etc.—

In Canada stacks of butter and canned milk are piling up. All summer fruits and vegetables have overflowed the market—yet there are hungry. So in the depression was there an abundance of food (cheap) yet there was hunger even in our own country. Also banks laden with gold. Who are the guilty? Let's name them or it.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And after these things I heard a great voice of much people in heaven, saying, Alleluia; Salvation, and glory, and honour, and power, unto the Lord our God. (Rev. 19: 1.)

* * *

And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away.

And there came unto me one of the seven angels which had the seven vials full of the seven last plagues, and talked with me, saying, Come hither, I will shew thee the bride, the Lamb's wife. And he carried me away in the spirit to a great and high mountain, and shewed me that great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God, having the glory of God. (Rev. 21: 3, 4, 9-11.)

* * *

And he shewed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb. In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. (Rev. 22: 1, 2.)

THE NIGHT BEFORE

On the ninth stroke of the clock Simpson awoke with a start. "Gosh, what a head I've got," he groaned. "I can't go to the office today."

He reached for the 'phone and called his boss' private number. "It's no use wrapping things up," he confessed. "Last night I was out with some pals and I'm ashamed to say I overdid it. I wonder if I could take the day off, sir?"

"Well," came the boss' voice over the phone, "I admire your candor, Simpson, and I shall expect you at 8 tomorrow. As for the day off, it's yours. Today is Sunday."

The autumn kaleidoscope of the Kawarthas is with us once more. Seasoned travellers who are constantly touring the province keep saying that our immediate district stages the most fantastic show of them all. They are quite right. The boy apprentice on his way to work in the misty October mornings or wealthy people with cars or planes that transport them over the distances, may equally enjoy the greatest show on earth. Because of the geographical nature of our district, from the Precambrian Shield, through the Trent limestones to the lush farming lands and low-lying lakes, the variety of Fall foliage is inexhaustible.

It is this very variety of all colors and their infinite hues playing one against the other that is so appealing. It is the contrast between bright yellow grape vines and rich purple fruit against the silver-gray of stump and rail fences and dry fieldstone walls. Then again we see the yellows of birches and poplars on the high bank of some lake or stream with flaming red water maples and ochre sedge grasses at the waterline. Dark brown waters carrying bright leaves are another contrast. The red and yellows of farm sugarbush lots, broken by groves of dark pines, stand out sharply against emerald green of fall wheat and warm browns of newly-ploughed ground.

• • • •

Trailing mats of red ivy on stone church walls invite people to attend their meeting-houses where the harvest of the forest and field is arranged to enhance dark interiors. They listen to their spiritual leaders' teachings about the bountiful harvest and they are impressed. It is doubtful whether all are impressed, however. A small group of sportsmen turn a deaf ear, and look at the beauty without seeing. They are boiling at the state of affairs that does not allow them to hunt and shoot at will. Their bitter thoughts dwell on individuals who band together to establish game preserves where the sportsmen are not welcome to shoot to their heart's content. The legality of no shooting on posted marshes curdles their souls.

They argue along these lines. Did the Government not pay all claims against drowned properties when water levels were raised and were property owners not fully compensated therefore? Since claims were paid, does the property not belong to the public and if not, do the present property owners retain individual rights? Can these owners post such properties to keep the public off and still enjoy privileges themselves on private shooting grounds? Why is it not legal to push a canoe or boat into any navigable stream, shoot from them at will and retrieve birds where they fall?

The whole matter seems to rile their natures. When something is forbidden or denied, that is the very thing they are going to break down. Property owners call the objecting birdshooters' attitude selfish and careless, for the water-front proprietors have an axe to grind too.

As one game preserve owner said, hunters on private properties leave a trail of broken fences and open gates that allow fenced-in stock to ravage fall crops. The very courtesy of getting permission to shoot would be cheerfully given, even to directions as to where it might be best.

This spokesman went on to ask why he could not come into the city and start playing golf on any landscaped lawn he fancied. He would find himself in the digger in short order. The thing works both ways.

Private games preserves, on which owners pay taxes and which include fringes of marsh and muskrat grounds, are another "field" from which cash crops of fur are harvested, part of the owners' incomes. If trespassers carelessly destroy rat houses while shooting they are far from welcome. If marshland preserves are posted and fences cross streams, these waterways are forbidden. Only navigable streams, of which there are less than one might think, may be entered by watercraft.

Preserve owners claim that not more than ten per cent of ducks dropped are retrieved. Hunters claim this is crazy and a slur on their marksmanship. There is a growing use of good Labrador and Chesapeake retriever dogs in the district which will increase the shooting yield, according to the experts. It's bad business to get caught in the crossfire between game preserve operaters and hunters. Both are right on some counts and wrong on others. For me, I'm neutral.

Lunge fishing closed last Saturday night but the faithful are still trying for bass and pickerel and with good results. For instance Fred Green, McDonnel St., landed a pickerel over 12 pounds at Young's Point on Wednesday. Partridge have not been told about opening day, Oct. 8, but they will soon learn. Last Sunday afternoon a ruffles dive-bomberd a service station at Park and Murray Sts., and broke its neck; proprietor Jim Withers licked his lips and a Game Warden, who happened to be there, said he could put it in the roasting pan. Another bird sailed into a bathroom window on Friday morning at a King and Maitland Sts. home; it was retrieved from behind the bathtub, washbowel or somewhere and released in a groggy condition beneath a lawn shrub. It took off under its own power after the stars stopped reeling, leaving a $3.42 pane of glass to be replaced. Roger and out.

A Thanksgiving To God For His House

Lord, Thou hast given me a cell
Wherein to dwell,
A little house, whose humble roof
Is weather-proof;
Under the spars of which I lie
Both soft and dry;
Where Thou, my chamber for to ward,
Has set a guard
Of harmless thoughts, to watch and keep Me while I sleep.
Low is my porch, as is my fate,
Both void of state;
And yet the threshold of my door
Is worn by the poor,
Who thither come and freely get
Good words or meat.
Like as my parlour so my hall
And kitchen's small;
A little buttery, and therein
A little bin,
Which keeps my little loaf of bread
Unchipped, unflead;
Some little sticks of thorn or briar
Make me a fire,
Close by whose living coal I sit,
And glow like it.
Lord, I confess too, when I dine,
The pulse is Thine,
And all those other bits that be
There placed by Thee;
The worts, the purslane, and the mess
Of water-cress,
Which of Thy kindness Thou has sent;
And my content
Makes those, and my beloved beet,
To be more sweet.
'Tis Thou that crown'st my glittering hearth
With guiltless mirth,
And giv'st me wassail-bowls to drink,
Spiced to the brink.
Lord,—'tis Thy plenty-dropping hand
That soils my land,
And giv'st me, for my bushel sown,
Twice ten for one;
Thou mak'st my teeming hen to lay
Her egg each day;
Besides my healthful ewes to bear
Me twins each year;
The while the conduits of my kine
Run cream, for wine,
All these, and better Thou dost send
Me, to this end,
That I should render, for my part,
A thankful heart,
Which, fired with incense, I resign,
As wholly Thine;
But the acceptance, that must be,
My Christ, by Thee.

Our Leading Citizens Were Newsboys

Every day of the year except Sundays and holidays 149 boys deliver the evening's Examiner to more than 11,000 homes in Peterborough city and surrounding rural areas. It is a task which is rarely thrown into the limelight and more often than not it is the one day in the year when something goes wrong with the routine and the paper is not left at the house that is remembered.

Most days the paper is left at the door by the sprightly boy who vanishes into the next house almost before he is noticed. Once a week, however, his cry Ex-amin-er is heard as he approaches and he takes more time to pass the time of day. That is on Friday when he collects a quarter from every house.

His services are accepted unpraised throughout the year until His Day arrives—once a year in October—and then he comes into his own. Right across Canada newspaper carriers today are enjoying Their Day — Newspaper-boy Day.

There is no telling to what heights your present paper carrier may rise. Peterborough's leading citizen, Mayor Max Swanston, earned his first penny as a newspaperboy at the age of 11. "It helps a boy to become more dependent on himself" the Mayor said when giving thought to today's Newspaper Boy. "He begins to learn the value of money" he said.

Perhaps the king of all newspaper boys in days gone by was Jack Baird, of Higgins hardware store. In the days before each boy was allowed only one route, Mr. Baird developed a lucrative business for himself with about 200 papers on several routes in the north of the city. He served about 90 customers personally and employed others to carry papers on the other routes.

"It made you smart—or perhaps I should say sharp" Mr. Baird said this week, when thinking over old times.

Pleasantest memories are of the days when the press broke down in the old George St. Examiner office. "On those occasions we used to go over to Hooper's store and fill up with cakes and tarts," he recalled boyishly. Now he has twin sons who, when they are a little older, may follow in their Dad's footsteps.

Eric Shiner, accountant at the Civic Hospital, thinks the boys have a better thing of it today than in his paper-carrying days. "They probably get more tips now," he said. "In my day the people did not pay the carrier every Friday and so we did not see our customers from one week's end to the next. We just got as far as the verandah and were away to the next one. As I remember, we used to get .25 for every two weeks," he recalled. Mr. Shiner delivered along the Avenues between Charlotte and King.

Pete McGillen, a former city editor of the Examiner, entered the newspaper world as an Examiner carrier. In those days newspaper boys went by foot and his route took him from the office, at that time situated on George St. to Ashburnham. He also sold papers on the street and recalls receiving 50 cents for one paper which was given to him by an old man whom he helped across the street. "He was walking with a cane and I helped him across without trying to sell him a paper. When he asked for one he gave me 50 cents," Mr. McGillen remembers.

Selling newspapers became a McGillen family job for a number of years. He started the route and then it was taken over in turn by his brother, Claire, now a city constable, and then Charles, machine operator at the CGE.

Other well known Peterborough people who carried papers are R. M. Glover, Jack Hardill, P. S Dallin, George Dormer, Jack Richardson, Roy Taylor, F. H. Johnston, Jim Doris, Fred Scates, Cliff Vincent, Doug Vaisey, R. R. Faryon and Ed Riley.

The OLD GUIDE & TRAPPER — "The Wise Old Owl"

CGE Man Sails His House To Montreal Family To Live Winter On 36-Footer

By HAZEL PAULL

After serving withe the Royal Air Force in England and then in the English Channel with the Royal Navy during the invasion of Europe, John Hughes, an employee at the Peterborough plant of the CGE, has found that a cruise on Ontario's inland waters can be as full of adventure as many hazardous wartime experiences. Mr Hughes is moving to Montreal with the CGE's refrigeration division this month, and to avoid the exasperation and expense of house hunting, he bought a Tancook Island schooner in which he and his wife and baby daughter will live on the St. Lawernce at Montreal.

The two weeks' voyage from Port Hope east along Lake Ontario and into the St. Lawrence River was no ordinary sailing trip for Mr. Hughes. He and his wife comprised crew, and not yet three-year-old Heather was the only passenger, except for the cat.

The Hughes' voyage was beset with mishaps, many of which seemed unsurpassable only by miracle, but the schooner is now firmly established on skids on the bank of the St. Lawrence and the family is still here to tell the tale.

Navigating the boat to Montreal is only the first lap of the adventure, however It still remains to be seen what comforts a 36 foot Last-coaster will offer as a family home in midwinter.

Since September 24, when the boat was established in its winter quarters alongside the Longueil Boat Clubhouse about half a mile inland, Mrs. Hughes has been living there with her daughter. Mr. Hughes joins them permanently on October 15.

Electricity is laid on and fresh water is close at hand from which the boat's two 100-gallon tanks can be filled. And there will be no cooking difficulties, because the boat is equipped with a naphtha gas cooker. Heating will probably be no trouble John Hughes says. He has an oil stove, and in the opinion of a number of other sailing men, that will be adequate.

The boat has four berths and one for the baby, a main cabin, storage space, and a sink with a pump. Main difficulty will probably be finding somewhere to do the laundry without too much trouble, Mr Hughes thinks.

"We can only wait until winter comes before giving it a real test," Mr. Hughes says cautiously. But if it is successful he will save a good deal of money which would otherwise go on rent or payment for a house. Apartments are $75 and $80, and it is difficult to buy a house for less than $8,000 he found soon after he knew he would be leaving Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes also have a long term plan behind their acquisition of the boat. Named Saoirse II after the British sailor O'Connor O'Brien's schooner, which has sailed round the world, the Hughes boat is also capable of long sea voyages. Two years ago they emigrated from England, and when they make a return visit, they hope it will be in the schooner. A short time ago they sold their house on Western Avenue.

2 Weeks, Port Hope-Montreal

"I bought the boat at Port Hope and started off for Montreal after waiting just long enough to slap on a coat of paint," Mr. Hughes told the Examiner. The trip took two weeks. If it had not been for an initial setback which wasted three days at the beginning of the trip, it would have taken only about a week.

The trouble began at Cobourg when the anchor became entangled round the propellor and screw. The engine could not be used then and so the sail had to be hoisted.

This state of affairs could not continue, however, so with carving knife in hand and clad in his swim suit, Mr Hughes plunged into the icy lake and cut the anchor. Then he headed back for Port Hope to obtain another anchor. After having left Port Hope at the week-end, they set off again from the same spot on Wednesday.

Without undue difficulty the schooner arrived at Kingston, where they took on fresh water and enjoyed the luxury of a show. This was the baby's first experience, not only of a voyage on a schooner, but also of a show.

From Kingston John Hughes was navigating without adequate charts. From the bow of the boat Mrs. Hughes saw they were heading for rocks and this was the first narrow escape from the dangers of navigating in strange waters.

The early part of the trip had been made more difficult for the family because Mrs Hughes and the baby had been seasick and Mr. Hughes had buffeted unfavorable winds single-handed. It appears that by the time they reached Gananoque their spirits were a little higher and were raised to their full heights by a steak dinner.

After having been forced periodically throughout the trip to hoist sail, no matter how the wind was blowing, because the hot shot batteries for the engine gave out, Mr. Hughes found a leak through the stern gland. This was discovered at Brockville. The only thing to do was to pump the water out every four hours, with the result that Mr. Hughes had very little sleep.

By Sail, One Cylinder

Starting at 11 p.m. he pumped again at 3 a.m. and then again at 6 a.m. The next trouble was when the motor would not pump and the engine was not, therefore, being cooled. Nothing daunted, Mr. Hughes stopped the engine to avoid its seizing up and the boat went once again under sail.

With no motor the schooner narrowly escaped the rapids at the Williamsburg Canal. Seeing that the schooner was being blown right into the rapids, Mr Hughes towed it in the dinghy, which had a 1½ horse-power outboard motor.

Soon after this the schooner reached the section of the water which can be traversed only by going through a series of locks. The canals were busy with grain ships and ships carrying British cars westward for ultimate distribution throughout Canada. Having to wait four and five hours to go through a lock was one of the greatest trials of patience throughout the entire journey. A starnger to boating in Canada, Mr. Hughes had a number of amusing exchanges with other sailors in his efforts to learn the courtesy rules of the river.

At one point the schooner went aground. The master of a larger boat who was passing by endeavored to help the smaller boat out of its difficulties by revving up its engine in the hope that the schooner would be drawn off the mud bank by the swirl. The opposite effect was obtained, however, and it was not until Mr. Hughes got into the water and heaved the schooner against his back, with Mrs. Hughes pulling at the anchor, that the boat became free.

At Iriquois they laid up for the night. Having been under sail for some time, because the engine was not performing properly, Mr. Hughes took out the plugs and tested the sparks. Everything was in order and he came to the conclusion there must have been some dampness in the coils. The engine was functioning again, and they proceeded on until the battery gave out and once again sail was hoisted. The schooner managed to limp into Coteau Landing on one cylinder.

In the meantime, at one place they had tied up, Mr. Hughes decided to get in touch with the CGE because he had overspent his week's holiday for the trip. In search of a post office, Mrs. Hughes tramped two miles.

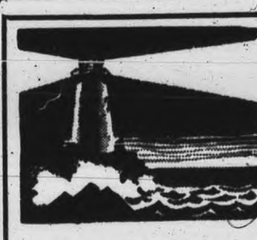
A keen sailor round the English coast, mostly off Cornwall, John Hughes has discovered that Lake Ontario can be a good deal rougher than the sea. A number of people live in boats off the English coast, but in Canada it is a more unusual practice.

Painters At Georgian Bay Still Among The Thomsons

OWEN SOUND, Oct. 8 (CP)

One of the busiest art centres lies appropriately at one of the Dominion's beauty spots — Owen Sound—at the end of the railway line.

There, amid the isolated, undulating terrain of Grey and Bruce counties, on the shore of Georgian Bay, everybody paints. And art, great and ordinary, is fertilized by the influence of surrounding beauty.



From this section came the Thomson and Johnsons.

Tom Thomson, one of six painting children of pioneer settler John Thomson and leader of the famous Group of Seven, created there some of his most moving and vital works.

O, finer far
Than fame, or riches, are
The graceful smoke-wreaths of this free cigar.
George Arnold (1834-65)

And there is the notable Johnson family. Seven of the 11 girls in this family took up painting. Agnes Johnson Sinclair taught one group of keen youngsters after another. Ann Johnson Rogers headed the Lyceum Club Women's Art Association for many years.

Since pioneer days, people of the region have taken to the brush and easel and there is no sign of decreasing interest. Local pictures by 65 district painters filled City Hall at the annual exhibitions this spring for two days. And by the looks of things there will be more painted this year

Boston Bruins Unimpressive In Trainng

By The Canadian Press.

There's a sad note in Boston Bruin's camp. They may not be in the thick of the National Hockey League battle this new season.

The Bruins, knocked out of the semi-final playoffs by Toronto Maple Leafs last season, broke their Hershey, Pa., training camp Friday.

The boys haven't made an impressive showing up to now. They were beaten by their American League farmhands, Hershey Bears in one exhibition game and tied in another.

Says manager Art Ross:

"We're hopeful—that's all I can say."

At New York Rangers' Lake Placid, N. Y., camp, Don Raleigh, nursing an injured shoulder, is back in action. Both manager Frank Boucher and coach Lynn Patrick are confident that the slim Kenora, Ont., centre will be ready when the Rangers meet Montreal Canadiens in their first league game at Montreal, Oct. 15.

Defenceman Wally Stanowski is confined to bed with the grippe but is expected to be in shape within a few days.

Boucher said his defence situation was "pretty well solved" when Gus Kyle, 200-pound defenceman from Regina Capitals, signed a contract yesterday.

"He's what we've been looking for for a long time," Boucher added.

The Toronto Maple Leafs are mixing golf with hockey—and bashing Bill Ezinicki can hold his own in both departments. Ezinicki yesterday carded a two-under-par 69 to retain his club title. Netminder Turk Broda came in second with a 74.

NEW COACH—Hank Blade, native of Peterborough, is the new coach this season of Kansas City Mohawks, a Chi-Hawks' farm club, the team coming here for an exhibition game next Monday night.

Story Of Mozart Coming To Centre

Centre Theatre presents on Wednesday afternoon and evening the story of Mozart interwoven with some of his finest music including Don Giovanni, Magic Flute and Marriage of Figaro. It is a Screen Guild production, one of a series planned by Mr. Harry Yudin, manager of the Centre, as a feature for music lovers.

This program also offers a group of celebrated soloists in a film entitled "Concert Magic" with such names at Yehudi Menuhin, violinist; Eula Bael, contralto and others.

The orchestra for the Mozart romance is the Hollywood Symphonic with Antal Dorati, conducting.

Tickets for afternoon and evening are reserved, and may be obtained at the Tem agency in the Capital building.

A month ago Mr. Yudin remarked that if he is to continue this series the matinee attendance should be large enough to indicate the desire of the public to hear programs of musical excellence. The night crowd at the September production was most encouraging, but the matinee appeared to have missed the attention of many citizens, men and women, whose afternoons provide available time for a concert that offers so much of the best in music.

McMASTER SOFTBALLERS WIN

McMaster University's intermediate softball squad Friday defeated the University of Toronto 7-4 at Toronto to take their first win in four years of post-war intercollegiate intermediate football.

Varsity Students Burn Gaels Effigy

TORONTO, Oct. 8—(CP) — Gaels may be plenty "hot" when they meet Varsity in the first intercollegiate game of the season here today, but they won't be as fiery as they were last night. The Queen's football team was burned in effigy by University of Toronto students on the back campus in eve-of-the-game celebrations. A snake dance and a parade on the university grounds climaxed the night's festivities.

McGILL WINS GOLF TITLE

McGill University Friday won the intercollegiate golf tournament by carding an aggregate score of 640 points at the Cataraqui Golf and Country Club at Kingston.

McGill competitors turned aside representatives from five other universities and finished 28 points better than Queen's University, Kingston which took second place with 668 points.

Other results were: University of Western Ontario 675, University of Montreal 687, University of Toronto 700 and Carleton College, Ottawa, 732.

Yanks Take Series Lead With 3-Run Ninth Inning Newcombe Likely For Bums

BROOKLYN, Oct. 8.—(AP).—If silent Burt Shotton runs true to form, he'll start big Don Newcombe today against the Yanks' Lefty Ed Lopat in an all-out try to square the Brooklyn-New York World Series by grabbing the fourth game. Time and again during the regular season, the Dodger manager called on his sensational negro rookie to work with only two days' rest. Newk is strong, willing and able. Trailing 2-1 in the best-of-seven series, most of the boys figure Shotton has to come back with Newcombe.

If Newcombe is able to turn in a reasonable facsimile of his valient, if losing, effort in the opener when he struck out 11 and bowed 1-0, he should win. Games like Don turned in Wednesday afternoon don't lose twice in a row.

Shotton's pitching choice for today is a real problem. He'll be "damned if he does and damned if he don't." One game means so much.

Get Three Homers

Joe Hatten, the veteran left-hander with a presentable 12-8 record, and Rex Barney, the speed merchant with the so-so 9-8 season, are possibilities. But Burt passed over Rex to pitch Ralph Branca Friday and lost 4-3 despite three home runs.

In naming Lopat, the chunky southpaw with a 15-10 season, manager Casey Stengel followed his pre-series routine. After shifting from Lopat to Allie Reynolds for the opener, he planned to follow with Vic Raschi, Tommy Byrne and Lopat. That has been the order.

The Yanks now are 5 to 12 favorites to win the series. The weatherman is predicting "clear and warm" with temperatures close to 80.

Most of the cripples appear ready for duty. Yogi Berra shook off his thumb injury to catch Byrne and Joe Page. Carl Furillo played right field for Brooklyn after a one day off because of a groin injury.

Misc. Starts Rally

The Yanks never will regret the $30,000 they paid New York Giants for Johnny Mize last Aug 22. "Big Jawn" delivered the big pinch single that knocked out Branca in Friday's ninth inning.

For a man who hasn't been able to do anything except pinch hit since Aug. 28 because of a shoulder injury, the 36 year old National League refugee is doing pretty fair. It took him 11 years to make the world series but he's hitting 1.000.

Branca was blazing fast and apparently in complete control although the score was tied 1-1. He had retired 13 men in successiono from the fourth to the ninth when he walked Berra with one out.

A man on base seemed to upset big Ralph but he made Joe DiMaggio the second out on a foul pop. Brown sliced a single to right. Branca loaded the bases by walking Woodling on a 3-2 pitch.

Stengel, making another of his highly effective strategic moves, brought in Mize to bat for Cliff Mapes. Ralph was left in.

Mize rammed a high drive off the screen atop the right field wall. It dropped back for a single but two big guns scored. Branca was done.

Coleman Gets Winner

That was the ball game, everybody thought, but they were wrong. An innocent single to centre by Jerry Coleman, scoring Woodling, really did the job.

Page, who replaced Tommy Byrne, in the fourth, when Peewee Reese's homer had tied the score and wild Tom had loaded the bases with one out, was coasting home with a 4-1 lead. Page barely survived a ninth inning rally that included homers by Luis Olmo and Roy Campanella. The heat wasn't off until a called third strike curled past the bat of pinch hitter Bruce Edwards to end the game.

PCVS Seniors Triumph, 21-5 Over Oshawa In Group Fray

PCVS Senior footballers turned back the Oshawa Senior squad 21-5 Friday night in a game full of interceptions, blocked kicks, poor snaps, and fumbles played in Morrow Park. This was the first encounter of the year for these two squads who are playing home-and-home games to decide a Lakeshore group winner to meet the Bay of Quinte winner. The return game will be played in Oshawa October 29.

The PCI'ers, behind the kicking of Northcott, worked the ball in the Oshawa zone early in the first quarter and before Oshawa could get it out had rolled up a 12-0 lead. Neither team scored in a sloppy, slow second quarter. Corse to Gedge passed in the third quarter finally ended with an Oshawa score, but play again sagged in the fourth. The PCVS line trapped an Oshawa play behind the line for a safety, blocked two kicks, recovering one for a touch in the fourth quarter to build the score up to 20-5. Northcott for PCVS booted a single to end the scoring.

Evans and Grafstein plunged well in the first quarter with Northcott playing a steady game throughout. Standout of the game was Warren Brown with his play in the last half. Grant, Burns and English were the pick of the PCVS line. Corse and Gedge worked well together for Oshawa, passing plays throughout the game with Clarke and Mozewsky good both defensively and offensively. Ford, Braithwaite and Donevan were strong on the line.

Start Strong

Grafstein and Evans plunged to the Oshawa one-yard line after a poor kick on a bad snap. Grafstein went over for the touch with Northcott getting the extra point. Later Jopling blocked Corse's boot with PCVS recovering on the Oshawa 18. An end run featuring Grafstein and Evans took the ball to the one-yard line where Evans plunged across again, Northcott kicking to make the score 12-0. Both lines weakened near the end of the quarter rushing plays and causing fumbles in the backfield. The second quarter was scoreless, being full of poor snaps, fumbles and interceptions on both sides.

Corse passed, mostly to lanky Gedge at the end position, to hem the PCI'ers in to start the second half. Evans and Grafstein plunged for some gains but were stopped by Donevan and Ford. Corse again flipped passes to Gedge who finally took one over for a touch. Warren Brown made things exciting to end the quarter with a nifty run after receiving a fumble.

At the beginning of the fourth Mozewsky was caught behind the Oshawa line for t safety touch. PCVS continued to hem the Oshawa boys in. After two blocked kicks by the PCVS line, Dave Ward recovered the second behind the Oshawa line for a touch, Northcott kicking the extra point. From the Oshawa 22-yard line Northcott ended the scoring, kicking to the deadline. An unbelievable catch was made by Gedge on a Corse pass to end the game as Gedge snatched the ball with Sargeant standing on his doorstep.

The lineups:

Oshawa — Flying wing, Mozewsky; halfs, Clarke, Panko, and Ross; quarter, Corse; snap, Bilsky; insides, Jackson, Braithwaite; middles, Donevan, Fleming; outsides, Gedge, Marsh; alternates, Ford, Babcock, McKee, Cooper, McTavish.

PCVS Juniors Win 33-0 Over Lindsay

Fumbles by the Lindsay juniors and persistent passing attacks saw PCVS juniors, coached by Alex Londry, jogging to an easy 33-0 victory Friday night in Morrow Park. This was the second straight league victory for the PCI'ers who outweighed their opponents in both the battlefield and the line.

The PCVS squad opened the scoring early in the first quarter but were kept at one touch for the period. Plunging of Fowler and the passing of Young worked the score at half time to 17-0. The PCI'ers, still touchdown hungry, rolled two tallies across in the third and added an additional one in the last quarter.

Facendi and Howe, of the PCVS line, worked well while Young, Stewart, Craw and Fowler were the standouts behind the PCVS line of heavyweights. McLean, Maidens, Georgas, McFadden and Trotter were the pick of the Lindsay crew.

Set Them Up

A Lindsay fumble on their 29 which was recovered by Jameson set the Petes in position for two passes, Young to Hope, then to Galley, with the latter pass good for five points. Booting of Logan and Trotter with some timely tacking by Maidens and McLean kept the PCI'ers off the scoresheet when threatened several times before the period ended. A Young--to-Stewart pass on the Lindsay 32 which Stewart took to the 10-yard line enabled Grafstein to cross for the second tally on a plunge. Young pass counted the third touchdown with Young's convert good to make it 17-0. Georgas and Trotter plunged well for extra downs to end the first half.

Deep in Lindsay territory a Lindsay fumble was booted to the one-yard line by Fowler who plunged over on the next play for a touch to start the quarter. PCVS held the Lindsay boys in their zone until McDuffee booted straight up. McIlraith recovered giving the ball to PCVS who made short work with it by scoring on another Young's pass to Langhorne. Plunges, by Georgas and Logan of Lindsay, Craw of the PCVS, went for yards in the centre field play which ended the quarter.

Maidens intercepted a Young pass which started a Lindsay rally in the fourth but this was cut short when McDuffee fumbled on the PCVS 35. George White booted the ball up the field, finally picking it up to score. Young booted the extra point to finish the scoring. Play was fairly even for the rest of the quarter.

Lineups:

Lindsay—Flying wing, Smith; halfs, Georgas, Logan, McDuffee; quarter, Trotter; snap, Bellamy; insides, Martin, Pennock; middles, Race, McFadden; outsides, Brown, McLean; alternates, Teel, Ward, Schenk, Graham, White, Maidens, Stoddard.

PCVS — Flying wing, Langhorne; halfs, Grafstein, Stewart, Fowler; quarter, Young; snap, McIlraith; insides, Facenti, Fanning; middles, Howe, Jameson; outsides, Johnston, Galley; alternates, Craw, Forbes, Fortner, Buckland, Clapper, Ferguson, Flyod, Hope, Outram, Scriver, Ward, White.

Officials—Referee, Gord Young; linesman, Don Duncan; umpire, Jim Burn.

Mr. G. Kennedy, Recreational Instructor, of Lindsay, and Mr. John Burns, Janetville, assisted in judging the events.

Model Of Ottawa

MONTREAL, Oct. 8 (CP) — A scale model of Canada's capital of the future will be on display Oct. 26 and Nov. 1 here at the Armory of Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal here. The exhibition will be officially opened by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

NOT HITTING—Three of the Flatbush flychasers, shown above, haven't been doing too much to Yankee pitching so far in this world series. But, then, pitchers have dominated all three games played and have been most sparing with their hits. Shown above, left to right, are: Duke Snider, Carl Furillo and Gene Hermanski of the Dodgers.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

Hard to believe that hockey has come to this borough early in October. Never before has there been ice—apart from a hunk to keep the old refrigerator right or a cube for a tall one—in this city so soon after summer's end. When they were lucky in past years, local puckists might do a bit of working out in November on the canal before there was enough frost for indoor ice. We can recall stars like Irvin Bailey, Frankie Collins, Biff Ranger and later Shrimp McDougall, Bill Calladine and many more, playing shinny on thin canal ice in early workouts. And now, finally, we have artificial ice ready for hockey this week-end in Civic Arena.

Hank Blade's Kansas City Mohawks play the Petes an exhibition at 8.30 Monday eve in the arena. The pros have such aces as Sugar Jim Henry, Doug Baldwin, Johnny Harms, Blade, Bus Wycherley and other chaps on Chicago Hawks' list, so they'll be worth seeing. Coach Eddie Foley has his Petes bolstered plenty for this tussle, with Jake Wade, Red Sullivan, Chum Fryia, Freddy Mortimer and Joe Blewett on hand to help out Honey Tompkins, Ray Harding and the rest of the local pack. It'll be interesting again to see Wade and Sullivan in local livery, and this squad might give the pros quite a battle. Anyway, a fine hockey holiday attraction, which should fill the arena.

Clapper Sits It Out

With the NHL starting its 70-game schedule next week, there's a guy in Peterborough who looks a little lost at times. Big Dit Clapper will sit this one out after 21 years in the National League. Long-time star with Boston Bruins, and later coach, he quit pro hockey last spring to spend all his time here. Like an old fire horse, Dit is pretty restless just now, though he'll get used to being on the NHL sidelines. At least, he now has time for duck shooting and the deer hunt next month. Needless to say, he will follow closely major puck picture.

More and more bowling loops spring up around these parts as winter sports' accounts threaten to overlap our allotted space. So, it'll be necessary to eliminate long lists of players' names in accounts of all but the two major bowling circuits here, the men's and girls' City Bowling Leagues. The other accounts will contain just the main facts as to winning teams, high team and high individual triple and single scores. Handled once a week or so, same as other papers report alley bowling. Unlike hockey and basketball in the winter, bowling is not a spectator sport, being of interest only to the competitors. We've listed all the leagues now once or twice around, but must cut down henceforth.

Along The Grid Front

An exhibition football fray at 2.30 Monday aft in the Oval between St. Mike's of Toronto and St. Peter's High. An annual affair and it should be interesting. The only grid offering here on the holiday, the Panthers being off to Oakville for an ORFU fixture. The PCVS teams played last evening here. By the way, this Red Feather tourney of champions—for eight outstanding high school senior squads, including PCVS—calls for each team to play once. It is on the performance in one joust that the champion will be judged by officials like Norm Perry, Denny Whittaker, Ted Reeve, Wally Masters and Ted Morris, under Dr. Harry C. Griffiths. Earned yardage, first downs, penalties, blocking, tackling, kicking and passing, all figure in the big test.

Those large lads arrayed in PCVS colors and playing junior football swept to a 33-0 group win o'er Lindsay Collegians last eve in Morrow Park. Alex Londry's squad had too much heft and class for the visitors. Fascendi, Howe, Young, Stewart, Craw and Fowler looked good for the victors. Other half of the grid twin offering saw Bev Goulding's senior PCI-ers defeat Oshawa 21-5 to open their runty schedule. The work of Brown, Northcott, Evans, Grafstein, English, Grant and Burns caught the eye at various times, with the whole team clicking well over most of the route. Not too many cash customers on deck.

Lewicki Future Uncertain Until OHA Ruling

STRATFORD, Oct. 8 (CP) — Officials of Stratford Kroehlers Friday night failed to decide what to do about the case of Danny Lewicki, under indefinite suspension from organized hockey for failure to sign a professional contract with Toronto Maple Leafs.

A special meeting was called by Kroehlers, with whom Lewicki played his junior hockey last year and wishes to rejoin this season, but officials said they would await the return of J. H. (Tiny) McFadden, president of the Ontario Hockey Association, attending the baseball World Series.

The 18-year-old Lewicki, a native of Fort William, Ont., was suspended Thursday when officials of the CAHA said he didn't carry out the undertaking he made when he signed a National League C form with the Leafs.

Officials also said the proposed court action over the case is not open to the club without permission of the CAHA.

Lee And Sharpe Open Wresting Here Thursday

Wrestling returns to the Brock Arena next Thursday night, with the announcement by Manager Jim Laidlaw that he has signed gigantic Hi Lee and equally large Mike Sharpe for the main event.

Manager Laidlaw said that he has switched from Wednesday night to Thursday for two reasons. Better mat stars are available for Thursday night and it will not conflict with hockey. This will give mat fans a chance to see their favorite sport without any oppostion.

Wrestling fans have been looking forward to the opening, judging from the number of 'phone calls and queries received. "Only the top-ranking matmen will be brought in," Laidlaw said. He is working on the remainder of the card and it will be announced Tuesday.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

The last legal action against organized baseball was removed Friday night when Danny Gardella announced at New York he was dropping his $300,000 suit to return to organized baseball as a member of St. Louis Cardinals.

The pint sized wartime outfielder of New York Giants, who hauled baseball into the courts after he was banished for jumping to the Mexican League, made the announcement through his lawyers.

Gardella returned to New York Friday after playing this season with Drummondville Cubs of the Independent Quebec Provincial League.

"Arrangements satisfactory to Danny have been worked out for his reinstatement," the statement said.

"Danny has asked for and received his unconditional release by the Giants (New York) and will sign a 1950 contract with the St. Louis Cardinals."

Toronto boxing promoter Deacon Allen said Friday night that Laurent Dauthuille, sensational French middleweight who has been fighting around Montreal, will be brought to Toronto later this month.

Allen said Dauthuille has agreed to terms proposed by promoter Frank Tunney and all that remains is to get somebody for him to fight. He did not disclose the terms. Considered as possible opponents are Vinny Rossano, New York middelweight and Pete Zaduk of Guelph.

Time and Tide, good-looking brother to George McCullagh's Speedy Irish, brought top price of $6,000 at the yearling sale of the Canadian Thoroughbred Horse Society's annual sale in Toronto Friday night.

The Toronto-owned horse was sold to Bill Beasley of Toronto. Altogether, 55 yearlings were sold for $78,400, an average of $1,425, below last year's record average of about $1,700.

E. P. Taylor, Toronto industrialist, paid $4,500 for a bay filly, full sister to Time and Tide. R. James Speers, of Winnipeg, leading Canadian breeder, opened the sales and during the night bought seven yearlings.

St. Catharines Legion has been declared all-Ontario senior "A" softball champions for 1949. The announcement was made Friday by Frank Feaver, Ontario Amateur Sortball Association secretary, after the Saints had eliminated Hamilton Legion.

Toronto Tip Tops were refused entry by the Amateur Softball Association ruling that the world champions were not permitted to place their title in jeopardy in the season in which they won.

Stolen Fruit Turns Sour Horse Tumbles

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 8 (CP)—A milkman's horse learned the truth of the old saying that crime does not pay when it leaned over a fence on Weston St. to steal apples and nearly killed itself today.

Ever since the apples became ripe this fall the horse has been in the habit of stopping at the fench in question to lean over and munch a few.

This time, however, it got caught in the fence. In a panic it kicked itself loose and bolted. Half a block away, at the Wellington St. corner, the milk wagon turned over in a gully, pulling the horse with it. For nearly an hour both horse and wagon lay upside down in the creek at the bottom.

The wagon was badly damaged, but the horse was able to walk away with apparently only a few cuts and bruises. The milkman hopes the horse has reformed.

Warkworth Wins From Hastings

HASTINGS, Oct. 8 (ENS) — Warkworth defeated Hastings at the Warkworth Fair grounds 7-2 in a well played exhibition game.

Beatty on the mound for Warkworth pitched five hit ball and his support backed him up all the way.

West toed the slab for Hastings and pitched his usual good game, but Hastings was weak at bat and failed several times when the chips were down. Hastings started the scoring in the second, pushing across one run. In the fourth Warkworth scored twice, with two more runs in the fifth and three in the sixth to complete their scornig. Hastings tallied once more in the seventh.

Indianapolis Beat Royals 5-4 In 10th Frame

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 8 (AP)—Indianapolis Indians, who never have lost a Little World Series, were within one game of their third series title today.

The American Association team took a three-two lead over Montreal with a 10-inning 5-4 victory Friday night. The Royals must win tonight and tomorrow to retain the championship they won last year.

The sixth game matches pitchers who started the second game last Sunday—Royce Lint, who won it for Indianapolis and Clyde King, who lasted less than three innings for the International Leaguers.

The Indians won last night on a run which did not cross the plate.

Nanny Fernandez, who had walked, rounded the bases and charged home on Roy Weatherlys double against right field wall. Catcher Toby Atwell blocked the plate until the throw came in and tagged Fernandez. But umpire Augie Donatelli ruled that Atwell had blocked without possession of the ball and called Fernandez safe.

Connors Got Three

Chuck Connors got three of Montreal's nine hits. He homered in the second inning for the Royals' first run, drove in two with a double in the seventh and singled in the 10th. Kermit Wahl followed Connors' homer with one of his own.

Joe Muir, who won the first series game and lost the fourth, pitched the 10th inning and got credit for the victory.

The loss was charged to Ronnie Lee, who relieved starter Dan Bankhead in the ninth with the score tied.

Lawyer Sells Babies

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP) — A New York lawyer, charged in connection with alleged illegal dealings in babies, says he is proud of "anything I have done."

The lawyer, Irwin Slater, 38, was arrested Thursday. He was released in $1,000 bail for a further hearing today.

Authorities said he was involved in an operation in which babies were brought to New York from Florida and put out for adoption.

Howe Says Will Enquire About Aircraft Purchases

OTTAWA, Oct. 8 (CP)—Trade Minister Howe gave the Commons little information Friday when asked about a report that the United States has invoked the "buy American Act" to cancel a $1,000,000 order for military planes from a Toronto plant.

The question was raised by J. W. Noseworthy (CCF-York South), who asked:

"Has the minister's attention been called to a press announcement this morning to the effect that an obscure piece of United States legislation has been invoked by the United States Air Force to cancel a $1,000,000 order for military aircraft which were to have been built in Toronto?"

Mr. Howe replied:

Is Aware

"I have not seen the newspaper in question but I am aware of the situation. I am a little surprised that the honorable member should refer to the buy American act as an obscure piece of legislation. It is a piece of legislation about which we know a great deal. All I can say is that representations are being made as far as the act applies to military purchases."

(In Washington Thursday night a United States Air Force official denied that any $1,000,000 order for 24 Beaver aircraft from the De Haviland Company of Toronto had been cancelled. He said the USAAF never had any interest in the plane from either the standpoint of research or construction, or with intent to purchase.)

East Germany Proclaims New Government

BERLIN, Oct. 7—(AP)—East-German Communist leaders meet today to proclaim a new Russian satellite government claiming to speak for all Germany.

The new Red regime was built up without the formality of elections in a week of intensive Soviet-fostered propaganda. Its birth will be announced in Berlin's Russian sector by the Soviet - controlled German People's Council acting as a Parliament.

Informed Berliners said the Russians already have promised the infant state full membership in the Cominform — Soviet-dominated political bloc.

The Communists propose to represent their regime as a government for all Germany, including the 45,000,000 people and more highly developed resources of the west. At present they have some 18,000,000 eastern-zone Germans and a largely agricultural area under their control.

Reds One Up

The Soviet - licensed press asserted that the east government will have a foreign ministry and representation abroad—something which the west German government at Bonn has not. The United States, Britain and France reserve those rights in west Germany.

German news sources said a 14-man cabinet already has been named by the dominant Socialist Unity (Communist) party, with George Dertinger nominated as foreign minister.

These sources said Gerhard Eisler, Communist fugitive from United States justice, has been picked as propaganda minister.

Just what the Russians will do about withdrawal of occupation troops remained vague. Allied sources say the Russians still maintain more than 250,000 troops in their zone and have shown no signs of reducing the number.

PIPELINE APPETITE

To fill a 1,150-mile pipeline being laid from Edmonton to Superior, Wis., will take 1,838,000 barrels of oil and to move one barrel of oil between the two cities will take 26 days.

BLOW TOWARD EQUATOR

Trade winds always blow from an easterly direction toward the equator.

This housewife follows fire-safety rules to safeguard her family. She jots down the number of the nearest fire station (center); puts matches high above the reach of the children (upper left); selects a new fuse rather than a makeshift substitute. Power To Prevent Fire In Housewife's Hands

"HELP—Fire!" is a terrible cry. In the Canadian housewife's hands is the power to prevent that cry and the casualties which can result from fires.

About 70 per cent of all building fires in the homes can be traced to carelessness. It's the tiny household hazard that often causes the most devastating tragedies, according to insurance experts.

These are rules that every housewife can follow to safeguard her family from the hazards of fire:

Be careful of matches, fire hazard No. 1. They are the most dangerous in the hands of children. So for that reason matches, even the so-called safety matches, should be kept as high on a shelf as the housewife can reach, but beyond the reach of tiny hands.

Matches can even be dangerous in adult hands if they are dropped while still burning into a waste-paper basket or are used carelessly near gasoline or other inflammable material.

Don't play at being handyman with the electrical wiring. Call an electrician to check wires if something goes wrong. The fuse-box is meant to take only fuses—a penny or some other makeshift fuse arrangement can cause a dangerous fire.

Bundle up your trash and sell it or dispose of it before fire disposes of it for you. Many families have stacks of old magazines, piles of discarded clothing and even pieces of furniture stuck away in an attic or cellar. These accumulations are fire hazards.

Place paint-soaked rags, or rags soaked with paint remover, cleaning fluid and gasoline in a metal-covered container to be disposed of with your trash as soon as possible. Such rags are combustible. They may burst into flames at the least provocation. Don't store them.

Finally, plan a course of action to take just in case there ever is a fire. Mark down the number of your nearest fire station in a handy note near your telephone. Learn how to turn in a fire alarm for your home. Next figure out two ways to get to the ground from your bedroom in case fire should catch you at night.

Men Share Parting Gifts

SHEFFIELD, England (CP) — Welfare Officer Isobel Burnett of a Sheffield factory says men are becoming notably less selfish.

She says she ought to know because it's her job, when a factory employee retires, to ask him what sort of a farewell gift he would like.

"They used to ask for something just for themselves," she says. "Whatever the value of the gift it would always be something for the man alone—a watch, a rack of pipes or an engraved umbrella.

"Now men want gifts they can share with their wives, or something the women will especially appreciate—a comfortable ch for her, cutlery or even a vacuu cleaner.

"Perhaps in time they'll a around to choosing pearls or ba gles for their wives as their ov retirement presents!"

Mrs. Bruce Fitzgerald Hostess To Selwyn WA

SELWYN, Oct. 8 (ENS).—Mrs. Bruce Fitzgerald was hostess to the WA of the United Church when they met at her home for their October meeting on Thursday afternoon.

The president, Mrs. Clifford McIlmoyl, was in charge of the meeting, and Rev. D. P. Morris led in prayer.

The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Chalmer Sweeting, and the topic entitled "Love thyself last" was ably taken by Mrs. George Geisel.

The main business was the planning for a supper which the ladies are holding in the church hall on Friday, Oct. 28, followed by a play.

Bundles of used clothing were turned in and the ladies packed them in the evening for Europe.

Rev. D. P. Morris and Mrs. Morris rendered a very pleasing vocal duet, Mrs. Morris accompanying on the piano. Mrs. Clayton Fitzgerald invited the ladies to her home for their November meeting, which will be held on Thursday, Nov. 3.

Dainty refreshments were served at the close of the meeting and a social hour spent over the tea cups.

Prove Spy Work Hungarians Say

BUDAPEST, Oct. 8—(Reuters)—The Hungarian government alleged Thursday night that it had recordings to prove that Wallace Harrison, former British Legation employee here, had volunteered to work for Hungarian police in exchange for release of a woman from custody.

At the same time Hungary announced the expulsion of Alexander Hoppe Birch, British Legation administrative official, in retaliation for the expulsion of a Hungarian diplomat from London during the "Harrison incident."

Harrison, described as an electrician and security officer of the British Legation here, was recalled in July. He now is working at the British Embassy at the Hague.

He and the British government have charged that he was kidnapped by Budapest police early in July, after the arrest of a Legation telephone operator, Mrs. Gyula Torbagyi, and that the Hungarian authorities tried to force him to become their agent under threat.

HELP PREVENT FIRE LOSS

LET'S ALL DO OUR PART - - - AND FIRES WON'T START

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK, OCTOBER 10-16

An Ounce of Prevention is Worth a Ton of Water

Carelessness Said Cause Of Much of City's Fire Loss

Fire loss in Peterborough in 1948 was $268,823, Fire Chief George Smith stated on the eve of the Fire Prevention Week.

Carelessness was the principal cause of these outbreaks. "Eight out of ten fires can be prevented if we just stop and think," he said.

During the past five years the loss has been $881,674.

Figures for city losses during the past five years are as follows: 1944, $53,172; 1945, $59,157; 1946, $113,400; 1947, $387,122; and 1948 $268,823. During that time the number of fires has never reached the 60-mark respectively, 44, 51, 59, 56 and 58.

In the first six months of this year the loss has dropped to $10,342. Chief Smith is gratified by this low figure and states that if this trend continues for the next six months he will be more than satisfied.

Some of the major causes of fires he lists as careless smoking, smoking in bed, defective electrical wiring, flammable liquids, burning rubbish, children with matches, and faulty chimneys, pipes and heating equipment.

The Peterborough Fire Department is serving as local sponsor of Fire Prevention Week, held October 9-15 by proclamation. During this week the community will be made conscious of the heavy toll of lives and property that result every year, mainly from carelessness.

Chief Smith explained that there are approximately 55,000 building fires annually in this country, and nearly half of these occur in homes. The National Fire Protection Association records show that more than 500 persons burn to death every year.

"The Fire Department is eager to take advantage of Fire Prevention Week to make every home in Peterborough safer," the fire chief said. "We stand ready at all times to provide full information on the ways of preventing fires."

He listed six fire hazards:

One, careless disposal of cigarettes and careless handling of matches. Matches should be kept where small children can't reach them.

Two, needless accumulations of combustible rubbish. Stacks of old newspapers, magazines, worn-out clothes, broken furniture and discarded boxes are ideal tinder for a stray spark.

Three, dirty and poorly maintained chimneys and heating equipment.

Four, flammable wood shingle roofs. Asphalt shingles or other fire-resistant material should be used instead.

Five, defective or overloaded electrical circuits. Wiring should always be instaled by a qualified electrician.

Six, improper handling of gasoline and kerosene and use of flammable cleaning fluids. Non-inflammable cleaners are available.

Careless campers and smokers are said to be responsible for more damage by fire in Canada each year than any other factor.

In 1948, 3,000,000 acres of Canadian forests worth an estimated $16,000,000 went up in flames. Fifty-three thousand non-forest fires burned up $57,000,000 in property and caused nearly 400 deaths.

OCT 10 — OCT 16

It's Fall now — and that brings new risks of fire through carelessness — faulty wiring — rubbish heaps and other sources. For greater safety, check the following harzards and remedy those needing attention.

Check Fire Hazards! Observe The Safety Rules

SMOKING
Smoking in bed is extremely dangerous. If you must smoke, get up!

ASHES
Ashes should be kept in metal containers, and a safe distance from wooden partitions.

CHIMNEYS
Cracks in chimneys are a good place for sparks to start a fire.

RUSTY PIPES
Watch out for worn or rusty pipes. Check for proper insulation near wooden beams and partitions.

OILY RAGS
Never allow oily rags to accumulate. Oil treated mops should be placed in metal containers.

WIRING
Don't take chances with faulty wiring and insulation. See that all extension wire is properly installed.

INFLAMMABLE MATERIAL
Don't use highly volatile fluids for cleaning at home. Play safe and send your garments to a dry cleaner.

ROOFS
Old, curly shingles make an ideal place for sparks to start a fire.

Thanksgiving Prayer

Behold this blessed land, O Lord,
Which suffered not the wanton sword
Nor hunger's awful sway—
And lend Thine ear while now we raise
From thankful hearts our song of praise
On this Thanksgiving Day!

When far-off lands were torn with strife
Thou gave us, Lord, a fuller life,
Beyond our daily bread—
The unaffrighted day and night,
The gleaming stars and sunshine bright
From Freedom's skies o'erhead!

For summer's bounty, autumn leaves,
For endless fields of golden sheaves,
And laden festive board;
For stalwart sons and daughters fair
Within a land beyond compare—
Our gracious thanks, O Lord!

And let the spirit of this day
Be with Thy people, Lord, we pray,
Wherever they may be.
Bid all the strident voice cease,
And give to Earth the gift of Peace
Which comes alone from Thee!

Men And Missions Sunday Planned For November 13

The 19th annual observance of Men and Missions Sunday, in which all Protestant churches of the United States and Canada have been invited to participate will occur this fall on November 13.

The single purpose of that observance is to influence the laymen of North America to support more generously the missionary work of their respective churches.

The observance is sponsored and promoted by the Laymen's Missionary Movement of North America, Inc. It is represented in thousands of cities and towns by either a local pastor or a layman who serves as Resident Chairman. The Rev. Ivan C. Morgan is Resident Chairman in Peterborough. He is inviting every pastor to appoint one of his laymen to speak briefly on Christian Missions preceding the morning sermon on Sunday, November 13. This year's theme is "Let's act now for one world Christ."

The Speaker's Manual for this day contains inspiring articles by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, Dr. E. Stanley Jones and others.

Isaiah Saw The Danger Of Saying Unpleasant Things

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

The prophet Isaiah, greatest of the early prophets of Israel, and some would say the greatest of all the Hebrew prophets, lived and prophesied in the eighth century before Christ.

The kingdom consolidated by King David, and his son, Solomon, for over a hundred years before Isaiahs time had been divided into the Southern Kingdom, or Kingdom of Judah, and the Northern Kingdom, or Kingdom of Israel, or Samaria. Isaiah prophesied in the Southern Kingdom, during the four reigns of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah (Isaiah 1:1). At about the same time Amos, who is not to be confused with Amoz, the father of Isaiah, was prophesying in the Northern Kingdom, but that kingdom fell, never to be re-established, in the Assyrian invasion in 722 B.C.

The times were times of invasion and violence, and the miracle of the prophecies is that such visions of hope and peace, of comity between nations, should have come out of such experiences of the Hebrew people and their environment of powerful and warlike surrounding nations. In that respect the times were not unlike our own, when again in spite of world wars, and threat of war, the vision and hope of a peaceful world persists.

This might well be the greatest and deepest thing about the prophesies. It links them with our times, and it is marvelous how their vision and hope have kept alive through all the ages.

Two things above all characterized Isaiah, a deep love for his people, and a deeper love for God. He was devout and earnest, but also marked by an intense courage and a self-sacrificing spirit.

He is a type of those born to wealth and privilege, who have set the service of God and their fellowmen above all else. Various references indicate that Isaiah was born to high social rank. He was apparently happy in his wife, who shared his prophetic spirit, and in his family. With his deep love for his people, he also evidently knew how dangerous was the situation of those who dared to prophesy unpleasant truth to the people whom they loved, and to bring home to them their sins, and the impending doom that their disregard of God and right made real.

Tradition is that he met death by being sawn asunder, though the ancient records of the Book of Kings do not confirm this. But he chose deliberately to be God's voice and God's messenger. It was a dangerous but noble calling.

He looked out upon the nations from the viewpoint of an ideal Israel, called by God to a high place of leadership. He hoped Israel might be a powerful and leavening [illegible] among the larger empires, leading them into a true religion of peace and comity.

How much of this prophetic vision was realized? How much a prophets dream, that still remains to be fulfilled? These questions I shall seek to answer in future comment.

An Outstanding Prophet

REV. E. R. JAMES

I heard the Voice of the Lord saying: Whom shall I send and who will go for us. Then said I: Here am I: send me. Isaiah 6; 8.

There is no more familiar name, yet how few Christian people have a mental idea of the man. In reading an impressive book we like to have a short sketch of the author. Isaiah was an outstanding man, of high social standing; meeting the King and his leading men. It is interesting to know that he lived about the time of Amos, the herdsman, who preached about the social conditions of the working people.

Among some people it is a proverb that it does not need a college education to preach the simple Gospel. This is a half truth. God does not despise learning. Moses was trained in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, which enabled him in due time to lead his barbarian kinsmen into the wilderness and lay the foundation stones of national ideals, enabling them to develop into a great people.

Our Lord's apostles were of the people, able to mix with them, and they fulfilled their Master's ideal that He came to call the everyday man to follow Him. On the other hand Saul was born in an intellectual family, trained in the teaching of his generation. His father was well off and sent his brilliant son to Jerusalem to study under the best Jewish thinkers. His brilliant mind saw that the new religion would make a division among his people. This made him an enemy till his conversion at the gate of Damascus. He became the great thinker in the Christian church. What do we not owe to the intellectual gifts of St. Paul. When a man of great intellectual gifts lays them at the feet of Christ, how mightily can God use him.

Isaiah looked into the future of his people and saw that they were politically between Assyria and Egypt. His heart was heavy with the anxiety. This took him into the temple, where he had a vision of God. Do you take your problems into God's House and lay them before Him? "Cast your burden upon the Lord for He careth for you." Isaiah received a revelation that God is Holy in character. The Jewish word for holy meant separation. This vision taught morality of character. His eyes looked upon the perfect purity. He saw his own sinfulness; though he was a respectable man. He cried: "Unclean, unclean." This revelation was the truth He had to teach His readers. By God's goodness his heart was cleansed. His ears were opened to hear God's plan.

With cleansed heart and mind he hears the Lord cry: "Whom shall I send; and who will go for us?" "Here am I, send me." He is accepted and is told that his work will be a failure. Heart breaking. Yet the prophet takes up the burden in the name of the Lord.

Speak Lord, for Thy servant heareth, lo, I come to do Thy will: I am content to do it.

VOL. XCIX. No. 83 SATURDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1949

Payment of prize money to exhibitors was reported by G. A. Gillespie, secretary-manager, to the directors of Peterborough Exhibition Friday night.

Items approved by the meeting included: exhibitors of horses, $3,410; cattle, $2,884; sheep, $542; swine, $391.

Poultry, $513.25; grain and seed, $150; roots and potatoes, $67.25; vegetables, $267; fruit, $13.25; flowers, $381.25; cooking, $48.25; home craft, $212.75.

Art, $45.75; honey, $25.50; Junior Farmers section, $606.75; horse races, $2,852.50; judges, $658; policing the grounds, $366.

Total attendance was 45,110 and gate receipts $13,189.18; grandstand admissions 15,554, and receipts $4,611.91.

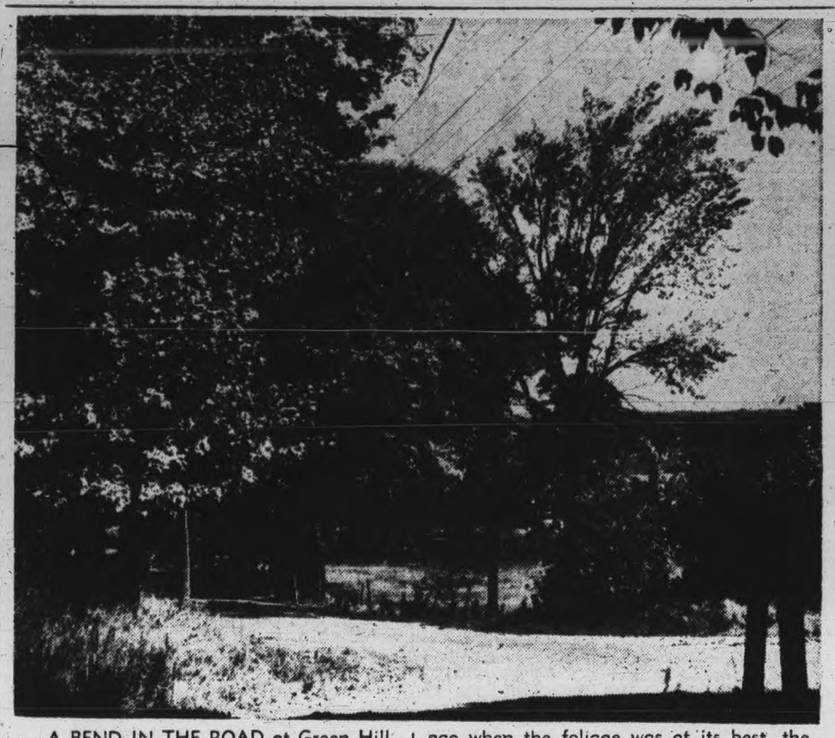
A complete and audited financial statement is expected to be completed for an early meeting.

President Away

Don Milburn, second vice-president, was chairman, in the absence of Hugh Stewart, president, who is on a trip to the United States. It was reported that Norman McConkey, first vice-president, had suffered an injury Friday afternoon in a tractor accident at his home. Finally, Mr. Milburn was due at the Normal School, where Peterborough Junior Farmers were entertaining a touring group of Juniors from the Galt area.

C. E. Moore took his place as the meeting continued. Mrs. G. K. Fraser moved that the board send flowers and a home-welcoming letter to Tom Brown, who is returning today, Mr. Gillespie reported, from Toronto General Hospital where he recently underwent an operation. The motion also directed that a letter of sympathy be sent to Mr. McConkey.

Suggestions from the experience of this year's exhibition were submitted for consideration of the board in the planning for next year. Mrs. Fraser enquired whether any arrangement was made for fire protection of the buildings and exhibits.



Most Fairs Give Protection

Harold Rehill said Peterborough was one of the larger exhibitions that did not insist on adequate protection against fire. Of those he mentioned as providing this safeguard was Lindsay which kept a fire truck on the grounds throughout their show.

"I think we leave ourselves open to serious loss," Mr. Rehill said. "There are many valuable horses and other livestock in the buildings. By depending on a call to the fire department a building might be in ruins before the department could get there."

Everett Birdsall suggested that Peterborough could take a leaf from the advertising from rural Roseneath. Their fair grounds are on the highway from Hastings to Cobourg. Over their gate they place a sign advertising their fair about ten months ahead of the date.

"We had a sign ordered for our exhibition long in advance," said Mr. Rehill, "but we did not get it until the first day of the show."

Holiday Traffic Not Heavy For Thanksgiving

Travel in the Peterborough area this weekend is not half as heavy as first expected by the local bus and train ticket offices. Bus lines generally report that the peak was reached Friday night with the local train ticket offices saying the increase was only slight.

Colonial Bus Lines reported that the travel peak was reached Friday night when the service required extra buses.

The lines running to the north, Ferguson Bus Lines, had to double their service to Bancroft and Apsley Friday night. Most of these people were returning to their homes for the holiday weekend from work in the Peterborough area. This afternoon and night runs were expected to be heavier than usual.

Both railway ticket offices reported only a slight increase during Friday and early today. The CNR office reported that most of the people leaving town were going to Ottawa and Montreal with a few destined for the Detroit-London area. CPR ticket sellers reported a slight increase in sales Friday. A party of 16 single girls bought tickets for Buffalo where they will spend Thanksgiving weekend.

52 Tourist Operators Hold All-Day Convention

For the first time in the Kawartha district and after months of effort by Chamber of Commerce manager Jim Fraser, the first tourist convention took place on Friday. Fifty-two operators discussed problems relating to their business with representatives of the Departments of Travel and Publicity, Highways and Lands and Forests. The Hon. Harold R. Scott, Minister, headed the last group and the majority of questions were put to them.

During the morning session the subject of feeder roads was examined at some length, especially the condition of the Stony Lake tourist artery from Lakefield to the Nepheline Mines. Operators in that area deplored the condition of the road and attributed it to the heavy overloading and excessive speeds of or trucks from the mine to the village.

Fleet-trucks operator Frank Coyle was on hand to defend this situation. He advised that the future plans for his company called for the use of 18-wheel vehicles and that they would carry loads only to the limits laid down by license. Public Relations Officer Eugene Murray, Department of Highways, supported Mr. Coyle in that larger vehicles were easier on roads. It was estimated that these large vehicles would be governed to travel at not more than 42 miles per hour and that three new trucks will be on the road for two shifts. Operators P. H. Harding and E. Cherry complemented Mr. Coyle on his courteous drivers and said they had received much praise from tourists about them.

Jay Knox of Lakefield was of the opinion that although the dogslegs on Stony Lake road are being taken out, the surface did not seem to be standing up. County Engineer Kean assured him that this was not the final surfacing.

20 Millions In Subsidies

With every municipality in the province clamouring for more roads it was pointed out by Mr. Murray that annual subsidies spent on roads in 1943 was three and one-half million dollars whereas last year it amounted to 20 million dollars. Highway work was being pushed in all sections with the amount of money available.

The Travel and Publicity Department was represented by Tom Johnston, executive asistant to the deputy-minister, Ted Wright, Col. Douglas Crowe, and Information Director George McLean.

Mr. McLean told the assembly that 440,000 tourists entered Ontario this year. It takes a trained uniformed staff of 55 men and women, mostly college students, to administer the department's reception service. An additional service at centres this year allowing a tourist, if he so wished, to make one phone call "on the Government." Fourteen thousand visitors took advantage of this and 2,000 more made long distance calls. They were very impressed with this courtesy, he said.

After a short recess, luncheon was served and president of the Chamber of Commerce Wilson Gemmell acted as chairman. He congratulated Mr. Fraser for his efforts in organizing the convention and thanked Miss Hunter, secretary, and J. J. Dorris. He also introduced the Hon. Mr. Scott who complimented the gathering and advised them that since they were organized as a body it would be hard for outsiders to interfere with their business. Vice-president P. J. Scollard, Chamber of Commerce, president Jim Clarke of the Peterborough Business Men's Association, Charles Kingan and Lands and Forests Chief Biologist Dr. W. J. K. Harkness were also presented to the gathering.

See Winter Skiing

A film of winter skiing by Clint Meiville of the Travel and Publicity Department was shown by William Graff, Peterborough Librarian. Mr. Gemmell suggested that such a timely topic as winter resort operation would not be overlooked in future by resort operators.

The afternoon's agenda was given over to matters referring to the Department of Lands and Forests and covered several subjects.

Dr. Harkness explained that their control of carp was almost impossible. They had been imported from Germany by individuals many years ago and had spread into game fish waters. He told that plans to make the muskie population stronger were going anead at the Deer Lake hatchery; the raising of bass was being discontinued and later trout will be raised elsewhere to allow more room for muskie fingerlings to attain greater size and fend for themselves against carp.

About the restocking of various lakes it was pointed out that figures had already been published and would be furnished to operators on request. Lodge owners

Niagara Faces Sewage Difficulty

Niagara Falls may have to spend $1,000,000 for a sewage disposal plant, if the tightening provincial regulations against pollution of streams extend to the border and its river.

The city dumps its sewage into the Niagara River. At a council meeting this week "fear was expressed that the city would be forced by the Provincial Government to build a sewage isposal plant."

Peterborough is proceeding with the expenditure of $615,000 on the enlargement and improvement of its disposal works, and it wis recalled recently that in 1928 the Minister of Health, Hon. Dr. Godfrew, threatened action of some impeaching order against the Council of the city if it did not proceed with disposal plans.

Peterborough Councils have contended that they have been in the vanguard of cities of this country in an effort to protect its river from contamination. Delay for years was largely actuated by questions of engineering recommendations of the most efficient and suitable methods to be adopted. This city is now calling for tenders for the expenditure of $615,000 on the improvement of its disposal plant.

Car Turns Over One Hits Tree At Cross Roads

When two cars collided at Mark and Sophia Sts. Friday shortly after noon, one vehicle turned over on to its side and the other crashed into a maple tree. Harold E. Carr, 18, of 258 Mark St., who was driving the car which struck the tree, had a cut lower lip and David Fenn, 24, of Sophia St., appeared to escape without injury when the car he was driving overturned.

Constable Claire McGillen, who investigated the incident, accompanied by Constable Doug Stark, reports that the two cars were in collision at the intersection, when Mr. Carr was driving north on Mark St., and Mr. Fenn was proceeding across the intersection on Sophia St.

Losing control of the car immediately after the impact, Mr. Carr was unable to avoid the tree on the northwest corner and his car turned around facing southwest on the west side of the road before stopping. Mr. Fenn's car overturned on its left side on the west side of the road.

The right side of Mr. Carr's vehicle was badly damaged, the windshield was shattered, the frame on the left side was bent and the top of the car was bumped. The top of Mr. Fenn's car was badly damaged, both headlights were broken, both left fenders torn, right front fender was dented, left running board broken and the rad and grill were damaged and also the front left corner of the car.

Police report that Mr. Fenn had a temporary driver's license which was outdated.

There was another collision between cars at 7 p.m. at the intersection of Reid and Park Sts. involving Jack Phelan, 502 Cross St. and Frank Katz, 192 Aylmer St. Constable W. G. Scott, who investigated the accident with Constable L. Rodregue, reports that the two cars hit fenders.

Lost Pilot Turns Up

EDMONTON, Oct. 8 (CP)—The pilot of a light aircraft, missing since Wednesday in northern British Columbia, has reached Peace River, Alta., an air force spokesman said Friday night. The pilot, James Donald Landells, 23, of Edmonton, had been the object of an aerial search by the R.C.A.F. until Friday when his plane was spotted by a searching aircraft moored on a small lake, 10 miles southeast of its destination at Want Lake, B.C.

Stove Used In Dryer Thought To Have Caused Fire In Cobourg Matting Factory

COBOURG, Oct. 10.—(ENS.)—A $50,000 fire early today destroyed the McKinnon Matting Factory here and as a result 20 men are out of work.

Cause of the blaze has not been determined but there is some speculation that a stove used as a drier in the plant might have been the source.

The 60-year-old building, a long rambling one-storey structure, had a tar paper roof and spectators reported it burned like tinder. Coco fibre dust accumulated over the years and the wooden construction of the building were both considered by firemen to be contributory causes of the rapid spread of the flames.

It was estimated that nearly 500 spectators turned out to see the spectacular fire which started about 2.30 a.m. and was not brought under control until shortly after 4 a.m.

The flames had a good start before the alarm was sounded, and Cobourg firemen did not have a chance to get them under control until the building was practically destroyed. Hoses were played on nearby buildings to save them and the office section remained intact though gutted.

Alexander and Donald McKinnon of Cobourg are the owners of the business.

Machinery Imported

Alex said that much of the machinery came from Great Britain and could not be replaced. And the brothers are undecided whether or not to rebuild.

The building was partly covered by insurance, but the amount was not disclosed.

The fire started in the east part of the plant. Included in the destruction was $10,000 worth of matting yarn that had just been received.

Port Hope dispatched its Fire Brigade to help out, but the fire was under control by the time it arrived. Local firemen found that a new hose they purchased was defective. A slit in the line allowed water to escape. However they stated the pressure was not seriously affected.

AT MITCHELL FUNERAL

Six employees of Peterborough Bus Lines left Friday afternoon for Windsor to attend in uniform and as a group today the funeral of Frank Mitchell, president of the company. They are M. McAuliffe, H. McMekin, Walter Ramsay, Ted Dunford, George Kilborn and Malcolm Fitzsimmons There was a private service this morning for the members of the family of Mr. Mitchell, and public church service this afternoon.

Owner Receives Camera Stolen In 1946

Was it a prick of conscience that prompted the thief to return the stolen articles three years after he had taken them or was it someone with a prolonged sense of humor? That is what Jim Marett of the tobacconist shop at Fowler's Barber's on Hunter St. has been wondering since he received an anonymous parcel this week containing his long lost lost camera, binoculars and utility lamp.

In the summer of 1946 he lost these articles from his car. He thinks the lamp was taken one evening when he was in Marmora but did not miss the camera and binoculars until later in the summer, and believes they must have been taken from the car while it was parked in the city.

Whoever took the loot, Jim is grateful for their return

Bantams Early Birds For Hockey Practice

North End Bantams began hockey practice at Civic Arena this morning at 7 o'clock. They had the hour to 8. They were followed by the Marine Midgets from 8 to 9 o'clock; and the Triple Link juniors had a two hour stretch from 9 to 11.

Walter Smiley, manager, said the largest skating attendance of the week was 599 last Saturday night, the opening of the new season. Three hundred were out last night.

"There is no skating on the holiday," Mr. Smiley said, "but we have the Kansas City Mohawks of the American Hockey Association here at night. The youngsters were out bright and early this morning, a great novelty for them."

It was arranged by Earl Spencely.

A BUSY AFTERNOON

BOOK OF REMEMBRANCE IN OTTAWA'S PEACE TOWER—A gold and jewelled book mark for the Book of Remembrance, 1914-1918, has been formally placed in the Memorial Chamber in the Peace Tower at Ottawa. The photo shows the book mark at the opening pages of the Book of Remembrance, on its altar in the Memorial Chamber. In the book are inscribed the names of all those who lost their lives in the First World War. The edging around the book mark is 18-karat chased gold in the reed and ribbon design with laurel sprays. Lying in the centre is a delicately wrought sword of remembrance in yellow and white gold. Eight Cabuchon amethysts, mined in Nova Scotia, complete the embellishment. There are four on the sword and four on the gold edging. Work on the book mark, which was designed by A. B. Beddoe, O.B.E., of Ottawa, was postponed until after the Second World War.

Trap Shoot Club For Marmora

MARMORA, Oct. 8—(ENS) — A trap shooting club for Marmora and Deloro has recently been organized. A shooting range has been set up on the Gazley property on the old Deloro road. Takes Ottawa By Storm — Bevin Popular Visitor

By DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA, Oct. 8 (CP). — The happiest reverberation the cold Hon. Ernest Bevin, PC, MP, many a frigid moon is the Rt. war has sent through Ottawa in Foreign Secretary in His Majesty's United Kingdom Government.

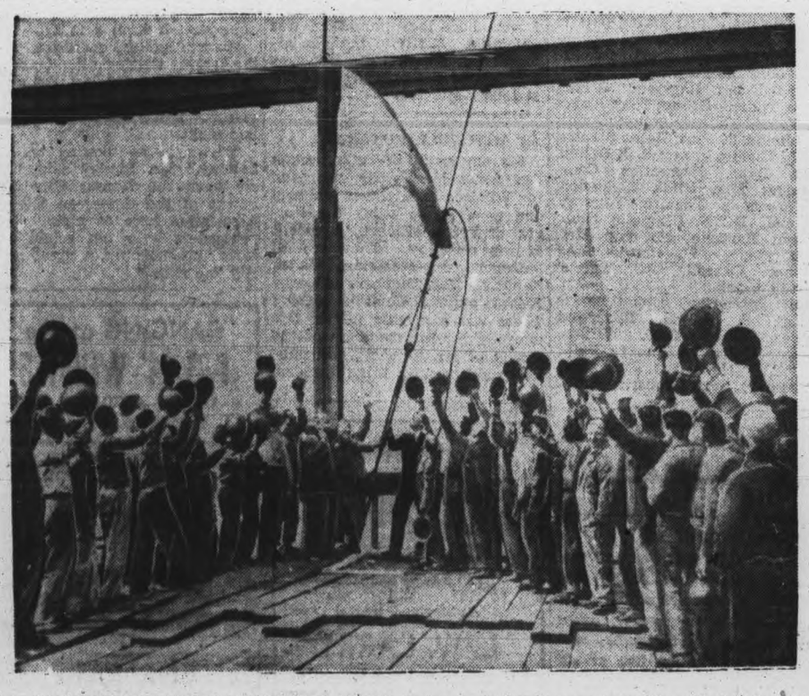
His vast and shambling frame was gone by mid-week but he was too big, too human, too-electric not to linger.

It will, in fact, be a long time before the Cabinet forgets a man who came into their midst like a giant of the earth and of the people; before the dignitaries at a Canadian Club luncheon forget a man who could drop a clattering "H" and still mount a peroration of Churchillian magnitude.

It also will be some time before the Communists at the Canadian Congress of Labor convention, seated and sour, forget the 800 delegates who surged around them to cheer a man who greeted them as "fellow trades unionists."

Reporters

As for the reporters, they will remember his humor, his mood and his trenchant common sense. At a press conference, he was in abundant form. Often he would chuckle a little, pause and then let go in authentic laughter.



He was introduced as Britain's hero of the cold war and he chortled, "First time I've ever known I'm a Frigidaire."

After he had given a "no interference" answer to questions about Canada's proposal to end Britain's right to amend the Canadian Constitution, he found the UK High Commissioner, Sir Alexander Clutterbuck, at his elbow. "We regard it as out of date, Sir, we want a change," said Sir Alex.

"Hah," chuckled the one-time farm boy and truck driver, "there are a lot of things in the British Empire that are out of date and which we don't want to change." He had read a book once about "Our Idiocyncracies." He had found it very funny.

He also found it funny when someone told him about a recent effort by the famous cartoonist Low poking fun at himself and Sir Stafford Cripps. "Ah," he sighed, "We love our Low."

Before the Canadian Club, he said of Britain's financial plight: "I feel in Cabinet like I used to feel when I was on low wages and the wife and I would sit down to see if we could stretch it out till Friday."

AS CONSTRUCTION WORKERS LOOK ON, the blue and white flag of the United Nations is raised on a flag staff on the 39th storey of the UN permanent headquarters building at 42nd Street and Franklin D. Roosevelt Drive in New York City in a ceremony marking completion of the steel frame work or "topping out" of the structure. In background are New York's famed Empire State Building (left) and Chrysler Building (right). In a brief address, Warren R. Austin, head of the United States UN delegation and chairman of the headquarters advisory committee, said that "this is not just another skyscraper in New York, but a manifestation of the progress toward peace."

Reporter Finds Movie Work Tough Going

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8 (AP). — Let me tell you about my movie career. This won't take long.

I've been picking grapes in the Hollywood vineyard going on six years and no producer has looked at me and exclaimed: "This boy is the answer to Montgomery Clift." This week I thought my time had finally arrived.

Voice on telephone: "Paramount calling; We'd like you to do a picture with Bob Hope."

I knew Crosby couldn't last.

I showed up with a fresh shave and my crew-cut locks slightly awry.

Deflation

I asked what kind of makeup I should use.

"You won't need any," was the answer.

Ah-Ha — a documentary, I thought. I asked to see the script. Might want to tidy up my dialogue, you know.

"You won't need any," was the answer.

Then came the blow. I learned the "picture" was to be a trailer to advertise Hope's picture, "The Great Lover."

I stood on one foot and then the other while Hope did a romantic scene with Rhonda Fleming.

Now?

Finally, the director looked my way and said "Now."

Here was my big scene: In the midst of the love-making, Miss Fleming is interrupted by telephone calls, makeup man, hairdresser, fan mail boy, etc., and an interviewer, played by myself. The script called for no dialogue by me, but Hope kindly provided some.

As he is being pushed into the background and out of the door, he says to me: "I'm Bob Hope."

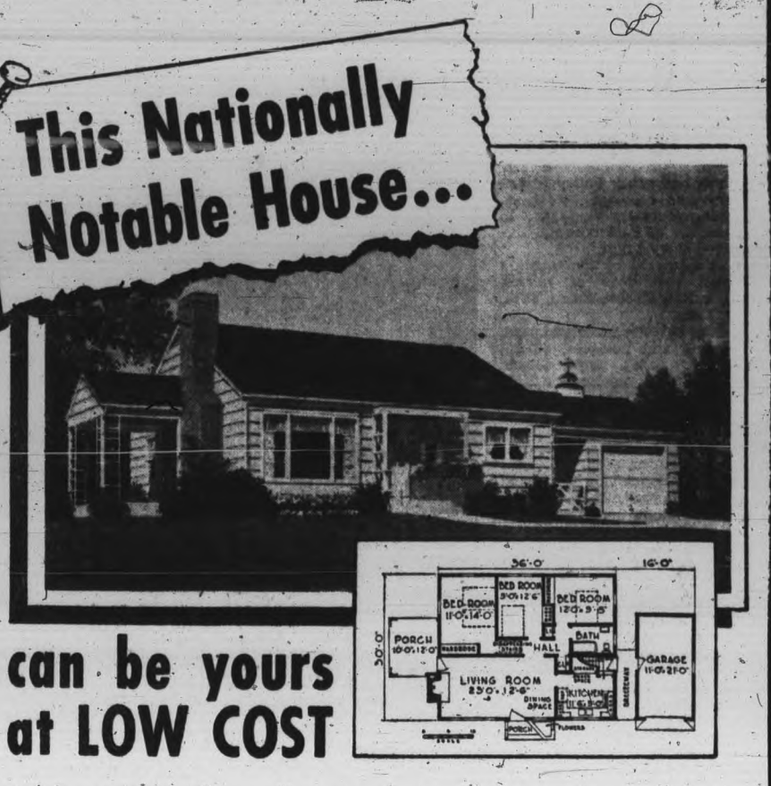
Here, printed in its entirety, is my line: "So?"

We had to take the scene twice. My first "So?" wasn't loud enough.

After the last shot was filmed, Hope shook my hand and said sincerely: "Before we did this, I didn't think you had talent. Now I'm convinced you haven't."

Warkworth News

Mr. Ken McKenzie left this week for Nova Scotia to visit his sister.



Mrs. Donovan, of Tamworth, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. A. M. Smale.

Mrs. Don Woods and family have moved to Port Hope where her husband is employed on the town police force.

Mrs. George Montgomery, of Oshawa, has returned home after visiting her sister, Mrs. Wm. Campbell.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Birney and family attended the shower at Centreton at the home of his brother and his family, Mrs. and Mrs. Archie Birney, in honor of their son Harry and his bride.

YOUR NEWSPAPERBOY IS MORE THAN A CARRIER

the meaning of service is a fundamental principle that everyone must learn

HE IS TAKING PART in a major training program which will not only make him a better Canadian and an admired member of your community, but will enable him to become acquainted with you. Every time you speak to him, whether you praise or pay him, your newspaperboy is impressed.

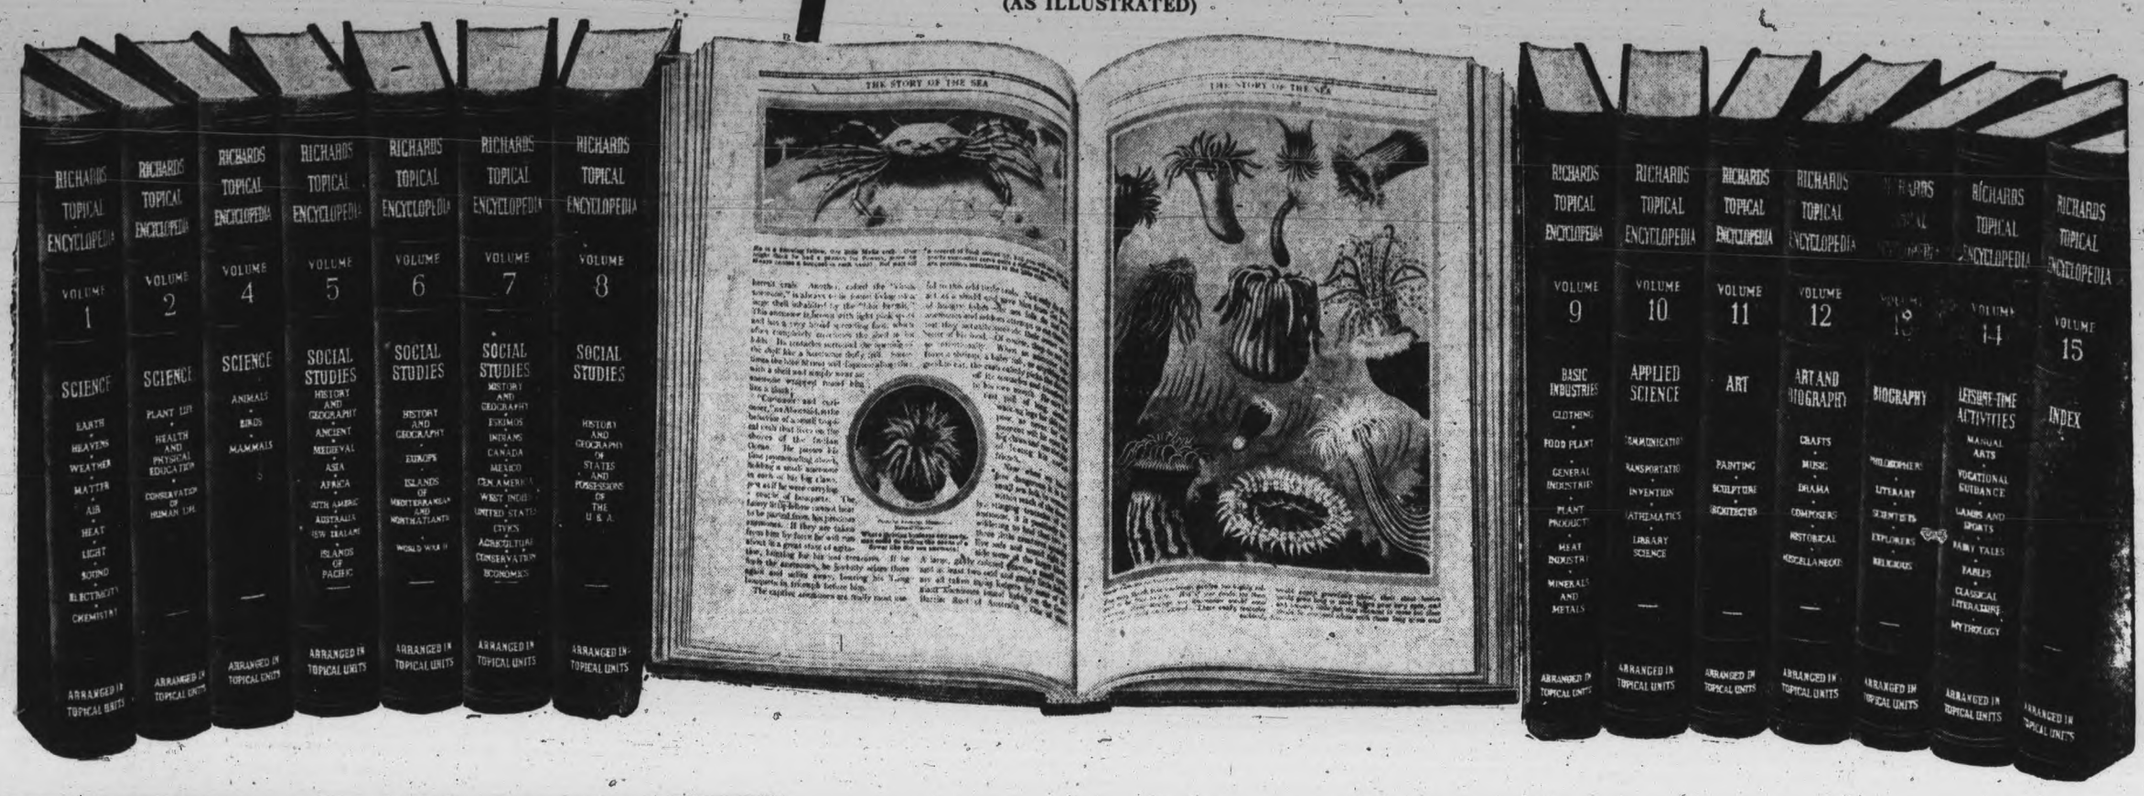
newspaperboys learn simple bookkeeping. Profits only follow collections.

they discover the value of education by doing as well as by learning.

earning and saving gives your newspaperboy a better appreciation of money.

Honor Him on Newspaperboy Day and every day.

Not many years from now he will be out of his teens and taking on a man's responsibilities. Then he will look back on his newspaper days and say:



"I can recognize that the real things I earned while a newspaperboy were not in the form of money but rather in the form of valuable experience with people and business. My customers were, of course, anxious to have their newspaper on time. Most of them understood that I was a young business man earning profits rather than wages. Whenever it seemed that I was to lose a customer, I tried, in my boyish but effective way, to continue having the paper delivered.

"It is now apparent that whether I succeeded or failed in those efforts, the experience I gained was of great value to me."

You have every reason to admire and to help your newspaperboy today and every day. Canada's future depends on him.

This is a different encyclopedia. Its COMBINATION of advantages has made Richards Topical Encyclopedia famous.

No other encyclopedia gives you this remarkable topical* arrangement of the 62 branches of man's knowledge AND pronunciation of difficult words as they appear AND the easy-to-find references to so vast an amount of information.

Information worth thousands of potential dollars

Here in Richards you possess a work that took years of planning and research by an outstanding board of contributing editors. They have produced a great compendium of essential knowledge equalled only by thousands of books worth many thousands of dollars. These 15 volumes are an education in themselves!

Here in these volumes are 23,813 subjects, richly illustrated with thousands of pictures . . . the foundations of man's vast learning . . . the Earth and the universe, the hidden world the microscope and telescope reveals; the story of history, science, geography, the lives and deeds of great men; the achievements in industry, the arts and sciences; mythology and classical literature . . . and much more . . . all so thoroughly scientific yet refreshingly non-technical.

Topical—a short cut to Fact Finding*

In this distinguished cyclopedia, so simply and soundly organized, you can find in just a few seconds one fact . . . or a hundred facts on a subject. Richards short-cuts the work of research and fact-finding . . . for the facts on each topic have been correlated and brought together in one place. For example, in the usual encyclopedia a great variety of naturally related subjects such as airplanes (under "A"), railroads (under "R"), ships (under "S"), highways (under "H"), are scattered through several volumes. In Richards, these subjects would instantly be found in one volume under the topic of "Transportation." That's the meaning of the phrase you see on every volume: "Arranged in Topical Units." In Richards things that belong together are found together. So, too, with pronunciations. Richards is the only topically arranged set that gives phonetic pronunciations (Webster's) of difficult and foreign words and names immediately following the word itself.

For Alert Modern Minds

Richards set of 15 large volumes, containing well over ten millions of words, is as up-to-date as radar, helicopters, and television. Here in Richards Topical Encyclopedia you own the great work that satisfies the hunger for facts in every alert modern mind.

A Grand Nicht at Aragon Second Annual Tartan Ball

Aye, 'twas a grand nicht at the Tartan Ball!

Opening the season of formal dances Friday evening, the CGE Pipe Band repeated the brilliant success of their first Tartan Ball and started more than 700 friends off on a happy holiday weekend.

Their master of ceremonies, Jock Hamilton of Toronto, unmistakably a Scotchman, but he wore the kilts to make it certain, highlighted a floor show that brought in the traditional songs and dances of the Highlands. Opening selections by he band, who make a grand show themselves with their McRae tartan, included the favorite "Bonnie Dundee." The Highland Fling and the Sword Dance were executed in fine style by two little girls, Peggy Johnston and Jane Ann Lister, dressed in plaids. Climaxing his vigorous renditions of the real Scottish numbers, Mr. Hamilton doffed his bonnet and sang of "The Toorie on it."

Tartans of many clans made an authentic stage setting with the band's handsome chests. Every lady at the dance was wearing a sprig of genuine heather, right from the old sod, a favour handed her at the door, and another souvenir of this event is the admission ticket, a bit of silk ribbon decorated and inscribed.

Draws for door prizes were made by Mayor M. J. Swanston, and Mrs. I. F. McRae and the winners were Mrs. Lloyd Peterson and Mr. Don Dixon. There were also three spot dances, the lucky ones being spotted by bandsman Bill Mathison. Winners were Mrs. Eleanor Pierce and Neil Pryde, Miss Delores Lucano and Mr. Charlie Hayes, Mrs. Dorothy Sisson and Mr. Reg. Seabrook.

Patrons and patronesses at the dance were Mayor M. J. Swanston and Mrs. Swanston, Mr. and Mrs. I. F. McRae, the Hon. H. R. Scott and Mrs. Scott, Pipe Major Alex. Milne, Pipe Sgt. Angus Munro and Mrs. Munro, Drum Corporal D. G. Taylor and Mrs. Taylor and they led in a grand march.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. G. Braund, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Menzies, Mr. and Mrs. John Ireland, Mr and Mrs D. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. D. Girl's Council

Jean Smith led the sing-song at the first meeting of the Girls' Council Monday. The girls introduced themselves before having lunch. Miss Betty Brown demonstrated how to make an attractive Christmas card, using colored construction paper and cellophane, and then explained to the newcomers the meaning of CGIT Council. Joan Krogh, the past president, told the girls what she feels she has gained from CGIT. Jean Smith then took over as the president for the coming year and the girls repeated the CGIT Purpose. After some discussion it was decided to wear uniforms to future meetings of the Council Next meeting will take the form of a potluck supper on November 7, when Mark Street group will take the worship.

Murray Street

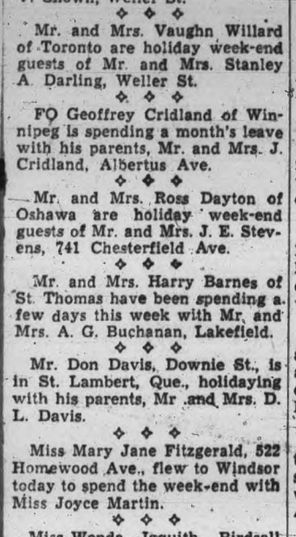
Trinity

Following games and a sing-song, Anna Edmondson conducted the worship service. She chose as her theme "Building the Kingdom" and stressed the fact that we get out of life only what we put into it.

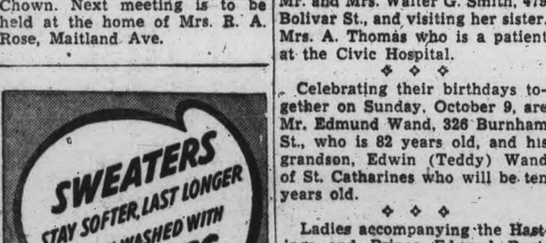


Following Joan Henry's report of Girls' Council, elections took the remainder of the time. It was decided that Trinity would have CGIT Department officers, and the following girls were elected to the executive: President, Joan Krogh; vice-president, Joan White; secretary, Anne Grant; treasurer, Beth Davidson.

The Senior executive is composed of the following girls: Presiden, Joan Henry; vice-president, JoAnne Watson; secretary, Betty Crowe; treasurer, Helen Lancaster. The group plan to study the different religions as their Bible study project for this year.

The Intermediates, under the direction of Anna Edmondson elected their officers as follows: President, Edith Nichols; vice-president, Caroline Horton; secretary, Anne Gordon; treasurer, Marilyn Windrim; and reporter, Hilary Powell.

The Junior Group led by Marjorie Bryden held its first meeting on Monday. The leader explained the purpose of CGIT and how it was first formed. We were then told the meaning of our uniform and badges. The following officers were elected for the group: President, Hazel Zakos; secretary, Margaret Burnside; treasurer, Barbara Woodcock; reporter, Janet Hughson. The members discussed the Thanksgiving meeting and plans were made for a picnic. Future meetings were outlined, and the meeting closed with Taps.



Knots in pine logs are almost imperishable, decaying much less rapidly than the log itself.

Men Ignorant of Own Wants Too Much Love Dangerous

It is a curious thing that the three virtues that men think that they most desire in their wives they don't really want at all. Or rather they want them in a very limited and modified degree.

The first is, of course, love. Every man imagines that he wants his wife to be so madly infatuated with him that her every thought and interest is centered in him until she has no life apart from him.

Dorothy Dix

But, in reality, there is nothing that a man can get fed up on so quickly as love. It is nearly always the perfectly devoted wives who have philandering husbands, and the reason for this is plain. They are surfeited with adulation. It is not the worshiping wives who have the adoring husbands. It is the wives who keep their husbands guessing.

Likewise men discover that an oversupply of love is the heaviest burden that a woman can lay on a man's shoulders. It can break his back and crush him down until he is nothing but the dust beneath her feet. It can smother him until it expels the last breath of freedom from his nostrils. It can paralyze his ambitions, cripple his energy, kill his spirit and make him that most abject of all creatures—a brow-beaten, henpecked husband.

Too Much Love

Too much love is too much sugar in the lemon pie of life. What a man really wants in a wife is one who loves him well enough to dare the adventure of matrimony with him, and who makes her affection a fire that warms him without consuming him. One who makes her kisses a treat instead of a chore.

Then there is domesticity. Men are strong on domesticity in women. Apparently their ideal of the perfect wife is the snail, who carries her house on her back wherever she goes. There is no woman they excoriate more than she who gads about to clubs and shops and matinees and teas and such. And there is no woman they more extol than the one who has no interests outside of her house and who boasts that she gave up all of her clubs when she married, and that she has never been even to the theatre of an evening since little Johnny was born.

But in real life unadulterated domesticity has not the charm for a man that it has in theory, and it is sadly true that, after partaking of their wives, incomparable pies, many men sally forth to find some undomestic lady who can feed their souls, and who has a peppier line of conversation than their Marias, and who will put perfume behind her ears instead of smelling of bread and butter.

For the overly homekeeping women are bound to have homely wit. No human being can spend all of her time within four walls, and wit hno companionship except babies, without growing dull. A woman has to step out and go places and see things. She has to have fresh contacts. She has to be amused and be able to amuse and entertain her husband.

The third virtue that men think they demand in their wives is thrift. A wife to save their money. A penny-pincher. One with a Yale lock on her handbag. A bargain hound. One who would consider it a cardinal sin even to enter a beauty shop. One who would never do anything so wicked as to waste any money on amusements.

Miserly Wife

But when a man gets the miserly woman who goes about in hand-me-downs because they are cheap; who loses her looks because she won't spend the money to beautify herself; who drops out their set because she is too close to entertain, who takes the fun out of everything they do by haggling over the price, does he appreciate her at her true worth as a first aid to riches?

Not at all. He generally forsakes her for some woman who dresses like a million dollars and on whom he spends the money that his wife has saved. And likes it.

All of which goes to show that men really don't know what it is they want in a wife. Which is lucky for women.

Auxiliary Plans Bazaar For Hospital

Mother Priscilla of St. Joseph's Hospital gave an interesting talk to the Ladies' Auxiliary at a meeting held Thursday evening in the Nurses' Residence. She described briefly the American Hospital convention in Cleveland, Ohio, which she and Sister Angelica attended. They also visited several of the larger American hospitals, studying their methods of operation.

The meeting was conducted by Mrs. J. V. Gallivan, president, who expressed appreciation of the Auxiliary for the generous support of the public in making the tag day a financial success.

Final payment has been made on the infant resuscitator and a cheque given Sister Superior to furnish a room in the new wing of the hospital.

Mrs. J. McCarney suggested purchasing a table for the entrance hall of the nurses' residence, which met with the approval of the members.

Mrs. W. A. Richardson reported excellent response to the appeal for articles for the bazaar to be held November 16 at the nurses' residence and asked members for their continued cooperation.

Delegates were named to attend the Ontario Hospital Association convention on Oct. 31 and Nov. 1 and 2 in Toronto.

PRACTICAL PLANS FOR THE HOME YOU WANT AND HOW TO PLAN IT

What Should Be Looked For In Judging a House Plan

What should you look for in judging a plan? Your first major consideration must be its suitability to your family's individual needs. Just as you "try on" a dress or suit before buying it, so you should try a plan. It needs to be more than just a house with so many rooms. Put your family into the plan and visualize living in the house when it is built

A house plan is essentially an arrangement of living spaces and as such it must be both workable and buildable. There are six points which deserve careful study in every plan . . . flexibility, circulation, orientation, furniture arrangement, storage space and utilities.

Judge the plan you have in mind with each of these points. If it has serious faults in any one of them, it will not be satisfactory.

Should Have Flexibility

People today spend more for better construction and maintenance of their homes. Insulation, heating, wiring, appliances, and cabinet-work are "musts" in today's well-built house, and without these improvements it will have a poor resale value. Because of these improvements and increased construction costs, small houses now cost as much as larger ones did several decades ago. Nevertheless, this reduced amount of living space can and must serve the family whose budget is limited as adequately as a larger but older house.

The smaller the house, the more complicated the assignment of "space for use" becomes. An expensive house may have separate rooms for guests, dining or study. In the small home which cannot afford this space, a plan which calls for a few large areas is always better, more livable and more adaptable to change than is one wtih a number of small rooms.

Good plans solve this problem by making each room-area serve as many activities as possible. A plan which does this is said to have "flexibility." This is particularly necessary in areas where "family group living" is carried on. New designs make multi-use of service areas also. Well-designed storage space and cabinet-work play an important part in providing flexibility.

"Flexibility" in home design does not mean movable walls for quick changes of space. Folding doors, screens and demountable partitions will be used more frequently in future homes and there is a trend toward the elimination of interior load-bearing partitions to permit more flexible planning.

Circulation

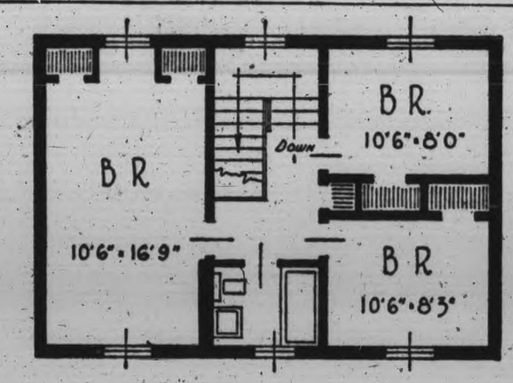
The term "circulation", when applied to planning, refers to the means of getting from one part of the house to another . . . or to the outside. In judging a plan, you should be able to recognize good or bad features of circulation.

Halls in small homes serve no purpose other than that of circulation. Therefore, they should occupy as little space as possible, and be eliminated when unnecessary. Furniture-moving requires a hall-width of 36" to 40".

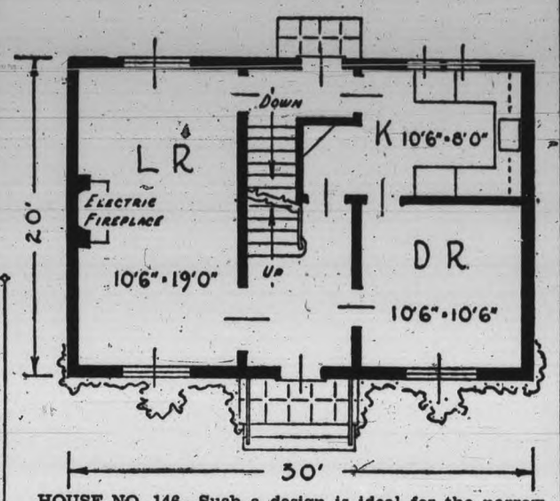
Stairs, although purely for "circulation," may sometimes require design for beauty. In judging the plan they must be studied for safety and economy of space. Steep or winding stairs are dangerous; absence of a handrail makes them more so. Stairs must be at least 36" wide to permit moving furniture.

Imaginary paths of circulation exist through some rooms which have more than one doorway. These paths may turn a room into little more than a hallway, interfering with the placement of furniture or cabinet-work, and causing unnecessary steps. Trouble of this kind may be a sign that the whole house is poorly arranged.

Doors are a part of the circulation scheme which depend upon the general plan arrangement. If there are many bad door locations, it indicates that the arrangement of the plan is bad. The swing of a door uses a considerable amount of space. Doors usually stand open in a home and the effect of an open door upon usable wall area in this position should be observed. A small hall or stair hall with several doors leading into it may be almost unusable because of conflicting door swings. Although a person can walk through a doorway only 18" wide, moving furniture into a room requires a width of at least 2' 8".



Exits from the interior to the exterior are most important in connection with service functions. The business of taking ashes or laundry from the basement to the outdoors may be very unsatisfactory if improperly planned. Direct circulation is required for delivery of groceries to the kitchen and for removal of garbage from the kitchen to outdoor containers.



Furniture Replacement

When you have found a plan which satisfies your needs for space and which stands the tests for other factors, you should consider the placement of furniture. Furniture is the equipment which makes empty room livable. Sizes of furniture are established by human use; and beds, tables and chairs are relatively standard. On your plan you can see floor areas and wall dimensions, the location of windows and the "swing" of doors. One thing is not apparent, however—the height of window sills. Check these carefully to see whether your chest of drawers or dressing table actually can be placed under a window if you would like to have it there.

You should "live in the plan" for a while with the furniture you expect to have in your new home. One of the best ways to do this is to cut out paper tracings of the furniture, scaled to the proper size, then place them on the plan which you have selected.

HOUSE NO. 146—Such a design is ideal for the narrow lot. Not only is it only 30' wide, but all windows are placed to overlook either the front or back garden. And what fine windows they are too! In spite of big openings there is no feeling that neighbours are peering into this house. Inspired by the block-houses of old, the second storey has an overhang at the front. Upper wall is painted maroon, with shutters white. Roof is blue-black. House is heated from a central steam plant, thus no chimney. Fireplace is electric. Area of house is about 17,400 cubic feet. Warsaw WA, WMS Hold Joint Meeting

WARSAW, Oct. 8 (ENS). — Owing to the sectional rally being held in the Warsaw Church on the regular day, the Women's Association and Woman's Missionary Society held a joint meeting this week.

The WMS with Mrs. Unstead as leader took charge of the devotional service, taking as her theme, "Joy is the grace we give to God." After a short business period the WA had a short program. Two short readings: "Life Is What We Make It" and "Give The Best You Have" were given by Clara McCracken. Mrs. Unstead and Mrs. Harold Payne sang a duet, "The Church By The Side Of The Road." The treasurer reported on the anniversary supper. It was moved to give Mrs. Cooper $15 for the flower fund. The treasurer was authorized to pay the insurance on the church piano.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Cooper and a social half-hour enjoyed.

Business Spotlight

Securities Tops In Year Stock Exchanges Brisk

By The Canadian Press

Security markets this week started the new month with a brisk climb that carried them to the highest average price levels of the year.

"Optimism" was the keynote on stock exchanges. Business was brisk as prices climbed. Steel and coal industry strikes in the United States failed to deter investors. Interest was high and blacking prominent on brokers books.

The break-through into new high ground for the year early in the week was a psychological factor in increasing activity and continuing the rise. Prices have been within shouting distance of the high-point for some time, reaching up one week to almost touch and then sagging before trying again. The final push brought in business that had been sitting on the sidelines waiting to see if the bullish trend would last.

Month-end figures of the Toronto Stock Exchange showed the highest turnover and values of shares traded of the year. Approximately 20,000 buy and sell orders were counted on Sept. 12 when over 4,300,000 shares were traded.

The value of shares traded mounted by some $25,000,000 over August.

The Exchange's com osite index—based on the quoted market values of the outstanding capital of every stock on the board and broken into 20 groups of industries—was at the highest point of the year in September.

Almost all groups showed increases in value. Base metal stocks rose about $65,000,000, papers $48,000,000 and oil refineries $20,000,000 to lead the groups. Finance issues attracted considerable attention, going to the highest since 1940.

Gold mines were down, the four groups dipping about $22,000,000. News from the Alberta oil fields perked western oils up $20,000,000.

Advance Continues

Values continued rising this week as markets chalked up some strong gains.

Canadian markets reflected the rolling New York Exchange. In Toronto, industrials chalked up a gain of 3.89 over the fi e days at the highest average price level since November. Base metals attracted brisk buying despite news of cuts in lead and zinc prices, for a gain of 1.32. Western oils were ahead .61 and golds, .50.

Many small gold stocks were featured following news of drill results. Recently golds have been reacting more readily to individual news and appear to have taken devaluation in stride.

Volume for the five days was 6,221,000 shares, about 1,000,000 more than the previous five days.

Golds were the only losers on the Montreal averages, down .52. Gains were: Banks .43; utilities .3; industrials .7; combined .6; papers 7.57. Industrial volume was 245,190, as against 208,324, and mines 1,244,319, as against 2,141,208.

Grain markets tended lower from the previous Friday. In Chicago, December wheat, oats and rye weakened while corn held firm. In Winnipeg, October oats, barley and flax were losers.

Leather Union Leader Said Communist By US

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP)—Records containing an admission by Myer Klig that he was a member of the Communist party in Canada from 1929 to 1932 were introduced Friday at a deportation hearing.

The records of an examination of Klig by the immigration service were introduced by Lemuel Schofield co-counsel for Klig, who is a vice-president of the International Fur and Leather Workers' Union of the United States and Canada (CIO).

Klig, a native of Russia, was brought to Canada by a Russian family which settled in Winnipeg. Five years later, in 1926, he became a naturalized Canadian citizen and worked as a furrier in Winnipeg and Toronto, before he came to the United States in 1937.

Klig entered the United States on a permanent visa from Cuba in 1941. The government charges he obtained this visa by withholding from the American Consul his prior membership in the Communist party of Canada.

Trade Expert Here

LONDON, Oct. 8 (CP) — Sir Graham Cunningham, chairman of Britain's dollar export board, left Friday night by air for Canada and the United States. He will visit Ottawa, Toronto and Winnipeg before going to New York and Washington.

MP Apartments Idea For Ottawa

OTTAWA, Oct. 8 (CP)—W. J. Cairns, secretary-manager of the Ottawa Board of Trade, Friday suggested the government building an apartment for members of parliament and diplomats to relieve congestion in city hotels.

The Board of Trade has been seeking increased accommodation for the crowded capital since last summer when several organizations decided not to hold conventions here because of the shortage of hotel space.

Mr. Cairns said in an interview the proposed apartment could house parliamentarians and diplomats at standard rates. They now took up more than 350 rooms in the Chateau Laurier, a Canadian National Railways hotel and the city's largest, for six months of the year.

While parliament was sitting, he said, there were only 150 rooms left in the Chateau Laurier while the Lord Elgin Hotel, the second largest hotel, was completely filled.

Opinions of government members ranged from "impractical" to "a good long-range idea." Members questioned, however, were unanimous in expressing the view that no such apartment should be built for members during present conditions of housing shortage.

Left Wingers Fail To Swerve CCL Policies

OTTAWA, Oct. 8 (CP) — A beaten Communist minority left the Canadian Congress of Labor convention Friday without gaining a point but with the distinction of initiating the most riotous scene in years of CCL meetings.

Trampled with the regularity of clockwork in every move aimed at influencing congress policy, the left-wingers tossed in a final salvo in the dwindling hours of the convention through a wild demonstration against the expulsion of a Red-tinged International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

The 18,000-member union had been under suspension since last March. The CCL executive took this disciplinary step and then recommended expulsion when Mine-Mill refused to step out of the Ontario field after the CCL had decided it was not doing a good job of organizing.

Yesterday's decision left Mine-Mill outside the main stream of Canadian labor, with the CCL itself busily engaged in trying to steer membership into local unions directly affiliated with the congress.

The verdict was one of a long series of defeats administered to the Communist fringe of the congress during the five days of its ninth annual convention.

The left-wingers took two other setbacks yesterday. First, they failed to gain a single seat on the CCL executive in opposition to the anti-Red leadership, though they made a bid for every office opened in the annual elections.

President A. R. Mosher was returned handily over Robert Haddow, Montreal, Canadian chief of the leftist International Union of Fur and Leather Workers, and the full executive slate went in behind him.

The left-wingers also put up stiff opposition to continuation of congress association with the CCF as the "political arm" of labor, and to continuing the congress political action program in alignment with the CCF. But again they were batted down.

In the earlier days, the leftists had absorbed defeats on foreign policy, trade, the suspension of Electrical Workers' offices and several other points. A majority voting in concert with executive policies refused to let the Communist fringe gain a yard.

This year the leftists, besides being low in numbers, were minus virtually all of their cleverest spokesmen. They lacked such stalwarts as Harvey Pritchett, who had hauled out of British Columbia's International Woodworkers of America with its leftist minority; Clarence S. Jackson and George Harris, Canadian chief and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the United Electrical Workers, suspended from the congress, and Robert H. Carlin, Canadian boss of the suspended mine-mill union.

Agriculturalists Meet

CAVAN, Oct. 8 (ENS) — The Federation of Agriculture held a meeting in the Community Hall, Cavan, on Thursday evening. Mr. Charles Osborne, Bowmanville, was chairman.

V. C. Milburn, Toronto, secretary of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture gave an address on the history of the Federation giving an account of the work accomplished by this Society since its inauguration and outlining the work it hoped to do in the future.

Orville Osborne, Orono, contributed two solos accompanied by Mrs. Melleville Staples, Orono.

At the conclusion of the program lunch was served.

Hockey Club Sponsors Thanksgiving Bingo

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 8 — (ENS)—Over 400 people attended the annual Thanksgiving bingo sponsored by the Hockey Club at Edgewater Park pavilion on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Bernard O'Rourke held the lucky number ticket for a suit of clothes and a pressure cooker was won by Mrs. Arden Haig. Other prizes were 29 capons and five turkeys.

Fancy Work Ready For Sale At Baazar

BETHANY, Oct. 8 (ENS) — Mrs. Allan Gribble was hostess to 15 members of the Womens' Auxiliary of St. Paul's Church, Bethany on Thursday. The president, Mrs. J. J. Hamilton opened the meeting with prayers, Mrs. Gribble read the scripture and Mrs. Jarvis, the minutes of the previous meeting, as well as the report of the Victoria Deanery meeting held in Millbrook.

Completed fancy work was turned in by several members for sale at the bazaar, an annual event which will be held in the Town Hall on November 26. Mrs. T. S. Gault read the first chapter of the new Study Book. Rev. Mr Gault closed the meeting with prayer and Mrs. Gribble and members of her group served refreshments.

War I Vets In Debt

OTTAWA, Oct. 8 (CP)—A total of 1,950 veterans of the First World War are still in debt to the Soldier Settlement Board, it was shown in a Commons return Friday. They owe $2,231,881. The return, tabled for Robert Fair (SC—Battle River) showed that 1,039 such veterans have paid off their loans and acquired clear titles since last Jan. 1.

Protest To States

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Oct. 8 (CP)—The Canadian Peace Congress Friday submitted a petition of protest to the United Nations concerning United States' refusal to grant transit visas to Canadians wishing to attend the peace congress in Mexico last month. Dr. J. G. Endicott of Toronto, chairman of the Canadian Congress, filed the petition at the offices here of the U. N. Human Rights Commission.

Shoes To Cost More

TORONTO, Oct. 8 (CP)—Devaluation of the Canadian dollar will mean higher prices for shoes, the Shoe Manufacturers' Association of Canada said Friday. The date when price increases are to take affect was not indicated. The increase is credited to the increase in the price of leather, higher costs of shoe machinery and replacement parts imported from the United States.

Eight Dollars To Go To Reach Allocation

MILLBROOK, Oct. 8—(ENS)—St. Andrew's Mission Band held a Thanksgiving meeting in the Sunday schoolrooms on Thursday. The worship centre had been effectively decorated with apples, pumpkins and lighted candles.

Frances Dawson, game supervisor, took charge of the games. The vice-president, Barbara Anne Thompson, was in the chair. After the minutes, read by Alice Hawkins, secretary, the treasurer, Dorothy Ball, stated that $8 was yet to be raised this year to reach the allocation.

Following the worship service with its responses repeated in unison, the first story of the new study book was given by one of the leaders.

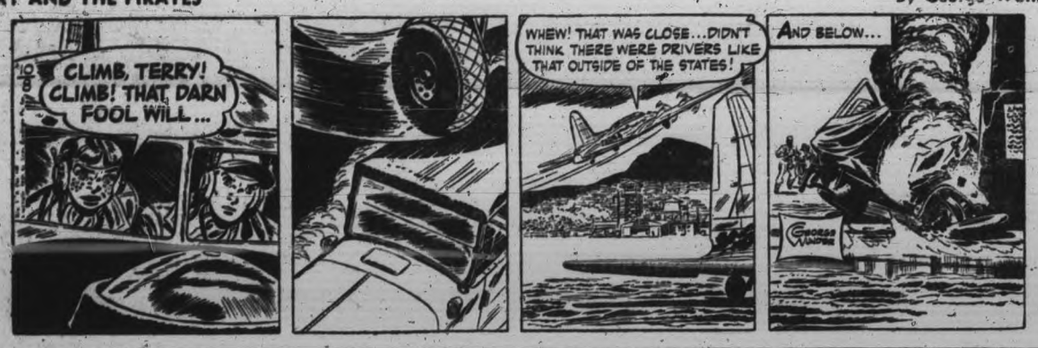
Candy was passed by Helen Ingham, and Janet Hobbs, literature secretary, gave out the "World Friends" magazines.

Ontario Government To Improve Cheese

TORONTO, Oct. 8 (CP)—Ontario government officials said Friday night that $1,000,000 will be spent to improve Ontario-produced cheese to a point where it will be in demand throughout the world, particularly in the United States and Britain.

Grants totalling $450,000 will be made immediately to the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association to aid in construction of two public storing and ripening plants in Eastern Ontario. One plant will be in Belleville and the other probably will be in Cornwall, officials said.

Bulk of the cheeese export to Britain now is "green" and has to be aged in the United Kingdom. From one to two years is required to properly ripen and age cheddar cheese.



Ship Huge Pickerel

THE PAS, Man., Oct. 8 (CP)—One of the largest pickerel ever caught in northern Manitoba has been shipped to The Pas to be frozen and placed on exhibition at the Northern Manitoba Trappers' Festival this winter. The fish, 27 inches long with a girth of 16 inches, weighed almost 10 pounds when taken.

Canadian President

PALO ALTO, Calif., Oct. 8 — (CP)—Stanford University Friday formally seated Canadian-born Dr. J. E. Wallace Sterling as its fifth president in 58 years. A native of Linwood, Ont., Dr. Sterling received his Bachelor of Arts degree at the University of Toronto in 1927, Master of Arts, University of Alberta, 1930; and Doctor of Philosophy, Stanford, 1938.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Co-Operative Medical Services Federation of Ontario Convening in Peterborough Saturday and Sunday, October 15-16, at Empress Hotel . . . Tickets Selling for Plowmen's Bus Trip to Brant . . . Field Machines Lighten Distaff Work.

The fourth annual meeting of the Co-Operative Medical Services Federation of Ontario in Peterborough, Oct. 15 and 16, will be attended by about 100 representatives of nearly all the counties of the province.

That estimate was mentioned by Quirt McKinney, of the Normal School staff, director of the Central Eastern group of the Federation, including Peterborough County and City.

William McCarthy of Shelbourne, chairman of the Ontario Farm Forum, and president of the Medical Federation, will preside at the local sessions and also at the Saturday evening dinner at the Empress Hotel, convention headquarters.

The dinner guest speaker is George W. Jacooson, secretary-treasurer of the Group Health Association, St. Paul, Minn. He has a wide experience in this type of organization and its problems of establishment and operation.

Peterborough is represented in the Federation by two groups, Kawartha Co-Operative Medical Services, which has been sponsored by the county Federation of Agriculture, and Peterborough Co-Operative Medical Services whose members are city residents, an urban partnership.

Mr. McKinney mentioned the fact that the largest unit is the Combo group in Toronto, with 10,000 members.

"It is highly significant of rural progress that farmers in most of the counties of Ontario have taken hold of this co-operative enterprise since the Blue Cross service was withdrawn from rural participation in this province," Mr. McKinney said.

Mr. W. W. Dawson of Otonabee has been chairman of the sponsoring directorate of the Peterborough county group. The purpose of the Co-operative Medical Services Federation is to afford to rural people the advantages of prepaid hospital care. It is intended to save for farmers thousands of dollars in hospital costs by their co-operative action.

The rural Peterborough group completed its planning last Spring, and is now in association with the farmers of other counties and also with the city groups. One significant aspect of foundation efforts in this county, as elsewhere, was the demonstration by a rural directorate to both themselves and their neighbors, that jointly they can accomplish such exceedingly worth while undertakings as the group financing of hospital care. It was inspired by the Federation of Agriculture in Peterborough and elsewhere throughout the province, with a large access of membership in the last two years.

BUS TRIP TO BRANT

Henry Batten reports tickets going briskly for the bus trip to the [illegible] ford in Brant County, Thursday, Oct. [illegible]

The bus will leave the King St. terminal at seven o'clock and will get back home around 10 that night. Mr. Batten and Alex Huston disposed of tickets at the county plowing match Wednesday. Miss Evelyn Scott of the Agricultural office reports an allotment of 12 taken, at $5.50 each, and it appeared yesterday that the full complement of the bus would be sold.

Local people who are making the bus trip are requested not to delay beyond Monday the buying of their tickets.

EXPECT 1,000 PLOWMEN

More than 1,000 entries are expected at the big plowing match. Applications for 240 tractors were received by the general committee at the closing time for entries this week. Others who will bring their own machines, and those who will plow with horses are expected to boost the number of contestants beyond the thousand mark.

Directors were reported somewhat anxious about the acreage they have laid out for the match.

CLUB SIGNS 27

Gordon McIntosh's herd improvement group are all set with 27 members signed, actually one more than is needed.

It is a fact that many an effort takes off at some perverse tangent, as for instance in the last step of the herd improvement muster.

With 25 applications signed, and the limit set by the Ontario Department at 26, both Frank Paterson and his assistant, Robert Bell, each secured another signature on the same day. That made 27. It was a rosier conclusion than if the group had been two or three short, but it turns out that there has been some minor question raised about squeezing the 25 applicants into the specified 26.

The local supervisor has not been appointed yet, but members understand that the work will not be under way until November.

FEDERATION LUNCHEON

Rev. Walter Gilling, rector of St. Luke's Church, will be the speaker at the first luncheon meeting of the Federation of Agriculture at the Empress Hotel, Nov. 8. This is a continuation of the noon meetings which the Federation inaugurated last fall. They were monthly luncheons until spring, and were uniformly successful.

✦ ✦ ✦

$1,650 FOR HOLSTEIN COW

The dispersal sale of 49 Holstein cattle in the herd of the estate of E. W. M. Snyder, Waterloo brought a total of $23,175 for a general average of $472.

Top price was $1,650 paid by Clair I. Miller, Medina, Ohio, for the six-year-old cow Oakside Lassie Mary. She was winning four-year-old at the 1948 Waterloo Black and White Day, and is currently making a production record of more than 20,000 lbs. milk.

Second highest price was $900 paid by Hector I. Astengo of Rosafe Farms, Brampton, for Oakshade Sovereign Vivian, a two year daughter of the $1,650 cow. Mr. Astengo also paid $675 for her eight months' calf. This was the high price of the sale for a heifer calf. A full sister Oakside Lassie Mary sold to E. J. Hosack, Woodstock, at $850. He also paid $660 for another milking female.

A. P. Bechtel, Bridgeport, bought three milking females, paying $735 and $650 for a pair of five-year-olds and $500 for a seven-year-old.

Top price for an open heifer was $500 paid by Roy M Brubacher, Waterloo, for a granddaughter of "Marksman."

Other high prices included $700 paid by Fred M. Snyder, Waterloo, for a three-year-old heifer; $600 by A. F. Thompson, Drayton, for a bred heifer; $600 by James H. Perrin, Ayr, for a nine-year-old; $575 by Robert C. Laning, Waterford for a four-year-old; $575 by Geo. B. Perrin, Ayr, for a four-year-old; $560 by W. H. Gillespie & Son, Galt, for a bred heifer; and $550 by Vincent Epp Tavistock, for a three-year-old heifer.

Twenty-four milking females averaged $545; six bred heifers $572; nine open heifers $317; six heifer calves $340; four bulls $302.

TWO WORLD RECORD COWS IN ONE CLASS

An unusual feature of the York County Black and White Day was the showing of two world record cows in one class. They were Roeland Rag Apple Daisy and Roeland Rag Apple Lilly, seventh and second respectively in the class for aged cows in milk. "Lilly" is the World Champion in the Junior two-year-old class of the 305 day division on twice-a-day milking with 827 lbs. fat from 18,593 lbs. milk. "Daisy" has recently completed a record of approximately 841 lbs fat from 18,727 lbs. milk which, when officially reported is expected to establish a new mark in the Senior four-year-old class of the 305 day division on twice-a-day milking. The pair are full sisters owned by J. W. Greenwood, Maple.

The outstanding class was that for dry aged cows with 17 entries crowding the ring to capacity. It was here that the judge, James R. Henderson, Kingston, found his grand and reserve grand champion females, the grand being Segis Rag Apple Tensen owned by Thomas McGriskin, Agincourt, and the reserve grand Lonelm Texal Marie, owned by George C. Jackson, Downsview.

COMBINE HELPS IN KITCHEN

The farm "bee" is one of the customs of rural life and practice that is relaxing its demand of voluntary, co-operative labor, as an effect of the new mechanics of agriculture. And, the lightening of work is reaching into the kitchen and dining room.

The thresing "bee" dinners are only a memory on farms that own combines. That heavy chore of other generations, extending into the late months of the season, is now only a detail of the harvest. The grain is threshed and bagged in the field. Dinner that day is just another family gathering. Robust appetites of neighbors who once helped, now remain at home.

Come, too, the forage harvester that cuts and chops the corn crop in the field and blows it into the silo, with additional saving of labor at home and in the circuit of the "bee."

One of Peterborough's farmers helped at 14 bees in the silage season last year, and when the neighbors arrived at his place two meals were provided for the 16 men who assisted him in taking in the corn crop.

Recently he engaged a forage harvester on a custom basis of $10 an hour, helped at only five bees in the neighborhood, and had only eight men for the two meals of that day.

Farmers are more than content to forego the social aspects of the harvest time "bee," and they are happy, too, that the new machines reduce the domestic work which necessarily devolved to their wives.

Another economy amounts, perhaps on the average, to $8 or $10 for twine. The corn binder entailed a great deal of hand labor that is now eliminated. The forage harvester skips the use of twine. The corn is cut and chopped, row by row, and the machine's product is blown into an accompanying spacious truck. When it is full, another takes its place, while the first one heads for the barn and the blower, where a second and finer cutting job is done.

The only manual work is in the driving of the machines, plus the manipulating of the blower at the silo, plus the tramping job within.

A Bridgenorth farmer is one of those who adopted the custom plan of ensiling this season. He estimated that he packed into his silo about one-third more corn than at any time in the past; and said he was entirely satisfied with the job.

The cost at one place was $10 an hour for the eight hour of harvesting six acres. And, it was one of the tallest stands of corn that field ever produced.

So, the combine and forage harvester may be visualized as moving right into the farm kitchen and doing a welcome job there in lightening the distaff work.

SARGENT SALE

F. Bruce Sargent is selling Wed., Oct. 12 his horses and other livestock and equipment at his farm lot 23, con. 11, Cavan.

His horses include hackneys, hunters, saddle, commercial and ponies. There are also registered Jersey cows, Tamworth pigs, white Rock pullets, and four acres of corn in the field.

Notices of the sale provide information detail about the 18 horses which Mr. Sargent has decided to sell "in view of the fact that he has rented his farm and has gone into general insurance business."

One of the hunter type is a filly "Starlight," sired by Budpath, a King's Plate winner of some years ago.

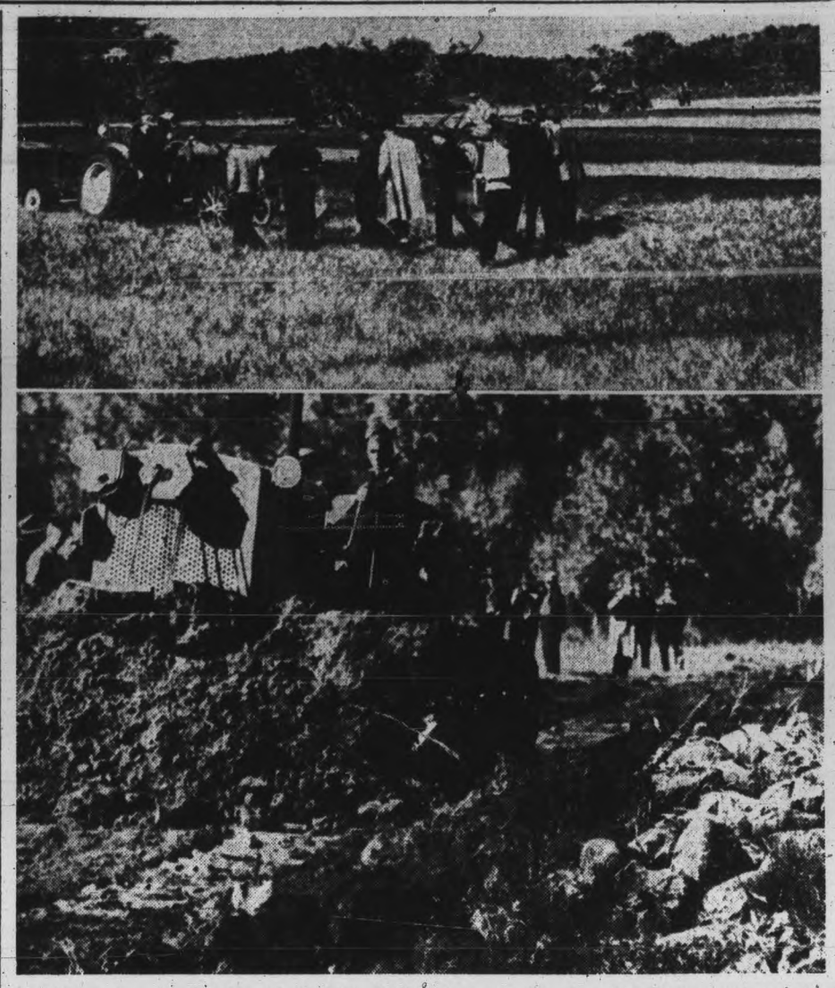
SAVED BY THE SUN

The plowing match crowd at the farm of Frank Corkery, Ennismore, Wednesday afternoon, would hardly have recognized in its sunlit movement the drizzled gloom of the morning.



Frank Paterson, agricultural representative, and secretary of the county association, said his telephone began ringing around 7 o'clock with enquiries as to whether the match was to be held. Some of those calling were concerned about the bereavement of Vern Campbell, president, in the death of his father-in-law Tuesday evening.

"Other directors arrived and we got under way. And then the sun came through, and that changed the entire outlook. I don't think we ever started a match in more unfavorable circumstances. You wouldn't know the place by noon."

Incidentally, the St. Martin's women somewhat underestimated the crowd. They were sold out of soft drinks by four o'clock, excepting one brand, but they had good coffee and plenty of cream. After all, it was the sun that saved the day for the county plowmen.

"That meant the loss of our president," Mr. Paterson said. "Then G. A. Gillespie was at home with a cold which he probably caught Tuesday when he was staking out the competition lots. Howard Quinn was another of the regulars missing. He had an assignment to judge the match on Wolfe Island. Among those who filled the gap were Alex Huston and Cliff Curtis, and the two Ennismore directors, Sam Killen and Tom Harrington, were a big help.

"The Ennismore ladies were uncertain about the booth they had planned for the day, wondering how many people they should anticipate as later customers.

Rubbing out a row of rocks on Frank Corkery's farm in Ennismore was a demonstration at the county plowing match significant of the increasing effect of the machine on modern farming. At the right hand corner of the lower picture is a glimpse of a stone bottom of an old fence. The chore given to Bill Davidson of Teeswater on the bulldozer was to bury the stones and leave no trace of them in the incorporation of two adjoining fields into one. Mr. Davidson is starting on the trench. When its depth was nearly the height of his machine, after piling the top soil in one heap, he simply pushed the stones into the excavation and covered them over, then replacing the top soil.

Use of tractors and other new machines of the gasoline and deisel engine age, recommends long stretches of fields. Obstructing stone fences and occasional stone piles here and there in fields were slight nuisance in the days of dependence on horsepower. One farmer of the district is reported to have spent $600 this year on this method of removing stones heaped up by an older generation. Tractors are plowing in the upper picture, a stubble field with a background of trees resplendent in their autumn coloring.

Hunting Trip Takes Lives Of 3 Doctors

Recover Five Bodies Trapped In Cabin As Plane Hits Lake

ST. MICHEL DES SAINTS, Que., Oct. 11—(CP)—The bodies of three Montreal doctors, a hunting guide and a pilot were recovered early today from the wreckage of a World Wide Aviation Company plane which crashed Sunday in Lake Toro.

The dead: Dr. Rene Dandurand, Dr. Emile Legrand and Dr. Azarie Cousineau, all of Montreal; Russell Holmes of Toronto, pilot; and hunting guide Conrad Delorme of St. Michel des Saints.

St. Michel des Saints is about 100 miles north of Montreal in the Laurentian Mountains lake country. Lake Toro is some six miles from here.

The plane was chartered by the game-hunting physicians Sunday morning and the crash occurred soon after 7 p.m. that day following a mountain lightning storm.

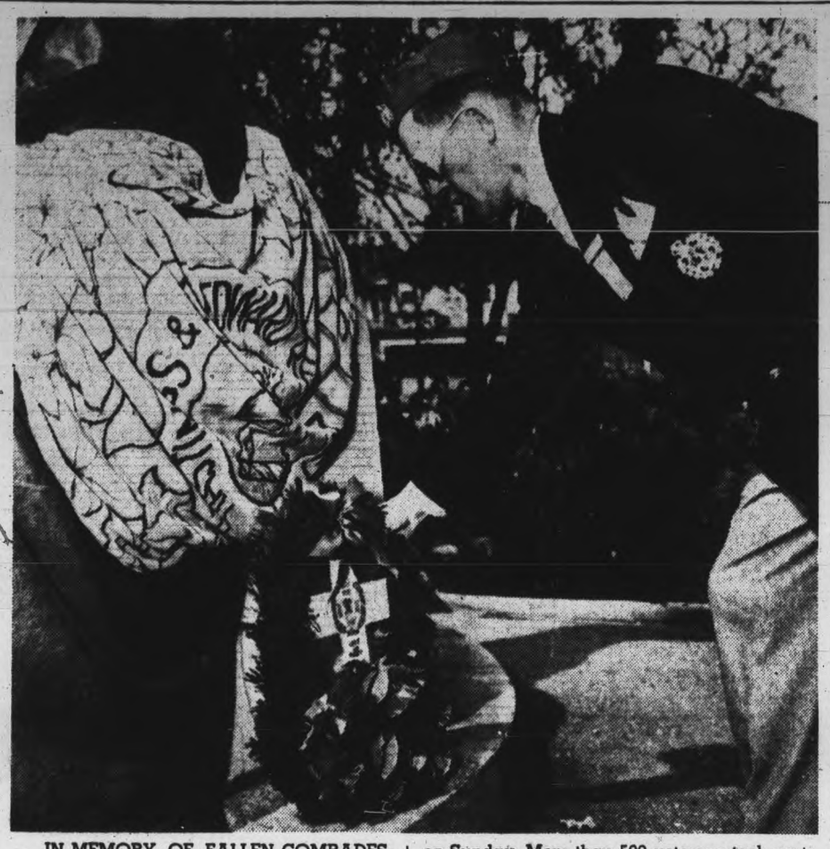
Rescue workers recovered the bodies from the wreckage of the chartered, pontoon - equipped Norseman aircraft in almost pitch darkness early this morning on an isolated section of narrow, winding, Lake Toro.

Trapped In Cabin

All five were trapped in the plane's cabin when it plunged into the water a scant few minutes' flying time from its western terminus on the extreme end of the lake.

For pilot Holmes, veteran wartime flier who held the order of the British Empire for his work in Ferry Command during the Second World War, the fatal trial was his "last of the day".

Soon after he left his air base to pick up the hunters and their guide the area was struck by a lightning storm.



Previously he had flown out guide Roger Comtois and 800 pounds of venison, the fruits of the doctors' hunting trip. Then he left his base to ferry out the doctors and their remaining guide.

Holmes' failure to return Sunday night did not occasion immediate alarm because woodsmen believed that the pilot, a veteran at bush flying, had "holed in" somewhere when he was overtaken by the storm.

Chief Fire Warden Jules Longpre of this district told The Can-

Let Britain Use Marshall Dollar Funds

Say Meat Expected To Be Delivered By End Of December

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. —(AP)—Britain today was granted $12,200,000 in Marshall plan funds to buy Canadian pork.

The authorization announced by the Economic Co-operation Administration was the largest such spending approval in more than three months. The new grant is in addition to $54,550,000 previously granted Britain for Canadian meat purchases during the last year.

The pork purchase approval brought to $62,200,000 total E.C.A. grants during the last month for Britain to buy Canadian agricultural commodities. The recovery agency had approved the purchase of $50,000,000 worth of Canadian wheat.

E.C.A. officials were unable to say when actual shipment of the pork purchases will begin. However, the meat is expected to be delivered by the end of December.

Rout Thieves

OSHAWA, Oct. 11—(CP)—Two men who broke into a gasoline station at Courtice, five miles east of here, early today were routed by proprietor Earl Hannan who fired a shot at them and chased them empty handed into dense bush surrounding the town. Provincial Police said the pair left behind a 1946 automobile believed stolen in Toronto during the week-end.

Say Captain Too Ill To Be At Trial

TORONTO, Oct. 11—(CP)—Part of a woman's scalp came out in his hands when he attempted to put out flames in her hair, a survivor of the Noronic fire today told the Federal Inquiry into the Sept. 17 disaster.

The witness, Harold Sharrock of Galion, Ohio, told of being wakened by a commotion and on opening the door of his stateroom seeing a woman "on fire, from the top of her head to her feet."

"When I tried to put out the flames on her head, part of her scalp came out," he said.

As the ninth day of the hearings opened, Frank Wilkinson, counsel for Canada Steamship Lines, ship's owners, filed as an exhibit a medical certificate showing the Noronic's master, Capt. William Taylor to be suffering from "exacerbation of a diabetic condition."

The certificate said the condition was due to shock and mental stress during and since the fire. It recommended the Captain remain "quiet, at home for a week or 10 days."

Capt. Taylor has not attended inquiry proceedings since he completed his testimony last week.

Behaviour Good

Sharrock described the behavior of passengers on the post-season Noronic cruise as "remarkable." There was "sociable" drinking but he saw no one drunk.

He told of seeing only one hose in operation during the blaze and "no water was coming out of it."

Sharrock testified he heard no alarm apart from a ship's whistle which he heard after reaching the dock. He said he believed it was the whistle of a ship other than the Noronic berthed nearby.

The witness told C.S.L. counsel he probably was confused at an inquiry in Cleveland when he

Canada, 32 Other Countries Cut Their Tariffs In Biggest Deal Since 1947

Foods, Textiles Relaxed By Dominion In Return For Reductions By U.S. And Other Trading Nations

OTTAWA, Oct. 11—(CP)—Canada and 32 other countries have agreed to take another stride toward a return of multilateral trading in a large part of the world. In a pact implementing the biggest international tariff-reducing deals in two years, Canada opened the door a little wider in 138 varieties of goods extending from foodstuff and textiles to accordions and tombstones. In return she benefits from new import-duty cuts by the United States and other trading nations.

U.S. concessions are expected to give such Canadian products as paper, plywood, and leather a better chance to compete with home production in the dollar-wealthy U.S. market.

The tariff-reducing swaps, disclosed in a 10,000-word external Affairs Department statement released Sunday, caused little more than a lifted eye-brow by the average Canadian bent on enjoying the Thanksgiving Day week-end.

The average citizen will probably hardy notice any difference in the price or number of commodities on the market. Even if he does, he won't be able to tell whether it was the new tariff—cuts or something equally complicated like currency devaluations.

Reductions stem from a five-month conference completed at Annecy, France, last August, presided over by Dana L. Wilgress, Canada's high commissioner in the United Kingdom. A new over-all agreement was reached covering proposed tariff changes involving 33 countries.

Include 10 New Nations

Principally, however, the tariff cuts were negotiated to embrace 10 new member nations into the 23-member 1947 Geneva General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The Dominion, which played a leading part in the tariff-reducing pact, was one of the first countries to signify her formal approval.

Leon Mayrand, assistant undersecretary of state for external Affairs, signed the Annecy agreement Monday on behalf of Canada in a brief ceremony at United Nations, Lake Success, that saw seven other countries also affix their signatures. Signing besides Canada were Britain, United States, France, Netherlands, Australia, Haiti and Lebanon.

Haiti was one of the 10 new nations to whom Canada granted tariff concessions on 138 commo-

British Cabinet Out To Cut Gov't Spending

LONDON, Oct. 11 —(CP)—Top cabinet economists Monday discussed plans for cutting government spending as part of the program to beat Britain's dollar crisis.

Prime Minister Attlee met with Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade; Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister; Viscount Addison, Lord Privy Seal; and Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

Political writers said the meeting was concerned with cuts in dollar imports to help safeguard Britain's dwindling dollar resources and with proposals for economies in government offices.

The extent of the cut in the 1949-50 dollar import program, expected to be announced soon, will depend mainly on results of the pound devaluation, intended to boost exports to the United States.

Seeks 5 Per Cent Cut

Attlee called for a tightening up of government spending except on social services and defence after the pound sterling was devalued last month. It was believed he aimed at a minimum cut of five per cent which would mean a saving of £150,000,000 ($465,000,000) this year.

Monday's conference also led to fresh speculation that this "inner cabinet" may have discussed a November date for Britain's next general election, not due until the Labor Government's five-year term expires in July, 1950.

Strong Gales Sweet Prairies Barometer Drops

WINNIPEG, Oct. 11.—(CP)—The lowest barometer pressure ever recorded in Winnipeg was registered Monday as winds of 45 miles an hour, with gusts up to 79 miles, rattled the city all day.

Three inches of rainfall swept through the streets and fallen electrical wires caused sparks in residential districts.

The weather office reported the storm centre moved up from the United States, brushing Regina with its edge, and passing through Winnipeg Monday afternoon. It now is moving toward northwestern Ontario in the central district of Hudson Bay.

Canadian Pacific telegraph lines were effected in the White River area, some 150 miles east of Fort William. The flow of Canadian Press news was broken for more than half an hour until circuits were restored. Occasional breaks kept the service sporadic.

Scores of hunters were reported marooned in the Inter-Lake area where roads were impassable.

Selkirk, 25 miles north, was in darkness for about 20 minutes. Hospital service went on by flashlight and gasoline lanterns. Fallen lines at Brandon and Boissevain, in western Manitoba caused brief power cuts.

Doctors Keeping An Eye On Royal Palace Burglar

LONDON, Oct. 11—(CP)—Emergency conferences on security at Buckingham Palace were held Monday at Scotland Yard and the Works Ministry following discovery of a man hiding in a room near the King's quarters Saturday night. Scotland Yard issued a statement saying the man climbed into the palace grounds over a wire fence and wall and then used a ladder to get into the palace.

"In conjunction with palace authorities we are taking steps to prevent a recurrence," a Scotland Yard official said.

The man—a 26-year-old Londoner whose name is being withheld—now is under observation at hospital.

"No police action against him is being contemplated," the Yard official said.

The King was told of the incident when he returned to Buckingham Palace from Scotland today.

Officials Puzzled

He asked a question which is also puzzling palace officials: How did the man climb into the palace unseen?

The same question also is being debated by Scotland Yard and the Works Ministry.

It is not the first time there have been intruders at the palace. The most enterprising was a young man named Jones who was found hiding in the Marble Hall in December, 1838.

Jones told a magistrate that he had lived in the palace for the year stealing food from the kitchens. The story proved false and Jones was acquitted. Two years later he was found under a sofa in Queen Victoria's dressing room and jailed for three months.

A few months after his release Jones broke into the palace for the third time.

He went back to jail—and passed into history as "Hat Trick Jones."

200 Men Enter Plowing Contest

BRANTFORD, Oct. 11.—(CP).—Under cloudy skies that threatened rain, the 36th annual international plowing match got under way today on three fields in the Burford area.

While crowds were not large this morning the Burford road was lined almost solid with traffice and a special squad of 50 provincial police officers was on duty between Brantford and the plowing site.

The total number of exhibits this year shows a 25 per cent increase over that of any previous year and up to noon today the number of applications for tractors and teams indicates that the number of entries in the plowing competition would also be 25 per cent above any previous record.

The site of the match is Harold W. Amy's farm approximately eight miles west of Brantford. The match will be officially opened at 2 p.m. Wednesday by Brig. O. M. Martin, native Six-Indians Indian and now County of York magistrate of Toronto.

More than 200 were expected to engage in the local counties plowing competition today and it is expected that before the close of the match Friday more than 1,000 plowmen will have taken part.

Nehru Adresses House October 24

OTTAWA, Oct. 11,(CP)—Prime Minister Nehru of India will address the Canadian Parliament on Oct. 24 during a two-day visit to Ottawa the External Affairs Department said today. He will arrive late Oct. 23 and leave on the morning of Oct. 26.

On Nov. 2, Pandit Nehru will return to Canada at Vancouver to visit the Indian community of British Columbia and to be the guest of the city of Vancouver at a civic dinner.

He will be accompanied to Ottawa from the United States by his sister, Her Excellency Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, Ambassador to the U. S., his daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, and a small party of officials.

They will enter Canada by car at Fort Erie, Oct. 22 and will spend the night at Niagara Falls, Ont. They will fly to Ottawa from Malton Airport and will be greeted at Rockcliffe Airport by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The party will be guests of the Governor General and Lady Alexander. Pandit Nehru's program on Monday will include a meeting with the press, a luncheon, the broadcast address to members of both Houses of Parliament at 3 p.m., and a state dinner in his honor that evening.

Plane Crash Lands 5 Feet From Baby

CORNWALL, Oct. 11—(CP) — A light airplane crash-landed here Sunday five feet from a woman and her baby. Out from the wreckage crawled 17-year-old Lionel Baker, Cornwall air cadet. He was unhurt. The plane clipped a corner from the house.

"I was holding my son in my hands on our front verandah," said Mrs. John Maloney. "I saw the plane which was flying low trying to land just opposite my house. The wheels hit the ground, then the plane shot into the air and crashed into telephone wires. It flipped over with its nose to the ground, hit the upper corner of the house and then came down right in front of me."

Neither she nor three-year-old Kevin were hurt. The plane, valued at $3,000, was a total wreck. Owned by the Ottawa Flying Club, it was flying out of Ottawa's Uplands airport.

In Love With Prisoner Girl Admits Perjury

HAMILTON, Oct. 11 (CP) — Kathleen Gillan, 18, formerly of Belleville, pleaded guilty to a charge of perjury in connection with the trial of Joseph Zimba, Joseph Biemonte and Harold Whitney, Oct. 4. She was remanded one week for sentence.

During the preliminary hearing into the Zimba, Biemonte and Whitney case on Aug. 17 she swore that the trio assaulted George Moore and stole his car.

A week ago at their trial she denied this. Detective Ernest Jackson said he thought the reason the girl changed her evidence was because she was in love with one of the accused.

Hotel Thief Runs But Too Slowly

EDMONTON, Oct. 11 (CP) — Police here are holding John Markoski of Kirkland Lake, on a charge of snatching $8,000 from an Edmonton hotel owner on a downtown street Saturday.

In a daring daylight swoop, Brant Matthews was robbed of a brief case containing the money as he was returning to his hotel from the bank. The brief case was snatched from his hands. The thief fled down an alleyway.

Following a brief chase by passers-by, police said Markoski was found behind a downtown theatre by two young boys. The boys found the satchel full of money behind the theatre and spotted Markoski hiding in a bush nearby. They called police.

Matthews said he will give each boy a $100 reward for their part in the capture.

Man 52 Beaten Hold Teen-Agers

HAMILTON, Oct. 11—(CP) — Three teen-aged boys were charged with assault Monday night after 52-year-old Nicholas Salyma was beaten and Michael Kranyak, 18, was stabbed in the shoulder outside a dance hall here.

Police said they were menaced by some 70, milling, muttering youths when they arrested the trio in a nearby restaurant.

Salyma told police that he was approached by the youths outside the dance hall, and asekd for some money. He told them he didn't have any and a few minutes later was jumped, he said.

Charged were George Westiuk and John Strabac, both 17, and Kranyak, whose wound has not yet been explained.

Envoys At Ottawa Go Into Huddle

OTTAWA, Oct. 11—(CP)—Nationalist China's official representatives in Ottawa went into a huddle today over the first desertion of Chinese diplomats to the Communists and came up with a "no comment" for the press.

At the Embassy, a spokesman said "we have had a little talk among ourselves and decided we wish to make no statement at this time" about the desertion of Chinese diplomatic staff members in Paris to the Communist regime.

The Ambassador to Canada, Liu Chieh, is attending the United Nations General Assembly meeting in New York. There are eight other officials of Diplomatic rank at the Embassy.

The Communists have formally asked Canada for recognition as the lawful government of China but no swift action is expected from the External Affairs Department.

Trustworthy private sources said Communist troops pushing south toward this refugee capital had passed Yingtak, 75 miles north. No Nationalist opposition was reported.

Find Answer To Glassy-Water Landing

University Experiments Will Ease Hazard of Forestry Aircraft

TORONTO, Oct. 11.—(CP). — Experiments carried out at the University of Toronto for the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests may lessen the dangers of glassy-water landings, a hazard of seaplane pilots.

This was announced today by Lands Minister Scott, whose department operates an extensive seaplane air service for detecting and fighting forest fires. Mr Scott said that high frequency radio equipment, weighing less than 30 pounds, has been tested in a department plane on Lake Ontario at Toronto and now will be sent to the Provincial Air Service Headquarters at Sault Ste. Marie for practical application.

The announcement said that glassy water, on which there is no ripple, makes it difficult for pilots to gauge distance from the landing surface. Briefly, the radio equipment operates a row of Neon lamps calculated to indicate the height of the plane above the water surface. The lamps are extinguished, one by one, as the plane descends.

Subject To Error

Aircraft altimeters indicate the height of the plane above sea level or its base, said the announcement. The usual type depends on variation of barometric pressure with height and is subject to error due to changing weather conditions.

"If the pilot can get down safely to within 10 or 15 feet, chances are the plane can then land without injury," said Mr. Scott. "Since the planes of our air division may be required to land 15 or 20 times a day during the fire season we hope to at least reduce some of the hazard. The experiments will be continued at Sault Ste Marie in the hope that some workable and economical system may be in operation before next year's forest fire season."

Canadian-US Planes To Raid New York

RCAF Fliers Given Chance To Work Out With American Air Forces

OTTAWA, Oct. 11.—(CP). — Canadian and United States reserve air force units will join forces Oct. 22 in a "raid" on New York City.

The manoeuvres, which will include interceptor exercises, have been dubbed "operation metropolis."

First post-war exercise of its kind, it will demonstrate the ability of the RCAF reserve and the U.S. air national guard to integrate forces in the event of an emergency.

Some 240 RCAF reservists, including 80 officers and 160 other ranks, will be flown from their home base at Montreal to Mitchel Air Force Base, Long Island, for the exercise. The R.C.A.F.'s interceptor force will consist of eight of the service's speedy jet Vampire fighters.

Operation metropolis is expected to furnish valuable data to the senior staffs of both countries for assessing reserve efficiency. Another aim is to stimulate public interest, increase morale of the reserve and encourage recruiting in both countries.

Will Have Control

Brig.-Gen. Clyde H. Mitchell of the New York Air National Guard, will have operational control of all participating forces, which include B-26 light bombers as the "attackers" and American Thunderbolt and Canadian Vampire fighters as the interceptor group.

All operations will be controlled from White Plains, N.Y., where Canadian reservists will set up the major share of the radar equipment.

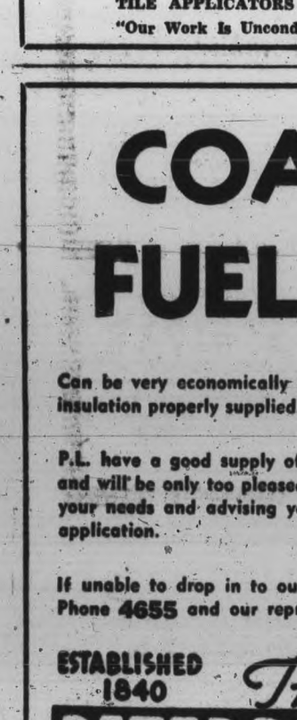
Canadian fighter units participating are Nos. 401 and 438 Fighter Squadrons, while No. 1 Radar and Communications Unit of Montreal will handle the ground chores.

U.S. Trying To Settle Steel Strike

Chiang To Confer With Both Sides During Next Few Days

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 11 (AP)—The United States' government's conciliation service has taken on the biggest job in its history — trying to settle the twin steel and coal strikes.

Before the week is out U. S. conciliation director Cyrus Ching, will meet separately with leaders of the striking CIO United Steelworkers and industry leaders. The number of idle steelworkers is 454,000.



At the same time, Ching, a native of Prince Edward Island, will watch developments in the coal strike. It was Ching who got John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers president, and coal industry operators to agree to go back to the bargaining table tomorrow.

Ching announced Monday the government was stepping into the steel walkout for the fourth time. Before the strike start 11 days ago for free pensions and insurance the government made three futile peace efforts.

Working Against Time

The government will be working against time in its effort to get the steel strike settled. Contracts of 500,000 steelworkers in fabricating plants—where steel is the basic product for hundreds of articles—began expiring Saturday. They'll continue to run out through mid-December.

And Phillip Murray, president of the steelworkers' union, says the union will call a strike in each case where the fabricators won't provide free pensions and insurance.

Request Moch Become Premier

PARIS, Oct. 11 —(AP)—Jules Moch, a Socialist party leader, today was asked by President Vincent Auriol to form a new French government.

If he succeeds, Moch will become premier to succeed Henri Queuille, who resigned six days ago in an economic dispute that split his 13-month-old coalition cabinet.

Moch served as minister of interior in the Queuille cabinet. He had been negotiating with leaders of other political parties for several days seeking agreement on a Socialist proposal for limited wage increases to offset effects of devaluation of the franc.

President Auriol offered Moch the premiership despite the fact that the Socialist minister is far from certain of wooing enough support from other party groups to obtain a majority in the French National Assembly.

Ford Boosting Sale Of Cars Made In Britain

LONDON, Oct. 11 — (AP) — Henry Ford II Monday told workers in his British factory that his American dealers will do every thing possible to increase sales of English-made Fords in the United States.

The young automobile magnate was speaking to shop representatives at the Ford plant in nearby Dagenham. Only a short time before he announced the end of attempts to settle out of court a British tractor maker's multi-million-dollar suit against the Ford interests.

Ford told the Dagenham workers:

"Your country must get dollars now and the American Ford Company and its dealer organization will make ever yeffort to back you up on our side of the Atlantic.

"I give you my word that everything will be done that possibly can be done to increase their (British-made Fords) sales in America."

said two members of the crew helped him work hoses.

Sharrock said he now was satisfied there was only one crew member.

Sharrock said he might have told the Cleveland inquiry of a third man with a blue jacket but he could not not now recall such a person. He also said he could not recall having told the Cleveland inquiry of three hoses being in operation, two small and one large.

16 Years With Captain

F. Gerald Wood, Noronic's first mate for six seasons, said he held an inland master's certificate since 1946 and had sailed with Capt. Taylor for 16 years.

Mr. Wood said that personnel under his supervision, excluding officers, totalled 13, including eight deck hands. At the time of the fire he had been short one deck hand for some days.

Wood said he hired personnel but in niring personnel the company limited him to a forward crew of a second mate, third mate, boatswain, six wheelsmen, three watchmen, two special officers, a nurse and eight deck hands.

The duty watch of four hours on, four hours off applied only to officers, wheelsman and watchmen. The special officers worked six hours on, six hours off.

Any officer not on duty was free to go ashore while the ship was in port.

Wood testified that on the night of the fire he was on duty watch from 8 p.m. EST until midnight when the second mate took over.

Describes Supervision

Commission counsel J. W. Pickup questioned the witness at length on the check maintained by the duty officer on his watch crew. Wood said that in port, if nothing happened, none of the personnel on watch were required to report to the duty officer.

Wood said during his watch he checked periodically at the gangplank to see if the watchman was there.

Wood told Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock, the commissioner, that the wheelsman on duty was required to remain in the vicinity of the wheelhouse or pilot house, but he could step out on deck.

(Earlier evidence by Capt. Taylor was that the wheelsman should remain in the pilot house at all times.)

The witness said he did not think he had ever seen a copy of the company's letter of instructions to ship's masters dated April 14, 1949.

The document dealt with fire and emergency drills, preparation of muster station lists and so on.

Wood said the captain had told him about the preparing of muster list assigning crew to fire and boat stations.

Mr. Pickup commented the company letter of instructions seemed to be a mighty important document for a master to have kept to himself. But under pressure of questioning by Mr. Pickup and the commissioner, Mr. Wood said he had never seen a copy of such a document.

Pare 61 Commodities

Of the 138 items, tariffs on 61 commodities — including such items as roasted coffee, textiles and wool yarns—were pared below Geneva Pact levels and extended to all 32 countries.

Tariff concessions on another 77 items—including such things as tropical fruits, sugar, tobacco, Oriental rugs and palm oil—were extended to the 10 small trading nations.

The new rates are expected to come into operation in various stages from next Jan. 1 to May 30, 1950. The exact date Canada puts the tariff cuts into effect will depend on when the other countries take similar action.

These cuts may be augmented by a new series of interlocking concessions to be discussed and negotiated among 40 nations at another world trading conference to be called about next September at Geneva.

The pact, described by External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson as "an important milestone . . . in world trade in which Canada has a stake second to none," appeared to hold for Canada, at last, both advantages and disadvantages.

Canada's Principal Benefits

By extending lower-rates to the 10 new contracting parties to G.A.T.T., Canada was able to participate in new tariff slices made by any of the 32 members of the new trading family.

Four original members made cuts which may benefit Canadian exporters. The U.S. headed the list, cutting duties on leather manufacturers, butter and oka cheese, granite, limestone, pulp, paper and wood products, hides, some footwear and hollow bars and drill steel products.

Duffy Is Named President Of Hasty Pees

Regimental Sergeant Major Angus Duffy, of Belleville, a former resident of Trenton, on Sunday was elected president of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Association at the fifth annual re-union, held this year in Peterborough.

He succeeds the Regiment's former CO in Italy, Lt.-Col. A. A. Kennedy, DSO, of Owen Sound Lt.-Col. Kennedy had been president of the association since its inception, and he asked to be relieved of his post this coming year.

Lt.-Col. Max Porritt, MC, of Belleville, present CO of the reserve Battalion, was returned as vice-president. A new secretary-treasurer has still to be decided upon, as Captain Leonard Hyslop, also of Belleville, is resigning.

About 500 members of the unit from eastern Ontario localities attended. Chief representation was from Belleville, Picton, Bowmanville, Brockville, Cornwall, Kingston, Toronto, and Peterborough.

One of the chief items of business on the agenda was the granting of a sum of money to build the scholarship fund up to $2,000.

(The Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Association has inaugurated a fund to pay for the higher education of the children of comrades killed on active service).

Already 21 applications have been received, but as the oldest applicant is 12 years, and the youngest five years, it was pointed out by Association officers that the money would not begin to be touched for another five or six years.

It was passed that the names of not only those killed while serving with the Regiment should be included on the Honor Roll, but also those who had served with it at any time and later been killed in another unit. Bronze plaques with the names will then be given to each club in the Regimental area.

"Once a Hasty-Pee, always a Hasty-Pee" was the way one vet summed it up.

Compiling a Regimental history would cost as much as $10,000, the members were informed. The matter had already been investigated by Lt.-Col. Reginald W. Abraham, OBE, and on the basis of what other units had paid for a similar history that was the estimated cost.

The executive was empowered to appoint a committee to bring in a recommendation on this subject. And the new president, RSM Angus Duffy, stated there would be a meeting at Regimental HQ on November 6, with two members from each club in the Association, to go further into the matter.

Another member asked that the executive investigate the possibility of setting up a benevolent fund for the needy of the Regiment.

It was decided by a show of hands that the sixth annual reunion would be held in Picton. Due to the Armouries burning down in the spring, it was held this year in Peterborough.

Train Hits Car Driver Missing

COBOURG, Oct. 11 (ENS) — Provincial police are trying to locate the driver of a car who apparently jumped to safety early Monday morning before a CNR freight train struck it at the Kingston crossing a few miles east of here.

The driver apparently didn't notice the train coming on account of fog and then swung south along the tracks where the car stalled. He made for safety and the train caught the car and carried it 175 feet south of the crossing. Trainmen could find no trace of the driver and reported the accident when the train arrived in Belleville.

Police learned that the car had been sold by a Toronto dealer to Previne Poirier of 220 Gerard St. and enquiry there revealed that Poirier had left that week-end for Ottawa. The car was almost totally wrecked.

Hit-and-Run Leads To 3 Police Charges

COBOURG, Oct. 11—(ENS) — Provincial police apprehended Daniel Alfred, of Toronto, late Saturday night, following an alleged hit-and-run accident which occurred west of the town at 6.55 the same night.

Norman McAuley, of Oakland, Ont., reported to police that his car was sideswiped by another car which kept on going. Later in the evening, Provincial Constable Don Nicol passed a car in Cobourg which was damaged on the left side and got the number. He put it on the police radio and Alfred was picked up by Provincial Constables Bill Baluk and H. Wooldridge. Police said they would charge him with drunk driving, failing to report an accident and dangerous driving.

Car Hits Girl

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 11 — (ENS)—Ann Jones, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jones, R.R. 3, Campbellford, was struck by a car, driven by Wilbert Blake, on Bridge St. at 10.30 p.m. Saturday.

She received medical treatment for knee and head injuries. Chief Constable George H. Hardy investigated.

Boys Presented Two-Hour Show

A capacity audience jammed the PCVS auditorium Monday night to see the two-hour show presented by the boys of the Optimist Club's Boys' Town. The boys, 60 of them, are presenting the 30-number show again this evening with another capacity crowd expected from the early sale of tickets. All proceeds are for work at the Boys' Town.

The length of the show was longer than expected by Director Walter Bent as practically every number was brought back for an encore. The imitation of the Glowworm by Carl Cullen and Terry Roberts was possibly the best received number on the program. Assisting the two boys were nine others who played the part of the members of the Spike Jones orchestra.

Barry Wills, the Boys' Town nine - year - old pianist, was brought back twice. Doug Galvin, 13-year-old member of the town, played a jazzy number called "The Twelfth Street Rag."

An imitation of the Andrew Sisters singing "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" proved popular. With the music in the background, Carl Cullen, Bob Kelly and Fred Legros, as the Andrew Sisters, and John Cupoli as Frank Sinatra, twice went through the motions of singing the song as those popular singers do it.

Of the group numbers presented by the boys' choir, "Coming 'Round the Mountain" and "Today is Monday," were the best liked. The Grandfather's Clock and the Negro spiritual numbers were well accepted.

Boxing by Tom Kelly and Paul Board, first blindfolded, then not, was fully enjoyed.

Stolen Car Upsets Driver In Hospital

COBOURG, Oct. 11—(ENS) — Stolen from Percy Macklin, of Cobourg, Monday night, a car, which police said was driven by George E. Suddes, of 101 Belsize Drive, Toronto, struck two cars in Cobourg and then upset two miles east of the town. Suddes was taken to Cobourg Hospital with a possible fractured skull.

Police said that the car forced one driven by Margaret Bessant up against a highway sign near Cottesmore Ave. and then clipped one near the same intersection, driven by Percy Harmer, of Gananoque. Nobody was injured in that accident. At the Kingston Crossing the stolen car rolled over and was badly wrecked. Provincial police took Suddes to the hospital. Chief W. J. A Pause In Peterborough's Growth

The City Assessor's population figures are not an official census; that must wait until 1951, when the Dominion survey is again made. Nor do they take into account the hundreds who work in the city and live outside its boundaries. Nevertheless, the figures are a fair indication of population trends.

Peterborough's population to the end of September, according to the assessment rolls, was 35,682. Last year the figure was 35,065. The increase is therefore 617. The city is still growing, but, this small increase is less than the natural increase. That is, the population is not expanding as fast as the number of births and deaths would indicate. It can be said that Peterborough lost momentum in the last twelve months. There were 1630 births in 1948, and 504 deaths. Therefore the natural increase was 1,126. Yet the real increase, according to the assessor's figures, was only 617. Therefore, assuming that no people had moved to Peterborough, 519 moved out.

• • •

Does this mean that Peterborough has come to the end of its population expansion? Not necessarily; it may be only a pause, like other pauses during the last ten years of very rapid growth. The following table shows how varied the increases have been during the decade.

• • •

Year	Population	Increase
1939	24,171
1940	24,530	359
1941	25,703	1,173
1942	27,908	2,205
1943	28,005	97
1944	32,379	4,374
1945	32,794	415
1946	33,325	531
1947	34,428	1,103
1948	35,065	637
1949	35,682	617

The figures for this year are tentative, and as shown by the figures above, one must not jump to the conclusion that Peterborough has stopped growing.

Stern Treatment For Sex Criminals

We have been greatly interested in reports which have been made recently on the researches of Dr. J. Paul de River, a Los Angeles psychiatrist who has been engaged for sixteen years in the study of sex criminals and their crimes. He is head of the Sex Offense Bureau of the Los Angeles Police Department. For decades psychiatrists and physicians have disputed as to whether sex perversion is physical or mental in its cause, or whether it is a subtle mingling of both. Dr. de River comes out flatly to say that the root of sex perversion lies in the mind.

His book on the subject carries a preface by Eugene D. Williams, assistant to the attorney-general of California. We assume that the preface has Dr. de River's full approval. It is interesting, then, that Mr. Williams says: "the sex criminal is just as much a criminal as is the burglar or murderer; the semihysterical, foolishly sympathetic, and wholly unscientific attitude of any individual engaged in social work and criminology to regard sex perverts as poor unfortunates who are suffering from disease and cannot help themselves, has a tendency to feed their egos". In dealing with sex perverts, he insists, a sterner attitude is needed, or no cure will be possible.

This is interesting because it presents a positive opinion on a subject which has long been hedged with doubt. There is no question that sex criminals and perverts present a problem with which the law and medicine have so far shown too little concern. It must be said for many judges and magistrates that they have been lenient toward sex offenders because they did not wish to punish a man severely for something which might not be curable.

If Dr. de River and Mr. Williams think that they have found a solution or a clue to a solution, for this problem, more power to them. But we shall await with interest the first reports of any cures which they have wrought by the stern methods they advocate.

Third Round Of U.S. Tariff Negotiations

According to information received from Washington, D.C., preparations are being made there for what may be described as a third round of tariff negotiations. This early beginning of what will be a long and complicated series of bargaining meetings was expected, for President Truman had intimated as much when he signed the measure extending the Reciprocal Trade Agreements earlier this month. A working party of United States tariff, trade and economics experts has been formed and preliminary examinations are already in progress.

This is news of especial importance to Canada, for this country will probably be the most directly affected by changes made in the various United States tariffs. Canadian exporters in many lines and Canadian financial journals have long inveighed against certain handicaps imposed on them by United States tariffs. Tariff bargaining is, as the phrase implies, a two-way affair, but the opinion of many United States commentators agrees with Canadian opinion that there are more concessions to be made by the United States than by Canada. Ottawa has already indicated its desire to negotiate a new agreement.

However, despite feeling in this country that the need for revision is urgent, it is unlikely that negotiations will begin immediately. When they do, procedure will follow that of the conferences held at Geneva and Annecy—the results of which, although regarded as successful, are the actual obstacle to immediate negotiations in the present instance. This is because the agreements reached at those two meetings are not subject to change until January 1, 1951, except by unanimous approval of the contracting countries. Actual further concessions by the United States—or other countries—may therefore be delayed for as long as fifteen months.

Armour Hill View

The view from Armour Hill is full circle. In what other city in Canada or this continent is there a natural vantage point from which a person can cast his gaze a dozen miles on any point of the compass. We go so far as to say that the situation is unique. From the point of view of a stranger and tourist, and actually for his point of view, Armour Hill is the city's best tourist attraction. It would not be, of course, if, having mounted it, he had nothing before his eyes worth seeing. But he has, or citizens pride themselves that he has. Therefore no tourist should be permitted to enter or pass through Peterborough without his attention being called to Armour Hill.

As things are now, few tourists find their way to it, unless relatives or friends who know the city direct them, If Peterborough were doing a good job of public relations it would ensure that the city's main vantage point was stressed by sign and pamphlet, and that the ways to it were plainly and largely marked. Better exploitation of the spot itself could be made, but that is another story, except that we would like to throw out the suggestion here that some sort of direction-finders to the chief spots of interest to be seen from the Hill could be set up; such, for instance, as the arrows at the Westmount Lookout in Montreal.

Wordy Laugh

We have been reading a news story from Kitchener about an angry man who was fined for not paying his radio licence. He sent the police the fine, the newly-bought radio licence, and the radio itself. The amazing part of the story, as it was told, is the laugh of the Justice of the Peace who received the parcel. "'Boy that fellow must have been mad. We never had them sending us radios before,' he laughed." That was a very large laugh, it seems to us. In fact, to crib the phrase from the New Yorker, it was a laugh we doubt ever got laughed.

People in stories, even in supposedly authentic news stories, laugh paragraphs, cry a hundred words in one gulp, chortle a chapter and weep dictionaries. In real life, of course, people say their piece and then laugh, weep, groan, cry or sob, or vice versa, or in between. A person who can laugh so intelligibly as to give out two dozen comprehensible words in the midst of the guffaw should be in a side-show. It is a feat we have not yet seen performed.

Devaluation In Germany

From
A Correspondent in Bonn

THE devaluation of the German mark has been acomplished at last—eleven days after Sir Stafford Cripp's broadcast started the chain reaction of currency measures throughout Europe and the Commonwealth. In the interval, the first West German Government has been formed, the Allied High Commission has started work, and the Occupation Statute has come into force. For all these new institutions, devaluation has been the first test. Nobody here would claim that they have emerged from it with flying colours.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE issue was complicated first by the clash of conflicting German interests and then by the intervention of specific demands from the Allied side, notably France. Among the Germans, the export industries would have liked at least as much devaluation benefit as their British competitors, but the Government was afraid of the increased mark cost of food imports from the dollar area and of the loss of dollar earnings from German exports. A week ago, the Government came out in favour of a 25 per cent devaluation, combined with food subsidies and a decision to leave the dollar price of exported German coal unchanged.

◇ ◇ ◇

THIS last point immediately aroused strong protests from the French, whose steel industry is strictly dependent on German coke delivery. Even before devaluation, the export price of German coal and coke was about 50 per cent. above the internal price. With a 25 per cent. devaluation, unchanged export prices in terms of dollars would have been more than twice as high as the domestic prices—a grave handicap for the French steel industry compared with German produce.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE strongly pro-French Government of Dr. Adenauer, waiting for Allied approval of its proposals, thus found itself confronted not with the expected opposition from British competitors, but with a revival, in a new form, of the French demands that more German coal should be brought to French ore to produce steel, and not the other way round. That conception has been basic in French post-war economic policy towards Germany from the start, and underlies a series of inter-Allied agreements from the Moscow tripartite accord that fixed a sliding scale for German coal exports in relation to total output, to the creation of international Ruhr authorities. Once again, the French demand was pursued with characteristic tenacity and familiar tactics: The French would not give their agreement to devaluation unless their British and American partners agreed to reduce German coal export prices proportionately.

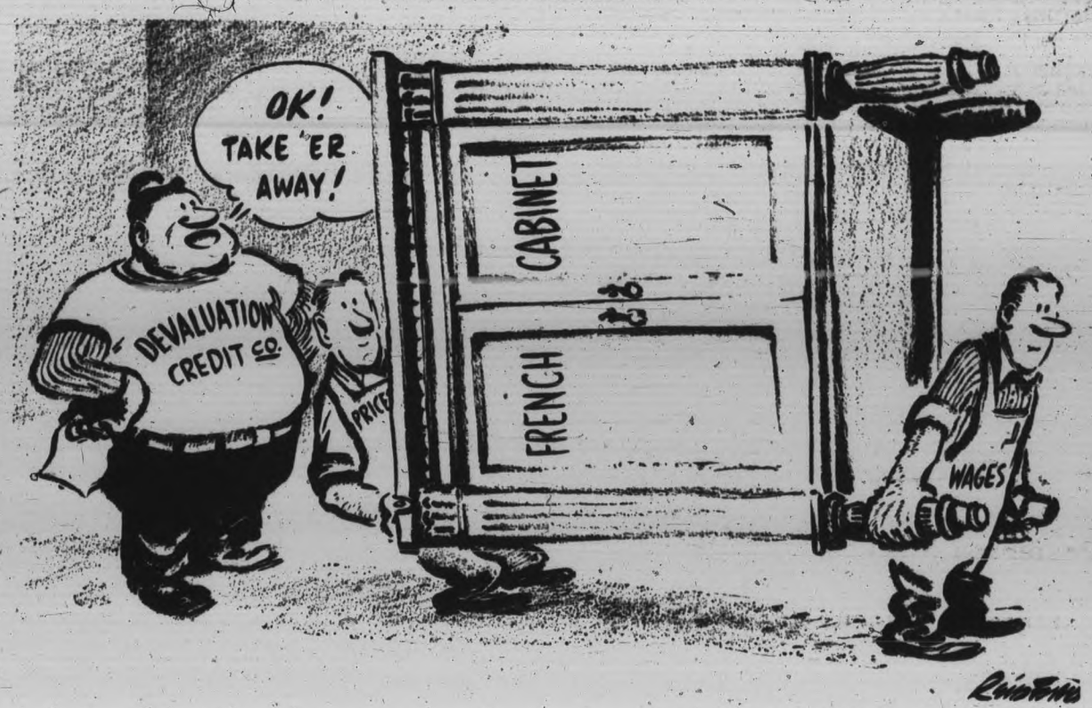
◇ ◇ ◇

THE French demand was made more acute by the realisation that the latest franc devaluation had put American coal definitely out of reach of French industry. But the same demand meant that Germany must lose millions of dollars hitherto earned by exporting valuable coal. To that, the Americans, who have to bear Germany's dollar deficit, were naturally opposed, but unable to suggest a way out. Finally, after days of futile conferences in Frankfurt and Berlin, followed by a one-day visit to Paris by U.S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy, a new French argument emerged: the French did not wish Germany to lose dollars, but only to prevent increased price discrimination between the domestic and foreign users of German coal. If the Germans preferred to raise their home coal price rather than lower the export price, the French would have no objection.

◇ ◇ ◇

THAT was the form in which the French condition finally emerged, after a marathon session of the Allied High Commission lasting 19 hours, as an Allied order to the Germans. It came late—ten days after the pound devaluation. It coupled the coal price demands with the devaluation without stating any reason. It was issued without serious consultation with the Germans. It was peremptory in tone and demanded action within seven days. It destroyed the illusion to which the German Government had desperately clung that devaluation was a German decision and that consultation with the Allies was a voluntary act undertaken in the spirit of international co-operation. When it was read to Parliament it provoked a unanimous storm of protest.

◇ ◇ ◇



BY now the economic issue itself is rapidly losing importance compared with the issue of Allied political methods in Germany. The German coal export price would probably have to go down anyhow, because British devaluation has led to a fall in the price of British coal. But the question remains whether, in the new phase just begun with the inauguration of the Allied High Commission, the government of Germany can be carried on as it was carried on in the last ten days.

GOVERNMENT by international conference is not a practicable manner in which to run a modern economy, and the Occupation Statute had been designed to overcome that state of affairs. Nor is government by a country's international competitors a good way to ensure the growth of confidence in international co-operation. The legitimate aim of the Allied order would probably have been secured without linking coal prices with devaluation in one and the same document, and without a seven-day ultimatum, simply by telling the Germans the problem and asking them to produce quickly an acceptable solution if they did not want the Allies to act. That would have corresponded to the conception of the new regime as a responsible German Government working under Allied control. That is also what now, after the German protest, probably will be done. It seems a pity that nobody thought of it in the first place.

MOVING DAY AGAIN!

Curing The Common Cold

(By FRANCIS WILLIAMS)

THE United States Naval Medical Corps may have stumbled by accident upon a cure for the common cold — a secret which has consistently baffled medical authorities all over the world—judging by a report just published in the Naval Medical Bulletin.

But although first reports are encouraging, naval medical authorities with whom I have discussed the matter prefer for the moment to take a cautious line, and it would perhaps be as well for those who get colds this winter not to expect a miraculous new cure right away. Nevertheless, there seems a possibility that medical research may be on the eve of an altogether unexpected success in grappling with one of the minor scourges of mankind.

Treatment given to sufferers from colds at the Great Lakes Naval Hospital over a seven-month period of research has shown success in ninety per cent. of the cases when the cold was tackled as soon as the first symptoms began and in seventy-four per cent. of cases when treatment was delayed for twelve hours. The number of sufferers on whom the treatment has been tried under proper scientific controls during this period, is, however, only 572, and tests with much larger numbers are considered necessary before the Navy will feel itself in any position to make hard claims. But results so far are sufficiently positive to arouse medical expectancy and to encourage further work.

The treatment consists of an anti-cold tablet, which is swallowed in the same way as an ordinary aspirin tablet, which it much resembles. To the compound in the aspirin there is added, however, another drug, Chlortrimeton, and the combination of this and aspirin has been named Coricidin.

Coricidin was originally developed by naval medical authorities during research on methods of relieving sufferers from hay fever and other allergy complaints. Chlor-trimeton is described as "an anti-histaminic substance" which has beneficial results on allergy complaints and was mixed with aspirin in the hope of producing quicker results. Among those treated with the aspirin-chlortrimeton tablets were a number of hay-fever patients who were also suffering from colds. It was noted that not only did relief of hay fever follow but that within twenty-four hours the cold had cleared up also. Similar results were found with other allergy patients who happened to have contracted colds, and it was decided to make a series of more specific experiments.

The tablets were therefore given to all patients with cold symptoms in the Great Lakes Naval Hospital over a seven-month period which has just ended with the results stated. In view of these encouraging reports further experiments are now being made.

Naval authorities are not at the moment anxious to talk about the experiments and the information division dealing with naval matters at the Pentagon—which houses the Ministry of Defence and where all service enquiries are centralised—have been instructed to discourage publicity for the time being. Not unnaturally, the Navy doesn't want to put itself in the position of claiming a victory over one of the most stubborn enemies of the human race until it is a lot more sure than it is at present that it really has found a new and decisive secret weapon. But from now on any one who reports sick with a cold in a Navy establishment runs a good chance of getting very special supervision. And he may find himself appearing later as an anonymous statistic in a progress report which will bring more permanent satisfaction to the world than many a more resounding naval victory has done.

Freight Cars At Night

(Brantford Expositor)

A MEMBER of Parliament, G. K. Fraser of Peterborough West suggested to the House this week that a strip of luminous paint be put on freight cars so that they might be readily seen by motorists at level crossings at night.

Mr. Fraser offered his recommendation during discussion of estimates for the Department of Transport and the Minister, Hon. Lionel Chevrier, promised to bring it to the attention of the Board of Transport Commissioners.

The idea has much merit. Trains, particularly those composed of freight cars, do offer a hazard at level crossings after dark, or even at dusk. So, to a lesser extent, do passenger trains.

It would not be a difficult or, relatively speaking, expensive job to mark all railway cars in such a way as to provide a luminous marking that could be clearly seen by motorists.

Brantford has already had a profitable and life-saving experience along this line. Through public-spirited enterprise, hundreds of bicycles were marked by a reflecting material of local manufacture. The same substance has been successfully used on the policemen's uniforms and on the clothing of cyclists, and, of course, for making street stop-signs more visible.

And that, of course, brings to mind the thought that instead of talking vaguely about some sort of luminous paint, Mr. Fraser and the members of the Board of Transport Commissioners might do well to consider using the reflector material turned out by the Brantford firm!

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth!....Break forth into joy, sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem; for the Lord hath comforted his people, he hath redeemed Jerusalem. (Isa. 52: 7, 9.)

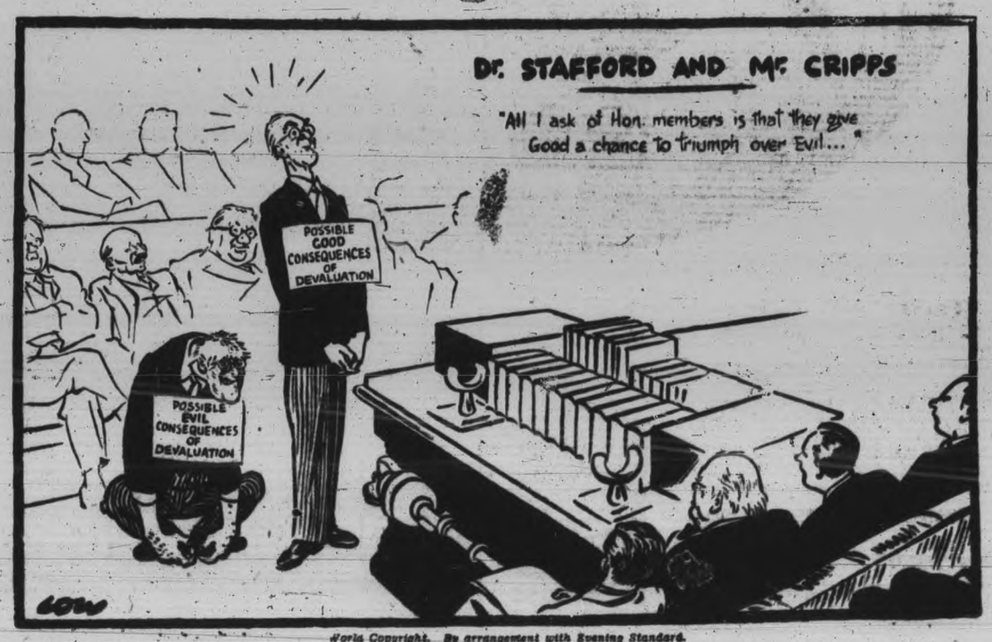
Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed? For he shall grow up before him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground.... He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not....



But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed. (Isa. 53: 1, 2, 3, 5.)

My little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not. And if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous: and he is the propitiation for our sins: and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world. And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments...

He that saith he abideth in him ought himself also so to walk, even as he walked. (I John 2: 1-3, 6.)

Market Gardener's Home Lost In Fire

COBOURG, Oct. 11—(ENS)—A rubbish fire that got out of control Friday night burned down the one-storey dwelling of Robert Habitson who lives five miles east of Cobourg. Loss is set at $1,500.

Mr. Habiston, a French Canadian farmer who does some market gardening, was burning a pile of rubbish close to his wooden house. The spreading flames caught onto the building and before he could extinguish them the place was alight.

Firemen arrived from Cobourg but as there was no water supply they were unable to combat the flames, and the house burned to the ground.

Sailors Stranded

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Oct. 11 (CP)—Some 30 crew members of two wrecked Newfoundland schooners Friday night were reported stranded in a lonely outpost on Belle Isle off Newfoundland's northern tip, and awaiting a rescue ship from St. Anthony. The vessel, the M. and W. Fowlow and the Scarlet Knight, were returning from Labrador when they were wrecked off the island in a howling storm Thursday night. The men took to their dories and made land safely.

Mr. Kahle has arrived in Edmonton to set up headquarters for construction of the 1,150-mile oil link with the Great Lakes and the Sarnia, Ont., refinery.

The director said work crews have begun construction work at the Edmonton pumping station and at the second pumping station at Ermine, about 125 miles south of Saskatoon.

Mr. Kahle said actual laying of the line will begin next May and will be completed to Superior, Wis., by October, 1950 providing no serious holdup occurs. About 1,200 persons will be employed.

ARCHER'S HOME

Burglen, a village in Switzerland, is the traditional birthplace of William Tell, hero of a Swiss legend.

"When stenographers come half-baked... they STAY half-baked!"

A warning to Stenographers-to-be who want to get ahead faster...

It's sound common sense to stay at school long enough to graduate to recognized standards.

The great majority of young people now embarking on business careers as typists and stenographers are severely handicapped by a lack of thorough training. True, many of them have learned the rudiments of typing and shorthand. But, they are leaving training school ahead of time! They lack the ease and confidence of performance that can come only from finishing a prescribed course of training. As a result, a shadow is cast on their chances of success from the very start!

To prove that a fully-trained stenographer has a big advantage over a partially trained one, we reproduce the comments of the general manager of a large Canadian company. His views coincide with those of business executives everywhere. He claims:

"... When stenographers come half-baked—they stay half-baked. We haven't time to hold their hands and finish their training for them."

"... If times get bad, naturally it will be the half-trained typist we let out first."

"... A 'finished' typist gets faster promotion. The others are too busy learning what they should have learned at school to be much good."

"... Girls and boys who lack ease and confidence use all their energy trying to type a letter accurately. They've no reserve left to develop planning ability or learn new skills. So they don't get promoted!"

"... We pay people what they're worth. How can a half-trained typist expect a fully-trained typist's pay?"

"... We're not criticizing anybody's energy or willingness to learn. It's just, that so much of our new help lacks the skill and 'finish' to do a good job. It's like tennis, the best-trained player wins—not the one with most energy!"

We repeat! It's sound common sense to stay at Business College or Commercial School long enough to graduate to recognized standards. If you skip those all-important last few months deliberately designed to "round out" your training and perfect proficiency you are fooling nobody but yourself. Stay at school! Make certain that you will have ALL that it takes to get ahead faster.

Let's Do Our Part . . .

On Friday, October 14, at the Civic Arena, the Rotary Club of Peterborough is sponsoring a Gala Night of Fun for all the sporting fans in this district. Highlighting the evening will be the Hockey Game between Lindsay McIntosh Meteors and the Legion Hockey Club of Peterborough — 1948 Ontario Senior "B" Champions.

Thene, too, there will be the Rotary Club Draw for the 1949 Chevrolet Sedan that some lucky person will win. And, on top of all this, there will be 18 handsome Door Prizes — any one of them will make the lucky holder a very happy person. These prizes are on display in the window of A. Comstock & Sons Store, George St.

The real reason for this Evening of Fun, of course, is to further the Rotary Club's work in this district. When you purchase a ticket, you are not only enjoying a night of fun but you are providing a crippled child with an opportunity of some day being well again. Last year the Rotary Club spent $7,900.00 in this district. When you purchase a ticket you are helping the Rotary Club in their efforts to help Crippled Children. Tickets may be purchased at TEM Ticket Agency, George St. Reserve seats 1.00 each. General admission 75c.

Marines Capture OBA Series In Two Straight Defeating Chatham 8 to 2

CHATHAM, Oct. 11—Staging an eight-run rally in the fourth inning, Peterborough Marines whipped Chatham Maple Leafs 8-2 Sunday to sweep their semi-final senior "B" O.B.A. playoff series in two straight contests. The Peterborough nine won the o[illegible] at home last Saturday, 8-0. Young Bill Edger pitched a brilliant five-hit effort over the distance and was never in trouble.

In the winning fourth frame, Joe Stewart was safe when Scott bobbled his grounder. Menzies attempted to sacrifice but both runners were safe when Stewart slid under the throw. Danny Brown then rapped out an infield single loading the bases. At this stage, Pliney Stonefish on the Chatham mound lost control walked Edwardson and Estlick forcing the first two runs across. Bill Dadson then rapped a single to right, Brown and Edwardson scoring. Merle Murray came in to hurl for Chatham and struck out Edger and Lowrey but Garvey kept the rally alive with a single, Estlick and Dadson crossing the plate. Stewart struck out but Zybura missed the third strike and with Menzies at bat, Zybura uncorked a wild throw that went to the outfield and Garvey and Stewart gallopped all the way home.

Chatham only threatened in the seventh when Murray Williams led off drawing a walk and Schram singled him to second. Sloan and Zybura grounded to the infield but Murray lashed a single to right to send in the only two Chatham runs.

Disapprove Protest

NAPANEE Oct. 11 (CP) — Napanee Athletics baseball team has been advised by W. J. Snyder, secretary of the Ontario Baseball Association, that the recent protest of the Cobourg club has been disapproved by the sub committee. The objection was filed following the Napanee 8-5 win Sept. 28 in Cobourg. Officials there claimed the game should have been called earlier because of rain.

Mohawks Take Puck Win Against Petes

Kansas City Mohawks opened the hockey season here last night with an 8-4 exhibition victory over the bolstered Petes before some 1,600 fans in Civic Arena. The mild weather caused a fuzzy fog blanket to hang a few feet above a good ice surface to partly obscure play at times, but it was a fine puck fray throughout, and the earliest hockey has even been seen in Peterborough.

Participating in the opening ceremony were the Hon. Harold Scott, W. G. Ovens, Don McGillis Sr., and Ed. Riley. The pro pucksists had a good margin on the homesters in weight and condition also playing a rugged style, but the Petes turned in on all the way and made it a neat number. Hank Blade's bunch drew nine of the 10 penalties, Ed. Foley's flock sticking to straight hockey.

Stars In Goal

Goalie Ray Harding turned in a swell effort for the losers, catching the eye of Referee Reg Hamilton chief scout for Chicago Hawks. Red Sullivan scored two goals for the Petes, Doug Free had a goal and two assists, Bill McMasters got a marker, while Freddy Garvey and Chum Fryia each aided on one. The whole team worked hard. Hank Blade was outstanding for Kansas City with a goal and three assists, Johnny Harms having two markers and an assist. Goodacre got two, with Wycherley, Leier and Groves having a counter apiece, Miller and Wycherley helping once each and Stasiuk being in on a pair.

Goodacre got the only one of the first frame from Stasiuk in a foggy scramble, penalties going to Sullivan, Baldwin and McNally. In the second, Blade scored early from Harms and Sullivan got it back, aided by Garvey and Free. Stasiuk was gated twice, and McNally, Baldwin and Miller got it once each. Harms hit the hemp with Blade's pass to open the third, Wycherley getting another from Blade. Harms tallied again from Blade and Wycherley. The Petes fought back with Sullivan tallying from Free and then the latter counting alone. Goodacre hit the twine again from Stasiuk and Leier scored on a solo. McMasters rapped in Fryia's passout and Groves ended it from Miller on a screened shot. Penalties went to Tarala and Baldwin. A fight threatened once but no one was chased.

Kansas City — Goal, Henry; defence, Tarala and Jackson; centre, Blade; wings, Wycherley and Harms; alternates, Miller, Groves, Fashaway, Leier, Stasiuk, Goodacre, Baldwin and McNally.

Petes — Goal, Harding; defence, Coughlin and Jopling; centre, Wade; wings, Blewett and Tompkins; alternates, Sullivan, Free, F. Mortimer, Fryia, Garvey, McMasters, Horton, Wasson and Griffin.

Refrees — Reg Hamilton and J. Creighton.

The summary:

First Period
Kansas City—Goodacre (Stasiuk) 13.10
Penalties—Sullivan, Baldwin, McNally.

Second Period
Kansas City—Blade (Harms) 5.59
Petes—Sullivan (Garvey, Free) 2.30
Penalties — Miller, Baldwin, McNally Stasiuk 2.

Third Period

Penalties—Tarala, Baldwin.

King Edward On Top

King Edward intermediate soccer team defeated Central 7 to 0 at King Edward Park Friday. Their aggressive tactics dominated play throughout. They led by four goals at half time, and got three more in the second half. MacArthur scored three times, Hunt twice, with the other tallies being registered by Sutherland and Curtis.

This win gives King Edward the championship of the southend. They now meet the northend leaders for the city championship.

Cobourg Loses Protest

NAPANEE, Oct. 11 — Napanee Athletics baseball team tave been advised by Secretary W. J. Snyder of the OBA that the recent protest of the Cobourg club has been disapproved by the subcommittee. The objection was filed following the Napanee 8-5 win Sept. 28 in Cobourg. The officials there claimed the game should have been called earlier due to rain.

JUST FOR THE EXERCISE—Joe Louis, left, and Jack Dempsey demonstrate equipment designed by Mannie Seamon to encourage youngsters to learn how to defend themselves. The "boxer" spars with the wearer of "foils" without being struck back. The "foils" resemble a first baseman's mitt. Seamon trained Louis.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

Pro wrestling returns to Peterborough this Thursday night at 8.45 in the Brock Arena. A three-bout card headlined by two towering and heavy grapplers, Mike Sharpe going in against Hi Lee. Both are well-known mat characters in these parts and always put on a rousing battle. The Red Devil deals with Faro Renaldi in the semi-windup, while the prelim has Irish Daniel O'Connor tackling hefty Ben Sharpe. Those Sharpes have a big bobby-sox following here. Local and district fans turn out in large numbers to see the mad matadors in action, and there's never a dull moment on a pro wrestling card. These cards this season will go here on Thursday nights, to avoid OHA evenings.

Taking the Dodgers 10-6 Sunday, the Yanks took the World Series four games to one, their 12th such triumph in 16 tries. Vic Raschi gave way to that great reliefer, Joe Page, who put the fire out again. A crowd of 33,700 in Ebbets Field saw their beloved Bums beaten by a team which isn't great, but is a real opportunist. The Dodgers used a raft of twirlers. Brown, Woodling and Coleman led the Yankee hit parade. Once again, the American League showed superiority to the Nationals, but take the Yanks out of the majors and the loops would be pretty even. An excited Casey Stengel later yelled in the dressing room: "Happy New Year!" And why not?

Petes Make Finals

Down in Chatham on Sunday, the Petes rubbed out Chatham Leafs in two straight, winning 8-2 to take the OBA senior "B" semi-final series quite decisively. Bill Edger once more came up with a swell slab chore, throwing a five-hitter, whilst Freddy Garvey had three hits; Joe Stewart and Danny Brown banging out a brace each. Freddy and Joe aren't doing too badly for ex-softballers, eh? Howie Dalton didn't make the jaunt, his bad knee being under treatment. The men o' Murphy got all their runs in a big fourth frame and that was that. They'll be checking now on a final series with Ottawa.

No fog horns blew nor did any fog lights blink, but there was fog in Civic Arena last p.m. The unusually mild weather created a shifting blanket along the hard ice surface and Goalie Ray Harding and Sugar Jim Henry must have been playing 'em by ear at times! Yet, 'twas a dandy exhibition duel to open the hockey season here ere a big crowd. Must have been all of 1,700 paid on deck and both sides played hard. Kansas City earned their 8-4 win on weight, condition and pro puck savvy, but the strengthened Petes made them labor for it. The Mohawks roughed it up at times, too, drawing nine of the 10 penalties. They don't fool when they play.

They Looked Good

Hank Blade looked good out there, playing heady hockey and proving poison going in on the net. Ditto with Johnny Harms, another former NHL-er. Henry is hard to beat in goal. A solid squad. Reg. Hamilton liked Ray Harding's work a lot. He'll be over here a few times through the winter as Red Creighton's guest to scout local talent. Along with Harding, we especially liked the work of Red Sullivan and Doug Free. Others who caught the eye at times were Chum Fryia, Fred Garvey, Jake Wade, Bill McMasters and Wasson. Others aren't just in the pink yet but will be hitting up to form before long. Even shorn of some of their visitors, Ed Foley's Petes promise to be a pretty fair club this semester.

Couple of local teams saw grid action on the holiday. At the Oval, St. Peter's High dropped a 17-15 squeeze to St. Mike's in a smart scrap, the losers rallying strongly in the fourth. Time beat 'em out of the winning touchdown, at that. The Panthers absorbed a 23-11 reverse in Oakville with the Braves turning in a sweet passing game against the short-handed Matthews' men. Russ Scriver suffered a six-stitch gash in this one. Drs. Howes and Aiken were on hand, these two medicos (and Dr. Chenoweth) doing a lot of good work for the club. Orillia edged Oshawa 13-10 to take over the lead in the ORFU grouping. Oakville ends the schedule here Friday night.

St. Mike's Take Close One Over St. Peter's

St. Michael's College juniors of Toronto just wouldn't talk turkey with St. Peter's High School juniors Monday afternoon even though it was Thanksgiving Day. They set back the local juniors 17-15 after a thrill-packed last quarter rally by St. Peter's in the annual football fracas at Nicholls Oval. The return game will be in Toronto November 1.

Both teams still had plenty of grease on their fingers from the fowl dinners as they came through with about 20 miscues. Between errors the St. Michael's team managed to edge the St. Peter's boys 6-5 in the first quarter and go on to add another six points in the second. Again in the third quarter they got a major and a convert to end their scoring.

Halfway through the fourth Knox of St. Mike's booted from the centre strip to Armstrong on the St. Pete's 19. He bobbled it but lateralled finally to Picard who charged up the south side of the field 80 yards for a touchdown. By this time their dinners were digested and the St. Peter's boys started to roll. They carried the ball to the St. Mike's 25. They fumbled with St. Mike's recovering. St. Mike's fumbled with Gregg Crowley recovering. That set the stage for two St. Pete's passes and a plunge by Picard for their 15th point.

Thought They Won

The excitement didn't end there. With the game apparently over and St. Mike's giving their cheers, Picard ran the length of the field for a touchdown which wasn't allowed. Jerry Creighton and Pup Curtin, officials for the game, ruled the game was over after St. Mike's last play. Most of the crowd went home happy as they thought St. Peter's had won.

Arbuthnot at middle for St. Mike's was the best all-round player on the field. This big junior stopped several of St. Peter's kicks as well as recovering three fumbles. He certainly made holes in the smaller St. Peter's line. Bain and Martin helped hold the fort for the St. Mike's boys. Shea and Knox were the standouts of their backfield.

Although Picard was off in his booting and passing, he made up in his running. He scored all three of the St. Pete's touchdowns. Hull, Mike Fitzpatrick, John and Tom Cavanagh played a good defensive game for the St. Petes' squad.

Lineups:

St. Michaels—flying wing, Lee; halves, Shea, Smith, Ingoldsby; quarter, Mogaverro; snap, Stevenson; insides, Marzalik, Bain; middles, Arbutnot, Pierson; outsides, McDonnell, Martin; alternates, Knox, Pascht, Privowarczk, A. Torella, J. Torella, Cuddy, Moreau, Bowles, Corrigan, Cronin, Caffery, Green, McGravey, McGrath, Reid, Kingston.

St. Peter's—flying wing, Jack Richardson; halves, Andre Picard, McGillen, Brioux; quarter, Armstrong; snap, T. Cavanagh; insides, Hull, Hickson; middles, O'Reilly, Clark; outsides, Bob Fitzgerald, Mike Fitzpatrick; alternates, O'Neill, Gregg, Crowley, Clare Crowley, Sullivan, Burns, McTeague, Hickey, McCormick, T. Fitzpatrick, O'Leary, Harrington, Clare Hickson, Crowe, Bacon, J. Cavanagh.

Both these men are appearing here for the first time. In the main bout Mike Sharpe hooks up with towering Hi Lee and the fans know what to expect when these two giants clash. Fans are asked to note that the wrestlers will be here Thursday nights this season. Manager Laidlaw made this move so as not to conflict with hockey. The opening show looks like a natural.

Goldham Outshines Stars As All-Stars Whip Leafs

TORONTO, Oct. 11—(CP)—Bob Goldham, who got into the game as an added starter, out-starred the National Hockey League's 1948-49 all-stars and the Stanley Cup champions Monday night as he led the dream team to a 3-1 conquest of Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Chicago Black Hawks defenceman tallied a goal while his team was short-handed and then set up the winning counter for young Paul Ronty of Boston Bruins, another of the extra players added by all-star coach Tommy Ivan to bolster the 12-man squad picked last year by league coaches as the best in the game. The achievement was all the sweeter to Goldham because the Leafs traded him to Chicago two years ago.

It was the third straight victory for the All-Stars in their annual game against the Stanley Cup champions for the benefit of the N.H.L. players' pension fund. They won the inaugural game in Toronto two years ago, 4-3. They came up with a 3-1 triumph last year at Chicago. The Leafs, three times Stanley Cup winners, were the victims each time.

The game, played at a dismal pace in the second and third periods because of the heat, drew 13,513 paid admissions. Many of the fans doffed their coats and sat in their shirt sleeves. The pension fund will get $17,261.50, two-thirds of the gross gate of $25,892.25. The remaining $8,630.25 goes to six Toronto charities.

Not only did two of the extras selected by Ivan, coach of Detroit Red Wings, stand out over the all-stars. But the second all-star team proved more effective than the first. The Leafs got their goal—on a blazing 30-foot rising shot by defenceman Bill Barilko—against Bill Durnan of Montreal Canadians, goalie on the first All-Star team. Claude (Chuck) Rayner of New York Rangers, second All-Star goalie, shut out the Leafs in his 30 minutes in the nets.

Gets Clinching Goal

It was the centre on the second All-Star team, Doug Bentley of Chicago Black Hawks, who got the clinching goal for the winners. He had help from defenceman Bill Quackenbush.

President Clarence Campbell of the NHL made the pre-game presentation of the miniature gold pucks. He gave out eight—to the six No. 1 All-Stars and to the two coaches, Ivan and Hap Day of the Leafs.

New York Yankees Each Get $5,884 Series' Dividend

By JACK HAND

BROOKLYN, Oct. 11—(AP)—The Reynolds-Page Bullpen Corporation has declared a $5,884 world series dividend for each New York Yankee.

Casey Stengel's "Invalids of Destiny" rode over the startled Brooklyn Dodgers in five games largely because old Casey had the right relief men when he needed them most. Because of that, the Bombers take home the big share of the winning pool.

Pitching usually tells the story of a short series. It was no different in 1949. Only this time it was the relief work of Allie Reynolds and fireman Joe Page that stood out after the Yanks and Dodgers swapped 1-0 shutouts in the first two games.

Certainly there were other stars. Bobby Brown for his .500 batting average, Johnny Mize for his 1.000 pinch hitting, Tommy Henrich for the homer that won the opener and little Phil Rizzuto for his superlative shortstop play.

Two Big Men

But way out front there were the two "big" men of the Yanks' 12th series triumph in 16 tries—Allie Reynolds and Smoky Joe Page.

Page, of course, ran true to form. Hadn't he marched from the bullpen 60 times during the regular season, 20 of them to save Reynolds?

Reynolds' brilliant performance of no runs and only two hits in 12 1-3 innings in the world series was a direct right-about-face. "Old Wahoo" completed but four games in 31 starts.

Allie threw his 1-0 two-hitter in nullifying Don Newcombe's 11 strikeouts with nine of his own. Preacher Roe blanked the Yanks' Vic Raschi the next afternoon, then the bullpen corporation took over.

It was Page with a 6 2-3 inning "stopper" after Tommy Byrne went wild in the third game. Reynolds bailed out Lopat by retiring the last 10 men in succession in the fourth.

Things ended normally at Ebbets Field Sunday afternoon with Page ambling from left field in fading Indian summer heat to finish what a fired Raschi started. Working with only two days rest, like Newcombe in Saturday's sad effort, Raschi crumbled in the Dodger seventh. An easy-does-it 10-2 lead melted to 10-6.

Loses Gamble

Manager Burt Shotton of the Dodgers gambled and lost with his choice of Newcombe, the jumbo-sized Negro rookie, to work the fourth game with only two days rest. A big strong boy who has pitched and won under similar circumstances, he just hadn't the same sizzling fast stuff. He couldn't last through the fourth. Then Shotton started his dreary relief parade.

Brooklyn had cheers for the Dodgers' gallant little captain, Pee Wee Reese, who played a fine shortstop and hit .316. Their catcher, Roy Campanella, was a standout.

One of the big disappointments was Duke Snider, the Brooks' centrefielder, who tied a record for a five-game series by striking out eight times. The Duke made several brilliant catches, particularly a shoestringer on Joe DiMaggio and a tumbling ban on Henrich in the finale.

DiMaggio Weak

DiMaggio, pale and weak from the after effects of a cirus infection, that sidelined him for two weeks in late season, probably shouldn't have played. He was not the usual DiMaggio in the field nor at bat with his .111 series average. Yet he cracked a 360-foot homer off relief Jack Branta in the fourth inning of Sunday's game. It was his sixth series home run.

The Yanks' big hit was Brown, who had two triples—to tie a record—a double and three singles. "Golden boy" really did a good job both as a pinch hitter and as a starter. A triple with the bases loaded doomed Joe Hatten's relief job in Saturday's 6-4 Yank win. Another triple and single knocked in two runs Sunday.

Each Yank takes home about $5,884 and each full Dodger share amounts to about $4,164.

Indians Take Third Series, Crush Montreal

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 11 (AP)—Indianapolis Indians seldom play in the little world series, but they never lose.

The American Association playoff champions won their third little world series by beating Montreal Royals Saturday night 12-22.

The victory gave them the best of seven series four games to two. It was their first appearance in the series since 1928.

The Indians lost the Association pennant to St. Paul by a half a game, finishing the season with a seven game winning streak. They dropped three straight playoff games to fourth place Minneapolis here, then went to Minneapolis and won four straight.

They came home to take three straight from Milwaukee for another seven game streak, but had to go three games at Milwaukee before getting the clincher for the playoff title.

They won the first two games of the little world series at Montreal. The Royals won the third and the Indianapolis opened to square the series, but the Indians took the next two.

The final game was anticlimatic. Indianapolis got a gift run in the first inning and then pounded Clarence Podbielan and Clyde King for four in the third, two of them on Earl Turner's home run. With southpaw Royce Lint pitching steady eight-hit ball, it was just a matter of playing out nine innings after that.

Panthers Drop Grid Tilt To Braves 23-11

Oakville Braves got a break from the law of averages yesterday to defeat Peterborough 23-11, and treat home fans to a fine display of senior "B" ORFU holiday football, for their first win in five games to date.

Peterborough, too, played well with a rather short-handed squad but after a bad start were unable to overcome the strong Braves' defensive nor quite match the aerial work of Bob McKay (former Argo and Wildcat player), George Watson and Ken Pollock. The former tossed seven completed passes in eight attempts, for a personal show.

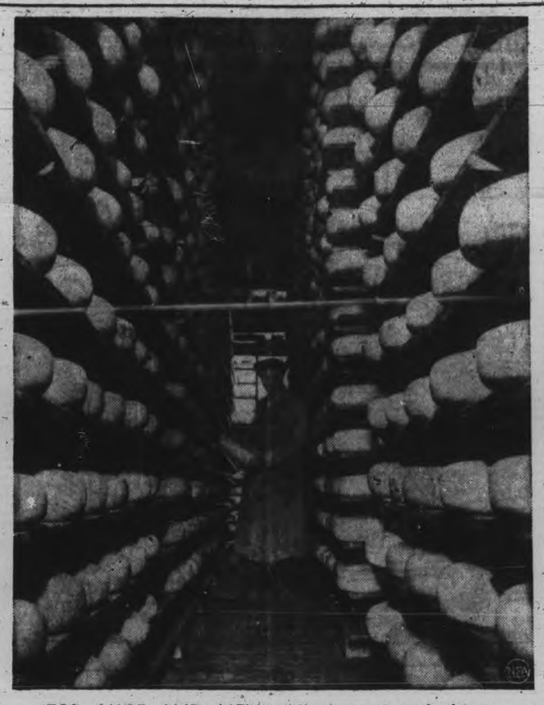
Oakville took the ead early in the first quarter following a poor kick-off and Watson booted a neat placement from 20 yards out after Braves worked up field on a plunging attack from their own 50. Panthers fought back hard and almost evened as Plunkett's attempted placement just missed the uprights. A terrific punt by Watson returned the ball from Oakville's five to Panther's 20 on the roll, to relieve the pressure.

Get a Major

Watson's long cross field pass to Saunders was followed by Bury's run around end to Panther six as the second quarter opened and as a forward failed, Ken Pollock crashed over for his first major—not converted. Braves held a good edge at this point but Panthers line stood up well and gave every thing they had.

Oakville clicked on a second field goal, late in the quarter following a hard drive to Panther 30, featuring a nice pass from McKay to Norm Withnell, good for 20. Watson booted a 32 yard to make it 11-0.

Panthers put forth a great drive to open the third as Lynch ran back the kick-off to his own five and Mathews carried for yards. Plunkett continued the march to his own 30 and be, Conlin and the entire squad worked like trojans downfield to the enemy 15. Yynch then tossed a grand 20 yard forward pass to McVan Allin who scored a major.



Midway in the quarter, Braves scored a second major as Watson's pass to Redshaw clicked to Panther's 15 from whence Gord Bury plunged over and Watson converted. Panthers evened this one a few minuntes later, after Bill Trimm recovered a rival fumble on his own 30 and Jerry McGillis later plunged nine. Then Conlin's pass to Plunkett took Panthers to Oakville's five. Ron Hodson crashed through for a try and he converted.

Pollock's second try, late in the fourth, to wind up the scoring on a plunge from the two yard line came as Panthers lost on downs when a forward pass scramble on third down failed to click.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

Den Bissonnette of Winthrop, Maine, has resigned as manager of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League, club officials announced Monday. Officials said that Bissonnette, who guided the Leafs to fifth place in the league last season, submitted the resignation last week.

A Toronto paper in a sports-page story quotes the 50-year-old manager as saying at the close of last season that he wouldn't "be back next year" after sports writers were said to have criticized him for the way he was managing the Leafs.

Bissonnette, who owns a chicken farm in Winthrop, came to the Leafs last season and is reported to be considering a coaching job in the major leagues.

In Winthrop, Bissonnette said he had no specific plans for the future and declined to say why he resigned from the Toronto post except that:

"I'm getting a little too old to ride the buses and you know there is no Sunday baseball up there."

Bissonnette said the lack of Sunday ball "creates a lot of travelling."

Arise, a three-year-old colt owned by the Addison Stable, on Monday won the $10,000-added Canadian championship, feature event of the fall racing meeting at Toronto's suburban Long Branch track. Arise covered the 1 1-16 miles in 1:46 4-5. Piloted by jockey Doug Dodson of Edmonton Arise beat out Montana Sands by four lengths going away. It paid $2.70 for a $2 ticket. Escador placed third.

Oshawa Pedlars retained their Ontario Intermediate A Softball title during the week-end by defeating North Bay Dodgers two games to one in the championship series. Pedlars took the first game Saturday by 4-0. North Bay squared the series Monday with a 9-2 victory but lost the third and deciding game 12-3. Pitching 23 innings during the series, lefty Meulemeester won both the Oshawa victories.

Princess Elizabeth Monday scored her first racing success. Monaveen, a steeplechaser the Princess recently bought, won the 3¼ mile Chicester handicap by 15 lengths. The Princess looked on approvingly from the Royal box.

Promoter Jack Solomons Monday confirmed that Li'l Arthur King's opponent at London Nov. 18 will be Tommy McGovern of Bermondsey. The Canadian and British lightweight champion from Toronto will meet McGovern in a 10-round, non-title match at London's Albert Hall.

William H. Veeneman, Sr., of Louisville, Monday was named board chairman of Churchill Downs, Inc., and the American Turf Association. Veeneman was given authority to name a committeee to select a successor to Col. Matt J. Winn, who was president of the two corporations. Winn died Oct. 5.

Nathaniel Vickers, probably the oldest active golfer in the United States until he put away his clubs three years ago, died Monday at New York aged 103. Vickers continued to play golf until he passed his 100th birthday.

Britain's Football Association Monday announced acceptance of an invitation to send a team to play 10 matches in Canadian cities next summer. Leading British players will be chosen to make the trip.

John Farrell Macklin, 65, the man who built Michigan State from a doormat for midwestern United States football teams into a ranking gridiron power, died on Monday. The college stadium at East Lansing, Mich., is named Macklin Field, in honor of the former coach.

Joe Ryan, manager of the Montreal Alouettes, Monday night called for unrestricted American imports as the answer to the salary problem in Canadian football clubs. Speaking at the "life members' night" banquet put on by Winnipeg Blue Bombers, the former Winnipeg rugby club manager said the restriction of American imports was "all wrong." With unlimited American imports he said, salaries would eventually find their own level.

Actress Says Film Roles Good Experience

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11 (AP)—It pays to have your car along when interviewing Gertrude Lawrence. Also a mind for last names of famous people.

When I arrived at her hotel bungalow (Rate: About $50.00 a day), she declared she had to dash to the beauty salon. I volunteered my jalopy, and we drove out Sunset Boulevard, chatting all the while. She sprinkled her comments with first names, which I mentally identified as best I could.

The stage star is doing her first picture here, "The Glass Menagerie," and I asked why she had never succumbed to Hollywood before.

"Why, I have always been too busy. I have either been in a play or preparing for one. This picture happened to hit me when I had no plans."

Good Idea

Will she do some more pictures now?

"Yes, I think it would be a good idea. I am getting a little tired of creating a stage role and then having some film star out here saying, 'That would be a nice little thing for me.'

"Look what has happened: Joan (Crawford) did 'Susan and God,' Norma (Shearer) did 'We Were Dancing,' Claudette (Colbert) did 'Skylark,' and Ginger (Rogers) did 'Lady in the Dark.'

"I think it would be a good thing for stage people to do films. And it would work in reverse, too. The public would like to see movie stars in the flesh doing plays."

What about the near future?

"I'll be seeing a lot of my friends in Hollywood. They have been calling already—the Brian Ahernes, Joan (Crawford) and others. After the picture, I may hop down to Naples or some place—I have no play at the moment. Sam Behrman is writing one, and Noel (Coward, of course) is working on one for me, too."

After the dinner a tray laden with birthday gifts was placed before Mrs. Douglas who was assisted on opening them and reading the messages they contained by Mrs. Laura Beatty of Peterborough. Telephone calls and telegrams were received from friends.

Those present were Mrs. Mary Carpenter, and Mrs. John Whitfield Toronto; Mrs. Hazel Beatty and Mrs. Laura Beatty, Peterborough; Mrs. Ida Keigan, Mrs. Jas. Douglas, Miss Annie Tinney and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Snyder.

Over the years, the driving force of science has given us new hours of leisure time, but there has been no corresponding movement to develop social skills and new interests. In the future we will learn to use leisure time to improved advantage. Meanwhile there is restlessness. Problems such as youth delinquency arise from restless and unprofitable leisure. Within the family we can do much to teach proper use of free time by cultivating a love of art, music, literature and wholesome recreation. Enjoyment of these will truly help make leisure profitable.

'We've Won' Women Claim Defied New Look Decrees

By MARTHA COLE.

PAMPA, Tex., Oct. 11 (AP). — The determined ladies are happy now.

They are the members of the Little-Below-the-Knee Club — that band of intrepid women rebels who swore two years ago that no French fashion designer was going to make them wear long skirts. No siree! Or rather, no ma'am.

This year the skirts are shorter—right where the LBK women drew and held that line two years ago, about three inches below the knee.

"Personally, I feel that we won our argument in 1947, and it has taken the fashion industry two years to admit their failure with the 'new look,'" said Mrs. Warren J. Woodard.

Mrs. Woodard, Dallas, housewife, started the revolution and organized the LBK Club in August, 1947. Last spring she moved with her husband to Tampa.

300,000 Members

"Three months after the club started it had 300,000 members, and we in Dallas had received some 25,000 letters and cards from all over the world," Mrs. Woodard said.

Several hundred women marched up the main street of Dallas in their grandmothers' old pavement sweeping skirts that fall.

"We don't want to look like this," their placards proclaimed.

"The Parisian creations have never affected me," Mrs. Woodard said, "and not once have I felt out of style."

Fashion designers concede that skirts most assuredly are shorter, but they set no arbitrary length this year—just the length most becoming to individual height.

And what does the man on the street think about it?

Said one: "I don't like to see skirts so short they show a woman's knees. Still, I don't like to see skirts scraping the floor. Anywhere in between is okay with me."

And the cop on the corner: "One year they are shorter and the next year they are longer. Lady, I just can't keep up with it."

Learning to Make Plastics

IN Ontario the wheels of industry turn for the benefit of every single one of us. Our lathes, dynamos, drill presses, farm combines, tractors, business machines, etc. are producing goods and services which earn dollars. These dollars provide food, clothing, medical care and other necessities which contribute to our security and high standard of living. Every single one of us, therefore, has a very personal interest in the flow of a steady supply of trained workers to industrial plants. These workers will operate machines which are important to our way of life.

We should appreciate, then, the co-operative efforts of government, industry and labour in the field of employee training. In schools and in factories our workers, young and old, are given the opportunity to develop new and specific skills in every field of business and industrial activity. For instance, as in the pictures shown here, every effort of Ontario's newly-skilled plastics workers will mean better plastic products — will help to make Ontario a finer place in which to live and work.

THE BREWING INDUSTRY (ONTARIO)

Our Way of Life Rewards Trained Hands

Ontario workers know they can earn more, have executive responsibility and enjoy a higher standard of living in direct ratio to the skills they acquire and the way they make use of them. That's always true in a free economy — that's why our competitive system will continue to make Canada great and a great place in which to live.

Hasty-Pees Fifth Reunion Claimed Most Successful

Peterborough this Thanksgiving weekend extended a martial salute to some 500 members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment who met here to mark their fifth annual re-union. The retiring president of the Regimental Association Lt.-Col. A. A. Kennedy, DSO, of Owen Sound, declared this 1949 re-union "the best ever". He added that it had vindicated those who claimed such gatherings would unite the veterans of the Sicilian, Italian and European campaigns in peacetime as the comradeship born of mutual dangers shared had done in wartime.

Known to their fellow fighting units as "the plow jockeys". (because the original regiment was largely composed of men from the farms, highlands and small centres of Eastern Ontario) the Hasty-Pees proudly accepted this sobriquet and carried it throughout their fighting career in the Second World War.

Regimental officials said it was the largest turnout for any of the five reunions since the end of the war. And they were pleased that, despite the large number of men, the three-day schedule went off without a hitch.

Memorial Service

Highlight of the meet was the impressive memorial service and parade held on Sunday afternoon. The abandon that accompanies such reunions was cast aside for a memory-filled hour as the honor roll, consisting of 368 dead, compiled by War Service Records, Ottawa, was read.

A minute's silence was observed as the Hasty-Pees gathered in a half-moon formation before the Civic War Memorial. And thoughts dwelt on comrades who had been buried on the soil of other lands, or as soldiers euphemistically refer to it—"joined the white battalion."

At the sounding of the Last Post the many Peterborough residents who attended the service bowed their heads as a token of respect for the fallen.

Mike Gahagan, a former sergeant in the Hasty-Pees and president of Peterborough's Duffy Club, placed the wreath at the War Memorial. The Duffy Club was host to the out-of-town visitors.

The most crowd-pleasing aspect of the whole meet was the parade and march-past that followed the memorial service. A

Kelly Wilson Wins $100 Scholarship

The third agricultural scholarship given by Peterborough county Council has been awarded to Kelly Wilson of Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Wilson.

Incidentally, Keith McIntyre and Everett MacFarlane of Otonabee left this morning to begin their second year of the two-year course they are taking at Ontario Agricultural College. Mr. Wilson will attend the Kemptville Agricultural School.

County council wished to encourage local young men to extend their studies and for that purpose a scholarship of $100 on their first year's tuition was authorized.

The awards are made on the basis of the results of the examinations and other tests in the junior farmers department of the Peterborough Exhibition. Some of those who were eligible this year decided that they could not accept the scholarship. By discussion among juniors it devolved to Mr. Wilson, who has decided on the Kemptville course of two years.

The result is that three young men of the county are now engaged in agricultural studies by the encouragement of the county council.

Car Taken From Home Early Monday Morning

ROSENEATH, Oct. 11 (ENS)—A 1931 Durant car was stolen from the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Smoke of Alderville early Monday morning. Mr. Smoke, who is an employee of a construction company on Highway 45, discovered his car missing at 5.30 a.m. Provincial police are investigating.

County Team Enters Contest

Donald and Elwin Garbutt of Smith, Lakefield RR 2, will be the Peterborough team in the inter-county competition in tractor plowing by boys under 20 years at the International match in Brant Friday. The winning team will be awarded a trip to the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago.

Henry Batten reported today that accommodation in the bus leaving Thursday has been taken. The Peterborough bus leaves the King St. terminal at 7 o'clock. The Brant committee has increased the available plowing land, and the International directors have put up a headquarters tent much larger than the one occupied at Lindsay last fall.

It is expected that the big match will attract 250,000 people in the four days from Tuesday to Friday.

Leaves Can Be Fun

As the leaves are falling from the trees spreading a carpet of brilliant color on the ground, the youngsters are enjoying the last phase of outdoor play before winter comes. What greater fun than to roll in a pile of newly fallen leaves, especially when a group of joyful playmates gather up armsful of them to "bury" their unsuspecting victim. It's fun which many a wishful adult envies the children, but there is an important part which adults can play in this game.

In the past few days a number of children have been besporting themselves with the leaves on the streets, on the edges of sidewalks and sometimes right on the pavement. A child covered with leaves cannot be seen by motorists and more than one accident has been miraculously averted. Parents would be well advised to make the streets out of bounds for play with the leaves.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

DOUSE OWN FIRE

Firemen received a call early Sunday morning informing them of a chesterfield on fire at the residence of Clifford Mackin, Cameron St. Their services were not required, however, as it was extinguished before the call was made. A chimney fire was later reported at the residence of Lewis Webb, Princess St.

BAGS A WOLF

A. E. Brodie of Beaverton got an unexpected target Saturday while practice-shooting with a .22-calibre rifle. He stumbled on three wolves and killed one with two quick shots. The others fled before he could draw a bead on them.

CHATTED WITH FORMBY

Mr. Bernard Glaum of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, enjoyed a long and pleasant chat with George Formby, the English comedian, in Toronto last week. Mr. Glaum introduced himself to Mr. Formby as a Yorkshireman by descent. Mr. Glaum's mother, who came to Canada from Leeds, Yorkshire, lives at 309 Reid St.

MINOR CAR ACCIDENT

Slight damage was reported Monday night when two cars nicked each other while passing on Highway 7, just east of Norwood. Drivers were Clarence Logan of RR 2, Norwood and Walter Fraser of 530 Windermere Ave., Toronto. Provincial Constable G. W. Stevens, who investigated the accident, reported that the collision occurred when Fraser pulled out to pass Logan as they were both travelling east.

WINS HASTY-PEES DRAW

Winner of the Hasty-Pees draw on Sunday was James Hughes, 14 Inverlea Ave. Although not a member of the unit Mr. Hughes was a First World War veteran who served in the 2nd Battalion and saw his 16th birthday in France. He is a member of the Canadian Legion.

ONE LOST CHILD

Only one lost child was reported Monday at the Norwood Fair. She was five-year-old Gail Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Elliott of Norwood. The secretary's office doubled as a lost-and-found department, but as indicated it was not overworked.

Top Red Suicides

SEOUL, Korea, Oct. 11—(AP)—Kim Myung Shin, 42, possibly the top woman Communist in Southern Korea, hanged herself in jail Monday, police reported today. She had been arrested in Seoul three days before.

Fractured Hip Raking Leaves

Four Peterborough residents were treated for an assortment of injuries at Civic Hospital over the Thanksgiving week-end.

Most seriously hurt was Richard Canning of 675 Stewart St. who fractured his hip while raking leaves at his home. He was taken to Civic and given medical treatment by Dr. C. M. Scott.

When his ladder slipped while working at Canadian Nashua Paper Monday, George H. Noyes of 465 Rogers St., an engineer with the firm, fell nine feet to the floor. Later it was determined he had fractured his right wrist.

Mr. Noyes placed his ladder at too acute an angle and the rubber feet lost their grip when he mounted it. Plant Engineer Garth Wade took the injured man to Dr. H. A. Mitchell and subsequently to hospital.

He is expected home later today.

Miss Jane Page, age 16, of 591 McKellar St., missed her footing on the steps of her residence and suffered a fall. After X-rays it was determined she had a bruised knee and a broken right index finger.

Marcus Fowler, 8, of 612 Armour Rd., fell from his bicycle while fooling with some chums Sunday afternoon. He received a badly strained right wrist which had to be placed in a cast. Marcus was treated by Dr. W. J. Gordon.

Six Employees Of Bus Company Attend Funeral

The six representative employees of Peterborough Bus Lines, attending Saturday the funeral in Windsor of Frank J. Mitchell, head of the local transportation service, were invited by Mrs. Mitchell to join the family in the private service at home in the morning. They reported today that it was an impressive funeral.

Active pallbearers were members of the Windsor fire department; honorary pallbearers were civic leaders and business men; and a guard of honor included 30 nurses of Hotel Dieu Hospital; members of the Red Cross Society and of Windsor Rotary.

The public service at All Saints' Anglican Church was conducted by Rev. L. Carl Swan. Burial was at Windsor Grove Cemetery.

It was reported that Mr. Mitchell had not played golf for fifteen years until last Wednesday when he joined a foursome in a Rotary tournament, and collapsed on the seventh green.

The Windsor Star's account of his active life in that city, including years in the council as alderman and mayor, said: "His greatest interest lay in the relief of crippled children, particularly those suffering from the more extreme forms such as cerebral palsy. The Rotary Club crippled children's committee, of which he was so long an active head, was the first group to establish a clinic here for the treatment of crippled children. Mr. Mitchell never missed a clinic. He spent many hours each week for several years at hospitals, in visits to parents and in consultation with doctors ministering to the children."

That was only one phase of his character. "Mr. Mitchell was a true gardener. He liked to get down in the soil with his own hands. He did much of his own planting and cultivating, becoming familiar with many varieties of colorful blooms and shrubs and sharing his hobby with friends."

From 1925-1929 he was sales manager of Gotfredson Corporation. When the industry was revamped in 1929 and a new company formed, he became president. In 1934 he sold his interest to associates. In the meantime he had organized the Border Transit Company, and operated a city bus service five years.

"In 1927 he began a four-bus city transportation in Peterborough, and was recently listed as president of Border Transit Ltd. and a newly-organized Peterborough business, Buses and Trucks Services Limited.

Won't Change Policy

TOKYO, Oct. 11—(AP) — The United States Army chief of staff said today Russian possession of atom secrets and Communist victories in China would not change American "tactical considerations" in the Orient. General J. Lawton Collings told a press conference Russia's atomic achievement "hasn't affected our planning or thinking."

Collects Hailstones

At 2 p.m. today Jack Sinclair brought three hailstones into the office that he had picked up after the Sunday evening storm in a field midway to Lakefield. They measured an inch in diameter and when they were picked up were half an inch larger. By actual count sixteen stones filled the bottom of a chocolate box and were kept in the family refrigerator until today.

79 On Sunday For New Record

Weather over Thanksgiving week-end was one of the warmest on record that can be recalled by old-timers. Thermometers hit a warm 72 high on Saturday, a record 79 on Sunday and one degree lower on Monday. A cloudburst of rain fell between 7 and 8 p.m. Sunday in a wide belt south of Peterborough and north as far as Bancroft. Hailstones "as large as eggs" are reported to have fallen in Lakefield for several minutes, beating the bright foliage from the trees.

The Sunday storm did little to relieve the humidity, and on Monday several children were seen in the water at Lakefield Park. They were "in" because of their game of running across a log boom. No matter how agile they were, when two met head-on on a spinning log, they were tossed into the cold water. Water temperatures are not available, but a few hardy souls who went in did not linger, and only the warm air made the fun bearable.

The weather was splendid for family gatherings, but a bit unseasonal for the cooking of turkey dinners.

Many people availed themselves of a chance to close their cottages for the season and others went for long drives. Foliage became practically nil the further one drove north on Highway 28, and was as bare as November just north of Apsley. The Sunday downpour stripped most of the lush foliage spots, and the best scenery was reported further south in the Rice Lake, Northumberland Forest and Cobourg-Port Hope sections.

Woman Injured Knocked Down By Race Horse

Two women were slightly injured Monday afternoon at the Norwood Fair, one by a horse and the other by a midway ride.

Mrs. Abel Chamberlain, of 98 Dearborn Ave., Toronto, received a cut lip and bruises when a race horse on the track ran into her.

A guest for the Thanksgiving week-end at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. Gilmour, of Norwood, she had gone to the Fair for an afternoon's entertainment. Mrs. Chamberlain was taken to the office of Dr. A. R. Atkinson, of Norwood, and then to Civic Hospital.

Cut On Head

When she ventured too close to an airplane ride in the midway Mrs. Arnold Lobb, of Norwood, received a cut on the head from one of the swinging aircraft. Bystanders said Mrs. Lobb, accompanied by her small son, was inside the protective barrier waiting her turn for a ride when she was struck by one of the whirling units.

She also was taken to Dr. Atkinson's office for treatment. Her injury was described as a lacerated scalp.

The sudden warm spell proved too much for two men attending the Fair; one from Norwood and another from Hastings had dizzy spells and had to be taken home.

Car Turns Over Driver Escapes

Roy E. Henley of 13 Rushbrooke Ave., Toronto, escaped without injury Sunday night when his car went out of control at Clonsilla and Western avenues, and then turned over.

About $250 damage was caused to the front fenders, grill, hood, left front wheel and windshield.

Henley told police he had passed through the Clonsilla and Western avenues intersection, going east, when he applied the brakes. The car skidded and went out of control.

It lurched across the highway to the north shoulder and ran along the edge of the road. When he tried to bring it back on the highway it did a complete roll and landed in the ditch on its wheels, facing south.

PC W. G. Scott investigated.

Manslaughter Charge In Brawl At Hotel

TORONTO, Oct. 11 (CP)—Gerald Wright, 23, of suburban East York, has been charged with manslaughter in connection with the hotel-brawl death of Edward Joseph Lynch, 46, early Sunday.

Largest Crowd In History Attends Norwood Fair Tractor Contest Popular

The Canadian people should be deeply and gratefully aware of the spirit of Thanksgiving Day as they look about the world and observe today its tensions and anxieties, said Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Ontario's Minister of Welfare, in his formal opening of the Norwood Fair on Monday. Mr. Goodfellow complimented the directors and the people of Norwood and East Peterborough on reviving their fair two years ago after its long suspension during the years of the war.

The agricultural fair had been an important event in the rural life of Ontario for more than a century. It reflected the enterprise of farmers and the continuing changes in their methods of production, particularly in the effect of the many new machines which had been invented and brought into practical use.

Norwood Fair day, Hon. Mr. Goodfellow said, was an occasion of a community gathering centering about the industry of agriculture, but it was more than that when it was held on Thanksgiving Day. In more peaceful years, Thanksgiving Day was a recognition of the bountiful returns of the harvests. That aspect of acknowledging the hand of Providence was still retained, but there was a deeper significance in the spirit of Thanksgiving in the present period of this country. The people of Canada enjoyed the liberties of their forefathers, met together as free citizens, in contrast with the loss of freedom that was seen today in many other countries.

Mr. Goodfellow said he hoped there was full appreciation of the conditions that were facing the world today, that Canadians would realize the features of their way of life which were now the envy of other people less happily placed.

Have Largest Srowd

Attendance Monday, largest in the history of Norwood Fair, was one of its features. The most frequent question heard throughout the afternoon was: "How many are here?" But, apart from a wide range of the guesses, up to G. A. Brethen's expected 25,000, opinion was deferred to definite report from the treasury department.

If there was anything overlooked by the directors in the way of contests for prizes, it might be suggested that something might have been offered for the nearest approximation to the number of paid admissions.

The Fair Board had all kinds of entertainment, beginning with the noon hour parade from the centre of the village, with the president, G. A. Brethen, riding in a gleaming automobile.

The horse ring brought out the finest array of entries that department has ever seen. Dr. Harold Worton was in charge of the calling of the classes, and from a raised platform kept the crowd informed of the progress of the events. The other livestock judging went on till 5 o'clock, and wound up with a parade of the ribbon winners.

The rides of the T. Green midway, merry-go-round, the ferris wheel, and other thrill producers, delighted the young people, and stopped only to reload. Horse races were the usual feature, but the directors ran in an extra, two chariot races that nearly stole the track show. Two-wheeled outfits fixed up in the form of charlots and adrown by farm teams provided this speed novelty.

Race Results

The race results were:

2.20 Class

Miss Belle Grattan, owned and driven by Dr. Durmo, Port Hope, 1-1-1. Alymira Boy, owned by Stan Blewett, Peterborough, and driven by O. Fallis 2-2-2. Lena Direct Baldwin, owned and driven by M. Post 3-3-3.

Time—2:11, 2:07, 2:06.

Free-For-All

Victory Hy, owned by S. Blewett and driven by O. Fallis 1-1-1. Lee Star Not, owned and driven by J. Cochrane 2-2-2. Dazzle Henry, owned by J. Cochrane and driven by Dr. Durmo 3-3-3.

Time—2:08, 2:05, 2:07.

Chariot Results

A. Rogers whooped his team into first money in the two heats, with L. Harrison, Indian River, second in the first heat, A. Crowe, Norwood, third. In the second heat A. Heath of Bonarlaw was an added entry and finished second with Harrison third and Crowe fourth. There was no time taken for the plough steeds.

Tractor Competition

John Eamison of Smith was winner of the first prize of $10 in a new type of competition, first in this district, emphasizing skilful, economic and safe driving of farm equipment. His score was 266 points.

Other prize-winners among the 21 contestants were: Del Merrill, Campbellford, 256 points, $10; Ron Cameron, Indian River, 255 points, tied with Harold Kempt, Keene, $7.50 each; Jack Matchett, Otonabee, 249 points, Jim Drummond, Keene, 252 points, and Jack McIntyre, Keene, 225 points, each $5.

This tractor tourney was staged in a separate ring, attracted a great deal of attention from the crowd and more interest from the junior farmers of the district.

Robert Bell, assistant agricultural representative, was in charge of the planning with Alan Drummond of Otonabee, committee chairman. Many of the junior farmers of the county were on hand to help in the details.

Provincial Competition

Each winner of a local competition thereby qualifies for a provincial driving and safety competition to be held probably in December. The project includes a written examination which was held at the fair, preceding the actual driving.

The committee was provided with a standard design of layout including the placing of obstructions which had to be avoided in the driving of a tractor and trailer wagon. One of the difficulties was backing up to an indicated loading platform. Fifty points were allowed for safe driving, 100 points for operation of the tractor, and 50 points for time in completing the course.

This was entirely a junior contest, with stress on skill, safety, and precision in driving. It is sponsored by the Junior Farmers of Ontario, the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and with the co-operation of the Ontario Retail Farm Equipment Dealers' Association, Imperial Oil Ltd., and the Department of Public Safety of the University of Toronto.

Amateur Entertainment

Tom Mason of Buckhorn was master of ceremonies for a long program of amateur entertainment and a variety of contests on a platform set up at the foot of the slope on the south side of the grounds.

Some of the results in that section of the afternoon's show, which in itself attracted a crowd of several thousand were:

Special Service Thanksgiving Day

A Thanksgiving Day service was held by First Church of Christ, Scientist of Peterborough at 11 a.m. on Thanksgiving Day.

The service opened with the congregation singing a hymn, No. 150 in the Christian Science Hymnal.

The Thanksgiving proclamation by the Governor General of Canada was read by Mrs. A. K. Whyte. The subject of this lesson-sermon was "Thanksgiving" and had for the golden text: "In every thing give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you." (I Thessalonians 5:18).

After the responsive reading of the Bible passages, Mrs. Mildred Hubbell, the second reader, read the citations chosen from the Bible. while Mrs. A. K. Whyte read the correlative passages from Science and Health.

A solo "Thanks Be To God" by Stanley Dickson was sung by Mrs. A. H. Radford, the soloist, after the lesson-sermon had been concluded.

CREAM OF TOMATO SOUP

FIRST PLACE

IN TASTE TEST WITH A WELL-KNOWN BRAND

A group of average housewives in a typical small Canadian city were served two bowls of heated tomato soup that were identified only by the letters A and B, and asked to write down the brand they preferred. Nearly 65 percent voted Heinz FIRST for flavour. Less than 35 percent voted for another well-known brand, with one lone lady registering no choice.

Try this taste test on your own family. Heat a tin of Heinz Cream of Tomato Soup and a tin of any other brand. Serve half-helpings of each and get your family's verdict. When they have tasted the wonderful difference chances are it will be two to one for Heinz.

If you have been buying some other brand for any reason, try Heinz Cream of Tomato Soup just ONCE. It will be the beginning of a long friendship.

Bachelors Find Widows Preferred Matrimonial Risk

DEAR MISS DIX: One of your correspondents wants to know what magic formula a widow uses to enable her to marry more quickly than a single girl. My husband contends that widows find it easy to remarry because of the same qualities which attracted the first husband. I think because I have been married twice and I am not aware that I used any different tactics as a widow than I did when I was a girl. It is just that some women attract men and others don't.

A VON

ANSWER: Doubtless you are right, to a degree at least. There are women who have sex appeal and those who totally lack it. There are women who have winning ways and who know instinctively how to rub men's fur the right way, and there are those who are born antagonistic to men and who never learn the trick of pleasing them.

But all the same, in addition to the widow being possessed of the necessary amount of appeal, as she has proved by having married one man, she also has a technique that enables her to win out over her spinster sisters. For in a sense she is a professional, while they are mere amateurs, for she has had a husband and, like Mr. Kipling's hero, she has learned about men from him.

Knows Angles

She knows, as no inexperienced girl can, how to please men, how to get around the angles in their dispositions, how to jolly them along, and when to talk and when to keep silent. The young girl expects a man to devote his time to pleasing and amusing her, but the widow pets and coddles the man.

Furthermore, a widow doesn't demand so much of a man as a girl does. She isn't always calling him up over the telephone in business hours. She doesn't make scenes when he is a little late in keeping an appointment. She is good-natured and sensible and easy to get along with and knows how to make allowances for a man, and that makes men think her a preferred risk in matrimony. As indeed, she is.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Do you think that a middle-aged man who has grown children and a good, faithful wife can really fall in love with a young girl? Isn't it softening of the brain rather than love? Did you ever know of a case where a young girl ever really fell in love with an old man where it wasn't just a pretense to get his money?

ANSWER: I have never known of a single case in which an old man has divorced a faithful wife in order to marry a young girl in which the man did not bitterly repent the mistake he had made. Many men around 50 go through a period of nervous mental irresponsibility. They look at their wives and realize that they have grown old, but they delude themselves into thinking they themselves are still young.

Many a man divorces his faithful old wife and marries a young girl while in this age of irresponsibility, but no sooner is the wedding ceremony safely over than he discovers that his illusion of youth was just a pipe dream, and that he is an old man after all. Also, he soon learns that the girl he married has nothing in common with him, that all she wants is his pocketbook and to run around and have a good time with boys of her own age.

There are no more forlorn creatures in the world than the old husbands of young wives that you see sitting on the sidelines at night clubs, cabarets and restaurants, waiting to pay the bill.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: The young man to whom I am engaged frankly tells me that he will not be true to me after we are married. He says no man is true to his wife. That it is a physical impossibility. He is a handsome lad, well educated, has an excellent position and I thought that I was much in love with him, but since he has made this confession I am not so sure. What shall I do?

TRUE BLUE

ANSWER: "Forewarned is forearmed," said the old proverb, and since this young man has announced to you that he doesn't even expect to be faithful to you, you will be very foolish if you do not leave him to his philanderings without involving yourself in them. As long as a man really loves a woman in the way she wants to be loved he is immune to the attractions of other women.

HALIFAX, Oct. 11 (CP)—Francis Freeman Payne, 60, publisher of the Nelson, B. C., Daily News, attending meetings of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association here, died suddenly in hospital Sunday night.

Ottawa Divides Weekend Tilts With Alouettes

By JACK MITCHELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Dominion champion Calgary Stampeders emerged today from a jumbled week-end as the only unbeaten team in Grey Cup football after a crowded holiday fare of 14 games.

Coach Les Lear's Stamps won both their week-end starts to stretch their Western Canada League victory string to nine. They're already a cinch for one of the league's two playoff spots, leading Regina's runner-up Saskatchewan Roughriders by eight points.

Ottawa Rough Riders, the only other Grey Cup contender boasting an unsullied record before the weekend, were knocked off the victory path. Montreal Alouettes, the team that Ottawa twice beat by single points, turned the tables with a single-point victory Saturday, although Riders recovered to wallop the Als in a return engagement.

The week-end produced its upsets, notably the victory of Toronto Balmy Beach over Windsor Rockets after six starts without even coming close.

Here's a rundown on the results and what they meant to playoff chances:

Clinch Playoff Spot

In the East's big four league, Ottawa virtually clinched a playoff berth by defeating Alouettes 42-33 in a wide-open Sunday game in Montreal after the Als edged them 20-19 in Ottawa Saturday. Toronto Argos twice beat Hamilton Wildcats—11-10 and 29-8—to tighten their grasp on the second playoff position.

Argos, four points behind the Riders, also are four points ahead of Alouettes. But besides holding a game in hand, the Als have three games remaining with Frank Gnup's winless Wildcats. Argos have finished with Wildcats — four victories in four starts. Their remaining four games are two against Ottawa and two against Montreal.

In the Ontario Union, playing-coach Merle Hapes' Hamilton Tigers moved into a first place tie with Sarnia Imperials by defeating the Imps 15-2 after beating Windsor Rockets 13-6 Saturday. Sarnia kept their share of the lead by swamping Balmy Beach 19-1 Saturday.

Blow To Beaches

The Rockets capped a bad week-end by losing 11-7 to the Beaches. That just about settled their playoff hash, leaving them four points behind the two league-leaders.

The East's Intercollegiate Circuit, which doesn't challenge for the Grey Cup, got off to a late but rousing start Saturday. Toronto's Varsity Blues turned in a thrilling 22-21 opening victory over Queen's and Western Mustangs spotted McGill 12 points, then beat them 14-12.

At Toronto, Royal Copeland led Argos to their 29-8 win over Hamilton. The husky Blonde, filling in at full-back for the injured Joe Krol, leaped the line for one touchdown and pitched a payoff pass to quarterback Nick Volpe for another. He also lent a helping hand in setting up the other three—two scored by Doug Pyzer and one by Doug Smylie.

Hasty Pees

color party led the parade, bearing flags and regimental colors. It consisted of Major Roy Young of Picton, CSM Downes of Trenton, Joseph Develin of Peterborough and Stan Roscoe, also of Peterborough. Captain Herb Long of Port Hope commanded the party.

Then followed the Queen's Own Bugle Band from Toronto, 50 strong, under Drum Major Robert Wilson. Last year the Bugle Band marched with the Hasty-Pees at the Belleville meet and comment was so favorable that it was invited to come to Peterborough.

Loud applause from the spectators greeted the bandsmen, who had an extensive reportoire of martial airs. The Peterborough Citizens' Band, under Captain W. H. Peryer, provided the other musical accompaniment.

400 In Parade

At least 400 ex-members of the regiment, divided into four platoons, and for the most part dressed in civvies with berets and ribbons, marched behind the two bands in the warm autumn sun. Lt.-Col. Max Porritt, MC, of Belleville, present CO of the Reserve Battalion, was in charge of the parade. Regimental Sergeant Major Angus Duffy of Belleville, one of the unit's best-known personalities, was parade marshall.

Flanking Lt.-Col. A. A. (Ack-Ack) Kennedy, DSO, of Owen Sound, CO of the unit in Italy, at the saluting base on George St., was the six-foot-six figure of the regimental mascot, Chief Petawawa-Much II. The varnished cigar-store Indian was the successor to a similar one carried overseas by the Hasty-Pees and later abandoned at Brest in 1940 when they had to embark hastily to escape the onrushing Germans.

Originally it was scheduled that Maj.-General H. D. Graham, CBE, DSO, vice-chief of staff, would take the salute, but he was delayed in Washington on defence talks, and the duty fell to Lt.-Col. Kennedy.

The marchers' route was from the War Memorial south on George St. to Charlotte east to Water, and north to McDonnel; then west on McDonnel and south again on George, past the saluting base in Confederation Park. Finally the marchers turned west at Murray St. and broke off in the Armouries.

A banquet to accommodate the first 250 who registered was held in the Canadian Legion Hall shortly after 2 p.m. It was sponsored by the Red Patch Club and catering was performed by the Ladies' Auxiliary of Branch 52, Canadian Legion.

The overflow, who could not obtain places at the Legion Hall joined the women of the party at at a special Thanksgiving Day dinner in the Empress Hotel.

As well as Lt.-Col. Kennedy at the head table in the Legion Hall were the Rev. W. J. Gilling of St. Luke's Angican Church and wartime padre of the unit: Captain Leonard Hyslop of Belleville; Capt Ken. Smith of Kingston; Mike Gahagan of Peterborough; Lt.-Col. Max Porritt of Belleville; Mayor Max Swanston of Peterborough; Harold Yelland, president of the Canadian Legion, Branch 52; RSM Angus Duffy of Belleville; Captain George Van Koughnett of Peterborough; Patrick Burke, past president of Branch 52 and C. McWilliams, 1st vice-president of Branch 52.

Entertainment during the banquet was provided by the music of Hal MacFarlane and three members of his band, Art. Walters, Don Ford and Norman Buzzell. El Jones of CHEX was master of ceremonies and doubled as a vocalist with a couple of his own specialties.

But the afternoon's high in cheering was reserved for curvaceous Zena Cheevers of Toronto who provided several dancing numbers, including tap, acrobatic and Latin American.

At the conclusion of the banquet there was a draw, proceeds to go to the scholarship fund, and the annual business meeting. When the year's business was finished members adjourned to the Armouries for a social afternoon and evening.

Groom's Father Marries Dale Dugan, Max Haverstock

A setting of golden yellow 'mums with ferns and palms was arranged in Murray St. Baptist Church Saturday afternoon for the wedding of Miss Dale Lorraine Dugan, to Mr. Max Stuart Haverstock, the ceremony being performed by the groom's father, the Rev. L. S. Haverstock of Peterborough. The bride is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Dugan, Westcott St.

Mrs Al. Spencley was soloist and before the ceremony she sang "The Lord's Prayer" and at the signing of the register, "Because." The organist Mr. Stanley Northrop, played wedding music.

Given in marriage by her uncle Mr. George Mac Donald, the bride was in a gown of white satin with circular train edged with net, coming to a deep point at the centre. Matching net was gathered to the yoke of lace, circling to the back of the bodice which was fastened with covered buttons. She wore a white beaded coronet which held her three-quarter length veil of embroidered net and she was carrying a bouquet of Bettertime roses.

Her attendants were Miss Lois Whatley of Hamilton, and her sister Miss Marion Dugan in frocks of mauve and gold irridescent taffeta, styled with sweetheart neckline and short sleeves on the tightly fitted waists and full skirts with pepiums. Each wore gloves and a poke bonnet of the material of her dress. Miss Whatley carried yellow 'mums and Miss Dugan had rust and gold 'mums.

The groomsman was Mr. Wilton Smith of Wilton Grove, Ontario. Ushers were Leslie Dyer and Wilbert Edgar.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Dugan chose a gown of grey crepe and feathered hat in grey and maroon shades and wore a corsage of Sunbeam roses. Mrs. Haverstock, mother of the groom, wore a navy printed silk dress and navy accessories.

Both assisted the wedding party at the reception in the YWCA Green Room.

The bride's going-away outfit was a chartreuse crepe dress with which she wore black accessories and a black shortie coat, and she had a corsage of white carnations. After a trip to Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. Haverstock will take up residence at 89 Carrick Ave., in Hamilton.

Fallis-Chevis Millbrook Rites

The marriage took place in St. Thomas Anglican Church, Millbrook, on Saturday, of Olga Beatrice Chevis, daughter of Mrs. Joseph O'Donnell and the late Mr. Walter Smith and Reginald Isaac Fallis, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Fallis. The Rev. C. M. McLean officiated.

White chrysanthemums were on the altar. The wedding music was played by Miss M. Collins and Mrs. G. A. Spicer sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. L. L. Paquet of Toronto, and she wore an afternoon dress of Gainsborough blue satin with matching hat with pink feather and pink mittens. She carried a bouquet of pink roses. The matron-of-honor was Mrs. L. L. Paquet and she was dressed in brown taffeta, matching hat with green feather and green mittens. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

The groomsman was Dr. M. E. Hobbs and the ushers were Edgar Paquet, nephew of the bride, and Clifford Larmer, cousin of the groom.

A reception was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. M. E. Hobbs where the bride's mother received wearing a grey tissue faille dress with black felt hat and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's sister-in-law, Mrs. Lawrence Fallis, who also received, wore a black velvet dress, black hat and fox furs, and a corsage of Butterfly roses.

Later the bride and groom left for a trip to Ottawa and points east. For travelling the bride wore a powder blue wool jersey dress, a red coat and grey accessories. One return they will live on the groom's farm, Fallis Line.

Dawson-Curtis

A quiet wedding solemnized in St. Luke's Anglican Church Saturday afternoon was of Anna (Queen) Curtis, only daughter of Mr. J. Curtis and the late Mrs. Curtis, of Toronto, and Mr. William Dawson, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. Dawson, also of Toronto. The Rev. W. J. Gilling officiated

The bride was given in marriage by her father and she wore a wine colored afternoon dress and hat with black accessories and her corsage was of Talisman roses Her attendant was Mrs. A. McIlvena of Peterborough, wearing navy silk print with black hat and accessories and a corsage of tiny white 'mums with pink rosebuds.

The groom was attended by his brother Mr. J. Dawson of Toronto.

A reception was held at 69 Hunter St. E. with Mrs. R. Bacon receiving She was dressed in a grey ensemble and wore a corsage of pink roses. The rooms were decorated with autumn flowers and white bells and the table centred with the wedding cake and pink candles.

Following dinner the couple left on a motor trip and will later reside in Toronto.

Cobourg Ghosts Win Over Queen's, 14-6

COBOURG, Oct. 11 (ENS) — Cobourg Galloping Ghosts defeated Queen's intermediates by the score of 14-6 in an exhibition rugby game played here on Thanksgiving Day. Both teams were neck and neck until Cobourg turned on the steam late in the third quarter and then, in the last quarter took advantage of a favorable wind to open up an aerial offensive. Queen's had their team spiked with a number of senior players but found the Ghosts' line too tough and their forward passing too effective to overcome.

Bevan, a new on the Ghosts this year, proved a fast player. Light in build, he got away in a flashing burst of speed. Cooper was another good performer for Cobourg in yesterday's game, along with Boyd and Seale.

On the Queen's line-up Flemming, Ramsden, Speropolous and Puro turned in a good game.

In the first quarter, Cooper passed to Douglas in the first two minutes of play in a pass that took the ball from Queen's 40 yard line to the 15 marker Douglas taking it the remainder of the distance for a touchdown. The convert attempt was unsuccessful. Score was 5-0 for the locals at quarter time.

In the second quarter, Queen's started to break through the Ghosts' kick formation just before the end of the first half. Cooper's kick on his own 20 yard line was blocked by Speropolous and Sutton scooped it up and carried it over for a touchdown that was not converted. Score at half time was 5-5.

In the third quarter Ramsden kicked and Bevans conceded the rouge for another Queen's point Cobourg commenced a drive up the Queen's field that put the ball on Queen's 15 yard line at three-quarter time. In the last quarter Cooper threw a long forward to Boyd who caught it neatly for a touchdown but the play was called back on an offside ruling. Brandwood kicked for a poin Cooper forward passed to Boyd on Queen's 12 yard line for a touchdown which Brandwood converted to bring the score up to 12-6. Cooper kicked it over the line and Boyd nailed Puro for another point. On the last play Cooper kicked over the deadline to hoist the count to 14-6.

Try New Pavement

MONTREAL, Oct. 11—(CP) — Quebec may be the first in Canada to have rubberized asphalt highways. The new asphalt, obtained by adding powderized rubber to the usual asphalt mixture, is claimed to be entirely waterproof and frost resistant. It is scheduled to be given its first practical test today over a one-mile stretch of highway near the outskirts of Montreal.

Trapped By Fire Woman Killed

TORONTO, Oct. 11 (CP)—Mrs. Myrtle Baker, 24, died Monday night from burns suffered earlier in the day when she was trapped by flames which gutted a three-storey building on Spadina Ave., in central Toronto.

Firemen said that despite pleas of her 24-year-old husband, the building's caretaker, the woman refused to jump from the second floor into a life net after flames cut off a stairway.

The husband jumped, fracturing his ankle when he struck a tree, but the wife fled to the top floor, where firemen found her unconscious 20 minutes later.

Six other occupants of the brownstone building escaped down firemen's ladders or through windows. Damage was estimated at $15,000.

Car Hits Train Carried 35 Feet

A joust between a freight train and a 1948 model car Friday night ended in a clear-cut decision for the freight.

As a result of the collision at the CNR tracks on the Park Hill Road crosing at Jackson Park the car is a total wreck.

It was carried 35 feet by the passing box cars, according to the police version of the accident, and then turned over. Both occupants were shaken up but otherwise uninjured.

Driver of the vehicle was Allan F. Hansford of 696 Stormont St., who told police he had borrowed it from the owner, Bruce Wakeford, 95 Lansdowne St., in order to take home a friend. The friend and only passenger was Basil Goulah, 996 High St.

Hansford told the investigating police constables, Harold Mesley and Louis Roderigue, that the freight was stopped when he ran into it.

He stated he had been driving west on Park Hill Road and had reached the bottom of the hill leading down to the tracks before he saw the freight ahead. He applied his brakes but ran into a box car before coming to a stop.

The vehicles is insured.

Conductor on the train was W. E. Gilmour of RR 1, Peterborough, and the engineer was Harry Dawkins of Lindsay.

Fire Chief Thomas Love of Scarboro's No. 1 area said he could offer no explanation for failure of the apparatus. Scarboro council promised an investigation.

Cause of the fire was not determined.

Russia Calls For UN Count Of A-Bombs

US Labels Suggestion Another Attempt To Try Fool Public

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Oct. 12 (CP)—Russia has proposed before the Security Council that all members of the United Nations submit information on atomic weapons as well as other armaments.

Warren R. Austin, United States delegate and this month's council chairman, called the Soviet move "another attempt to fool the public."

Jakob A. Malik, Soviet deputy foreign minister, submitted the Russian proposal at the close of a heated council session where he cast Russia's 39th veto.

The latest Soviet veto blocked approval of support of a report by the council's commission for conventional armaments stipulating principles for disarmament. Only Russia and the Soviet Ukraine dissented on the report.

The Soviet scheme called for a tally of all weapons, from atom bombs to airplanes and artillery, from battleships to bayonets. Each country would report on its own weapons under Malik's proposal, with no provision for checking on the truth of the statements.

Austin did not answer Malik on the floor. But immediately after the meeting he told newspaper men: "A census of weapons without verification is meaningless. This is another attempt to fool the public."

The Russian proposal was not acted on and Malik refused to go into detail on it when he spoke to newspaper men after the meeting.

Malik's speech took on added interest because it was the first Russian statement of atomic policy since President Truman's disclosure that an atomic explosion took place recently in Russia. Malik returned to the United States from Moscow after the news broke.

His resolution demanding the over-all tally was the first time that Russia has put its demand into a formal resolution. But the Russians have always opposed moves for an arms census unless it includes atomic weapons and have always said they should be outlawed.

FIST - SWINGING DELEGATE—Pat Rooney, a pert and shapely miss from Hamilton, led a pocket-size riot staged by left-wingers at the Canadian Congress of Labor convention in Ottawa over expulsion of the red-tinged International Union of Mine, Mills and Smelter Workers. A United Electrical Workers delegate, Miss Rooney rushed the platform, took a couple of swings at CCL President A. R. Mosher and then grabbed a microphone to berate the meeting until she was led away in tears by friends.

Oust Shields As President After 22 Years

TORONTO, Oct. 12 (CP)—The Rev. Dr. T. T. Shields, pastor of Jarvis Street Baptist Church here, today lost the presidency of the Union of Regular Baptist Churches of Ontario and Quebec, a post he has held since he founded the organization 22 years ago.

The Rev. E. C. Wood of Timmins was elected president to succeed Dr. Shields in ballotting on the executive at the union's 22nd annual convention here.

Mr. Wood has served as vice-president during the last year.

The number of ballots cast for each candidate for the presidency was not announced.

The election demonstrated a split in the convention that has grown since the Rev. W. Gordon Brown established the Central Baptist Seminary in Toronto after he was dismissed as dean of Dr. Shields' Toronto Baptist Seminary last December.

Mr. Brown's supporters Tuesday took seven out of eight seats on the strategic nominating committee which will present today's list of candidates.

Army Prisoner LeapsFromPlane

NASHVILLE, Ark., Oct. 12 — (AP)—A daring young soldier, Pte. Howard A. Shinneman, may own the dubious distinction of being the first United States military prisoner to parachute from a plane.

The 23-year-old Clinton, Ill., war veteran dived out of a C-82—commonly known as a "Flying Boxcar"—at about 3,000 feet over Southwestern Arkansas Tuesday afternoon. The plane was carrying a crew and 10 military prisoners from Forbes Air Force Base at Topeka, Kas., to Clarksdale Air Force base, Shreveport., La.

The spectacular break was engineered, Shinneman said, to win a $5 bet he doesn't expect to collect—and for a thrill. He said he didn't intend to escape; but had planned to report to Barksdale on his own.

Train Hits Freight 25 Passengers Killed

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 12 (AP)—At least twenty-five persons were killed and more than 100 were injured in a collision of a freight train and a resort-bound passenger train just before midnight Tuesday night.

Most of the casualties in the train wreck were in the second-class sections, into which the incoming freight train plowed head-on.

President Juan D. Peron, his wife and cabinet ministers hurried to the scene of the crash near the President Peron railway station.

An oil tank car of the freight train exploded, spreading fire through the wreckage.

Chinese Reds 40 Miles From Canton

Roads, Trains Jammed Hundreds Flee As Officials Panic

HONG KONG, Oct. 12—(AP)—The Red heat was on Canton today. The government and foreign diplomats fled the Nationalist capital—a step ahead of Chinese Communist troops.

Communist newspapers in this British Crown colony carried reports that Canton's defenders were preparing to evacuate and hand the city to the Reds.

Red forces were believed no more than 40 miles from the South China metropolis of nearly 1,000,000 people—seat of the Nationalist government in name only. There were no details of Tuesday's reports the invaders had taken Tsingyun, 40 miles north. Communist military dispatches said Swatow, on the China coast northeast of Canton, already had fallen. Amoy, they said, was tottering.

Gen. Hwang Sen, commanding two communities just north of Canton's northern suburbs, was said to have gone over to the approaching Reds.

Government employees hurried to get out before the Reds came into Canton. Their destination: Chungking. The interior city 600 miles to the northwest will again be the refugee capital as it was during the second World War.

Diplomats Go

Practically all foreign diplomats already had quit Canton. Most of them came to Hong Kong. They will proceed to Chungking under their own steam rather than avail themselves of transportation offered by the Nationalists.

Baggage-laden trucks and carts streamed endlessly towards Canton's railway station, docks and airport. Every plane, ship and train to the British Crown Colony to the south was loaded to capacity.

Chinese newspapers said acting president Li Tsung-jen may go to Kweilin, capital of Kwangsi province, instead of following the government to Chungking. He would join his close associate, Gen. Pai Chung-hsi, who has just withdrawn 200,000 troops into Kwangsi—the best unified force remaining to the Nationalists.

Meanwhile, Nationalist leaders continued to squabble.

Charges Beating

DETROIT, Oct. 12—(CP)—Pete Horeck, 26-year-old forward for the Boston Bruins, who open the National League season tonight against the Detroit Red Wings at Olympia was accused today by his wife of beating her so severely six months after they were married that she required extensive medical treatment. The charges were made by Mrs. Anne D. Horeck in a suit for separate maintenance filed in circuit court.

Thousands Vanish In Purge Gov't Grabs Small Shops

PRAGUE, Oct. 12 (AP)—New Nationalized businesses sprang up in Prague today in shops whose owners had been seized in widespread police roundups. The purge arrests were reported continuing.

Several persons who went to trade with their former neighborhood druggists, bakers or book shops reported they found Communist-controlled national administrations had been installed.

The businesses had been seized by the government. In some cases it was reported the families of the former owners also had been thrown out of their apartments.

This lent substantiation to persistent reports that police action against small business men which engulfed most of Prague the last 10 days had been aimed at liquidating remnants of the middle class. Big enterprises had long since been nationalized.

But the business men were only one class arrested in these round-ups, which were reliably estimated to have seized thousands in this capital alone. Landlords and other propertied persons, together with many doctors and lawyers and just ordinary people, also had come into the police dragnet.

Reliable reports said many of the people seized had been sent to forced labor camps by Communist-controlled national committees.

People still found it difficult, if not impossible, to obtain information about arrested relatives.

The government Tuesday extended its hold over Czech economy by taking control of privately-owned farm machinery, barns and storage spaces.

The cabinet approved regulations making them available for comopmn use wherever necessary. There was speculation that this was the first step toward collectivization of the country's small farms.

Arrested 24 Times, Steals $500,000 Sweet-Faced Old Lady 73, Back In Jail

BERKELEY, Calif., Oct. 12—(AP)—There's a sweet-faced little old lady in jail here who brags about crime the way most women her age talk of sewing or knitting.

She was booked as Mrs. Frances Worthington, 73, wanted at Lansing, Kans., for violation of parole from the Kansas State Industrial Farm for Women.

Closing a well-thumbed Bible Tuesday, she reminisced to reporters: about her full and active life.

"You know, my dear, I'm one of the most accomplished pickpockets in the world. In 40 years I have stolen close to $500,000."

"It's been a wonderful life," she sighed. "Travel and fun. The police are all such nice gentlemen and my Bible comforts me."

Police Inspector E. F. Parker said the grandmotherly woman had been arrested 24 times since 1910 on charges ranging from shoplifting to arson and grand larceny.

Commons Approves Bill For Abolishing Appeals To Privy Council

OTTAWA, Oct. 12—(CP)—A bill abolishing appeals to the judicial committee of the Privy Council, the first piece of major legislation introduced at the current session, was passed Tuesday by the Commons. The legislation, now subject to three readings by the Senate before it can become law, was approved after objections by some opposition members who sought either to have it shelved for six months or to have it amended in some particulars.

No formal vote was called, but Progressive Conservatives shouted "On Division" to signify opposition to adoption of the measure, one of several bills on the order paper when the government dissolved the last session and called a general election for June 27.

Leading the opposition's fight was T. L. Church (PC—Toronto Broadview), a veteran member noted for criticism of legislation likely to loosen Canadian ties with the "empire."

He fought through part of two sittings to have formal approval delayed until today. In the end he protested in vain that Speaker Ross Macdonald and Deputy Speaker Alfred Dion had not put to the House a motion he had submitted during the discussion.

He said the motion asked either that the bill be given a six-month hoist or that it be referred back to the committee of the whole House. A motion to give a bill a six-month hoist is usually aimed at "killing" the legislation.

Little Senate Opposition

Because of the overwhelming Liberal membership in the Senate, political observers believe the measure will run into little opposition there. When it becomes law, the Supreme Court of Canada will be the country's last court of appeal on all matters. The court's membership will be increased from seven to nine to handle the extra work.

In the judicial debate, amendments by E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops) and Wilfrid Lacroix (L—Quebec Montmorency) were defeated without recorded votes.

Mr. Fulton's amendment would have inserted the state decision rules—that the Supreme Court

Hundreds Police Hunting Actress

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12—(AP)—Fearing another Black Dahlia slaying, police today launched an intensive search of Griffin Park's Fern Dell for the body of Jean Spangler, film bit player.

The 27-year-old beauty's purse, with handles ripped off one side, was found in Fern Dell some 36 hours after she disappeared.

Several hundred officers are participating in the hunt.

Investigators said they had little to go on in a parallel with unsolved sex killings such as that of Elizabeth Short, called the "Black Dahlia" in January, 1947.

In Miss Spangler's purse was found a cryptic note, apparently in her handwriting, stating: "Kirk: Can't wait any longer. Going to see Dr. Scott. It will work best this way while mother is away."

None of Miss Spangler's friends knew a "Kirk." Detective Lt. Harry Didion said the existence of the doctor has been confirmed, but that his whereabouts is unknown.

Actor Robert Cummings disclosed Tuesday that he saw the brunette on a movie set last Wednesday and that she mentioned she had a new romance.

Closed Season Urged On Moose Across Quebec

MINIWAKI, Que., Oct. 12 (CP)—A closed season may have to be declared on Canadian moose in Northern Quebec to protect dwindling herds from the guns of Canadian and United States sportsmen.

Game officials estimate that before the 25-day Quebec Moose hunting season ends Oct. 25, more than 200 of the majestic forest animals will have fallen to the blazing guns of hunters.

"It is high time something was done to correct the situation," Game Warden Donovan McFaul said Tuesday night. He estimated that close to 150 Canaidan moose already had been killed this month.

"The moose population has been decreasing very rapidly in the last five years," the warden said. "It is very noticeable."

The warden stressed that hunters, large numbers of them from the United States, were sticking rigidly to hunting regulations, which allows a hunter to "bag" only one moose.

"The hunters are doing nothing illegal, but we will have to do something to protect moose."

The heavy toll of Canadian moose is not new. Warden McFaul said the number of moose killed this year was about the same as those taken in the last two or three years.

Not Too Bright

TORONTO, Oct 12 — (CP). — There is no open season on moose in Ontario this year and the moose situation in this province is "none too bright," an expert here said today. Prof. Peter Peterson of the University of Toronto, who has been making a survey of the moose population in Ontario, said that the number of moose killed in Ontario last year approached the natural increase in the animal population.

Vet Admits Looting 50 Houses

Thousands of Dollars Involved In Thefts In Last Two Years

TORONTO, Oct. 12 —(CP)—Police said that burglary on a wholesale scale has been admitted by Gordon Montgomery, tall, well-dressed war veteran. Police said he had broken into at least 50 homes in Toronto district in the last two years.

He was tracked down Tuesday night through fingerprints found in the home of one of his alleged victims. Later, police said, he tourned North Toronto residential districts with a police escort and is said to have pointed out some 20 houses he ransacked in the last couple of years.

The print of the 28-year-old married man was found Oct. 4 at a North Toronto house, shortly after the premises were broken into and two suitcases, a bottle of whisky and cigarets stolen.

Police said the empty whisky bottle and the suitcase were found when they raided a rooming house and arrested Montgomery at gunpoint.

Thousands In Loot

Police said the loot taken in the forays amounted to thousands of dollars. They said a large quantity was recovered Tuesday night.

Montgomery was remanded in custody until Oct. 19 when he appeared in court today on one charge of housebreaking. Bail of $5,000 was asked.

Police said other charges will be laid.

Police said expensive prieces of jewellery stolen during the two-year spree had been broken up. Settings were discarded and diamonds and other gems sold. This, they said, made it difficult if not impossible to identify the articles.

Irreplaceable keepsakes stolen from some homes were broken up and the settings discarded, police said. They said they found initialed watches, six suitcases, pens, lighters and a variety of other articles, when they raided Montgomery's room, Tuesday.

Send Top Conciliators Into Rail Dispute

OTTAWA, Oct. 12 (CP) — Stalled wage-hour – negotiations between the railways and spokesmen for 112,000 union employees are to get a hand from the Labor Department.

Two top government conciliators, Labor Minister Mitchell announced Tuesday, are being sent to help settle the dispute at the request of the unions.

At the same time, it was learned that the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, negotiating separately for 30,000 members, also was likely to ask for conciliators.

The two men named by the department, M. M. Maclean and H. R. Pettigrove, will deal with a dispute between the railways and their members of 12 international unions, who are seeking shorter hours along with wage increases.

NEW C.N.R. PRESIDENT—Donald Gordon, 47, deputy-governor of the Bank of Canada and wartime chieftain of the Prices Board, has been named president of the Canadian National Railways succeeding R. C. Vaughan. Announcement of the appointment was made in the Commons Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Vaughan, who has been president and chairman of the board of the C.N.R. since 1942, is retiring.

Donald Gordon Appointed CNR President

OTTAWA, Oct. 12 — (CP) — Donald Gordon, 47-year-old financial wizard who was Canada's Wartime Prices boss, will be the next head of the vast Canadian National Railways System.

A banker and economist, Mr. Gordon will move into one of the biggest railroading jobs in the world on January 1 from his present post of Deputy-Governor of the Bank of Canada.

Transport Minister Chevrier announced Tuesday in the Commons he will succeed R. C. Vaughan, now past the retirement age of 65, as chairman and president of the government-owned system that stretches from coast to coast and includes steamship lines, hotels, telegraphs, and other services.

Arouses Criticism

A few hours after the announcement, the appointment ran into Progressive Conservative criticism in the House.

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) called it a "shameuld yiolation" of the principle of promotion within an organization, and T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Broadview) said this principle should have been considered.

Mr. Fleming attacked government "interference" in railway management, which he said could "bedevil" the efficient operation of a railroad. He declared the apopintment of a man with no railroading experience would be bad for CNR morale.

Both he and Mr. Church commended Mr. Gordon's ability and service to the country, and Mr Fleming said he was not reflecting on Mr. Gordon personally. He would make the same criticisms of any non-CNR appointee.

Keeping "Plums"

He accused the government of reserving top job "plums" for itself and taking them away from employees.

Mr. Gordon becomes the youngest chief of the $2,500,000,000 CNR in its 31-year history, and the first in 16 years to be chosen from outside the ranks of railway men.

Responsible On Boat For Fire Fighting Mate Tells Inquiry

TORONTO, Oct. 12 (CP)—The ship's officer in charge of fire fighting operations during the Noronic holocaust of Sept. 17 testified today he issued no instructions to rouse passengers, although he realized at once the fire was uncontrollable.

First Mate F. Gerald Wood told the Federal inquiry into the fire which took a toll of 105 identified dead and 19 missing, he knew the fire could not be controlled immediately after he sounded the alarm.

He said no member of the crew was assigned the duty of rousing passengers in case of fire when the cruise-steamship was in port.

A record of the all-night stopovers made by the cruise-steamer since 1946 showed she was in port with passengers on five occasions, prior to being swept by fire here last Sept. 17.

Wood said he was First Mate on the ship during those occasions and no crew member had been assigned to rouse passengers in case of fire.

On the night of the fire, the mate said, he retired to his quarters on A deck about 1:10 E.S.T., undressed and started to read a newspaper.

Hears Bell

"Did you hear some signal?" asked commission counsel J. W. Pickup.

"Yes, I did. I heard the bell."

"Do you mean the bell that sounds in the forward part of that deck when one of those fire alarm boxes is broken?"

"Yes, sir."

Wood said he could not fix the time but as he was dressing, the wheelsman came and told him there was a fire on C deck.

"Did he give you any further information as to the fire—the extent of it?"

"No, sir."

"Did you give him any instructions?"

"No, sir."

"Then what did you do?"

Prisoner Skips Caught On Ledge

TORONTO, Oct. 12 — (CP).—A prisoner made a spectacular bid for freedom today when he eluded guards in City Hall Court, leaped to the window no the west side of the building and stood on the ledge and threatened to throw himself to the ground if anybody came near him.

Hundreds of noon-hour spectators stood and watched the tense drama until finally a police officer leaned out a window and seised the prisoner by the neck.

Extra police from a downtown division were called out to handle the crowds who stood in the pouring rain to watch the prisoner on the narrow ledge of the old grey building.

Firemen rigged up an extension ladder in an effort to take the prisoner, despite shouted threats that he would jump if they came close.

Discontinue Teaching Betty Ritchie Says

FENELON FALLS, Oct. 12 — (CP)—Betty Ritchie, the 25-year-old school teacher friend of society burglar Gerrard Dennis, said Tuesday she probably won't continue teaching. She arrived at her home Tuesday.

Miss Ritchie spent some time in police custody in Los Angeles on suspicion of being an accomplice of the smooth-talking Dennis. Dennis, whom Betty hoped to marry, under the name of Jerry McKay, now is serving an 18-year sentence in prison.

Back with her family after two years in the United States, she said: "I guess everyone is entitled to one mistake in life and I made mine."

Will Spend 77 Million In Dominion

New Allocation Raises Total To 886 Million For Dominion Orders

OTTAWA, Oct. 12 (CP)—Another sizable slice of Marshall-Plan dollars was allocated last month for spending in Canada.

The Department of Trade and Commerce Tuesday night released long columns of figures showing that during September the United States approved a total of $77,753,000 for countries receiving funds under the economic co-operation administration for purchases in Canada.

The new allocations raised to $886,172,776 the total amount that foreign countries have been authorized for spending in Canada.

Coupled with $12,200,000 granted Britain Tuesday for purchase of Canadian pork products, the September allocations brought the total off-shore purchases scheduled to be made in the Dominion near the $1,000,000,000 mark. Should the current trend of allocations continue, that goal should be reached by the beginning of 1950.

Without counting the latest grant to the United Kingdom for pork products — expected to be spent mainly for bacon—Canada already has received 11 per cent of the total authorizations of $6,792,317,317. She has obtained a whopping 38 per cent of the $2,288,473,218 granted for off-shore—outside the United States—purchases.

The United Kingdom was granted most of the September funds approved for spending in Canada.

France Next

Of the $77,753,000 granted, no less than $74,015,000 was for U.K. purchases. France, with $1,399,-00[illegible] for herself, another $930,000 f[illegible] French North Africa and $ 5,000 for French overseas te[illegible]ories and the French zone of G[illegible]many, took the bulk of the r[illegible]ainder.

More than half of the U.K. authorizations was taken up with approval of a $40,000,000 order for wheat. Another $10,000,000 went for bread flour. That is the total September authorizations for purchase of Canadian bread grain products.

Approval was also given for purchase of some $22,722,000 worth of Canadian metals, minerals and alloys, with a U.K. order for $14,410,000 worth of aluminum heading the list. An allocation of $6,042,000 for lead from Canadian mines — $5,709,000 to go to the U.K.—was also approved.

The U.K. decided not to take $449,000 worth of non-ferrous metals and ferro-alloys, but asked for and received approval of purchases of $2,200,000 worth of non-metallic minerals and $1,125,000 in chemicals and chemical products. She also received permission to spend $640,000 on Canadian agricultural machinery, excluding tractors.

Approval was also given for purchase of $883,000 worth of Canadian lumber and wood products, bulk of it alloted to Turkey.

New Fall Wheat Not Favored

Some of the district farmers have been enquiring about a fall wheat called Egyptian Amber which is being offered from a source in Ontario county.

They have received copies of a circular letter making claims for this grain which are locally summarized as "absurd". Official information entirely confirms the doubts of producers who have for years been growing Dawson's Golden Chaff and latterly, in increasing acreage, the new winter wheat Cornell.

It was learned here that both the Ontario and Dominion Departments of Agriculture have not approved Egyptian Amber, that it is not registered, and that they are actually advising farmers to continue seeding the two varieties which have given them highly satisfactory results.

It is said that one of the claims for the intruder is that it may be sown up to Dec. 1 as compared with the early September planting of the established varieties. That claim strengthened the doubts of local farmers who have been reporting receipt of the circular.

Steady Rain Upsets Plowing Match

BRANTFORD, Oct. 12 (CP) — Rain today forced postponement of all events in the international plowing match, which started yesterday with provincial competitions eight miles west of here.

Rain fell all night and continued most of the day. It was only the second time in the 36 years' history of the international match that rain caused postponement.

"We have been pretty lucky in all these years," said J. A. Carroll, secretary of the Ontario Plowmen's Association, as he recalled the previous postponement was in York County in 1927.

The postponement was announced just before noon and the program continues unchanged except that it closes Saturday instead of Friday.

The official opening was set for 2 p.m. on Thursday when the international match will be started by Brig. O. M. Martin. The civic banquet which concludes the meet, with Premier Frost of Ontario as chief speaker, will be held on Saturday evening.

Competitions for tractor-plowing and horseplowing continue until Friday. Premier Frost of Ontario will speak at a windup banquet Friday night at which prizes will be awarded.

Intercounty Contests

Intercounty contests for horse and tractor plowmen from the counties of Brant, Haldimand, Norfolk, Oxford, Waterloo and Wentworth were held Tuesday. The events drew 165 competitors, ranging in age from nine-year-old Thomas George of RR 4, Brantford, to William Slaght, RR 1, Wilsonville, 82 years old.

Special attractions include a contour plowing demonstration arranged by the Ontario Agricultural College, a display of four border collies herding sheep and ducks, a giant exhibition of farm machinery in a mile-long tent city.

of the Privy Council affecting Canada. Mr. Fulton said the would be bound by past decisions prime minister had stated this would, in effect, be the situation but judges interpreted words and not intentions.

Mr. Lacroix' amendment would have given the provinces a role in the selection of the judges of the Supreme Court. The lieutenant-governors - in - council of the provinces would have submitted lists of candidates from which four of the nine judges would have been chosen. The remaining five would have been selected by the federal government.

Need Nine Judges

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) asked if there was any thought of leaving the membership of the court at seven until it could be seen what additional help is needed because of additional duties.

Justice Minister Garson replied that the Supreme Court had been consulted and it was found that nine was the number of judges needed.

At present two of the judges are from Quebec, two from Ontario, two from the western provinces and one from the Maritimes. Under the new set-up, Quebec will be given an additional appointment for a total of three and one other judge will be selected from elsewhere in the country.

Mr. Garson said the provision for three Quebec judges arose from the fact that civil law there is far different from the common law used in other provinces and the court would need three members to avoid a stalemate.

He said it was not known when the court will assume duties provided for it by the legislation before parliament.

With the job goes the presidency of the Canadian National Steamships Ltd., operating a service to the West Indies, and a position on the directorate of the Trans-Canada Air Lines, the government-owned air service.

The salary is estimated to be somewhere between $25,000 and $45,000, believed tops for any government job. Mr. Gordon was earning more than $20,000 with the Central Bank.

Appointment of the Scottish-born economic expert aroused speculation that the government may have in mind the use of his services in any financial reorganization of the Canadian National which may be recommended by the current Royal Commission on Transportation.

One of the problems the Commission is dealing with is the huge debt of the CNR, which costs $45,000,000 a year in interest charges and is generally regarded as out of line even for a system of the CNR's magnitude.

A powerfully-built man of enormous drive and organizing ability, Mr. Gordon ruled civilian Canada with an iron hand during most of the Second World War as head of the Prices Board in charge of price control, rationing and civilian supply.

Hill Appeal Is Dismissed

An appeal against a conviction of careless driving involving Murray Hill, Dublin Street, was dismissed in County Court today with costs, by Judge J. A McGibbon of Lindsay.

The charge arose out of a motor accident last January which resulted in the death of Mrs. Alice Waldron, a pedestrian, who was struck down at Lock and Braidwood Streets. She died later in hospital.

On June 27 he was convicted before Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, and fined $50, and costs.

Previously a charge of reckless driving against him was dismissed in County Court by Judge S. L. Smoke. Then the minor charge of careless driving was laid.

Judge McGibbon confirmed Magistrate Philp's conviction and assessed $40 costs.

In dismissing the appeal the Judge stated that Hill had been driving for four years and must have known the state of the roads on the morning of the accident.

"It is my opinion that he was driving the car without due care and attention," he said, "and certainly without reasonable consideration for persons using the highway"

The admitted speed of 25 miles per hour was too fast considering the conditions and circumstances, he added. If the accused had slowed doyn at the intersection, and if his lights had been on full he would have seen Mrs. Waldron stated Judge McGibbon.

Crown Attorney John Bradshaw appeared for the Crown, and T. J. Carley, KC, represented Hill.

Study Sea Birds In Film Shown To Nature Club

A variety of sea birds which Peterborough bird lovers have little opportunity of studying were shown on the screen at Queen Mary School auditorium Tuesday evening. The film show was the first of a series of five Audubon Society films to be shown during the winter under the auspices of the Peterborough Nature Club.

The film was exhibited by Dr. T. H. Work, a U.S. naturalist and wild life artist, who had taken most of the shots. He gave a running commentary as the audience of some 350 saw the exploits of himself and Dr. Harold Hill on bird banding expeditions to Pacific Islands off the California coast.

While medical undergraduates at Stanford University, and later as medical officers in the U.S. Navy, the doctors studied birds on the rocky Pacific islands, and were engaged in banding birds for the U. S. government.

In color, the film illustrated the hazards undergone by ardent conservationists, to collect information on comparatively rare birds. Species shown on the film were the common cormorant, tufted puffin California brown pelican, black oyster catcher, anklet, common murre and western gull.

Dr. Work, who is touring Canada and the States with his film, was introduced by J. L. McKeever, president of the Peterborough Nature Club.

Mr. McKeever explained that the Audubon Society, founded in the 1880's and now functioning throughout the States and Canada, was dedicated to conservation of wild life.

The next film, entitled Wilderness Mischief, will be exhibited by Dr. O. S. Pettingill on Nov. 26.

Policeman Kills Escaped Convict

MONTREAL, Oct. 12 (CP)—A 19-year-old escaped convict was shot and killed by an off-duty constable early today as he and two other escaped prisoners were trying to break into a private home in the north-east section of the city.

Police identified the dead youth as Jean Charle Labrosse. He was shot by Constable Emile Vottro, 36.

Labrosse's companions, Roger Ouellette, 21, and Gaston Mercier, 18, were arrested and are being held in police cells here pending their return to the St. Jersome, Que., jail from which they escaped shortly before midnight.

The youth was killed as he attempted to frighten the officer with a piece of metal in his hand. Vottro whipped out his own service revolver and fired one bullet into the convict's face.

Realized Fire

"I went to the wheelhouse and put in the klaxon horn in."

"Why did you do that without finding out the extent of the fire?"

"When I went out of my room I could see heavy smoke coming out of the starboard side of the ship."

Witness Vague

"The alarm having sounded, who was in charge of the fire extinction and getting the passengers ashore....?"

"I would be where I could be of any help."

"That's not quite an answer."

After lengthy questioning by Mr. Pickup and Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock, the commissioner, who once rebuked the witness for being vague in his replies, Wood admitted he would be in charge of directing fire operations.

Wood said that although the Noronic's master, Capt. William Taylor, returned to the ship, he —the first mate—remained in charge under fire fighting regulations. He said he saw the Captain twice, but spoke to him only once

The witness said the extent of consultation between the captain and himself was limited to an exchange of opinion that the fire was beyond control.

Wood said that after coming out of the wheel house he couldn't get off of A deck because of fire on both the starboard and port sides.

"Did you make any attempt to rouse passengers on A deck?"

Yells Fire

"I only hollered fire and banged on windows."

Wood said he tried to communicate with other parts of the ship by telephone but it was not working. Eventually he got down to B deck by a ladder.

On B deck, he saw passengers on the forward deck who asked what they could do to get off. He told them to go down to C deck, and all went.

Wood said he saw another officer of the crew on B deck.

On C deck, Wood said he found more passengers than he had seen on B deck perhaps 50-55. He said he saw no other officers or members of the crew on this deck.

Lets Down Rope Ladder

Wood said he went forward and let a rope over the side to let the passengers off the ship.

"Did you try to get any help from anybody?" asked Mr. Pickup.

"Not at that time," the witness said he could not say how long it was before he was joined by two other members of the crew, the boatswain and an oiler.

Wood said after the boatswain and oiler came along, he started back, to check if there were any persons in the parlors on the port side.

"I did not get very far. The parlors were full of fire." He told Mr. Pickup that at no time had he seen any hose in operation on the port side of C deck.

"During all this time you know of no instructions given to anyone to go and rouse passengers?" asked Mr. Pickup.

"Not that I know of," replied Wood.

No Instructions

"You gave no instructions to any one?"

"No."

Wood said he first realized the fire was beyond control when he came out of the wheelhouse after sounding the klaxon alarm.

The first mate said he did not use the ship-to-shore telephone to call the fire department because it was a "very slow operation." He estimated it would take three minutes to get a connection.

"Did you think of it?"

"No; I did not even think of it."

Wood said he believed it was more difficult to fight fire at sea that at dock.

The witness said he was unable to say the speed with which the fire that destroyed the Hamonic went beyond control after it broke out.

(The Hamonic, sister ship of the Noronic, burned at Point Edward, Ont., in 1946.)

Frank Wilkinson, counsel for Canada Steamship Lines, ship's owners, said in the case of the Hamonic the fire spread to the ship from a dock and did not break out on board.

In Charge In Emergency

Wood told Mr. Wilkinson he was the officer responsible for instructing men of their duties in an emergency.

The witness said it was his practice when a new man came aboard to show him the location of his fire hydrant and boat station, also inform him of the watch he is to stand.

Wood said he considered he had a "very alert" crew. He said their efficiency on boat and fire drills was good.

The witness said he checked fire stations at each drill and estimated he made the check of outside hydrants in "five to six minutes."

Asked by Capt. H. S. Kane of Montreal, commission assessor, if there would not be some crew member, instructed by the steward, charged with responsibility of rousing passengers in a certain part of the ship, Wood replied: "Well, yes."

"Do you mean there was someone.... actually charged with seeing that passengers were aroused at the time of the fire?" asked Mr. Justice Kellock.

Misunderstands Question

"No, that's not right," said Wood.

"Then why do you say these things?" said the commissioner. "I'm not scolding, but we are searching for facts, and we don't want to be diverted by something that is not fact."

Wood said he had not understood the question.

Wood told Mr. Wilkinson he had personally seen that all fire extinguishers aboard were recharged and in their proper places after fire-drills.

He said in one test at Duluth all 23 hoses were used. He estimated the hose projected water 75 feet.

Canadians Get More Pay Ontario Has Highest Income

OTTAWA, Oct. 11—(CP)—If wealth is a criterion of happiness then Canadians should be happier than at any time in history. They earned $11,883,000,000 last year—more money than ever before, including the free-spending days of the Second World War. As computed by the Bureau of Statistics, the personal incomes were particularly high in Ontario. In this industrial province, earnings last year amounted to $4,619,000,000. This was interpreted by the statisticians in the annual summary of incomes and expenditures as being an average of $1,075 for each person in the province.

It compared with the per-capita earnings of $1,024 by British Columbia, $959 by the prairies, $784 by Quebec and $653 by the Maritimes.

Ontario had the highest income but this did not necessarily mean that the province was enjoying the highest standard of living.

Prices fluctuated between provinces. Because demand was high and people had the means to pay, prices may be higher in Ontario than in other areas.

Comparisons Misleading

The statisticians also were quick to point out that direct comparisons between highly industrial areas and predominantly rural parts are misleading.

People do more for themselves in the rural areas and therefore spend less for things that become necessities for city folk. They grow their own produce and therefore spend less for food. They may need less of a variety of clothing than do city dwellers.

Reviewing the trends of personal incomes in Canada, the statisticians noted that year by year all the provinces are increasing personal incomes.

PEI Increase

In Prince Edward Island the total personal income in 1926 was -20,000,000, last year it was $51,-000,000.

Nova Scotia jumped from $133,-000,000 in 1926 to $433,000 000 in 1948, New Brunswick from $103,-000,000 to $320,000,000. Figures for the newest Maritime province, Newfoundland, were not available.

Quebec, runner-up to Ontario, increased personal income from $916,000,000 in 1926 to $2,972,000,-000 last year, Ontario from $1,-536,000,000 to $4,619,000,000; Manitoba, $286,000,000 to $716,000,-000; Saskatchewan $395,000 000 to $796,000,000; Alberta, $296,000,-000 to $844,000,000; British Columbia from $338,000,000 to $1,-132,000,000.

The Dominion taken as a whole climbed from $4,023,000,000 in 1926 to $11,883,000,000.

Fenders Damaged As Cars Collide

Cars driven by William Meredith, 490 Sherbrooke Street, and John Michels, RR 1, South Monaghan, collided Tuesday on Lansdowne at Short Street. Constable E. McDonald reports that as Mr. Meredith was passing Short Street on Lansdowne, and Mr. Michels turned from Short to Lansdowne, the cars met.

The left front fender, grill and left front wheel insert of Mr Meredith's car was damaged and there was slight damage to the right rear fender, and the tail light of Mr. Michel's car was smashed.

Canada Trying For Bigger Cheese Contract

OTTAWA, Oct. 12 (CP)—Canada is trying to negotiate a bigger cheese contract with Britain for the coming year, Agriculture Minister Gardiner Tuesday night told the Commons.

He also informed members that indications up to now are that Canada will be able to sell all the poultry products she can produce in 1950.

During discussion on his department's estimates, Mr. Gardiner said that, while the cheese contract for this year called for 50,000,000 pounds, at the end of the season Canada had found herself with 10,000,000 pounds more than she had contracted to sell.

This had been due to a switch from canned milk to cheese, which had resulted in a greater cheese production than had been expected last year. He expressed belief the extra 10,000,000 pounds could have been sold to Britain at the time the contract was negotiated, had the authorities known it would be available.

Now, he declared, the government was "insisting on raising rather than lowering the (contract) figures."

Can't Get Cargoes

HALIFAX, Oct. 12 (CP)—Ten ships, five owned by Acadia Overseas Freighters Ltd. of Halifax, are tied up here for lack of cargoes. Shipping officials said high operating costs, stiff foreign competition and the recent devaluation of the Canadian dollar have contributed to the sharp decline in Canadian shipping.

Grandmothers Display Antiques

ROSENEATH, Oct. 12 (ENS)—"A child needs the comforting knowledge of love," was one of the main thoughts in an address by Mrs. Albert Halstead to the Women's Institute in the town hall on Tuesday. Mrs. C. Grigg was hostess and the president, Mrs. Harold Taylor presided.

It was the one meeting of the year given over to the grandmothers.

The roll call, "Something of Grandmothers," resulted in a collection of antiques being displayed including photographs, mirrors and many pieces of fine needlework. A grandmother, Mrs. Oscar Adams was pianist for community singing and also gave a reading.

Other grandmothers contributing toward the program with Mrs. Frank Adams as convener, were Mrs. Alfred Pringle, a reading; 83-year-old Mrs. E. J. Milne's contribution was also a reading.

Wins Lucky Chair

Mrs. Harold Taylor donated a lucky chair prize won by Mrs Oscar Adams. Mrs. J. N. Lovelace read "The Feast," by Archibald Lampman. Mrs. Nill told a tumorous story; Mrs. Frank Brown donated a lucky number prize won by Mrs. A. Nill. The convener donated a prize to the grandmother with the most grandchildren. This resulted in a tie between Mrs. E. J. Milne, Mrs. Harold Taylor and Mrs. Alfred Pringle, each with six grandchildren. The lucky draw was won by Mrs. Pringle.

The secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Bert Thackeray, reported a balance of $131.78. Miss Jessie Johnston presented the good cheer report.

Plans were made for the short course "A Time-saving Kitchen" to be held in the town hall on October 24, 25 and 26. The ladies of the community are invited to attend.

A committee comprising of Mrs. C. Grigg, Mrs. Bart Thackeray and Mrs. Fred Murphy was appointed to arrange transportation for the members to attend the area convention on November 1.

Plans were made for the November meeting to be held at the home of Miss Jessie Johnston with Mrs. Walter A. Down, convener of citizenship, in charge of the program.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

Will Investigate Cost-of-Living

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Oct. 12 (CP) — The provincial government will set up a Royal Commission to investigate the high cost-of-living in Newfoundland, Premier Smallwood announced in the legislature Tuesday as it resumed after a six-week adjournment.

Mr. Smallwood said "the Royal Commission will be armed with all possible authority—authority to have any firm's books examined, to call any business man or anyone else before them to give evidence on oath, to look into everything and to investigate everything that has any bearing on the cost-of-living."

The Royal Commission follows a long government investigation int the province's living costs, during which officials of the supply ministry looked into profit margins of merchants in St. John's, Corner Brook, Grand Falls and Buchans.

Mr. Smallwood presented figures to show that some Newfoundland retail stores were making as much as 175 per cent profit on certain foodstuffs. Prices in Newfoundland were 10, 20 and 30 per cent higher than in the other three maritime provinces.

Do You Know . . .

what is the largest living thing?

The 'Sequoia gigantea', a California Redwood tree, is the largest existing living thing. Towering hundreds of feet into the air the base of this conifer exceeds the width of many a city street. One of its branches, when measured, was found to be 140 feet long, with a diameter of over 6 feet!

Do You Know . . . that the 'Sequoia gigantea' and others of the species are judged, according to the annual rings, to be nearly 4,000 years old? Fossils reveal that the genus 'Sequoia' had almost universal distribution some 30 million years ago!

Do You Know . . . that the seeds of the 'Sequoia gigantea' are so tiny that it would take 90,000 of them to weigh one pound? And yet, when grown, the thickness and resistance of its bark enables it to survive forest fires that easily kill most other trees!

Do You Know . . . that a man with an axe would need about five months to chop down a single large redwood!

Let Us Beware Of Foolish Nationalism

Nothing could be more welcome than the growth of Canada's national stature during the past ten years. Every Canadian rejoices at it. We have the respect and admiration of the free notions of the world; our word carries weight in international deliberations; we have contributed counsel and example in matters of economics and good government which other nations have received with grateful acknowledgement. As a nation we have been in long pants for many years, but we have now reached the point where the cut and crease of our trousers is rather widely admired. It is important, then, that we should keep the good opinion which we have earned.

• • •

We shall not do so if we fall into the error which has afflicted many young nations, and begin behaving as though Canada had nothing to learn from other countries, owed nothing to other countries, and was indifferent to other countries. We must, in short, beware of false shows of national pride.

• • •

Our Parliament is about to decide whether or not our Supreme Court should be the final authority for alterations in the Canadian constitution. There are many excellent arguments as to why this should be so. But an attempt is being made to couple with this important move another and far less significant suggestion that in future our Governors-General should be Canadians. Now there are probably many gentlemen who are as well suited to that post of honour as are the Englishmen, Irishmen and Scotsmen whom His Majesty sends us from time to time. But we think that Canada would be foolish to insist on having Canadian Governors-General, for it is important that a Governor-General should bring a freshness of mind to Canada which no native can be expected to possess. What is more, a Governor-General should have no concern with Canadian politics. And finally, a Governor-General should be a stranger to all of us; no one should be in the position to say, "I did him a favour", or "I put him where he is today", or "I knew him when —". The King's representative must have one of the King's own characteristics—remoteness from ordinary life.

• • •

It may be pointed out that South Africa disagrees with us. But do we wish to imitate South Africa? And it may be said that Australia has tried an Australian as Governor-General. We understand that the appointment has not been an unmixed success. Our British Governors-General are very useful links with a tradition without which Canada today would hardly be the thriving and respected place it is. Tradition and a strong national feeling are not mutually exclusive.

• • •

Let us cherish all that is best in Canadian life, and let us encourage our people in every way. But let us not be distracted from our path by the will-o-the-wisp of false nationalism. We are too big a nation to waste time in petty displays of national bumptiousness.

The Outcry Against Lotteries

Mr. Duplessis' proposal to establish a provincial lottery in Quebec, to raise funds for education and hospitals, has roused the usual outcry against lotteries. It has been pointed out that tickets on the Quebec lottery would undoubtedly be sold in other provinces, and that in this way Quebec would steal a march on the rest of Canada. But the real objection to lotteries seems to be that they are a form of gambling, and those who oppose them think it very wrong of any government to invite people to gamble.

Perhaps they are right. Gambling, like most other indulgences, can be a serious menace to people who give it too much importance. But people like to gamble; there are not many people to whom the chance of winning a big prize for the price of a lottery ticket is not attractive. We cannot see any harm in a reasonable indulgence of this common human foible.

What really interests us is that the outcry against lotteries has been provoked by Mr. Duplessis' proposal, but has remained silent in the face of the hundreds of lotteries which are continually in progress all over the country. Service clubs and kindred organizations are very fond of lotteries, particularly those which have a new car as their chief prize. Several Canadian communities have organized lotteries to help them raise funds for community centres, and other things that they want. It is no use saying that these lotteries are for good ends: Mr. Duplessis wants to use the funds from his lottery for a good end, too.

The strong opponents of lotteries should clarify their position. If lotteries are bad in themselves, why do they not attack the lotteries which are everywhere around us? If lotteries are not bad things, let them retire from the fray. But it is useless to pretend that some lotteries are good and that others—especially those conducted by governments—are bad. That sort of crooked argument simply will not do.

Saturday Night Suffers A Sea Change

In the lives of many of us Saturday Night is a fixture. We remember its old newspaper form, in the days when it was printed on the glossiest of paper, and thought nothing of devoting a couple of columns to a review of a play or a concert. We can even recall colouring some of its pictures from our box of paints in those days. Less than ten years ago it folded itself up and became a tabloid, and it still remained dear to us. Now it has become a magazine, and we have no doubt that in the course of a few issues we shall become habituated to this new form.

For, when all is said, form is not the important thing about Saturday Night. We value it for its content, and particularly for its editorials and its criticisms. It began its career as a very pugnacious paper. Time mellowed it, but it still packed a staggering punch. Under the late Hector Charlesworth it was particularly rich in the quantity and quality of its criticism of all the arts. Its present editor, Dr. B. K. Sandwell, has given it a new direction, making it a paper of informed, brilliant and pointed criticism of Canada's political, economic and social affairs. It is said of some surgeon's scalpels that they are so sharp that you do not know that they have cut you until the blood begins to flow; Dr. Sandwell's strictures upon contemporary Canada and its leaders have this same quality.

Saturday Night shows signs of becoming a news magazine, on the model of Time and Newsweek. In its current issue it has suffered a sea-change into something rich and—for the moment—strange. But as long as the old vigour and the old Canadianism are there we shall have no difficulty in recognizing the old paper.

Daylight Saving Confusion

A resolution has been passed by the Brantford City Council recommending that the question of Standard and Daylight Saving Time be considered at the next Dominion-Provincial conference, in the hope that some agreement covering the whole of Canada might be reached. We think that this is an excellent suggestion. Peterborough, a family home to Sir Sandford Fleming, to whom the world owes the concept of a Standard Time, cannot help but be interested in such a proposal. And Peterborough, like every other community in Canada, is in confusion now as to when Daylight Saving is to end. Some places have abandoned it for the winter already; others (including our own city) are still working to summer time.

We have not yet seen any conclusive argument in favour of the use of Daylight Saving Time. It is said to lengthen the daylight hours of many workers in offices and factories, but we have never heard any support for it from such workers. Farmers, on the contrary, object to it because it does not agree with the nature of their work; they are in favour of keeping to Standard Time all the year through. Does anybody really like Daylight Time, or want to keep it? If not, why do we not abandon the idea entirely?

If, however, a majority of people want Daylight Time in the summer months let us make it general in its application, and begin and end it at the same time every year. The present muddle possesses many disadvantages and no advantages that anyone can see.

NOTE AND COMMENT

An authority on epidemics wants a law against kissing babies. Question: at what age does a baby become a babe, and thus legally and hygienically kissable?

A six-foot earthworth is now being exhibited in an Oregon fair. Could it be the other end of that hose which disappeared into the ground in Peterborough's South End?

From The Critic's Notebook

BERNARD SHAW THROUGH THE CAMERA (Macmillan).

This unusual and interesting book is composed of 238 photographs of Bernard Shaw, his friends and contemporaries. It is not a complete iconography, for several fine portraits of him by the great artists of his day are omitted, and also the many busts and statues of which he is the subject. It is a book of photographs, posed and unposed, and as such it is a complete success.

The price of the book is $4.25. Can any collection of photographs of a single subject be worth the price? In the opinion of the present reviewer, the answer is yes. The pleasure and curious interest of this book is not quickly exhausted. First, it shows us one of the great men of our day (and one of the great men of our literature) in every phase and aspect. Shaw Mephistopheles, Shaw Prophet, Shaw the Lady Killer, Shaw the Hounded Celebrity, Shaw the Unknown—they are all here. There is even a picture of Shaw at eighteen, without his beard, looking uncommonly like Evelyn Waugh. Second, there is an interesting parade of fashion, and in this respect Shaw's wisdom in never wearing fashionable clothes is plainly demonstrated, for in each picture he looks right, while his contemporaries appear to be wearing a somewhat ridiculous type of fancy dress. Finally, we see in this book the changes which the passing of time makes in a man who has lived a full and long life, working with his mind. The changes which time makes in the appearance of the brain worker far surpass the changes wrought by physical labour.

Pictorial biographies are amusing and valuable. For good reasons they are uncommon: few men are photographed enough, and drawn enough, and painted enough, to supply the needed material: few men are picturesque enough in themselves to survive such treatment. Shaw meets these tests triumphantly, and provides another absorbing book. The compilation and arrangement is the work of Mr. F. E. Loewenstein. R.D.

MR. BUCHAN, WRITER by Arthur C. Turner (Macmillan).

Here is a readable and scholarly little biography (114 pages) which will surely find its way into many Canadian homes. For one thing, its price is modest. For another, it is an account of the popular writer John Buchan who wrote Thirty-Nine steps et al. For another, it is a biography of Baron Tweedsmuir, beloved Governor-General of Canada.

Buchan was many things to many men. It is therefore easy to belittle his personal achievement. But let the belittlers beware in saying that he was a son of the manse who was a social climber, a novelist who wrote pot-boilers and did not succeed with more vital or serious writing, a scholar who was not scholarly and posed as a statesman, a striving statesman who posed as a scholar and writer of distinction. Buchan's achievement was in such various fields and so high that only the eminent in each should criticize him, and then each should remember that he is criticizing but one aspect of this man of many parts.

He was no genius, and as history judges great men, he was not great. Nevertheless, where one man is remembered as a popular novelist (no mean achievement), another as an historian, another as a civil servant, another as a pro-consul, another as a friend of humanity, John Buchan, first Baron Tweedsmuir, must be remembered in all these roles. His biographer in this Macmillan 'Torch' series, Arthur C. Turner, M.A., B.Litt., with decent piety has touched on all his capacities. T.J.A.

GASPE: LAND OF HISTORY AND ROMANCE by Blodwen Davies (Ambassador Books Ltd.).

To the reader who has never visited the famous Gaspe coast, the beginning of this travelogue may seem repetitious and a trifle dull in its reiterated descriptions of what seem like a series of identical sea villages. But it is well worth persisting, for when Mrs. Davies stops travelling to give us her Gaspe version of Atlantic seaboard history, spiced with folklore, this becomes an absorbingly interesting book.

The smell of the sea and the sound of the waves are in it, and the scars of the endless sea battles between the French and the English.

The magnificence of the North Shore, (the south shore of the St. Lawrence) has made a tremendous impression on the writer, and her enthusiasm will infect the wanderlusty. She has a plea for Perce, which she says has been maltreated at the hands of indifferent photographers and uninspired painters. "Perce is not just a geographical spot, it is a mood and a story, a place-spirit, something that reserves itself from the hasty and impatient, the superficial and unimaginative, but for the traveller with open eyes and an open heart, Perce is generous."

Mrs. Davies has given us in this book much more than a mere travelogue and guidebook for the tourist. She has entered into the spirit of this ancient part of Canada. She knows its history and geography, its geology, its folklore and its very great beauty and variety. She has given us a social history of the Atlantic coast of Canada, and a feeling of its destiny. This is a real contribution to place-literature.

Those who know Gaspe will want to read "Gaspe: Land of History and Romance" and those who read it first, will find themselves wanting to set off at once. The book includes some excellent photographs, and is decorated with interesting end-papers. H.T.K.

REX WHISTLER, HIS LIFE AND HIS DRAWINGS, by Lawrence Whistler. (Art and Technics).

Rex Whistler was one of the most interesting and accomplished artists that this century has produced. He was born in 1905, and he died in military service in 1944. In his 39 years he did a great amount of work which was remarkable for vigour and delicacy of imagination, and it is safe to say that his name will live as a notable minor artist of our time. If he had not died as a tank officer at Caen, that churlish word "minor" might have been avoided, for Whistler was developing as an artist until the last.

His scope was not large. His best work is done in a style which derives from the finest work of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries. But his style was not a copy or a pastiche; in the work of the specified period he found a congenial style, which he enlarged and made his own. Fine draughtsmanship, a fine sense of colour, and wit were his materials. Because his work was decorative—in the best sense of the word—he did much that was ephemeral—theatre programs and book jackets, for example. It was he who designed the beautiful forms upon which British Greetings Telegrams were delivered. His work in this field gave great pleasure and undoubtedly did much to improve popular taste.

This memorial book contains a charming and restrained account of Rex Whistler's life by his brother Lawrence, and a generous number of reproductions of his work. It is a book which no one who cares for contemporary art can afford to overlook, and many who see it will wish to possess it. As a present for a friend of artistic tastes it could hardly be bettered. Letters To The Editor

"THOU SHALT" AND "THOU SHALT NOT"

Sir: In the letter "Back to Moses", there is set forth some of the confusion which exists in our religious existence. Why should followers of Christ have so much Moses in their religious behaviour? When we consider Moses carefully, while we find him to be one of the few great men in the religion of God, and the introducer of social group religious form, we also find that he was condemned to death without entering the Promised Land, because of the error of his people. This seems a bit like misplaced justice, until we consider that it was the man made latitude of interpretation of the "Thou shalt nots" which he instituted which was in a great measure responsible for their error, and which carries much of the weight of our faltering existence.

Christ in His attempt to point out this source of error, set forth the two fundamental "Thou shalts" of the golden rule, and showed how they could conquer all things. However, the "Thou shalt nots" were again victorious, and Christ like Moses suffered death for man's lack of proper understanding of the purpose of God.

For correction of error and broadening of correct understanding, we should not place emphasis on any one point. We are much too prone to weave a pattern on some particular phase such as the letter illustrates in the "saving" of souls. This was once brought home to me when a young girl asked my advice. It was her first venture outside of her secluded soul-saving environment, and what she wanted to know were the steps she should take so that she could be saved. She said that her father was a saved soul, and that he used to drink and gamble etc. and she wanted to get advice on how to start a similar career so that she might later be saved.

It seems to me in my search for a way of advancement in our relationship to the purpose of God, that we will have to go away back to the "sin" of Adam. In plain English this sets forth that man is given the full power of reason which is to be used in all things except the interpretation of good and evil. In this light where do we stand saying "Thou shalt not play baseball on Sunday"? We would do much better to consider the basic "Thou shalts" and strive to increase not knowledge, but understanding of the simple principles of God's purpose for man.

COMMUNISM AND TRADE UNIONS

Sir: While browsing through an old book recently, I came across a clipping that may be of interest to many readers at the present time when Russia is so much in the news. It may also provide an eye-opener to many so-called 'patriots'.

Although there is no date line of any kind on it, its age is easily determined from the text which goes as follows:

"In the renewal of labour troubles in Russia, reported in late despatches, may be seen a confirmation of the opinion that a great change has taken place in the attitude and ideas of the dissatisfied among the subjects of the Czar. Not long ago the chief of the political police at Moscow made a report to the Czar, which, somehow, fell into the hands of the revolutionists, who immediately published it far and wide. From this document it was learned that the old-time Nihilism had given way to a new kind of propaganda. Instead of attempting the political education of the ignorant peasantry, the leaders of the revolutionary cause appeal to the intelligence and self-interest of the workingmen, the wage-earners, who have lately become a numerous class under the new industrial policy of the government. This movement, called Social Democracy, has gained considerable headway, and the chief confessed that it had brought into the revolutionary ranks an order of men not heretofore identified with them. While labour organizations or trade unions of any kind —"

Unfortunately the rest of the article is missing, but there is enough saved to show clearly the road to Communism. Perhaps there are great many people who call themselves anti-Red, who are actually much closer allied to it than they realize.

Thanking you,

A.R.D.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Then came to Jesus scribes and Pharisees, which were of Jerusalem, saying, Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? for they wash not their hands when they eat bread....

And he called the multitude, and said unto them, Hear, and understand: not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man; but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man....

Then answered Peter and said unto him, Declare unto us this parable. And Jesus said, Are ye also yet without understanding?.... For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies: these are the things which defile a man: but to eat with unwashen hands defileth not a man. (Matt. 15: 1, 2, 10, 11, 15, 16, 19, 20.)

Lenient Sentence

(St. Catharines Standard)

Magistrate Hallett has finally had to come to it. Magistrates in western Ontario communities have already had their share of rowdies and zoot suiters. The case of the 18-year-old from Grimsby, smart-alec as described, is probably mild in comparison to others, but the delinquent got what he deserved, one month in jail.

He created a big row when he could not find pepper for his sandwich in a Grimsby restaurant. A provincial policeman ordered him to get out. He got out and came back with a gang of boys. Abusive language made the air blue. Samples made people in the police court blush.

Perhaps one month in jail was not good enough. But this can be said, a mere fine would have been quite inadequate. It would have been paid with a smirk. In any event, the sentence of one month can be taken as a salutary warning, that next time it could well be six months. How is it that Ontario has developed so many small town hoodlums who think they are big city shots or somethin'?

Plead Guilty To 17 Charges

MONTREAL, Oct. 12—(CP) — Two youths, returned to Montreal from jail in Perth, Ont., through intercession of the Attorney General of Ontario, pleaded guilty in arraignment court Tuesday to 17 charges of armed robbery.

The accused—Rene Foisy, 20, and Robert Foisy (no relation), 24, were arrested in Perth last year while Montreal police were looking for them. Both were sentenced by Ontario court to 18 months for theft of an automobile. They had not fully served their sentence when returned to Montreal.

The Foisys were members of a gang which operated in Montreal and suburbs in the fall of 1948. Four members of the group were arrested, convicted and sentenced to terms in penitentiary.

Two other members were young women. One was sentenced to five years and the other to seven. One of the girls became known as the "Lady in Red" because of her fondness for red clothing.

Evidence given at Tuesday's court hearing said the pair escaped from Montreal last Nov. 12 —the same night that police had been warned of an impending Bordeaux jail break by Noel Cloutier and Douglas Perreault, both charged with murder during a bank robbery.

(Cloutier and Perreault later were convicted and executed for the slaying of two Montreal city policemen).

We've good news for you. We've located a euchre club in Toronto called the Canadian and British Social Club. Members meet every Friday night in the Sons of England Hall, 58 Richmond Street East, Toronto. Annual fee is $2.50. Nightly admission 40 cents for members, 60 cents for non-members. WASSERMAN TEST: "Could you tell me what a Wasserman test is and what it means if the result is negative. Also why a sample of blood is taken from your thumb after having a baby in the hospital?"
Wasserman test is to determine whether or not the subject has syphilis. If the result is negative, no syphilis. The sample of blood is taken from the thumb and checked for haemoglobin. That is to determine the strength of red corpuscles in the blood.

PERIOD OF MOURNING: "Is it customary to wear mourning apparel on the decease of a brother with whom an elderly woman has lived all her life? If so, how long a period should it be used?"
Custom and mourning seem to have parted company. If you feel you would like to wear mourning because of the loss of your brother, then that is the thing to do. If you feel your grief can best be carried in the heart without outward manifestation, it is none the less deep because no black is visible. The decision is altogether yours without reference to an etiquette book. As for the length of the mourning period, there is no cut and dried rule.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

Winter may be a month or two away yet, but already the skiers are making plans. They expect an early first aid course under the Red Cross with Dr. Whyte instructing on Thursday nights. Ski patrol work is important and those qualifying in first aid and the short special Red Cross winter aid course, are eligible for ski patrol and free tow privileges for the season. If interested, phone Mrs. Hinds at 6648 or Mollie Craig at 3271. Officers this year are: President, Vic Griffiths; secretary, Mary Dodds; treasurer, Tad Ashby; committee, Miles Allison, George Cook, Jim Craig, Ted McCaig, Rod Reed and Toby Westbye. Good tows this winter at Bethany and Kemp's Hill.

The enterprising AHL sends along its fine fat 1949-50 Red Book, complete with records, etc. Also a rule book, a schedule and a blurb on the season's opening games. We note where Hub Macey of Springfield served but two minutes in penalties in 43 games last winter whereas Pat Wilson of Washington (now with St. Louis) sat it out 53 minutes in 61 contests. Hank Blade is playing coach this season with Kansas City Mohawks. Another new coach in the AHL, which ranks in calibre next to the NHL—and is quite a feeder for major hockey—is Frank (King) Clancy, in charge of the Cincinnati entry.

Starry Colored Athlete

Though he didn't do too much in the World Series, Jackie Robinson is a topnotch ball player. The first Negro ever to make the majors—he went from Montreal to Brooklyn—Robinson led the National League in hitting with .342 and both loops in stolen bases with 36, besides driving in 124 runs. The Dodgers' starry second-sacker is a university man and shone at that time in football, baseball, basketball, track and tennis. He is now 30 years old, a six-footer going 190 pounds, and really fast. When Rickey took him up, it opened the big league doors to other colored ballsters.

* * * * * *

Reason we mention Jackie Roosevelt Robinson is to compare him in one respect with Joe Louis, retired world's heavyweight boxing champion. Robinson has been throwing his weight around a lot this year in criticizing umpires on the field and in print. He was recently ticked off by Commissioner Chandler and told to behave like a big leaguer. Louis, on the other hand—a colored chap with practically no education—has always behaved like a big leaguer, and proved a popular champ over a long stretch. A credit to the colored race in athletics, everyone agrees. As one writer puts it, Robinson's rantings are proof not of racial equality so much as indicative of a get-rich-quick guy popping off instead of keeping his mouth shut.

Don't Mix Down South

Below the Mason-Dixie line we've ridden in buses where colored passengers had to sit in the back seats. We've eaten in hotels and restaurants which had signs either saying: "No colored people served here", or maybe "Colored people served in the kitchen". They even had separate wash rooms in public buildings. Colored athletes are usually good ones, and certainly should be treated as equal to the whites in every way. But there is that feeling apparent in a goodly section of the States, and dark-hued athletes like Jackie Robinson shouldn't encourage discrimination or ask for trouble. Button up the lip and let actions speak for them. Fortunately, this sports problem does not intrude upon the Canadian scene.

Lindsay won't have an OHA senior "B" team this winter, but the Toronto Meteors will again use Lindsay for home ice, going under the moniker Lindsay McIntosh Meteors. Only a few of last year's Meteors aboard, the rest being husky over-age Toronto juniors. This will leave Ross Nicholls, Al Burns, Bill Hicks and Sixty Coombs available again for Legionnaires. Latter also will have Godfrey, Mortimer, Crowley, Rochetta, T. Greenlaw, Hill, D. Vitarelli, Fryia, Parnell and a couple of new players in Doug Free and Keith Montgomery. Coach Jim Ellis points out that the 1948-49 provincial champs have lost but two players, Ned Vitarelli and Bob Greenlaw, and have gained several new ones, so they'll be good again. Meteors meet Legion here Friday eve.

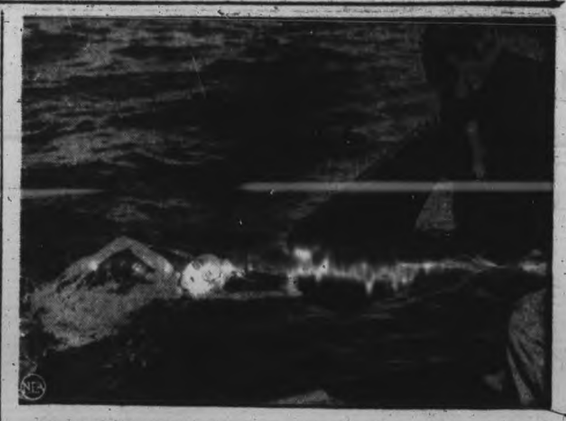
PCVS Tackles Sarnia In Grid Play



TORONTO, Oct. 12 — High school football in Ontario has outgrown its knee britches and this year will pull up its first pair of long pants as the Ontario Federation of Secondary School Athletic Associations sponsor the first annual Red Feather Football Tournament of Champions in co-operation with The Telegram and the T. Eaton Co. Ltd.

Conceived as a show window for high school football in Ontario, the tournament will realize an even greater role in aiding the Community Chest's Red Feather campaign. Not only the Toronto campaign will benefit, but also Community Chest efforts in any area where tickets are sold since the gross receipts from ticket sales in schools outside of Toronto proper will be returned to the schools for donation to the Red Feather drives in their own communities.

Eight of the top interscholastic football clubs in the province will converge on Maple Leaf Stadium, Toronto, for the classic which consists of two night double-headers, Friday, October 21, and Saturday, October 22. In Friday's capers, Sarnia, the hot issue of the WOSSA, will meet Peterborough's defending COSSA champs and East York's undefeated Goliaths of the TDIAA will tangle with R. L. Close Technical School of Hamilton.

Only Ottawa Technical School, pace-setter of the EOSSA, has earned a berth on Saturday night's program, while the other three entries will be selected by their conference executives on this season's performances. They include representatives of the Toronto Secondary School Athletic Association, Windsor, and Northern Ontario.

Each team will play one game and be judged by a panel of five recognized Canadian football experts on a rigid point-scoring basis for the Ted Reeve Trophy, symbolic of the tournament championship.

Wings And Bruins Out To Prove Reshuffling Good

By AL COLLETTI
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The National Hockey League's 33rd season gets under way tonight in Detroit where a pair of reshuffled games—Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins—will be out to prove whether their summer player swap gave them added strength.

The Wings and Bruins made one of the year's biggest hockey deals Aug. 16 and in the last few days Boston has even gone further and traded defenceman Pat Egan to New York Rangers and little Nobby Warwick to Montreal.

Detroit and Boston finished one-two in the regular NHL season last winter but the experts agree enough changes have been made to make their chances this season open to plenty of speculation.

Tomorrow night, after the Bruins and Red Wings get the NHL curtain raised, Montreal Canadiens play host to the dark-horse Chicago Black Hawks, who will have Frankie (Mr. Zero) Brimsex in their nets for the first time.

Gets Real Buy

Bill Tobin, president-owner of the Black Hawks, shelled out $25,000 to the Bruins for Frankie, and Tobin thinks he got a real buy. Big Bill figures Brimsex, 34, still has three more good seasons ahead of him.

The Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers—doormat for the league in recent years—will make their league debuts Saturday night. New York goes to Montreal and the Maple Leafs entertain Chicago.

It will be the earliest opening and the longest season in league history. Each club will play 70 games over a 24-week span compared with 60 games in 23 weeks last season.

Toronto, which finished fourth in the regular season last winter behind Detroit, Boston and Montreal, routed the Red Wings in the Stanley Cup finals, winning in four straight games. The Leafs, who are virtually standing pat on their championship line-up, are rated about on a par with Detroit for top honors in the NHL this season.

Hockey officials and sports writers who gathered in Toronto this week and saw the Leafs lose 3-1 to the NHL all-stars Monday night, said it should be a toss-up whether Detroit or Toronto takes the NHL title this year.

They were inclined to rate Montreal third, Chicago a good fourth, Boston fifth and the Rangers in their familiar sixth spot.

Pete Mead Drops 10-Round Verdict

LONDON, Oct. 12 (AP) — Middleweight Pete Mead's first international ring venture turned out a bit sour.

The Grand Rapids, Mich., puncher, one of the United States' busiest fighters, dropped a 10-round decision here Tuesday night to Dave Sands, the Australian triple champion.

A crowd of 10,000 at Harringay arena saw the Aussie win seven rounds on the Associated Press scorecard with Mead taking one and the other two even.

Sands, who weighed 162½, holds his country's middleweight, lightheavy and heavy crowns. Mead weighed 160.

Mead got into trouble almost immediately and never was able to bang his way out. Sands opened a cut over the American's eye in the third round and blood flowed until the end of the bout.

Wheat Crop Down

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (AP) —The United States Agriculture Department Tuesday estimated this year's wheat crop at 1,126,226,000 bushels. This was 2,855,000 bushels less than the 1,129,081,000 forecast last month and compares with the crop of 1,288,406,000 and the 10-year average (1938-47) of 991,950,000.

MAKES FINALS — Manager Eddie Murphy will lead his Petes into the OBA senior "B" sudden-death final against Ottawa St. Anthony's in Riverside Park at 10.30 a.m. Saturday. The Petes eliminated Chatham last week in provincial semi-finals.

Canadiens Suspend Cincinnati Player

MONTREAL, Oct. 12 (CP) — Jacques Locas, forward, has been suspended by Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, it was learned today. Locas had been training with the new Cincinnati team of the American Hockey Association and differences arose over the salary question. Cincinnati is an affiliate of the Canadien club.

Rip Riopelle, another Canadien forward who has been with the club during training, has retired from professional hockey. He has a business in Ottawa.

Meanwhile Grant Warwick, rightwinger whose purchase from Boston Bruins was announced yesterday by Canadiens, arrived in Montreal and will work out with the club tomorrow in preparation for the local NHL season-opener when Canadiens meet Chicago Black Hawks. He will play on a line with Billy Reay and Gerry Plamondon.

The Cincinnati Club has purchased Ivan Irwin from Boston Bruins. Irwin formerly played with Boston Olympics team, which last year dropped out of the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

Request Conciliator

TORONTO, Oct. 12 (CP)—An application has been made for appointment of a conciliation officer to consider a deadlocked dispute between 900 Toronto printing pressmen and their employees. The present contract between the Printing Pressmen's Union (AFL) and four large organizations of printing firms expires Oct. 31. The dispute does not affect newspaper pressmen, who are members of a different section of the union covered by a separate agreement.

Favor Charles Retain Heavyweight Crown

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12 (AP) —Although his workouts have been unimpressive, at times dull, Ezzard Charles was a prohibitive favorite today to retain his National Boxing Association heavyweight title against Pat Valentino, Friday night.

Latest odds quoted the Cincinnati Negro as the 4 to 1 choice. He may be an even greater favorite when the pair climb into the ring at the San Francisco Cow Palace for their 15-round match.

In contrast to Charles' somewhat listless training efforts, the San Francisco challenger has stormed through rousing drills. Valentino holds the California State championship. He is a powerful body-puncher.

Training camp observers contend Valentino has a better chance to win than the odds would indicate. It is a truism that a puncher always has a chance. Charles' speed and boxing skill is far superior. Valentino may never catch up with him.

It will be Charles' second defense of the title he won in the two-man elimination with Jersey Joe Walcott to succeed Joe Louis. Charles beat Gus Lesnevich handily in his first defense of the NBA recognized crown. Louis, incidentally, is slated to arrive here tomorrow to attend the bout.

The first heavyweight championship fight in this area in 40 years already has an advance sale of approximately $120,000. Tickets amounting to $50,000 are still available. The bout is expected to gross upward of $150,000. The Cow Palace just outside the San Francisco City limits, will seat more than 16,000 fans.

The last title bout around here saw Jack Johnson, bulking over 200 pounds, stop middleweight Stanley Ketchell in 12 rounds, Oct. 16, 1909.

Charles will spot hs rival about six pounds. He weighed 180½ pounds today, compared to 186½ for Valentino.

Mike Sharpe And Hi Lee To Open Wrestling Season

It will be a test between a big, fast, scientific wrestler and a big, crushing, rugged grappler when Mike "The Body" Sharpe collides with Sky-Hi Lee in the season's first main event at the Brock Arena on Thursday night. Sharpe is one of the most colorful and effective of the big heavyweights who specialize in the science of the sport, while Lee is also colorful and effective, but he uses the damaging, smashing style of matwork to achieve his purpose. It will be one of the interesting aspects of this match to see which type of athlete will triumph.

Added interest will arise from the semi-final, in which the Red Devil will meet Faro Renaldi. The identity of the Red Devil is a mystery, but fans may be able to recognize him by his gait, motions and style in the ring. Renaldi is a rugged, sturdy opponent, who many observers believe is capable of beating the Devil and revealing his identity. If the Red Devil loses, he must show his face.

Plenty of mat fireworks are anticipated when Dangerous Dan O'Connor takes on stately Ben Sharpe in the opener.

Marlboros Dump Galt 3-1 Ice Mist Halts 2nd Game

By The Canadian Press.

No matter how the Ontario Hockey Association junior A race turns out, the 1949 season will go down in history as having opened in a fog.

Mist on the ice was so dense that last night's opener between Stratford Kroehlers and Windsor Spitfires had to be called off at Windsor at the end of the first period. At Galt, fog delayed the curtain raiser for 20 minutes, but finally was cleared away long enough to enable Toronto Junior Marlboros to defeat Galt Black Hawks 3-1 in overtime.

The Windsor-Stratford game will be played at a later date. The score was tied 1-1 on goals by Bob Rawlyk of Spits and Denny Draper of Kroehlers, when the game was called just before the beginning of the second period.

There was no scoring in the first frame at Galt as soft ice slowed play, but in the second frame Dukes went one up on a goal by Jack McKenzie while Galt was a man short. The hard hitting Marlboros were handed 16 penalties and Black Hawks slamming right back, collected 12 penalties of their own.

Hawks came to life in the third period with P. Simms tying the count on a backhand shot with assists from Ken Greene and George Ford.

Winning Goal

Larry Regan scored the winning goal in the overtime frame on Murray Grenke's pass and Lorne Pirie put the game in the bag with Duke's third goal. George Armstrong got the assist.

Wednesday night St. Michael's College Juniors play at Oshawa and Guelph travels to Barrie.

Friday, St. Michcael's go to Barrie, Galt at St. Catharines and Oshawa at Stratford.

Wings, Hawks Smythe Choice In Top NHL Spot

By The Canadian Press.

It's open season for predictions on how National Hockey League teams will finish in the 1949 race for playoff berths. And with the regular schedule all set to go, manager Conn Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs is on record with a forecast that Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks may finish first and second in the standing.

Smythe gave his opinion in Toronto Tuesday while watching the Leafs go through one of their last workouts before starting their defence of the Stanley Cup in Toronto Saturday night against the Black Hawks.

Of Leafs' own chances, he would say only that his team "will be in there" with the others battling for the remaining playoff spots. Nor would he be drawn out on a prediction by coach Dick Irvin of Montreal that "Canadians won't be in there this year because the forwards are too light," a statement Irvin made in Toronto Monday night at the All-Star game.

Manager Frank Boucher of New York Rangers won't commit himself. At Lake Placid, N. Y., the man who two years ago correctly predicted the outcome of that season's NHL schedule, goes only far enough to say that his blue shirts will do better than last year when they missed the playoffs.

"I'm quite convinced we've a much strengthened club," said he. "We should be a real contender all the way."

Toronto Maple Leafs have gone back to their training camp at St. Catharines, where they will remain until a couple of hours before the opening whistle blows for them Saturday. Bill Ezinicki, whose ankle still is swollen from an exhibition game mishap last week-end, went with the team and is expected to be back in action Saturday.

Ted Lindsay, Detroit Red Wings' ace left winger who suffered an eye injury in the All-Star tilt, will dress and start against Boston Bruins in the NHL curtain raiser at Detroit tonight. Lindsay suffered deep gashes above and below his right eye in a three way collision. When he turned out Tuesday for a final practice the eye was swollen almost shut and the speedy Lindsay took little part in the workout.

In the other season openers, Chicago plays in Montreal Thursday and New York Rangers take on the Canadiens in Montreal on Saturday. Maple Leafs journey to Detroit Sunday and Rangers take to the ice at Boston.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

A young Negro boxer, felled by a smashing blow in the ring at Detroit Monday night, died Tuesday with a blood clot on the brain.

Death of Talmadge Bussey, 26, was the eighth recorded ring fatality in the world this year.

The ring record book shows that at this time last year there were 13 ring fatalities in the United States. The 1948 total was 14. At this time in 1947 there were nine deaths.

The Negro lightweight fell unconscious in the ninth round of a furious battle with Luther Rawlings of Chicago. Referee Herman Spinelli called the fight and awarded Rawlings a knockout.

Taken to hospital, Bussey was operated on for a blood clot. He died 11 hours later. Coroner Samuel B. Milton ordered a post mortem examination. Police began an investigation.

Jacques Locas, forward, has been suspended by Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, it was learned at Montreal Tuesday. Locas had been training with the new Cincinnati team of the American Hockey Association and differences arose over the salary question. Cincinnati is an affiliate of the Canadien club.

Rip Riopelle, another Canadien forward who has been with the club during training, has retired from professional hockey. He has a business in Ottawa.

Meanwhile Grant Warwick, rightwinger whose purchase from Boston Bruins was announced on Monday by Canadiens, arrived in Montreal and will work out with the club today in preparation for the local NHL season-opener when Canadiens meet Chicago Black Hawks. He will play on a line with Billy Reay and Gerry Plamondon.

At Baltimore, Shirley M. Ball, of Laurel, Md., was suspended on Tuesday as trainer and owner for one year after a hearing on a charge his horse was given an injection of mustard.

The Maryland Racing Commission found Ball guilty of negligence in guarding his horse, Brooke Argo. Brooke Argo and Balls other horse, Real Wren also were barred from racing unless they are sold.

Ball denied any knowledge of his horse having been given a rectal injection of oil of mustard as claimed by State chemists after the seventh race at Laurel on Sept. 28.

Dixie Walker, recently released by Pittsburgh Pirates, put in his bid Tuesday for the job of managing Baltimore Orioles in the International Baseball League.

Walker called Tuesday morning from his Birmingham, Ala. home to let Jack Dunn, Oriole president and manager last season, know he'd like to be considered.

Walker was traded to the Pirates in 1948 after nine years with Brooklyn Dodgers.

Sam Jethroe, the speedy Negro outfielder recently purchased from Montreal Royals by Boston Braves visited general manager John Quinn of the Braves at New York and signed his 1950 contract.

Jethroe came to New York from Indianapolis, where he recently played in the little world series.

Jethroe set two International League records during the last season, stealing 89 bases and making 208 hits.

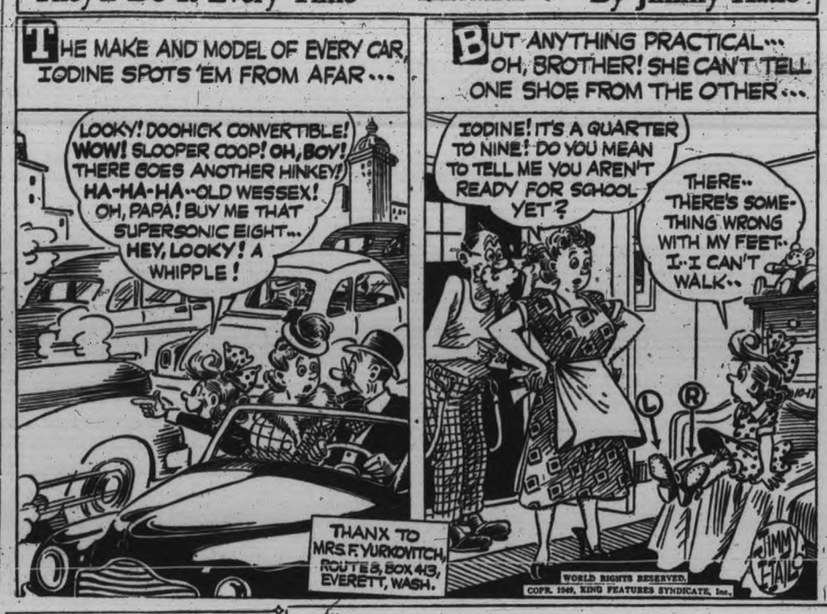
Sparked by Nils Tremblay's hat trick, Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Senior Hockey League whipped Cornwall Calumets 6-2 in an exhibition game at Cornwall.

The Allan Cup champions outscored their opponents in every period, blinking the red light once in the opening frame, twice in the second and thrice more in the final period.

Cornwall tallied singletons in the second and third frames.

Hershey Shades Springfield 5-3

By The Canadian Press.



Hershey Bears, St. Louis Flyers and Indianapolis Capitals shared top spot in the American Hockey League today as the result of victories in the three opening games of the 1949-50 season Tuesday night.

The Bears defeated Springfield Indians 5-3 at Hershey while the Flyers shaded Pittsburgh Hornets 3-2 at St. Louis. The Capitals spoiled Cincinnati's league debut by blanking the Rheinlanders 3-0.

The remaining teams in the loop, Providence, New Haven, Buffalo, and Cleveland, will see their first league action tonight.

At Hershey, a crowd of 4,070 saw the Bears spot Springfield a one goal lead early in the first period and then outscore the visitors 4-1 in the remainder of the game for their initial victory.

Hershey goals were netted by Norm Larson, Mark Marquess, Roly McLenahan, Jerry Brown and Gordie Bruce while Sam Casanata, Key Hayden and Burnett tallied for the visitors.

Rumor Filchock To Coach Edmonton Team

MONTREAL, Oct. 12 (CP) — The Gazette says today that Frank Filchock, passing ace of Big Four Montreal Alouettes has been offered the post of playing coach in 1950 with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Canada Conference.

Annis Stukus, former Toronto football player and sports writer, is the current coach on a one-year contract.

"According to reliable sources, Edmonton officials are said to have offered the former New York Giants' star an open contract, including a deal that would give him a percentage of the gate receipts."

Filchock was not immediately available for comment. Nor was manager Lew Hayman of Montreal Alouettes.

Filchock is under a two-year $20,000 contract with Alouettes.

EDMONTON, Oct. 12 (CP) — R. M. Montague, president of Edmonton Eskimos of the western Inter-Provincial Rugby Football Union, has denied that Frank Filchock of Montreal Alouettes has been offered a job as playing-coach with Esks.

"I don't know where these things come from, but we have not approached Filchock, nor have I heard of any movement to do so," Montague said of reports in Montreal that Filchock may succeed Annis Stukus, current Eskimo coach.

Soldier Hero Decides To Enter Films

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 12 (AP) Audie Murphy's film career appears to be progressing despite his marital troubles. He is going ahead with plans to film his war experiences.

The much-decorated hero told that the outlook is bright for an early filming of his story, "To Hell and Back."

At first, the former soldier balked at playing himself on the screen, but he apparently relented. He told his story with modesty in the book, and perhaps can do the same on the screen.

Road to Where?

Will Bing and Bob hit the "road" again? That's the prime question around Paramount these days. There has been talk about a "Road to Paris." But one producer told me. "There are only two men who can say whether it will be made—that's hope and Crosby; and I haven't seen either of them making a move yet."

Judy Garland sounded great with Crosby on his air show. Wouldn't they make a ideal screen pairing? Bing could use a high-voltage co-star.

Mid-Week Medley

Robert Taylor received a petition from girl employees at his studio, urging him to return to romantic roles. He plays an Indian in "Devils Doorway" and the gals would rather see him in something like "Waterloo Bridge" or "Camille." Taylor was impressed, and agrees that after a couple of westerns, he'd like to get back to something more romantic.

John Lund was laughing at Ed Wynn's first television show in which the comic said: "For those who don't know me, Im Keenan Wynn's father. if you don't know who he is. I'll explain that he's the guy who when Esther Williams dives into the water in a picture, gets splashed."

Will Make Grant

OTTAWA, Oct. 12 — (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Tuesday night in the Commons the government contributes to the cost of cold-storage on freezer-locker plants established for public use and not for individual profit. The government pays 30 per cent. of the cost, provided the plants are made available to the public and provided the plans are submitted for approval before construction is started. Half of the grant is paid in the first year and the remainder is paid over a period of years.

Asks Grower Protection

OTTAWA, Oct. 12 — (CP) — Greater protection for Canadian growers of fruits and vegetables from surplus United States products was urged Tuesday night in the Commons by Gordon Graydon (PC, Peel). Mr. Graydon suggested there might be an earlier application of the "seasonal" duties imposed on these U.S. products at the end of their seasons when these run into the opening of the Canadian season.

Try Radar On Birds

LONDON Oct. 12 (CP)—Canadian scientists are trying to control the flight of birds by radar, a BBC speaker said Tuesday night. Lt.-Cmdr. Peter Scott of the Royal Navy disclosed that low-power transmitters have succeeded momentarily in the controlling of the flight of migratory ducks. He hinted that the experiments may lead to one of the greatest discoveries of the century —radio control of living things.

Declares Mistrial

CHICAGO, Oct. 18 (AP)—Federal Judge Walter J. LaBuy on Tuesday declared a mistrial in the Preston Tucker mail fraud case. Defence lawyers claimed that a government witness who referred to one of the defendants' 14-year-old criminal record improperly prejudiced the jury. A new trial probably will be sought by the government.

List Airline Losses

LONDON, Oct. 12—(Reuters)—Britain's three government-owned airlines lost more than £9,000,000 ($27,900,000) in the year ending last March, £1,000,000 less than the previous year, it was announced Tuesday. British Overseas Airways Corporation lost £5,844,695, a decrease of £1,246,744. British European Airways lost £2,763,085, a reduction of £810,904. British South American Airways lost £1,133,082, an increase of £711,601.

New Gland Operation

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12—(AP)—A new surgical technique for exposing the pancreas—one of the body's most important organs but also one of the most difficult to explore in time of trouble—was announced today. Professor Ian Aird, of the University of London, reported that the operation allowed, for the first time, complete exposure of all surfaces of the gland.

WANTS TO FORGET—Betty Ritchie, comely former friend of Gerrard Dennis now serving a long term in a US prison for a series of jewel thefts, has arrived home at Fenelon Falls, and wants to forget her unpleasant experiences. Betty, who once taught school in Toronto, gained notoriety last November when Dennis was arrested as one of the biggest jewel thieves the US has known. She had been living in Los Angeles with Dennis but unaware of his activities. Here she is show nat the phone in her parents home, during the Thanksgiving week-end.

Deny Break-Away

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—Talk that left-wing CIO unions may break away and form a third major United States Labor organization ran into a denial today by a Labor leader named as one of the key planners of such a move. Grant Oakes, president of the Farm Equipment Workers, said it isn't true that he and other F.E. officials voted secretly to bring their union into another left-wing outfit which is scheduled for ouster from the CIO.

2 Cars Hit Head-on Seven People Hurt

ORILLIA, Oct. 12 — (CP) — Seven persons were injured today when two automobiles collided head-on on the highway near here.

Injured are Jack Somers, driver of one automobile, and five occupants, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Horsefell and their 11-months-old daughter, all from Sudbury, a Mrs. Cadeau, of Midland, and Mrs. Morris Horsefell, also of Midland.

The second automobile was driven by Edward Lawrence, of Longford Mills. All seven are reported in fair condition.

Wonderful Co-operation

SENNELAGER, Germany, Oct. 12—(Reuters) — War Minister Emanuel Shinwell of Britain said Tuesday the "wonderful co-operation" between Allied forces in the current British zone manoeuvres promised well for the success of western union. "Perhaps it has been the most significant feature of the exercises," Shinwell said.

JewellerGivesTurkeys Every Dollar Customer

TORONTO, Oct. 12 —(CP)—Citizens of suburban Weston had a double reason to be thankful Thanksgiving day.

Jeweller Milton Henry gave turkeys and chickens away with each dollar purchase last Saturday. When word spread around it took the police to handle the crowds.

The genial proprietor gave hundreds of turkeys away with reckless abandon.

"I have no idea exactly how many turkeys I gave away," he said today, "but there were hundreds of them."

"The first turkey I've had in eight years," said a pretty young war bride. "This is a marvelous country."

Rival Tribes Battle

CAIRO, Oct. 12—(AP) — The Arab News Agency reported last night that a gun battle in Northern Lebanon between two rival tribes resulted in six killed and scores wounded before troops restored peace. The report said a dispute over Hashish—an intoxicant prepared from Indian hemp —touched off the battle.

Prisoner Killed

MADRAS, India, Oct. 12 — (Reuters) — One Communist prisoner was killed and one was severely injured Tuesday when police guards at Cuddalore central jail, 100 miles south of here, opened fire on defiant captives. Sixteen other prisoners and 24 policemen were slightly injured.

Bank Letter Takes Time Talk Weather

By FORBES RHUDE, Canadian Press Business Editor.

The current letter of the Royal Bank of Canada discusses, of all things, the weather.

It doesn't pretend to do anything about it, and, in fact, with a very few verbal changes it might as well be discussing present-day economics. For instance, it says;

"Mankind has never known a 'normal' climate. We of 1949 are at the tail end of an ice age, living in a time following a period of climatic violence as great as any the earth has known."

That might almost be a metaphorical comment on post-war problems, the atom bomb or currency devaluation. But to get our minds back strictly to weather and what the bank has to say of it:

"Climate is one of the greatest upsetters of human plans and activities. It dictates our economy, what we wear, the kind of house we live in, the sort of food we eat how hard we work, and even wh[illegible] where we spend our vacations. . .

Getting Warmer

"One point about which there seems to be general agreement is that the earth's surface is getting warmer. Just a month ago Professor G. H. T. Kimble and Professor F. K. Hare, both of McGill University's Department of Geography, added it to their charts, and decided that we are well on the way to a new type of climate in the countries bordering on the Atlantic coast.

"Summers, they say, are getting progressively hotter and longer; winters are milder. But, they hasten to add, our historical records go back only a short distance. The present trend, detected in the 1880's, 'may be just a shiver in the world's weather.' But it might also be the road back to a much different climate . . ."

That's what the [illegible]ys. But maybe the weather needn't be in such a hurry to change—it has lots of time. A little normal brisk fall temperature right now would be a great help to business, and probably most people would enjoy it.

Find Blind Horse At Large On Road

A blind horse running at large on the highway gave two city policemen and a farmer a run Monday evening near the Club Aragon. The horse had broken lose from its field and before the owner was able to catch him Sgt. Percy Sexsmith and Constable Gillespie joined the chase.

An east bound bus driver was the first to give the alarm and a number of motorists on Highway 28 called the police for assistance.

Fox-Ranching Help

OTTAWA, Oct. 12 — (CP) — W. Chester S. McClure (CP, Queens) appealed to the government in the Commons Tuesday night to help the fox-ranching industry. He urged changes in the system of grading fox pelts and lower taxes on the output of ranchers. He said skins should be graded, not on price, but as they were needed on the market.

Murray Certain Steel Strike Will End Soon

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 12—(AP)—Philip Murray says the country-wide steel strike will end soon—with complete victory for his men in their fight for free pensions and insurance.

"I assure you that before very long we will all be happy," Murray said in a speech at Youngstown, O. It was his first talk of a pep tour to take him to several of the country's steel centres.

There was no reply from industry to Murray's optimism—or to his charges industry had forced 454,000 of his men to strike.

The United States Conciliation Service went ahead setting up separate meetings with union and top industry leaders in an effort to break the strike.

The Conciliation Service also kept an eye on reopening of contract talks today between soft coal operators and the striking 380,000 United Mine Workers. It's worried over the approaching crisis as the result of the 24-day-old coal strike.

Both strikes are threatening a knockout blow at American economy. More and more industries are being affected.

Stocks Smaller

Iron Age, the National Metal-Working weekly, said steel stocks are generally smaller than had at first been estimated. It added that close checking indicates few big fabricators will be able to operate more than 30 days without curtailing production.

The fabricators, employing 500,000 steelworkers, are threatened by strikes starting Saturday. Their contracts begin running out then, continuing until mid-December. Murray already has served notice he wants free pensions and insurance for the fabricator employees, just as he does for the men in basic steel, now on strike.

Even as Murray was speaking to 15,000 cheering strikers yesterday, the International Harvester Company laid off about 3,500 employees at its Chicago McCormick plant because of depleted steel supplies. That brought the total of men strike-idled in related industries to more than 50,000—including 41,000 on coal and steel-hauling railroads.

WELL PROVIDED FOR—This parrot, being fed by Jo Brown and 52 other pets—parrots, lovebirds, budgerigars, macaws and cockatoos—are well provided for in the will of 72-year-old Jane Wilson of Victoria who died last July. Under the terms of the will these pets are to be given proper care as long as they live. The executors are now faced with the problem of finding a permanent home for the pets. The Red Cross and Victoria's Royal Jubilee Hospital were each left $125,000 by Miss Wilson.

W.I. Holds Open House

BETHANY, Oct. 12 (ENS) — The Women's Institute will hold an "Open House" meeting in the Town Hall, October 17 at which Walter Reynolds of Bowmanville will be the guest speaker. He will show pictures of recent improvements made in the Downe's Farm project at Brooklin.

Give Crash Verdict

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12 (AP) —A coroners jury yesterday cited the pilot of a plane which crashed Oct. 1 and killed singer Buddy Clark, 38, for "lack of proper care and caution." Its verdict called the death accidental, but also criticized Pilot James Hayter for "unfamiliarity with the territory in which the landing was to be effected." The plane landed on a busy boulevard. Hayter already has been grounded pending a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing.

Greatest Prosperity

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12 (AP) —When the present strike situation is over the United States is in for the greatest period of prosperity it has ever known, Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder said Tuesday night. The secretary told a bankers meeting that when the official figures are released in a few weeks they will reveal that U.S. income of the last month was the highest on record.

Delay Murder Trial To Next Assizes

SUDBURY, Oct. 12 (CP) — The murder trial of Adelard Latour 49, accused in the stabbing death of his nephew's wife, Tuesday was put over to the next assizes.

But Mr. Justice G. A. Gale in Ontario Supreme Court ruled out a defence application to have the trial elsewhere than in Sudbury J. E. Lecourciere, Latour's lawyer, argued that feeling in Sudbury concerning the case is "high."

Latour was charged with murder shortly after Mrs. Cecile Rainville was found dead in her two-room apartment here Sept. 12.

2 Million Program On Homes For Aged

TORONTO, Oct. 12 (CP)—The city's welfare committee Tuesday approved a $2,000,000 program of construction of homes for the aged. The decision adds $500,000 to the amount provided for such construction by the city's new master plan.

The Provincial Government has pledged to provide 50 per cent of the cost of construction of homes for the aged, committee members said.

Mayor Hiram McCallum said this will make from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 available for old people's housing.

Transfer 157 People TCA Winnipeg Staff

MONTREAL, Oct. 12 (CP) — Transfer of 17 officials and 140 personnel members of Trans-Canada Air Lines from Winnipeg to Montreal was necessary to "consolidate headquarters and effect more efficient service," TCA officials said Tuesday.

The air lines' headquarters are located in the International Aviation Building at University and Dorchester Streets, near Canadian National Railways' central station.

In addition, TCA maintains space for several minor departments in the old Montreal Gazette building, two blocks away on St. Antoine Street.

Telegraph Services Now Back To Normal

TIMMINS, Oct. 12 (CP) — Telegraph and telephone services Tuesday were being returned to normal across Ontario's northland after several lines were broken by a 24-hour gale.

A total of 63 CNR telegraph poles were knocked down between Cochrane and Hearst by the storm that ended last Tuesday.

The gusts of wind, which reached as high as 45 miles an hour, knocked down signs in Timmins and lifted lanterns at construction project barricades off their hooks.

The storm caused a minor power failure in part of Timmins but no other breaks were reported.

Makes Unofficial Visit

OTTAWA, Oct. 12 (CP)—Sir Mohammed Zafrulla Khan, Foreign Minister of Pakistan, will pay an unofficial two-day visit to Ottawa this week, it was learned Tuesday. He will arrive Thursday from New York where he is attending the meeting of the United Nations General Assembly and will stay with Mohammed Ali, Pakistan High Commissioner to Canada.

New Cut of Meat Found Similar to Filet Mignon

By MARY MOORE.

The Retail Merchants' Association convention was held recently and I was lucky enough to see and hear a meat cutting demonstration at one of their sessions, by a Mr. Witte of the United States.

With great dexterity and speed accompanied by lively and stimulating instructions, he cut up a whole side of beef using an ingenious electric saw.

What will interest you cooks is the new cut of meat he has developed. It is called "sirloin tip tenderized fillet" and is similar in purpose to filet mignons.

Mr. Witte cut a slice from the sirloin tip (commonly called the tip of the rump roast) which he calls "an inactive muscle." He runs this through the "tenderizing" machine. Then he sprinkles it with a very little finely powdered suet and folds it over, and puts it through the "tenderizer" again. He repeated the suet sprinkling, folding, tenderizing again, then bound the steak with a strip of bacon, and it looked exactly like "filet mignon,"—and tasted better—he said.

He was demonstrating the two machines I mentioned above for his firm, with the object of selling them to butchers. He said this could be done with many cuts of meat from inactive muscles of beef, and as a result the butcher could offer them for sale at a 25% increase in price over what was ordinarily received.

I have yet to taste these broiled but when talking to Mr. Witte after the demonstration he said the suet added flavor to the fillet that was lacking even in a cut of beef as superior as beef tenderloin.

We will all have to watch for this cut on our butchers' counters.

High Calorie Dinner

Broiled White fish Fillets Baked Potatoes Broccoli with Hollandaise (see notes) Cheese-stuffed Celery Deep Plum Pie (see notes) Coffee.

One-Burner Dinner

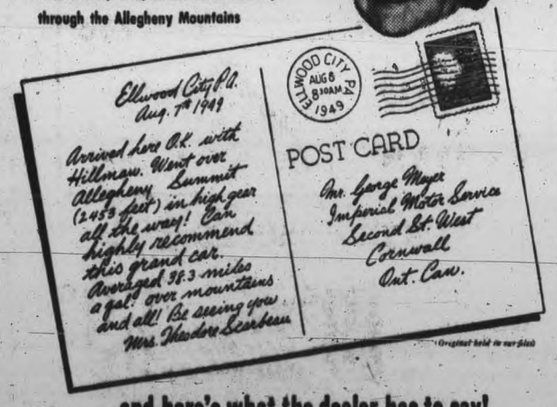
Chili con Carne Shredded Cabbage Salad Rye Bread Chilled Compote of Mixed Plums and Pears Cookies Coffee.

Directions

I had to look up the recipe for hollandaise when I made it last night and thought maybe some of my readers would like to be reminded of the procedure.

Hollandaise Sauce: Beat 2 egg yolks until very thick, then add ½ teaspoon salt and dash of cayenne. Add ½ cup melted butter (or margarine), but this must not be any hotter than is required to melt it and must be added very slowly, and alternately with 1 tablespoon lemon juice. This is especially good with hot broccoli, asparagus or spinach, or Brussels sprouts. (see note below about Hollandaise for Eggs Benedict).

Deep Plum Pie



Into buttered glass baking dish slice 4 cups Lombard or other dessert plums. Sprinkle with ¾ to ⅞ cup sugar mixed with 2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca and ½ teaspoon nutmeg. Stir this into the plums. Cover with thick pastry crust gashed well at centre. Brush top with mixture of 1 teaspoon sugar and 1 teaspoon cream. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for about 45 minutes, reducing heat if crust browns too much before plums are tender. Serve with heavy cream or white cream cheese or pouring cream.

Beverley Carveth Marries Ross S. Rylott

In Knox United Church Saturday afternoon, nuptial vows were pledged by Beverly Marion Carveth and Ross Stanley Rylott. The bride is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Carveth of Peterborough, and the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rylott of Keene.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. G. Douglas. A background setting was of 'mums and ferns and the music was by Mr. Wm. Potter. Mr. G. Routly sang "O Perfect Love" during signing of the register.

The bride chose a gown of white satin, the skirt gathered up at the front with lily of the valley to show tiers of lace and extending in a long train which was edged with matching lace. The fitted waist had a yoke of sheer nylon, and her veil was of nylon net, caught to a crown of the same. She carried red roses. Mr. Langton Carveth gave his sister in marriage.

She was attended by her sisters, Mrs. Isabel Gynane as matron of honor, Misses Joan and Fern Carveth as bridesmaids, and her niece Donna Carveth was flower girl. Mrs. Gynane wore a gown of gold crepe with low cape neckline and skirt fullness centred in the back, and the Misses Carveth wore similarly fashioned dresses of leaf green crepe. They wore bands of flowers in their hair and carried a single chrysanthemum nosegay. The flower girl's long dress was of sheer white nylon over green taffeta and she wore a poke bonnet in the same colors and carried a similar nosegay.

Mr. Kenneth Rylott was groomsman and the ushers were Ivan Davis and Harold Rylott.

The reception afterward was in Knox Church hall. The bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. L. Carveth, assisted in receiving and was wearing a navy dress with pink lace trim, navy felt and corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother, who also received, chose a navy ensemble and wore red roses on her shoulder.

For travelling the bride wore a navy suit with grey hat and accessories. On return from a wedding trip to points west Mr. and Mrs. Rylott will live on Morrow St.

Elsie Bradshaw Wed at St. Paul's

In St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, a setting of baby 'mums and ferns was arranged at the altar on Saturday afternoon for the wedding of Elsie Viola Bradshaw and Albert Gerald DeSalvo, performed by the Rev. C. G. Boyd. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Bradshaw, Peterborough, and the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. DeSalvo of Smiths Falls.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. D. Flett and Mr. Earl Powers was soloist. Before the ceremony he sang the "Lord's Prayer" and at the signing of the register, "Through the years."

The bride was given in marriage by her brother Mr. Earl Bradshaw. The wedding gown was of white sheer in floor length and she wore a fingertip veil of embroidered net caught to a beaded crown. She carried a bouquet of red roses. The only attendant was her sister Miss Mary Bradshaw who was frocked in pink moire taffeta and wore matching mittens and a shoulder veil. She carried pink carnations.

The groomsman was Mr. Roy Garvin and the ushers Ian Smith and Kenneth Powers.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

QUESTION: Could you say what to use in cucumber pickles to keep them green? Polly J.

❖ ❖ ❖

ANSWER: The preliminary remarks in your letter were welcome.

I could say what to use in cucumber pickles to make them green but I must not because it is slightly injurious to health. It is strictly regulated by Government restrictions in the pickling industry so no harm is done, but to print the method in this column is beyond my jurisdiction. Can't you just be satisfied to let your pickles be an olive green which is their natural colour when brined? Keep them crisp with a very little alum and I think you will be happy with them. Sorry I have to be so unsatisfactory this time. Write again.

QUESTION: Last year sometime before Xmas you printed a recipe for Xmas cake that had pineapple in it. I tried it and it was grand. I have lost it some way, and would like to make one for Thanksgiving. I do not remember if the pineapple was candied or not. Mrs. G. McF.

❖ ❖ ❖

ANSWER: That is a good cake isnt' it? I think it is one of the best. I am printing the rcipe, and also sending it to you by mail so that you will have it in time.

Emem's White Fruit Cake

Reserve 2 cups of the sifted flour and dredge the raisins, nuts and citron with it.

Cream together the sugar and butter until they are very light and fluffy, then add the well-beatten eggs and beat. Add the remaining flour sifted with the baking powder and nutmeg; then add the floured fruit, and pineapple and pineapple juice. Pour into 2 loaf pans lined with several thicknesses of buttered paper. Steam for 2½ hours, then remove from steamer and bake ½ hour longer at 300 deg. Fahr. OR bake at 275 deg. Fahr. with large pan of water in bottom of oven, for about 2½ to 2¾ hours.

Recipe makes 6 lbs. cake.

If to be kept for an indefinite period of time, wrap in heavy waxed paper and bury in large crock full of brown sugar and cover tightly.

QUESTION: You have helped me so many times and I cannot thank you enough for your kindness.

Would you please send me some recipes for serving carrots different ways, and squash. I have tried to make this dish but do not get it just right. You take apples and put in a pudding dish and spread a cake batter over it. But the apples always seemed raw like, and I cooked them so long the cake batter was not nice. I put the pudding dish nearly 2-3 full. I would like his recipe as it is real nice if you get it made right.

Could you tell me when you write if you can get cook books from the United States?

I have been poorly all summer my nerves are terrible,—I am going to make a hobby of collecting recipes. Can you spare any more of your pages?

My husband and I have terribly poor appetites. . . Could you suggest something tempting in different ways for serving vegetables? I want it as reasonable as possible as when you have 9 to serve, and everything so high-priced it is so hard not to have somethings over and over. . . "A Frined".

❖ ❖ ❖

ANSWER:

You know I like your letters, and that I count it a privilege to have you for a friend.

How you manage to have any appetite at all with seven children to work and cook for I cannot imagine—my two keep me run off of my feet and now that they are 15 and 16 can outthink me at times—which is a terrible state of affairs.

Various Ways of Serving Carrots

(1) On fine shredder shred carrots into top of double boiler. For each 5 cups of shredded raw carrots add 5 tablespoons butter or margarine 5 tablespoons boiling water, 1 teaspoon each sugar and salt, and ⅛ teaspoon white pepper. Cover, place over boiling water and cook over the boiling water until carrots are tender. Before serving add 5 tablespoons finely chopped parsley.

(2) Glazed Carrots: Cut well-scrubbed carrots into strips 2 inches long about 2- 3cup for 1 quart carrots,—cook only until they can be pierced with fork—not at all tender. Drain and dry. For each cup of cooked carrots add 1 tablespoon sugar to iron frying pan and ½ as much butter or margarine. Move the carrots gently around in this glaze until they absorb it and are golden. Serve at once.

(Answer to this letter will be continued next week).

DOROTHY DIX

Husband Advised to Give Erring Mate Second Chance

DEAR MISS DIX: I have discovered that my wife has been unfaithful to me for several years.

Dorothy Dix

She has told me that she did not know why she did this, asked me to forgive her and said that I could always trust her in the future. For the sake of our son, now about 11 years old, and our parents I am trying to think this thing out carefully. I am sure that my love her her which has stood so much for years, for she has been cold and unsympathetic with me, has finally died. She has seen this and has become panicky in her plea of "why cannot I care for her again as I used to?" I feel awfully sorry for her but it seems to me that a separation is the only solution. She has been a good wife and mother except for this.

L. C.

ANSWER: Many women forgive their husbands for being unfaithful to them. Why should not a man now and then extend the same mercy to a wife for straying off the straight and narrow path?

A man is a lonely creature without a wife. He is a forlorn creature without a home. He is a helpless creature with a child with no one to look after him, no one to make a home for him, no mother to love and cuddle him and give him the ceaseless attention that children need.

Hard To Forgive

Of course, infidelity is a hard thing for one to forgive in one's mate. It is a particularly hard thing for a man to forgive in his wife, because when a man marries he puts his name and his honour in his wife's hands and he expects her to keep them clean. But often forgiveness is better than revenge and brings a man more happiness in the end.

Often a woman is swept from her moorings by some sudden storm of passion just as a man is, and when it is over she creeps back to her husband, battered and bruised, and spends the balance of her life licking his hand in gratitude if he does not shut the door in her face. Sometimes she, too, hungers for romance that her husband fails to give her and when she has eaten of forbidden fruit and found it dust and ashes in her teeth, she ever afterward eats the plain bread and butter of domestic life on her knees.

So suppose you give her another chance. None of us are so perfect that we should deny that to any sinner.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Is there any formula for forgetting? I have been trying to forget someone for nearly two years, but have had no success. Can you suggest anything?

ANSWER: If it is not possible for you to travel, you will find that a little common sense is a good antidote. Just realize that you are letting a memory ruin your life and consider how idiotic that is. For you know we can cultivate unhappiness just as much as we can cultivate happiness, and about nine-tenths of the misery in the world is sheer morbidness. It is just brooding over unpleasant things that have happened to you and that you can't change, when you might just as well snap out of it and be having a jolly good time.

If death has robbed you of a loved one, you do not want to forget him, but you want to think of him beautifully and tenderly and in a way that will bring you a sort of sacred happiness. There is something fine and uplifting in such memories, but it is weak and cowardly to spend the balance of your life in making your memory of your dear one a purgatory.

And if the one you wish to forget was a traitor to you and failed you, don't you think that you have been very silly to let the memory of him darken your life? Try to see him for the cad he was and then forget him. He isn't worth remembering.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a widower with three children and know a woman, a widow with one child, and we are thinking of getting married. Our relationship is very congenial, but I am not strongly in love with her. Is it not likely that after marriage I might meet some woman with whom I would really fall in love?

PERPLEXED.

ANSWER: You would be practically sure to meet the "other woman" because your letter shows that you are already looking out for her, so why tie yourself up beforehand? Divorces are messy and expensive things. But any man with children who would marry a woman with a child and thus mix up two ready-made families is certainly out hunting trouble. Children do not mix. Nor do women with children of their own make good step-mothers. They can't be fair to the little steps.

1 Wife Enough Israel Rules Bans Polygamy

By JAMES M. LONG

TEL AVIV, Oct. 12— (AP) — Polygamy is about to be banned from Israel for the first time in the long history of the Holy Land.

Prime Minister David Ben Gurion announced he would call for revision of the marriage law at the next sessions of the Jewish Parliament, two of whose members themselves have more than one wife.

There is expected to be no real opposition to the change, which would apply equally to Jews and Moslems.

Ben Gurion gave his reasons as social modernization, and the establishment of more uniform domestic social conditions.

"The law is not directed against Islam," he said. "Islam permits Moslems to take four wives—but it does not require them to do so."

Probably not more than five per cent of the adult male population of Israel has more than one wife. Most of these are Moslem Arabs—as polygamy is not permitted among Christian Arabs.

Practice Warning

Two groups of Jews permit polygamous marriage. These are Yemenite, or Asiatic Jews; and Sephardi, or Mediterranean Jews. But the practice has diminished in recent generations until even among these groups only a small minority has more than one wife.

The famous ban of Rabbi Gershon, in 1040, ended polygamy among the European Jews.

In Israeli Legislature one Sephardi delegate and one Yemenite have two wives each. All but one of the Arab legislator are Christians; and one Moselm is unmarried.

In 1936 the British Mandatory authority banned polygamy—but left a loophole. The law was effective for individuals whose personal status or religious laws allowed plural marriage. That applied to Moslems, and the two classes of Jews.

This 1936 mandate law is the one that will be changed.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Devalued European Prices May Affect U.S. Production

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (AP) —It will be a year or so before the people of the United States know what happened to them when some 25 countries made their money cheaper in relation to the American dollar.

Now that the almost world-wide wave of devaluation is almost over, Washington's trade experts are trying to figure which American goods will again be more expensive than foreign goods, and thus lose buyer appeal. They are convinced that:

Some European goods will be sold here so cheaply that some buyers will switch from American to foreign goods. They figure that when European luxury goods are more nearly equal to their American counterparts in price, many Americans will g oback to buying British china and leather, French gloves, Belgian lace, Italian silks and pottery, French brandies.

Further, American goods are bound to run into stiff competition in other markets, such as Egypt, Brazil, Australia, Argentina. Foreign buyers may skip American goods in favour of lower-priced European goods.

If and when this happens factories in the United States may sell less, and there is a threat that some American working people will lose their jobs.

The most conservative economist to whom this reporter talked—a representative here of big business—thinks the whole United States price range will slip downward next year.

Most of the other economists to whom this reporter talked think lower prices will hit the U.S. only in spots, and will not affect her general high level of trade.

Here are the American goods most likely to be hit by European competition: Automobiles, Woollen and cotton textiles, electrical equipment, china, men's clothing, tobacco, fruits, coal and grain.

Washington experts thought textiles, men's clothing and china may be hit here in domestic markets by a switch in American buying.

Autos and electrical equipment are likely to take their biggest loss in other world markets where they may have to compete with lower prices of European goods.

The farm products—American wheat, tobacco, fruits—may be bought in smaller quantities by other countries.

Noronic Bodies Poorly Handled Mortician Says

OTTAWA, Oct. 12 — (CP) — Clifford J. Gray, Toronto mortician, said Tuesday that lack of systematic removal of bodies from the staterooms of the cruise-steamship Noronic hindered identification of victims.

In an address before the final session of the annual Ontario Funeral Service Association convention, Mr. Gray outlined special problems encountered by morticians in the disaster. He was director of the emergency mortuary set up when the luxury ship burned at her berth in Toronto Sept. 17 with a total of 105 identified dead and 19 missing.

Mr. Gray said the boat should have been sealed and no bodies removed until identification was completed. He said firemen had worked so rapidly in removing bodies that in some cases parts of bodies were left in cabins after torsos had been removed.

At Toronto, Fire Chief Peter Herd denied the funeral director's charge that lack of systematic removal of bodies of Noronic fire victims from the gutted cruise ship hindered identification.

Said Chief Herd:

"It simply is not so. The utmost care was taken by the firemen in removing the bodies. There were no bodies torn apart in removing them In some cases there may have been a small portion such as a forearm or other bone left when a body was picked up. There was no case where any major portion of a body was left lying in a cabin after a torso had been removed."

Two Veterans In Ontario Winners In Competition

OTTAWA, Oct 12 (CP)— The results are in for Canada's first national competition in the development of communities and two of the winners are in Ontario and the other in Saskatchewan.

The competition involved settlements that have sprung up in the last three or four years under the care of veterans settled on small holdings under the Veterans Land Act.

The veterans live, generally, on the edge of towns or cities with enough land to put in a garden or keep bees or do something else to supplement their income.

There were 124 sub-divisions or project communities in the judging and they were divided into three groups according to size. They range from five homes to more than 200.

The winners Spring Valley at Ancaster, near Hamilton; Riseborough near Toronto; Normandy Park at Prince Albert, Sask.

Second place Winston heights, Calgary; Valleyview near Kamloops, B.C.; Woodstock, N.B.

The final judge was A. C. Norcross, landscape architect and horticulturist, who became superintendent of small holdings in august and promptly went from coast to coast on the competition.

Points Awarded

Points were awarded for the average agricultural development, landscaping and building maintenance of the individual homes and grounds as well as for community enterprise such as recreation areas, community halls, street beautification and other developments.

Individual contests were held, too, with winners named by districts and about 16,000 veterans involved.

Veterans Minister Gregg who launched the competition last year commented:

"All we could give the veterans on the sub-divisions was a house and a half acre of bare land. It is very gratifying to see the gardens, young fruit and shade trees, community facilities and social life that have developed."

Nearly all the small holders, Mr. Gregg said, are reducing their living costs by producing their own food. That was the main purpose of a segment of the veterans charter that has grown into a multi-million-dollar investment business.

Theft Of Money From Mails 18-Month Term

Convicted on two charges of theft from the Peterborough Post Office where he was employed, Patrick Gahagan of 390 Mark St. Tuesday was sentenced to 18 months in reformatory on each of the two counts, to run concurrently.

Gahagan, who had been employed with the Post Office less than a month at the time of his arrest, pleaded guilty to the two charges.

He was convicted of stealing $8 from one letter, and also of stealing other letters. Crown Attorney John Bradshaw produced 27 letters as exhibits.

In passing sentence His Honor Judge S. L. Smoke said he had taken into consideration the fact the accused had an exemplary war record, and was crippled in one leg from a wound received while on active service.

Minimum sentence under this section of the Criminal Code is one year.

One Crown Witness

The Crown, in view of the fact Gahagan pleaded guilty, called only one witness, Col G. H. Lawrence, a Post Office inspector from Ottawa. Col. Lawrence said on the evening of August 23 he placed a sum of $8 in a letter, and after noting the serial numbers of the bills, handed it to H. E. White, assistant post master to mail.

He testified it had been mailed the next morning and during the morning he examined it in the city sorting rack and found it had been opened. Gahagan's work in the post office included clearing the postal drop boxes.

At lunch time Col. Lawrence and another postal official Cecil B. McNabb, also from Ottawa, approached Gahagan and queried him on the letter. Then they asked to see the money in his wallet.

All of the missing bills were found in Gahagan's wallet, he said.

27 More Letters

Subsequently the accused produced nine more letters from his pockets, none of which were opened. City police were called and Detective Sergeant Stevenson accompanied him to his home where 18 other letters were produced from a trunk. All of these had been opened and some contained cheques, Col. Lawrence testified.

Gahagan was committed for trial in a higher court by Magistrate E. A. Gee of Lindsay early in September. And he subsequently chose speedy trial by judge alone.

In Gahagans favor, Crown Attorney Bradshaw said that he had an excellent military record. "Three of his Regimental buddies have stopped me on the street saying he and his brothers should have had V.Cs."

Mr. Bradshaw handed Judge Smoke a letter from Major Jack Peterson of the SD and G's which spoke highly of the accused as a soldier.

But he added "Despite the excellent record of this unfortunate man, neither the investigators or myself feel the minimum sentence is enough."

The Crown Attorney stated that Gahagan had his post-office wages in addition to a 100 per cent disability pension. "And yet he started thefts within a few days from beginning his employment, and they extended over the period of about a month."

Defence Counsel W. J. Arthur Fair, KC, claimed the accused showed signs of not being "mentally balanced" and suggested his wartime injuries, causing him to remain in hospital for four years, were a possible cause.

"He doesn't seem to know the difference between right and wrong," said Mr. Fair. "It is hard to see how he expected not to get caught."

Recommend To City Council Suspension of Protection Service To Rural Residents

"Our department has enough to do in the city," said Fire Chief George Smith as the finance committee of the council Tuesday night recommended a change in fees and terms for responding to fires in the neighboring townships. Smith and Douro townships are to be notified that their present agreement paying $50 a fire call will be honored to the end of this year; North Monaghan and Otonabee are to be informed that the charge will be $200 a call to Dec. 31; and suburban residents, comprising a so-called preferred list, are to be charged $200 instead of $50.

That was the substance of a motion by Mayor Swanston, seconded by Ald. Doug. Miller. It was unanimously adopted.

"I've heard this discussion so often it seems like 15 times," said Ald. Adam Sands. "It was usually the same kind of decision, and then after the first of the year, the new council would go back to the same arrangement for answering fires outside the city."

Boost Charge To $200

If the council adopts the recommendation of the committee, the immediate effect, except in Smith and Douro, will be the boosting of the fire call charge to $200.

Chief Smith said that when the village of Omemee bought an $8,000 pumper, they extended their fire fighting service into the rural area, in agreement with 200 farmers at five dollars each a year for 15 years.

"I told them it should have been $10," Chief Smith said.

Sentiment of the committee was that the city did not wish to continue assuming any responsiblity for going to fires beyond its own borders.

Ald. Dick Raine said the ratepayers of Peterborough have to pay for fire protection the whole year round, have to maintain the efficiency of the department. They have no option of a standby service in the event of fire threatening their properties.

There was also the factor mentioned by Chief Smith, that the department has enough to do in being ready at all times to fight fires within the city. It was said that repairs to equipment sometimes cost up to $200 after a rural run.

Another comment was that if people decided to build good houses in the township, where they paid township taxes, they should also assume liability for their own fire protection, and not expect the city taxpayers to bear that burden. If the council continued to supply such protection they were giving encouragement, it was said, to the realty movement outside the city.

No Written Agreement

As to a preferred list, it was said that there was no written agreement to respond to fires to these 14 properties, although there were probably verbal understandings given by councils from time to time. On that list were: Mount St. Joseph, Peterborugh Golf Club, and certain private citizens living beyond the fringe of the city.

"I told people of the Keene area that I would rather see them do something about getting their own equipment," Chief Smith said.

It was understood in the discussion that the end of this year will bring about the cancellation of existing arrangements with the suburban and rural communities. For properties within reach of city hydrants, it was suggested that there might be consideration given for service to be paid for as an annual charge, and not depending on outbreak of a fire.

Suburban collection of garbage had been changed to an assessment and tax basis, instead of a monthly fee, and it was suggested that a similar arrangement of fire protection might be considered by the council of 1950.

Finance committee's change of attitude and police developed in discussion of a letter from Bruce Johnston, clerk of North Monaghan. It was a notice to the city council dispensing with the delaying preliminary of obtaining permission from a member of the township council as a condition to response by the city's fire department. Mr. Johnston wrote that this provision of authority was intended to save time in the emergency of a fire, and inferentially was an assumption or assurance by the township council of any liability for payment.

MEMORIAL CENTRE MEETING

J. A. Jebson has called a meetin of the general committee of the Memorial Community Centre for Thursday at 7.30 p.m. at the Chamber of Commerce. Presumably, the council's renewed offer of the property at George and Rink Sts. is to be considered. Since the Centre project has been drifting about in the outer darkness, changes on George St. have been moving the retail store section southward.

Wanted Food Broke In House

Two Indians, Wesley and George Taylor, were placed on suspended sentence for two years today in city police court when they pleaded guilty of breaking into George Kelly's house, Burleigh Twp. and stealing food.

Provincial Constables J. Hanson and G. Stevens arrested the men Tuesday and V. J. McElderry, KC, acting for the Crown, said the men had been moving around, looking for work and had broken in to get a little food.

In allowing suspended sentence, Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, explained the seriousness of the offence, for which there could be a sentence of 15 years.

Linda, who lives at 525 George St., was in the garden with her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Morgan, when her mother spotted the fruits, unharmed by fall frosts.

PERMIT REFUSED

Application by M. Coughlin, 512 College St., for a woodyard permit on Woodbine Ave., was refused by the finance committee of the council Tuesday night. The location was once occupied and known as "city ice supply" an old building back in the war years that was a convenience when the council had to go into the ice business. New houses are moving toward it and the committee decided against the woodyard industry.

HIRE FULL-TIME HELP

As a result of a protest from the Stagehands Union the Allied Labor Council, to which that local is affiliated, investigated the claim that the Summer Theatre was not hiring a union man. When the protest was launched the theatre was near the end of this summer's run and an agreement was reached that a full-tim stage hand would be hired next season. Harold Dormer, Local 248, ITU, and vice-president of the ALC, made this brief report to the ALC on Tuesday night to be unnecessarily sharp.

Comments such as "this looks like a verbal spanking," and "wrist slapping" were herad.

Extra criticism was voiced when an Examiner editorial was read urging the ALC to be more responsible in its participation in civic affairs.

Truck Driver's Death Said To Be Accidental

BOWMANVILLE, Ont., Oct. 12.—(CP).—The death of Frederick Clark, Peterborough truck driver, killed when his transport hit a cow on the highway near Newtonville, today was ruled accidental by a coroner's jury. The jury attached no blame to the owner of the cow.

SHOE-LEATHER NEEDS

In 1949 an estimated 104,000,000 animal hides and skins will be required to meet the United States demand for shoes and leather soles.

Labor Council Feels Replies From City Unnecessarily Sharp

The Allied Labor Council Tuesday night considered three letters from the City Council commenting on separate ALC recommendations.

Tabled was a letter from the City Council taking no action on a request for it to use its influence in having a federal building erected here in Peterborough.

The reply dealing with the ALC's request for the erection of 1,000 low cost houses for rental and an extensive public works program in view of mounting unemployment, was referred to the Unemployment Committee to bring back a report later.

A letter will be drafted to the City Council stating it gave no reason why there should not be a vote to determine whether or not Peterborough ratepayers wanted the ward system of civic government and on request had supplied a list of reasons; a letter on Tuesday night was received from City Clerk E. A. Outram outlining the case against it.

Also in the correspondence was a reply from Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., who had been requested to use his influence in securing a federal building in Peterborough.

Wrote Mr. Fraser: "One of the last things I did before parliament was dissolved was to ask the Minister of Public Works and the Postmaster General, in a personal conversation, what was going to be done. The Minister of Public Works said, 'You have the site for the new building and this year a vote of $100,000 for the plants, etc., for this building'."

Donald Rosenburgh commented: "It's a funny thing that the federal members (he was referring to a promise of support from Senator J. J. Duffus as well) want to do all they can but the City Council doesn't want to go ahead with this project."

It was decided to acknowledge Mr. Fraser's letter and ask him to continue to use his influence on the matter of a federal building.

City Council's replies on both housing and works project request and the ward system were construed by members of the ALC

Jebson Approves Memorial Site On George Street

Expressing approval of the George St.-Townsend St. site as a good location for the Memorial Community Centre, J. A. Jebson, committee chairman, said yesterday that the lacrosse club should be looked after before this property was set aside for the Centre. The lacrosse club should either continue to lease part of it from the city or be given another suitable place, Mr. Jebson felt, as the sport has a big following here.

Lower costs in the future and the fact that this site would be so central that within 10 years it would pay for extra cost in footing tended to decide him in favor of this city property, Mr. Jebson said. He added that he had invited the Mayor and as many council members as could Thursday night to discuss thoroughly the property on George St. opposite Little Lake as the place for the Memorial Centre.

GRADUATES: 1949 STYLE — Time was when college students were irresponsible youngsters. But Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Mayotte indicate a change in styles. The couple were graduated from McGill University's school of social work and the most interested spectator was eight-month-old Margaret Eileen, their daughter. The couple were married while attending the university.

Emigre District Family Runs Foul of Yugoslavs

A former Peterborough district family of Yugoslav origin has found life in Tito's "new democracy" less happy than it had been painted from this side of the Atlantic.

One year ago the anonymous family—husband, wife and two small boys—left here to return, like 3,000 other Canadians of Yugoslav descent, to help build the new Federated People's Republic.

They left a comfortable home in this vicinity where the father had established a prosperous little business after 20 years of hard work.

Today, a press report from Belgrade reveals, he is in jail after an escape attempt; his wife has just been released from custody after serving five months for the same offence, and the two children have been sent by authorities to an aunt.

Present Deputy Minister of the Interior, Ido Jardas, a former editor of Toronto Yugoslav newspapers was the main instigator of the return - to - the - homeland movement among Canadian Yugoslavs. And this particular family was caught up in the skilful appeal to patriotism and nostalgia.

Took Villa

When they reached Zagreb they lived as moderately wealthy people, occupying a villa in the old part of the city. There they decided to settle down to their new life: the father rejecting comfortable retirement in order to work in a factory, the mother taking up her duties as a good housewife, and the two boys as schoolboys under the educational system of the new regime.

By this time their passports had already been confiscated, and numerous pieces of light machinery brought by the father from his Peterborough - district factory were purchased by the Yugoslav government.

The boys were first to fall foul of the authorities. Despite repeated demands that they join the Young Pioneers, a government-inspired youth organization, they did not do so. The father was firmly opposed to this step.

One of them found Russian too difficult and the other also found himself unable to adapt himself to the new education method. The language barrier was between them and their schoolmates. Motion pictures were shown not to entertain but instruct; and there were was no fun in that.

Secret Police

The secret police began to gather information on the family for its unco-operative attitude. And when the father found he was shifted to a lower-paid job when he was already partially living on savings, he decided to escape from the country.

He contacted a smuggling ring who agreed to take the family to the Italian border for the equivalent of $2,000. So as not to attract attention they locked the door of their home containing all their possessions, with the exception of their clothes and some cash. The boys were sent on to the railway station.

Near Kranj, on the Italian border they left the train to continue the rest of the way by foot. A single guide met them to direct them on the last lap to freedom.

When they reached what was technically neutral territory they were halted by sentries who tossed three hand granades. The guide slipped away and the four were captured without further incident.

Now the former Peterborough family are worse off than ever. No one knows how long the father will remain in prison. The boys are separated from their mother. Another family has occupied their home in Zagreb, and all their possessions have vanished.

And Canada and freedom are a long way away.

PCVS Students Hold Field Day At Morrow Park

Compiling a total of 2,959 points in Morrow Park Tuesday afternoon House D won for the second time the PCVS Track and Field meet, sponsored by the Boys' and Girls' Athletic Associations and the Cadet Corps. The students of the school were divided into four Houses, A, B, C and D with four teams for each House.

The senior teams were pupils from Grades 11 and 12 while the intermediate team were students from Grade 10. The junior and bantam teams were students from Grade 9.

Last year's meet was the first high school athletic event to take place in 10 years and about 500 attended. This year about the same number of pupils participated but 300 girls took part as compared with last year's 225.

One hundred and twenty-five points behind House D was House A with 2,834 points while House C was third with 2,802 and House B fourth with 2,620. The points were awarded three, five and seven upon passing the required standards while each competitor was awarded a point for participating in the events.

Top scorer was Gerald Bennett who captured 48 points out of a possible 56. Barry Hollingsworth and Creighton Johnston were tied for second honors with 43 points.

Scoring in the girls' events was much closer with House 2 (the girls using the form of organization used in Physical Education) leading by 27 points. House 1 was close behind with 1503 points while House 4 had 1,483 and House 3, 1,417.

Leading scorers for House 2 were: Marilyn Jackson, Theresa Heath, Bev Gould, Jaqueline Gardner, Marg Wood and Carolyn Reynolds.

All the events were held in front of the grandstand. Eight events were offered to the boys, sprint, ball throw, high jump, broad jump, shuttle relay, shot put, dribbling course, and potato race. Much the same was offered the girls with the extension jump replacing the boys' potato race and the hurdle relay replacing the shot put.

2 Workers Killed

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP) —Two steel workers were killed Tuesday when they fell 160 feet from a scaffold on a new metal water tower on the grounds of the National Aniline Division of the Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation. A third man clung to the scaffold when one end of it fell. Lashing himself with rope until he could be lowered to safety.

Odd 5-Cent Piece

MARMORA, Oct. 12 (ENS). —When Sandy Niblet was burning rubbish behind the priest's house here Tuesday he came upon what looked like a small piece of tin. But he picked it up, wiped off the soot and tarnish, and discovered it to be a 5-cent silver piece from the Straits Settlements (the British Crown Colony which includes Malaya and Singapore). It shows on the obverse side the head of King Edward VII, who is labelled in English—not Latin—"King and Emperor," and is dated 1910. It is exactly the size of the old Canadian small 5-cent piece. Although not ancient, the coin is unusual in this district.

Mr. Niblet says he remembers that 20 years ago in the Marmora area some such coins were being passed off as Canadian currency.

The find recalls the haul made by Mr. Boblik, the plasterer, about three years ago when he was working in the section which used to be Marmora's hub in early lumbering days. Then he unearthed a box of old copper coins worth about $30.00.

Charges were laid following a civic probe into the negotiations.

Mrs. A. Reycraft Only Woman To Drive Horse

WARKWORTH, Oct. 12 (ENS) —Despite apprehension caused by heavy rainfall the night before Warkworth Fair, there were more entries for the Northumberland County Black and White show than in any previous year and a large crowd of spectators also attended.

Children from 13 schools paraded to the grounds at 1 p.m., each school receiving $3. The Kiltie band from Havelock played throughout the afternoon.

Mrs. Arthur Reycraft was the only entrant in the lady driver's class. She drove a horse owned by Wilfred Lindsay of Campbellford and carried off the red ribbon.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Russell of Norham received a prize for the largest family attending the fair. Eight children were present and three others were living too far distant to attend.

The day's entertainment concluded with a dance in the Town Hall in the evening.

A display of farm machinery was demonstrated by a Hastings firm and there was also a display of cars and trucks.

The midway was the centre of attraction for many, with its ferris wheel, merry-go-round and other rides.

A fine display of handiwork by school children was shown and Warkworth Continuation School featured woodwork from their manual training class. The first prize for collection went to Lloyd Gummer; second to Kenneth Lockhart and third to Wayne Wartman.

The exhibits of cut flowers, potted plants and vegetables were good, though somewhat handicapped by the dry summer.

Women Show Work

There was an excellent display of fancy quilts and rugs and a table of home-baking. At 4 p.m. the ladies were free to make sales of the fancy cakes, pies, tarts and homemade bread and buns, roast chicken, etc.

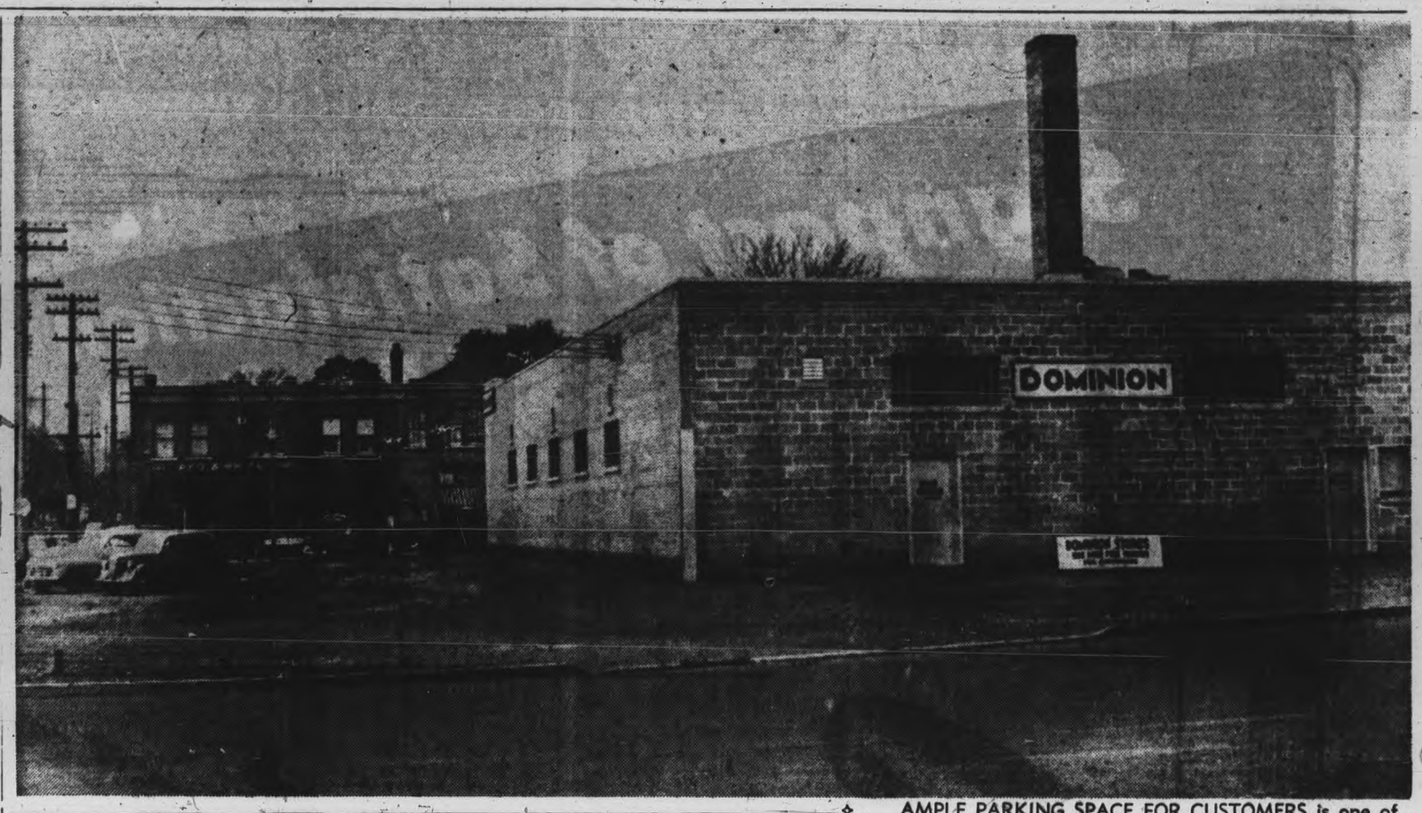
Shopping Centre Moves South With New Modern Food Market

Business expansion in the south of the main shopping centre was accelerated today as final arrangements were made for tonight's opening of the new Dominion chain store at George and Sherbrooke Sts.



The movement is a natural outcome of the increasingly rapid growth of the city which, in the past year, has resulted in the development of George St. S. as part of the main shopping centre.

The development of this end of the city seems to forecast a closer link between the industrial area to the south and the centre of the city.

It also brings the fast developing south residential area closer to the down town section of the city and should also relieve congestion at existing groceterias during the busy week-end shopping times.

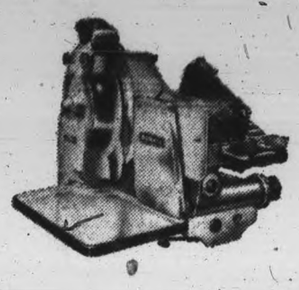
Civic Pride and Co-operation Claimed Traditional In Peterborough City



J. WILLIAM HORSEY

J. William Horsey, president of Dominion Stores Limited, expresses his confident impression of Peterborough's future in the following letter which he has written to Roger Hollinger, manager of the new store, on the occasion of the opening of the Dominion master market in Peterborough:

"May I add my congratulations to the great number you must have received on the completion of our new Peterborough store.

"You are located in a city of which everyone should be proud, a city whose vigorous tradition of opportunity, growth and vision is based on a fine spirit of civic pride and co-operation.

"I am proud that Dominion Stores Limited can play an active part in this growing, progressive community. I would like the people of Peterborough to know that Dominion Stores Limited will fulfil, with ever-increasing efficiency, its responsibility as a distributor of fine food, and will do everything within its power to make shopping pleasant, convenient and economical."

New Market Has Parking Lot For Customers

There will be no parking problem for shoppers at the new Dominion Store on Sherbrooke and George streets. Although the fine new food market building itself covers 6,600 square feet of space, there is an additional area of over 11,000 square feet which is allotted for parking facilities.

The asphalt paving job, which has been done by the Warren Paving Company, provides for easy movement of vehicles.

Parking in the congested city centre has been one of the most difficult problems of downtown Peterborough. People with cars have been required to park great distances from the stores they are visiting. Now a first class food centre is provided in Peterborough where the shopper can park at the store.

ROBIN HOOD BUTTERMILK SCONES

2 cups sifted Robin Hood Flour
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons shortening
cup plus 2 tablespoons buttermilk or sour milk

Wonderful old-fashioned scones that'll melt in your mouth — brought up-to-date and made better with Robin Hood!

1. Sift together flour, baking soda and salt into mixing bowl. Cut shortening into small pieces and add to dry ingredients. Blend together until mixture is mealy, using pastry blender (or two knives, cutting in with scissor-like motion).

2. Make a well in the center of mixture and gradually add the buttermilk or sour milk, stirring lightly with fork. Mix only until soft dough is formed.

3. Turn out onto lightly floured bakeboard or pastry cloth and divide in two equal portions. Gently roll out each piece with floured rolling pin or pat out with hand into circles ½ inch thick. Place circles on ungreased cookie sheet and cut in quarters, but do not separate the pieces. Bake at 450°F. (very hot oven) for 12 to 15 minutes. Makes individual scones.

NEW MASTER MARKET OPENS ON THURSDAY

STANDING IN A CONVENIENT SHOPPING LOCATION at George and Sherbrooke Streets, is the new Dominion Store shown above. The smart, cream-yellow front, with its bright red company name, was the last part of a construction job which began last April. This modern food market has 13,200 square feet of floor space, modern serving and shopping conveniences and a staff of 32 people, most of whom reside in Peterborough.

New George St. Market 13,200 Sq. Feet Floor Space

Dominion Stores have completed another community project in Peterborough. The new market will be a complete, convenient and economical food terminal for consumers. Located at George and Sherbrooke streets, the store will open tomorow for business. Tonight, at the same location, "open house" will be held to celebrate the event.

The fine new store with its shiny, welcoming front was built by W. H. Mortlock, general contractor, from plans drawn by Riddle and Connor, architects. The development and completion of this new food market brings Dominion's total in Ontario to 156.

With about 12,000 square feet of parking space capable of handling more than 500 cars daily, and 13,200 square feet of floor space facilitated by modern equipment and electrically-driven service escalators, combined with experienced and courteous staff, Dominion's new master market will be a valuable asset to the domestic life of the city.

Mayor Max J. Swanston has been invited, with the city council, to attend the "open house" at which many officials of business and industry will meet informally with consumer-citizens.

Commenced in April on a site formerly owned by Peter Hamilton, the completed market building will be opeped under the management of Roger Hollinger, who has years of experience in selling food. The three main departments—grocery, meat and produce—will be under the respective management of W. J. McMurty, D. Stirling and C. Weaver.

Has Modern Equipment

The store is fully equipped with refrigerated storage rooms for meat, provisions and fresh fruits and vegetables. There are six check-out desks equipped with modern electric cash registers. There is an electric coffee mill, meat saw, meat chopper, meat slicer, five electric refrigeration machines and a loudspeaker system.

The fruit and vegetable display counters measure 92 feet, and the layout of the main floor provides ample shopping space for customers.

Equipped with automatic steam heating, the building has a mechanical ventilating system of changing air every 15 minutes in the basement with electric ventilating fans on the main floor.

Stores of this type have recently been opened in Windsor, Sarnia, London, Brantford, Toronto, Montreal, Oshawa, Kingston, St. Thomas, and Ottawa.

Alliance Church To Open Sunday

The new Park St. Alliance Church at Park and Dublin Sts. will be dedicated at an opening service Sunday at 2.30 p.m. Special speaker will be the Rev. Nathan Bailey of Toronto, District Superintendent of the Christian and Missionary Alliance. Visiting ministers will be assisting and the pastor, the Rev. Ralph Hobson will preside. Deverne Mullen of St. John, N.B., and outstanding baritone, will be guest soloist.

Other opening day services will be conducted at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. the pastor will speak at the evening service.

Anniversary Held At Alderville Church

ROSENEATH, Oct. 12 (ENS) —"Do something constructive to help some one else" was the challenge thrown out by Mr. Fred Graham Y.M.C.A. superintendent of Toronto as guest speaker at the Anniversary Services at Alderville United Church on Sunday afternoon. Mr. H. Lander, Cold Springs, was in charge of the service assisted by Rev. J. N. Lovelace. Mrs. Mrs. Norman Marsden was in charge of the music and the choir rendered two anthems, "One Prayer, One Song' and "Hallelujah, Praise Jehovah."

During the service two babies were baptized. Virginia Janet, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Gray and Robert Kenneth, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Gray.

YOUTH RECRUITED FOR DOMINION STORE

New Dominion Food Market Engages Peterborough Staff

Because the new Dominion Store at 246 George Street is a community project offered by a well respected Ontario firm, the employees have been recruited from young men and young women in Peterborough.

The people who will check purchases, stock the shelves, punch the cash registers and perform other services in the years to come, are people who, for the most part have gone to school in Peterborough and had their first jobs here.

The men and women of Dominion Stores who daily meet customers and cater to their needs and desires are the real representatives of the company. Without them, their courtesy, their cooperation and willingness to serve, the company would be without the spirit of friendliness which has been the motivation of expansion.

In a practical sense, it is through these people—the cashiers the stockroom workers, the meat cutters, and all the other people who comprise a complete store entity,— that Dominion's policies are translated into action.

Consequently, Dominion has planned for the development of its staff. A dual program—development of physical assets and development of people—is designed to promote and protect Dominion's most important asset —the community.

The success and the development of the people of Dominion has been demonstrated again and again by the fact that many individual employees are taking an active part in the social and community life of the neighborhood.

WHENEVER DOMINION STORES opens a new community shopping centre they have to organize a fresh staff and train them in the system and routine of service. Shown above are prospective cashiers taking training at Dominion's school for cashiers. Shopping looks simple in the bottom picture as customers wheel their shopping gliders along the aisles and select conveniently marked merchandise. The aisles of the new Dominion Master Market are wide to facilitate the use of parcel carriages.

CLARENCE E. WEAVER produce manager born in Niagara Falls Ont. Started with Dominion Stores in 1941. Military service 1943 to 1945. Promoted from produce operation Niagara Falls to produce manager Peterborough.

Leader of group three, Mrs. Robert Fowler, led the worship service. Mrs. R. Harrison read the scripture and lesson thoughts and prayer were given by Mrs. F. Bell.

Mrs. Wilson, president led the business.

The decorating committee was placed in charge of the bazaar. Mrs. Stanley Boyce moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Armstrong. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Robt. Fowler. Lunch was served.

Production Good Employees Find

MONTREAL, Oct. 12—(CP) — After more than three years of employee-ownership greater production with less personnel has been achieved by the Parmenter and Bullock Manufacturing Company, Ltd., of Gananoque, President T. J. Delaney said Tuesday.

Speaking before the Canadian Progress Club of Montreal, Mr. Delaney said six months after the rivet and die-producing company was bought by the 210 men and women employees for $525,000 the first dividend in many years was declared.

The company was bought by the employees early in 1946.

"We know we are producing more goods with fewer employees," Mr. Delaney said. "Industrialists will tell us this is remarkable, but I believe it will be a normal reaction.

"People will not waste time or tolerate laxity from their fellow workers when their own money is at stake."

Every worker at the plant is a shareholder.

"If an employee leaves the company," Mr. Delaney added, "his share must be sold to the employees' pool and held for further distribution. No one outside our organization can hold shares in the company."

WILLIAM J. McMURTRY Grocery Manager with twelve years grocery experience has been promoted from senior clerk in Toronto to grocery manager of Peterborough's new Dominion Market. 5 years years military service.

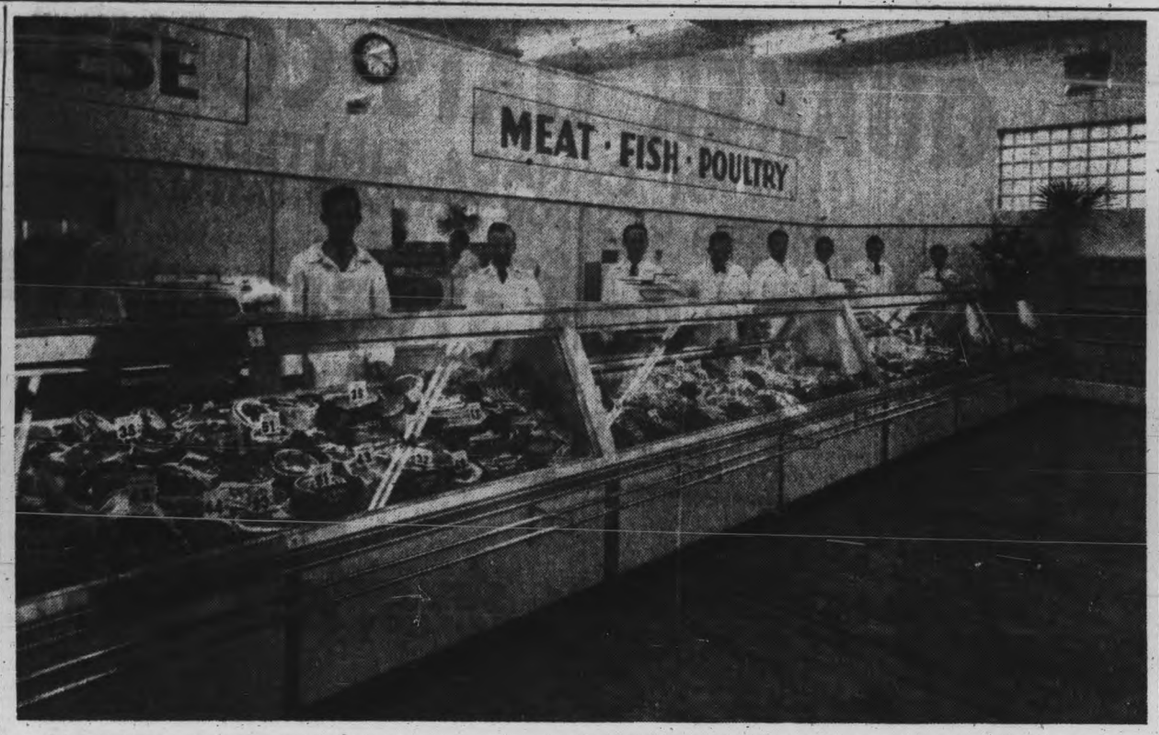
YOUNG FOLKS CLUB VOTED 2 TO 1 FOR HEINZ SOUP

IN COMPARISON WITH WELL-KNOWN BRAND



A taste-test carried out as part of the refreshments served at a young people's club recently resulted in a 2 to 1 preference for Heinz Condensed Vegetable Soup after comparison with another popular brand.

A mixed group of young men and women were served two bowls of hot soup without knowing the brands they were tasting. Below is a record of the favorable comments on four different qualities registered by those who preferred Heinz.

	Women	Men
Appearance	98%	68%
Flavour	100%	93%
Seasoning	72%	68%
Consistency	68%	75%

Many of those participating added such compliments as: "Better than any canned soup I ever tasted"..."Much superior"..."Flavour more like home-made." A versifier among the men wrote: "3 bowls a day would be OK."

GLASS MEAT COUNTER stretches almost the full width of the new Dominion master market and there is also a smaller self service meat counter for wrapped roasts, cooked meats, etc. The cold storage room is immediately behind the counter where there is also a room for meat cutting. Equipment in this section includes electric meat saw, meat chopper and meat slicer.

London Letter

Carthorse Now Disappearing From London's Busy Streets

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

LONDON, Oct. 12 —(CP)— Slowly but surely, the slow-but-sure carthorse is disappearing from London's traffic-jammed streets. Whereras 10 years ago the city had 19,000 domestic horses, today there are fewer than 5,000.

Londoners view their departure with mixed feelings.

In one sense these patient, willing servants of the carrier, the dairyman and the greengrocer are an integral part of the historic London scene. In another they belong to the past and should be humanely removed from competition with motor traffic.

For years past the railways have been the greatest users of horses. Now Sir Cyril Hurcomb, chairman of the Transport Commission, has announced that all of its remaining horses, in London and elsewhere, are to be retired.

The general post office, which has 30 horse-drawn vans still in service in London, says it will use no horses after the end of this year.

Milkman Horses Friend

Even the milkman is losing his horse—and friend. The express dairy company used to have 700 horses, but they are going fast.

"Last year," an official said, "we had 530 horse delivery runs. Nows its down to 460 and by next spring we shall have only 200 horses in our servise."

London brewers seem more reluctant to part with their "old faithfuls." In the last 10 years only three brewing firms have mechanized their transport fleet, but several others are considering the introduction of motor-driven drays.

Yet opinion on the subject of horse-traffic still is divided. While the animal friends' league campaigned for years to remove horse traffic from city streets, the national horse association has repeatedly defended the horse against the invasion of motor transport.

Many small traders say they depend on horse transport for a livelihood and are therefore reluctant to move with the times.

A PETERBOROUGH PRODUCT

Saxon Cake and Pastry Flour is made in Peterborough from selected Ontario wheat grown in the Peterborough district.

QUICK COFFEE CAKE

For the Batter:
2½ cups once-sifted Saxon Pastry Flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup fine granulated sugar
1 cup seedless raisins, washed and dried
1 egg, well beaten
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ cup milk
⅓ cup shortening, melted

Measure and sift together twice, the 2½ cups sifted flour, baking powder, salt and granulated sugar; mix in raisins. Combine beaten egg, lemon rind and milk and stir in melted shortening. Make a well in the dry ingredients and add liquids all at once; combine lightly. Turn into a broad shallow loaf pan—about 6½ by 10½ inches, top inside measure.

For the Topping:
6 tablespoons brown sugar
1½ tablespoons Saxon Pastry Flour
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
3 tablespoons butter, melted
Chopped cherries and nutmeats.

Combine the brown sugar, 1½ tablespoons flour and cinnamon and stir in the melted butter; spread gently on top of dough and sprinkle with chopped cherries and nutmeats. Bake in a hot oven, 400°, 30 to 35 minutes. Turn out and turn right-side-up. For serving, cut into squares or thick slices and serve with butter. Left-over cold coffee cake is delicious sliced and buttered, or sliced, toasted and buttered.

DELICIOUS MINCE PIE

3¼ cups once-sifted Saxon Flour
1 cup shortening, chilled
Very cold water
Mincemeat—your own make, or commercial.

Measure and sift together into a bowl, the flour and salt. Add half of the shortening and cut it in finely; add remaining shortening and cut it in coarsely. Gradually mix in sufficient very cold water to make a paste which, when lightly mixed, will just hold together and clean easily from the bowl. Line a pie pan with rolled-out pie paste and fill with mincemeat; dampen rim of paste and cover pie with a sheet of paste that has been slit to allow for escape of steam; seal, trim and crimp the edges. Bake in a hot oven, 450°, until the pastry is set—about 12 minutes; reduce heat to 400° and bake until paste is cooked and nicely browned—about 30 minutes longer. Serve hot.

RICH SWEET SCONES

2 cups once-sifted Saxon Flour
3½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
5 tablespoons shortening, chilled
½ cup brown sugar, lightly packed
½ cup washed and dried currants or seedless raisins
1 egg
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ teaspoon vanilla

Measure and sift together twice, the flour, baking powder and salt. Add the shortening and cut it in finely; mix in the brown sugar and currants or raisins. Beat egg well and add milk, lemon rind and vanilla. Form a well in the dry mixture and add the liquids all at once; mix lightly until combined. Turn into a greased round 8-inch cake tin and spread; score into six pie-shaped pieces, using a floured knife. Brush top with a little milk and sprinkle with 1 tablespoon fine granulated sugar. Bake in a hot oven, 425°, about 20 minutes. Serve hot, split and buttered.

13,200 SQUARE FEET OF FLOOR SPACE IN NEW MASTER MARKET

Interior Of Store Designed Modern Self Service Lines

The interior of the new Dominion store on George St. is designed on the most up-to-date lines for self service shopping. Display shelves are all within easy reach with no necessity for stretching and there are five aisles running the full length of the store with a glass covered meat counter across the far end of the floor.

Six checking-out desks will speed up packing and checking with the minimum of delay once the customer has selected her purchases.

13,200 Square Feet

Floor space of this light, fresh looking store covers approximately 13,200 square feet, which includes the main shopping floor and a basement for storing and packing. One of the more unusual features of the shopping service is a self service meat counter, in addition to the ordinary service counter.

Although the new store is pleasant to shop in because of its modern surroundings, it is the behind the scene equipment which is the most original. Delivery of merchandise will in no way hinder the regular functioning of the store because on arrival everything goes straight to the basement down a chute at the rear of the building.

From the basement to the main floor are two electrically driven escalators on which the goods are brought from storage to the main floor. These are conveniently concealed under the shelves from which the customers take their purchases.

All goods which can be stored without refrigeration are packed on pallets to keep them off the concrete floor of the basement. For meat storage there is a spacious refrigeration room measuring some 20 feet by 14. There is also another refrigeration storage room for dairy produce and yet a third for fruit and vegetables.

Packaged at Store

All the merchandise wrapped in cellophane bags is packaged at the store. Bags of fruit and packaged vegetables are stored in wooden lockers in the cold storage room and when ready to be moved to the main floor, are transported in the lockers up the escalator.

The store has a mechanical ventilating system capable of changing the air every 15 minutes in the basement and there are electric ventilating fans in the main section of the store. No fewer than 108 modern fluorescent lighting fixtures provide a pleasant and cheerful, well lighted store without glare.

Other equipment which makes speedy and efficient service includes an electric coffee mill, meat saw, meat chopper, meat slicer, five electric refrigeration machines, a loud speaker system and five checking out desks equipped with modern electric cash registers. And the building is equipped with automatic steam heating.

The fruit and vegetable display counters measure more then 100 feet.

Comfortable facilities for employees include a lunch room decorated in a light shade of grey with a sink and plans for a range and locker rooms.

INTERIOR OF THE NEW DOMINION GROCERY STORE on George St. at Sherbrooke is spacious and designed on ultra modern lines. There are six aisles running the length of the store with a meat counter at the far end. Most up-to-date innovation is contact between the main floor and storage basement by two electrically driven escalators. Labor is lightened and service speeded up by many electric gadgets. Three large refrigeration storage rooms house carcases of meat, dairy produce and fruit and vegetables.

Reading Shows Trend Of Prices Since 1897

LILY LAKE, Oct. 12 (ENS)—Mrs. Harry Fowler gave a reading showing the trend in prices since 1897 at the meeting of the W. A. at the home of Mrs. George Middleton. Mrs. J. A. Middleton was joint hostess.

It was decided to hold a rummage sale at Cherney's store on Oct. 28 and Mrs. Everett Tully and Mrs. Clarence Hancock were appointed conveners. Tickets are being sold on a five piece silver tea service, a Kenwood blanket and an electric iron. Mrs. Harry Fowler was chosen convener.

An auction sale held at the meeting, with Mrs. Ken Harrison as auctioneer, raised $7.50.

Mrs. A. Ackison read the secretary's report and Mrs. J. A. Middleton reported a good financial position.

Mrs. George Middleton thanked members for the bed jacket they had given to her mother Mrs. Falls, who is now confined to her bed.

Mrs. Everett Tully read the Scripture and Mrs. Clarence Hancock led in prayer.

Lunch was served.

Union Men Lose Pay

TORONTO, Oct. 12 (CP)—The steel strike in the United States had an echo here Tuesday. Members of the Canadian staff of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO), the union on strike in the United States, said they had received word that their pay has been cut off for the duration of the strike. They said the policy of most international unions is to cut off the pay of officers and field men during a strike.

NEW DOMINION MASTER MARKET COMPLETED IN FIVE MONTHS

Peterborough Contractors Built New City Groceteria

The Dominion store on George St. which is all ready for tonight's official opening, has been built almost entirely by Peterborough builders. W. H. Mortlock was the contractor and 15 sub contractors have been engaged over a period of nearly five months.

One of the most striking features of the building is the ultra modern store front, which is the first of its type in the city. This was built by the Macotta Company of Canada and is of enamelled steel.

The architects were Riddle and Connor of London, Ont., and three out-of-town sub contractors were Disher Steel Construction Company which was responsible for the structural steel; Toronto Brick Company who did the face brick work and the Macotta Company.

Twelve Peterborough sub contractors who contributed to the building were Archibald and Richmond, plumbing and heating; Armoured Floor Company, concrete floor finishing; Adamson & Dobbin. ventilating; Cyril Barnes, masonry; Curtis Bros., excavating; W. Gordon Hall, electrical work; Peterborough Block Supply, concrete blocks; Peterborough Glass and Paint Company, glass and glazing; Rehill Fuel and Builders Supply, building supplies Smith Bros., painting; Trent Valley Roofing Company, roof and sheet metal and J. F. Wolstenholme, lathing and plastering.

Case Dismissed

Magistrate W. R. Philp K.C. dismissed a case Tuesday in city police against Earl Dickson, Smith Twp., who was tried last week on a charge of failing to allow half the road to an oncoming vehicle. After having reserved his judgement until Tuesday, the magistrate said he did not think the prosecution had proved its case.

POCKET-SIZE RIOT—A miniature donnybrook erupted at the final session of the Canadian Congress of Labor convention in Ottawa over the expulsion of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers. Here the leader of the left-wing disturbance, pert and tempestuous Pat Rooney of Hamilton, is seen wrestling with President A. R. Mosher for possession of the chairman's microphone. Failing, she later pushed aside J. E. McGuire, a member of the executive, and grabbed the main microphone to berate the executive for the expulsion. Mr. McGuire, hands in pockets, stands before the microphone, while behind him Alex McAuslane of Vancouver, watches the Rooney-Mosher struggle.

Sneak Thief Left One Pair Of Nylons

When Miss Margaret McCulloch, Gilmour St. discovered someone had taken her nylons from the clothes line where she had put them out to dry Monday afternoon, she was able to count her blessing because the thief had not taken every pair. At 4 p.m. she hung three pairs on the line and when she returned at 7 p.m. only one pair was left. A second pair was on the verandah but the third had vanished.

Driver Gets 7 Days

Earl Herr, 213 King St., was sent to jail by Magistrate W. R. Philp K. C. in city police court Tuesday for seven days when he was convicted of drunk driving. Although Mr. Herr denied that he had been drunk, Constable Andy Dalton said the accused had told him Sunday night, when the car he was driving had hit another car near the Armouries, that he guessed he had had "a little too much."

The constable said that Mr. Herr had taken his brother's car from Murray St. with permission and had sideswiped another car in the vicinity.

Refuse To Force Railways Obey Smoke Rulings

OTTAWA, Oct. 12—(CP) — A measure to compel railways to submit partially to municipal smoke-abatement laws in urban areas Tuesday night was defeated in the Commons.

The House declined to give second reading to the bill, sponsored by Rodney Adamson (PC, York West), after Transport Minister Chevrier said the government could not accept it.

The measure would have required roundhouses and other permanent railway installations to comply with any municipal by-laws regulating the output of smoke or soot. It would not apply to moving locomotives, nor would it apply in municipalities without anti-smoke ordinances.

After a group of Ontario members including two Liberals had called for anti-smoke action during an hour's debate, Mr. Chevrier declared the bill was bad legislation because it would submit the Federal Board of Transport Commissioners to municipal legislation.

In Toronto, Mr. Adamson said, some industries outside the railways had installed smoke-abatement equipment.

But railway smoke in northwest Toronto was a "menace." It was one of the most-intensely smoked areas in North America, as the result of smoke from the Lambton roundhouse. Sections there were worse than the industrial city of Pittsburgh, Mr. Adamson said.

Boat Trouble

George Fulford (L, Leeds) agreed the smoke nuisance in Toronto was bad, but he said Brockville had a far worse "menace" in the uncontrollable smoke from lake steamships.

They produced more smoke than the city's factories. On days of heavy river traffic, "the whole atmosphere is permeated with smoke."

Some steps must be taken, he said, to "stop this very serious pollution of the atmosphere." He believed this was worse than water pollution.

"The lake steamers seem to have a total disregard for co-operating with the public," he said.

Gordon Graydon (PC, Peel), acting Progressive Conservative leader, said that in the south end of his riding there was a growing smoke menace.

He hoped the Transport Department would take some action.

W. B. McGregor Given Reformatory Term

William Blair McGregor, 737 New Chamberlain St., was today sent to Ontario reformatory for four months definite and one month indefinite period when he was convicted of attempting to steal a truck from the Irwin Godson lot on King St.

Mr. McGregor, who declined to make any statement on oath in the witness box, said he knew nothing about the truck and claimed he had been drunk at the time he was alleged to have tried to take it.

Constable Dennis Traynor said he saw the accused in the truck on King St. When he questioned him about it he was told he had bought it in Oshawa and was taking it to his father, who had the papers. The constable said Mr. McGregor had had a few drinks but was not drunk.

The accused said he came to Peterborough two weeks ago.

Nationalist Troops Flee Abandoning Canton, Red Army Expected Soon

Entire Southern Army May Be Cut Off By Communist Pincers; Beaten Nationalists Order Executions

CANTON, Oct. 13—(AP)—The main body of the Canton Nationalist Garrison fled westward tonight down the main highway. Nationalist resistance to the Communists in the entire Canton region had collapsed. A few Nationalist soldiers were still seen on the streets about 9 p.m., but they were hurrying to join units that already left the city. No defence preparations were evident.

Police were still on duty. No large-scale looting was reported, most of the population remaining indoors. All regular land, sea and air transportation out of Canton was broken off. The British ship Wusih, the last vessel to get away tonight, left for Hong Kong with Chinese practically clinging to the rails.

New Zealand Presbyterian missionaries told an Associated Press Correspondent in Canton they had heard heavy gunfire around Kongtsuen, 10 miles distant.

But there was nothing as yet to indicate whether the Nationalists were quitting the city under military pressure or whether they were attempting to reach escape corridors ahead of the swift moving Red troops.

A million Cantonese waited, tensely, nervously, for the transition period.

Communist troops last were reported driving directly down the Canton-Hankow railroad to within 30 miles of Canton.

As yet, Hong Kong has heard no reports of Nationalist resistance. Instead, 80,000 government troops in the Canton region face isolation by encircling Reds and by insufficient shipping to escape the sea.

The Nationalist government fled to Chungking. Acting President Li Tsung-Jen left by plane for Kweilin in neighboring Kiangsi Province where an army of some 250,000 has been salvaged out of recent setbacks.

Li has been feuding with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, and there was speculation that he might not go on to the new refugee capital.

The Canton garrison commander ordered prompt execution of persons guilty of spreading Communist propaganda! of sabotage, looting or other subversive activity. Reports here said some convicted persons already had been shot in the back of the head in public streets as a warning.

An estimated 9,000 persons arrived here yesterday by sea, land and air from Canton alone. Black market food prices jumped sharply. Evacuees were desperate for lodging.

Pupil In Cast Said Bullied By Cadet Officer

STRATFORD, Oct. 13 (CP) —A charge that a Stratford Collegiate student wearing a cast for a broken leg was bullied by an army officer instructing the Collegiate Cadet Corps is being investigated by the Stratford Board of Education.

The incident is said to have occurred last Friday while the cadets were doing exercises for the officer.

Trustees have been told that a Grade nine student broke a cast on his leg when forced to do the exercises. The youth was said to have been in a cast all summer and, following the incident, was returned to hospital Tuesday for further treatment.

Principal Donald W. Scott said Wednesday that he strongly objects to "outsiders coming to the school and bossing the students around without any real authority." He added that the Collegiate is not a military academy.

At London an official military investigation has been ordered by army headquarters.

Major L. Gerry, in charge of training for western Ontario military area and Capt. B. M. Milligan area cadet officer, are in Stratford talking with Principal Scott, Board of Education officials, the student, and his parents.

The instructor was a non-commissioned officer, responsible for physical training in this area. He has been recalled from duties in Walkerton to report to the investigation board at Stratford.

Truck Hits Store Owner Killed

TRENTON, Oct. 13 (CP)—John Simpson, 74-year-old store owner died in hospital at Belleville Wednesday from injuries suffered when he was pinned against a wall of his store by an ice cream cooler pushed across the floor when a truck crashed into the store.

The truck, driven by E. Meyers of Toronto, went out of control, ran off the pavement and travelled 35 feet before crashing into the store. Meyers was unhurt.

Simpson, sitting in a chair opposite the cooler when the accident happened, was pinned against the wall until police could haul the truck away. He was taken to the hospital where he died about two hours later.

Freighter Accepts A Tow To B.C. Port

VANCOUVER, Oct 13 (CP). — After two nights and a day of wallowing in raging North Pacific seas, the propellerless freighter Navigator Wednesday accepted a tow from the United States coastguard cutter Chautauqua.

There are no casualties and the Panamanian-registered Navigator shows no apparent damage.

The Chautauqua plans to hand her tow over to the Canadian tug Salvage King when that Victoria ship arrives on the scene, probably some time today.

3 Barns Destroyed

BLENHEIM, Oct. 13—(CP) —Three large barns filled with the year's crops were burned in a spectacular fire today at McGuigan's Orchard's at Cedar Springs, five miles west of here. Loss is more than $25,000, covered largely by insurance. Three fire departments, including a truck from Chatham, 14 miles away, and 100 neighboring farmers helped save adjoining buildings. School children across the road were kept in their classes for safety, although heat was intense even at that distance.

Not Satisfied Fire Started In Linen Closet

TORONTO, Oct. 13 (CP) — Capt. Norman Reoch, general manager of Canada Steamship Lines, said today he believed the disaster which struck the cruise steamship Noronic here Sept. 17 was "not unavoidable."

He told the Kellogg fire inquiry the CSL's investigation remained incomplete but he himself was not satisfied the holocaust started in a linen closet on the port side of C deck.

Capt. Reoch said the ship's owners had considered it unnecessary to issue a special set of safety bells to protect passengers while the ship was in dock.

The 42-year-old Captain said the bulletin of instruction issued by himself to the masters of the CSL' nine passenger ships in 1945 were intended to cover emergencies such as fire at sea or in port.

Both Commission Counsel J. W. Pickup and Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock, inquiry commissioner, took issue with the witness several times for not answering questions put to him.

"If you are going to make speeches instead of answering my questions we are not going to get any place," Mr. Pickup told Capt. Reoch.

Too Technical

"If you ask me questions in nautical language so I can understand them . . . I am not a corporation lawyer," said Capt. Reoch.

This exchange came after Capt. Reoch gave a long explanation of how much more simple it would be to get passengers ashore during an emergency in port by the gangplank than by lifeboats.

He had been asked what considerations the company had given to getting passengers ashore in the event of fire in port.

Capt. Reoch said the company issued its own directive to masters for fire and life boat drills, because no such regulations were issued by the government.

The CSL's general manager was given a second lecture in strong terms by Mr. Justice Kellock later in his evidence for "speech making." The witness stopped speaking only after the commissioner called sharply to him to stop.

Must Be Definite

Capt. Reoch had told Mr. Pickup that the master of the Noronic was instructed to give instructions to the special officers on the ship.

"All right then, tell us what you know about them not what you think should have been

No Survivors As Bomber Hits Field

People Hear Crash 12 Miles Away, 12 Crewmen Killed

ISLEHAM, Campbridgeshire, England, Oct. 13 (AP)—A United States air force B-50 bomber with a load of live bombs dived into a wheat field today and exploded with a roar heard 12 miles away. All 12 crew members were killed.

The plane, designed as the atom bomb carrying version of the B-29, was on a 180-mile practice mission to the North Sea island of Helgoland with 12 500-pound bombs.

Villagers said the plane appeared to burst into flames just before it dropped through a light ground fog and struck the field. Flaming bits of the four-engined craft were blown hundreds of yards in all directions from the huge central crater dug by the blast.

Burning gasoline set fire to a ring of farm buildings and to 60 tons of stacked wheat.

A Royal Air Force squadron recovered the 12 bodies from the smoking, twisted wreckage within two hours after the crash.

Heard 12 Miles Away

The tremendous explosion which accompanied the crash was heard in Newmarket 10 miles away, and in Mildenhall, two miles further distant in Suffolk County. Newmarket is 60 miles northeast of London.

There was no immediate indication of the cause of the crash.

An Ambulance Service spokesman said the explosion ignited 60 tons of straw in the field.

An RAF officer placed a guard around the remains of the plane to keep the curious away from secret equipment.

A group of 30 B-50s arrived in England in August to relieve a group of B-29 superfortresses which was part of the heavy bomber force stationed in Britain for operational training.

The B-50 ranks next to the huge B-36 among US long-range bombers.

Lord Boyd Orr Wins Nobel Prize

OSLO, Norway, Oct. 13 (AP)—Lord Boyd Orr, a 69-year-old Scotsman who believes wars can be prevented by creation of a world federal government and raising more food to prevent hunger, is the winner of the Nobel Peace Prize for 1949.

The Norwegian parliament's Nobel committee announced the award Wednesday night. Lord Boyd Orr, world food expert and practical farmer headed the United Nations food and agricultural organization from the time it was established in 1946 until April, 1948.

The prize, awarded from a fund set up in 1896 by Alfred B. Nobel, the inventor of dynamite, amounts to 156,289.82 Norwegian kroner ($21,889). It is awarded to persons deemed outstanding in promoting peace among countries.

The Nobel committee does not give reeasons for its awards.

Will Continue Human Rights Inquiry

Call For International Court Ruling On Violations In Balkans

LAKE SUCESS, NY, Oct 13—(CP). — The special Political Committee of the United Nations Assembly today decided to continue the inquiry into charges of violation of human rights in Hungary, Romania, and Bulgaria.

By a vote of 41 to 5 (Soviet bloc) with nine abstentions, the committee approved a joint Canadian-Bolivian-United States resolution calling for a ruling by the International Court of Justice in conection with the charges.

Involved in the accusations were the trials of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary and Protestant church leaders in Bulgaria.

The three Western powers asked that the court decide whether there had been any violation of the peace treaties by Hungary, Bulgaria, and Romania through their alleged suppression of fundamental liberties and human rights.

Use Peace Treaties

The UN Assembly last year passed a resolution calling on the United States and Britain to continue to seek a solution of the problem through the provisions of the peace treaties.

Those two countries have meanwhile reported that Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria refuse to consider the question.

The peace treaties provided that in case of a dispute over the human rights clause of the peace treaties a three-man conciliation commission would be set up The three Eastern European countries refused to recognize that any dispute existed.

The committee debate at this session has been highlighted by a highly-personal exchange between Sir Hartley Shawcross, Britain's Attorney-General, and Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky of Russia.

Sir Hartley Wednesday told the committee that the countries of the world sooner or later will have to walk together in peace.

Steel Pinch Felt In Canada

OTTAWA, Oct. 13—(CP)—Steel belt-tightening in some parts of Canada became evident today as the United States steel strike swept to the two-week mark. Reports reaching government quarters show that one major iron and steel producer in Ontario already has been hit. In the face of dwindling supplies of American steel products, the company has been forced to curtail output in piping and tubing used by the plumbing industry. Workers have been released temporarily.

A shortage of enamelling steel, particularly on the west coast, is holding back full production of steel bathtubs, refrigerators and electric stoves.

The feeling in government quarters, however, is that the American strike will be over before it can cripple the Canadian industrial backbone.

Reports from producers show that many believe they can hold out for another two weeks, at least.

They are the ones which stocked considerable supplies of American steel in the early months of the year and started the government thinking along import-slashing lines.

Sharp increases in unemployment are expected next week as mills and plants run out of steel and coal supplies.

The trade journal Iron Age predicted that unless some real bargaining takes place in the steel dispute, the US can expect "one of the worst tie-ups in its history."

Such a tie-up would have a direct impact on Canadian production since this country imports from US mills one out of every four tons of steel used.

Altogether, Canada spends about $100,000,000 ayear for about 1,000,000 tons of US steel, to augment her domestic production of about 3,000,000 tons.

US Not Pulling Punches Ignores Red Atom Bombs

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—(AP)—State Secretary Dean Acheson's blast against the "Soviet Masters" controlling eastern Germany made it plain today that the United States is pulling no cold-war punches because of Russia's atomic explosion. Speaking out for the first time since President Truman made his Sept. 23 announcement of the Russian atomic blast, Acheson referred to the newly-created east German state as an "autocratic Communist regime."

At his press conference Wednesday, the Secretary also brushed off protests from four eastern European Communist governments, and assailed the current wave of arrests in Czechoslovakia as terroristic.

What he had to say publicly about Communist developments in Europe lost none of the acid tone which had marked his comments before the White House atomic announcement gave an urgent new turn to the east-west struggle.

Denouncing the new East German government as "subservient" and controlled by Moscow-directed Communists, Acheson pledged continued full support from the United States, Britain and France for the west German Republic which, he said, "in sharp contrast has a thoroughly constitutional and popuplar basis."

Bear Invades Town, Posse Out

ORILLIA, Oct. 13—(CP)—A posse of 25 armed men is out today scouring the district for a foraging 300-pound black bear which has terrorized residents and killed 200 chickens and small animals in this town about 606 miles north of Toronto.

Every night for the last week the bold animal, sometimes accompanied by a smaller bear, has wandered into town and made off with chickens, slaughtering right and left in about a dozen hen coops.

A hutch with four small rabbits was also smashed and the animals destroyed.

The bear has roamed almost without restrain through a partly built-up district about two miles square and on at least one occasion, residents said, it reached a point more than half a mile within the town.

Wednesday a posse of 10 men searched the swampy bush southeast of town. One man is believed to have wounded the animal with a .22 rifle shot.

2 Slain, 5 Wounded In Poker Game Holdup

MUNCIE, Ind., Oct. 13.—(AP). —Two men were slain and five others were wounded, one severely, early today when two gunmen attempted to hold up a poker game in a downtown cigar store.

The two men fled after firing more than a score of shots at the 10 men who, Police Chief Nelson said, were playing cards in the rear of the store. Later one of the gunmen, wounded in the hail of bullets, was captured and removed to a hospital.

Nelson identified the dead men as Theodore Raines, 43, a Muncie restaurant owner, and Dewey Wills, 54, an unemployed laborer.

Nelson identified the captured gunman as George E. Gratzer, 27.

Quads Born To Sault Woman

SAULT STE. MARIE, Oct. 13—(CP)—Qadruplets—the first born in this northwestern Ontario centre—were born in hospital today to Mrs. Evelyn Hargreaves.

All were girls and are reported "exceptionally well." Their weights were not immediately disclosed.

Mrs. Hargreaves' father, Kendal Knight, called the Sault Ste. Marie Star office to report the birth of the quadruplets. He said excitedly:

"Up until eight o'clock this morning I had only four grandchildren. Now I have eight."

Mr. Hargreaves had called the hospital for news of his wife at 7:30 a.m. but up to that time she had not entered the delivery room. When the doctor called that "it was all over" at 8:10 and he had four bouncing baby girls the fatther was "terribly stunned."

"And I'm still nnumb," he said at the hospital this morning.

Convict Barrie Mayor Of Careless Driving

BARRIE, Oct. 13. — (CP). — Barrie's chief magistrate, Mayor Grant K. Mayor, Wednesday was convicted of careless driving and fined $15 and costs of $32.50 by Magistrate G. R. Foster, who serves on the three-man Police Commission with him.

If the case is appealed it will go before Judge James G. Harvie, third member of the commission which administers the police force which laid the charge against the mayor.

The charge was laid following an accident Aug. 25 in which a little girl was slightly injured. The accident occurred a few days after the mayor had his photograph on the front page of the local newspaper buying a safe driving campaign sticker for his automobile.

No Election In 1949 Attlee Rules

Labor Party Plans To Ride Out Bad Economic Crisis

LONDON, Oct. 13 — (CP) — Prime Minister Attlee today turned down demands for a general election this fall and decided that his Labor government would ride out Britain's economic crisis.

The announcement that there would be no early election was made, an official statement said, to quiet "disturbing effects on trade and industry" caused by widespread speculation of a vote this fall.

The Labor government's five-year term runs until next July. But the Prime Minister can call a general election at any time by petitioning the King to dissolve parliament. But Attlee said he would not do so this year.

The Prime Minister's announcement set a precedent. It is the first time a Prime Minister has used an official statement to say "no" to an election.

Ever since Sept. 18 when Britain devalued the pound from $4.03 to $2.80 in United States funds, there has been a rash of predictions that Attlee might seek an early vote of confidence from the people.

Fear Price Rise

Left-wing Labor members had urged a vote soon, claiming that rising prices caused by devaluation might cut into the government's popularity within a few months.

Devaluation also was followed by rising pressure from the opposition Conservative party and some sections of the press and business for a general election. Generally, those groups contended the government should place its socialist politics and planning and finance before the electorate this autumn.

Today's Cabinet meeting was the first session of top government ministers since the pound was

U.S. Steel Strike Not Felt Yet

No effects of the steel strike in the United States have yet reached Canadian General Electric Company, Mr. Ian F. McRae, works manager, told the Examiner. "And we are hoping none will."

"We expect that we will be all right through October, even if the strike continues to the end of the month. As of today, we have not been bothered in any way. However our supplies are beginning to notify us that they may be affected.

If the strike were to last into November, I am afraid that the consequences here in our plant might be serious. For the present there have been no results of the strike in so far as our production is concerned."

Associated Press quoted Iron Age today that "the United States can expect one of the worst tie-ups in its history unless some real bargaining takes place in the steel dispute."

Hope Lights Glittering Ere Christmas—Saunders

NEW DELHI, Oct. 13.—(CP).—Hope that present hydro restrictions on use of signs and store window display lights will be relaxed before the Christmas season was expressed Wednesday night by Chairman Robert Saunders of the Ontario Hydro Commission.

He told a zone 5 meeting of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association that the power situation is better than last season and further improvement is possible.

"The citizens of Ontario owe a great debt to the merchants of town and city for the successful upholding of restrictions," he said.

Facts and figures on hydro consumption were given by H. D. Rothwell, assistant manager of regional administration of the O.H.E.P.C. Although there had been a greatly increased demand for hydro-electric power this year there has also been a great improvement in the supply.

"We have been faced with increased demands for hydro amounting to 12,000,000 killowatt hours weekly," he said, "but we have also had a lot more rain than last year, with the net result that we have not suffered so far in the way of hydro allocations to municipalities."

D. P. Cliff, of Dundas, was elected president of Zone 5 for the season, replacing W. Pearson, representative of Brantford township, who becomes a vice-president of the association. K. C. McLeod, of Stanford township, also was chosen a vice-president.

Relax Regulations, Speed Uranium Hunt

Law Applies To Lake Superior Park; 3,000 Claims Filed This Year

FORT WILLIAM, Oct. 13 (CP) —Ontario Mines Minister Gemmell today told a meeting of mining engineers here that in view of the urgency for greater production of uranium the Ontario government is relaxing regulations to speed up work in the area where pitchblende was discovered last year, at Alona Bay, some 60 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie.

The change in regulations worked out with the Department of Lands and Forests applies only to the Lake Superior Provincial Park, an area of 540 square miles, which includes the Alona Bay district.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the second annual meeting of District 4 of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy here Mr. Gemmell said that recorded holders of claims staked before Nov. 1 this year will be allowed five years from that date to satisfy the Mines Department that a bona fide discovery has been made.

Encourage Search

This change is made in order to afford prospectors and mine developers an opportunity of carrying out preliminary development work and to encourage the search for deposits of radio-active minerals.

Previously no work was permitted on claims in the Park until after an inspection had been made by a departmental engineer or geologist. "The new regulations in detail will be in the hands of the public shortly," he said.

The minister noted that well over 3,000 uranium claims have been recorded this year in the Alona Bay area, compared with 186 in 1948.

While prospecting for gold has been at a low level in recent years, the minister said, there is every reason to believe the devaluation of the Canadian dollar will result in a revival. Value of gold bullion from Ontario gold mines for all 1949 should be $10,000,000 higher than in 1948, he added.

On iron ore, the minister said he believes that Ontario may look forward in the near future to producing sufficient iron ore to satisfy the needs of the Canadian steel industry. He referred to plans of Steep Rock iron mine to produce 4,000,000 tons of ore annually by 1945, and to the action of the Algoma ore properties in their sintering plant at Wawa.

Mr. Gemmell remarked on the entry of the Johns-Manville Asbestos Company into Munro township near Matheson in Northern Ontario, and said company deposits of asbestos there supply a type of fibre as good as, if not better than, the deposits at Asbestos, Que.

Kidnapped 5 Years Ago 'Baby' May Be Returned

HASTINGS, Mich., Oct. 13. — (AP).—Torn between hope and doubt, an Ohio couple looked for evidence today whether they had found their baby son, kidnapped five years ago.

Blond, blue-eyed William (Tommy) O'Neill, six, a ward of the State of Michigan, was the lad in question.

Perplexed police were aiding Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Thompson of Dayton, Ohio, in the couple's efforts to determine if "Tommy" is their son.

The Thompsons came to Michigan after receiving a report that Tommy might be their own Ronald who was abducted from their home Oct. 7, 1944.

At the time the Thompson's newly-engaged nursemaid, a red-haired woman who gave the name of Alice White, also disappeared. Despite a country-wide search neither was ever seen again.

A recent newspaper account of the case brought a report to Thomson and his wife, Anna, that Tommy might by their boy.

There are physical similarities, including webbed toes on both feet and a pinched right ear in addition to the blue eyes and blond hair.

However, the Michigan Children's Institute was not sure about it.

Tommy was made a ward of the Institute two years ago. He had been taken from the custody of a Mexican family.

"I have looked over a lot of children since my boy was kidnapped," she said "and this is the first one I couldn't say was not my child," Mrs. Thompson said.

72,000 Tons Shipping In Mothballs

500 Sailors Beached At Halifax, Costs Go Too High

HALIFAX, Oct. 13 (CP) — About 500 seamen were on the beach here today as Halifax harbor continued to be just a stagnant pool as far as shipping was concerned.

There now are 12 ships in the mothball fleet, vessels left idle because their owners say they cannot compete on deep-sea hauls with foreign operators. When the 7,190 ton freighter Westminster County ties up Saturday, there will be 500 seafarers looking for jobs and 72,000 tons of Canadian merchant shipping immobilized.

One shipping operator explained the situation this way:

Freight rates on cargoes are based on operational costs which, in the case of Canadian shipowners, are paid entirely by the operators. These costs include wages, maintenance and replacements.

Get Cheaper Labor

But many foreign owners, British and Panamanian in particular are able to hire cheaper labor and in some cases, get government subsidies. They thus can quote lower freight charges and usually pick up what cargoes there are.

The currency situation aggravates this problem for Canadian operators, responsible sources say. The exchange problem also means there is a world-wide shortage of buyers and cargoes are scarcer than they were.

Some countries either are buying in sterling areas where their money goes farther or they are cutting imports from dollar areas, a move that hurts Canadian shipowners as well as a lot of other businesses.

Work Stoppage Affects 200

The series of work stoppages at CGE continued Wednesday when 200 employees in the Induction Motors Department walked off the job. This included the majority of those working in the department.

Union officials informed the Examiner that it was caused by a refusal to carry out an Arbitration award handed down in February 1949. Standard piece-work rates in the Induction Motors Department were cut on a job involving nearly 30 girls, union officials explained, and the Arbitration award restored them.

A 7 a.m. Wednesday the girls quit work, and later the rest of the department followed suite. Those not directly affected went back at 4 p.m., the Examiner was told, and the girls stayed out until work began today.

Boy Scouts Plan For Apple Day

Forty-five barrels of No. 1 MacIntosh apples will be offered to the people of Peterborough in the annual Boy Scout Apple Day Saturday.

In order to canvass the homes the Cubs and Scouts will make their trips to the residential areas on Friday night. Permission was obtained from the Police Commissio nfor the night sale of apples.

On Saturday the boys will concentrate on the downtown area. Tonight a special sales course is being held at All Saints' church.

Peter Dominik, District Rover Commissioner, told the Examiner today that the cost per apple to the Boy Scouts is three cents. He explained that this is the only appeal made to the public each year for funds and that each donation, large or small, all goes towards the boys' work. No one in Boy Scout work receives any financial reward. Their objective is $2,000.

"This Apple Day is more important than any other," Mr. Dominik said. "The paper collections are not as profitable as two years ago and this year the Association is counting on the funds from the sale of the apples."

Cabinet Split

Before the full meeting political writers reported the Cabinet was split on calling an autumn general election.

The Prime Minister's announcement came at a moment when the Conservative party was holding its "biggest in history" annual conference in an atmosphere of "election fever."

The decision means that the government will go ahead in the next few months with the rigorous new austerity era made necessary by the devaluation of the pound.

It also means that the government will carry to the statute book the bill for the nationalization of iron and steel, and the Parliament Act, which will cut the House of Lords powers to delay legislation from two years to one.

The government had to decide whether, without a new mandate from the electorate, it could command sufficient loyalty from its followers to weather the economic rigors of the next few months and maintain the export drive at the high pitch required.

Prime Minister Attlee conferred hurriedly Wednesday night, presumably about the election, with Foreign Secretary Bevin and Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister and the Labor party's election strategist.

80-Minute Conference

The "inner Cabinet" conference lasted 80 minutes.

Up to Wednesday night Attlee was reported variously as not having made up his mind, or as favoring a spring election.

The Prime Minister was known to be anxious to consult Bevin because the Foreign Secretary exerts a powerful influence on Britain's 8,000,000 trade unionists on whom the government counts for support. And the British trades union still has not endorsed the government's devaluation move. Bevin returned Wednesday from a trip to the United States and Canada.

Morrison and the majority of the Cabinet are believed to favor a spring election. They argue that an election now would appear like capitulation to pressure from the Conservative part, which has demanded a vote soon.

Wants Parents Prosecuted If Children Die From Immunization Lack

OTTAWA, Oct. 13—(CP)—A prominent Ontario physician indicated in the Commons Wednesday he feels that parents should be prosecuted if their children die from diseases against which they could have been immunized. Dr. W. G. Blair, 59-year-old Progressive Conservative member for the Ontario constituency of Lanark, said the time has come when a coroner's inquest should be held if a child dies from diphtheria or other communicable disease for which immunization is available.

He made the statement during debate on a private member's resolution calling for the establishment of a committee on public health, welfare, social security and housing.

The resolution, sponsored by Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto-Eglinton), was defeated "On Division"—without a formally recorded vote—after acting Health Minister Claxton said the government could not accept the proposal. The resolution received verbal support from the C.C.F. and Social Credit leader.

Mr. Claxton said the extension of "functional" committees eventually would have the effect of breaking down the system under which the government assumes responsibility for measures. The committee inevitably would attempt to take over the operations of government.

Dr. Blair, reviewing the scientific advances in the field of medicine, said "we are positive now, for instance, that there is no reason why any child in this country should die of diphtheria.

"Scientists have discovered a method of immunizing a child against this disease.

Wants Inquests

"The time has come when a coroner's inquest should be held if a child dies of diphtheria. If an accident occurs on the highway and someone is killed, then a coroner's inquest is held and the whole affair is investigated.

"A child can die of diphtheria and the only formality is a certificate signed by the attending physician."

Another major problem was in the mental health field where the bill for care and treatment now runs to about $500,000,000 a year. Canada, he said, has some 200,000 patients in mental institutions, half of them there permanently and the other half temporarily.

The number of mental health cases was increasing more rapidly than the country's population was increasing and that should be a cause for concern.

Not Satisfied

done," said Mr. Pickup. "Did you hear Capt. William Taylor give these instructions?"

"Certainly not," snapped the witness. "But I've known Capt. Taylor for years and his word that he did so is good enough for me. Capt. Taylor has been sailing since he was seven years of age and I consider him one of the best masters. . . ."

"Witness," called the commissioner, "you are not privileged to say what you want. We don't want any speeches from you. . . . It's not enough for you to say what someone else told you he did. You were asked a particular question, now answer that."

Capt. Reoch said the regulations were in effect in 1942 and he could produce a copy of them. These rules stipulated that special officers were to take posts at the gangplank when the ship was in port.

Had Authorization

The witness corroborated the evidence given by Capt. Taylor last week that he was authorized by Capt. Reoch to dispense with a company regulation calling for muster buttons to be issued all crew.

Capt. Reoch said that when the Noronic's master raised the subject he told him "I don't care if the crew wear homberg hats or kilts" so long as they were efficient on life boat and fire drills.

The C.S.L. general manager said he went over company instructions with Capt. Taylor in 1945. He felt sure the Noronic's master understood them.

Capt. Reoch admitted under pressure of questioning, he did not think this particular document had been drawn to the attention of Capt. Taylor since 1945.

Satisfied With Watch

Asked if he considered the night watch sufficient for the Noronic when she docked here Sept. 16, Capt. Reoch said:

"Yes. . . . that standard practice."

"You were not asked that," said Mr. Justice Kellock. "Capt. Reoch your evidence here is for my benefit. You are giving me the impression that you are talking here for the benefit of someone else."

Capt. Reoch said he saw no reason for increasing a ship's watch in port unless there were warning of a hurricane or other emergency.

Had he been master of the Noronic when she docked here he would not have considered it necessary to increase the overnight watch for the safety of the 550 passengers aboard, he said.

Capt. Reoch said if the captain or first mate had considered they needed more men they could have asked for them if "they thought there was going to be a disaster."

He did not agree with the evidence of Capt. Taylor that he could not have ordered crew members off duty to remain aboard in port.

Pay Overtime

"If he had asked the entire crew to stay aboard, he might have had a strike on his hands. But I doubt it. The crew could stay aboard and be paid overtime."

Capt. Reoch said to his knowledge the company issued no instructions, written or otherwise, to masters, on the payment of overtime to crew — "only what was in the agreement with the Seafarers International Union."

(Capt. Taylor testified last week he had received instructions to avoid payment of overtime wherever possible.)

The witness told the commissioner Capt. Taylor possibly thought of cutting down expenses for the benefit of his employers and might do that without being instructed.

Good Equipment

Capt. Reoch told CSL counsel Frank Wilkinson the Noronic was equipped with an $8,000 compass and a $15,000 radar "the same as the Queen Mary." He said that compared with passenger ships on the Great Lakes "no others have the same equipment."

He said the 36-year-old cruise steamship was "comparatively young," had top rating with Lloyd's Insurance Registry just like the Queen Mary or Queen Elizabeth.

Capt. T. S. Kane, commission assessor, told the witness he was not impressed by the Noronic's equipment and asked why more exits were not used to get passengers ashore.

Capt. Reoch said: "If you mean the ramp built for the upper deck of the Cayuga . . . it would not fit."

The witness told Mr. Justice Kellock in his opinion the disaster was not unavoidable.

"What do you think might have been done to prevent it?" asked the commissioner.

"I don't know for sure" said Capt. Reoch. "We are still carrying on our investigation just as you are holding yours here. We hope some information may come from your inquiry that might help us out."

Cause Undetermined

He said the cause of the fire remained undetermined but he himself was not convinced it started in the C deck linen closet where it first was detected.

Charles D. Whiteman, Noronic's second engineer, testified he was off watch on the night of the fire. In an emergency, he said his post would be the engine room looking after the pumps, machinery and boilers.

He said that for drills he had been allotted to a lifeboat station but no fire hydrant.

He said he had received no instructions what to do in the event of fire apart from those contained on a company-issued card. He had no instructions about rousing passengers.

W. J. Bowes, the Noronic's 43-year-old second mate from Dorchester, Ont., said pre-arranged signals between the pilot house and engine room in the event the telephone failed, was "any thing over five or six bells."

Minor Changes Expected In April Budget

OTTAWA, Oct. 13 (CP) — A few minor changes may be made in the 1949-50 budget when it is resubmitted to parliament one week from today.

Finance Minister Abbott announced in the Commons Wednesday night that, barring untorseen circumstances, he will reintroduce the budget at 8 p.m. EDT, Thursday, Oct. 20. It was first brought down by Mr. Abbott last March 22, but the session was prorogued April 30 without the budget having been approved.

The announcement to the House gave no indication whether any changes would be made in the original budget but Mr. Abbott later told newspaper men that the budget will be "substantially the same."

A Few Changes

Some political observers believed the evening hour picked for reintroduction indicated some changes would be made, although possibly of a minor character. They pointed out that otherwise he could have reintroduced the budget at any time instead of an hour when market and business institutions are closed.

Most observers believed rates of personal income tax will remain unchanged at the figures set last March.

As usual, changes if any, to be announced by the Finance Minister will remain a closely-guarded secret until he makes his address in the Commons.

In the original budget, Mr. Abbott estimated the year's revenues at $2,477,500,000 and expenditures at $2,390,000,000 for a surplus of $87,500,000. The surplus the year before was $575,000,000.

Plowing Rained Out Match Held Extra Day

BRANTFORD, Oct. 13 (CP) — Set back a day by heavy rain, the 36th International Plowing Match continues today at nearby Burford.

Events scheduled for Wednesday, including several tractor plowing classes and one contest with 106 entries, were put over until today after officials decided the ground was too wet for plowing. However, an afternoon sun helped to dry the land and late Wednesday night the soil was said to be in good condition for today. The match will run till Saturday.

More than 20,000 persons were on hand Wednesday for opening ceremonies at which Magistrate O. M. Martin of Toronto, a Six Nations Indian, spoke. Indians from the Six Nations Reservation at Ohsweken near here danced in full regalia.

Magistrate Martin said international plowing matches demonstrate advances in agricultural methods and promote improved relations between residents of different townships, provinces and countries.

Blast Injures Hydro Workmen

TORONTO, Oct. 13 (CP)—Two Hydro workmen were injured, one seriously, when a transformer exploded in an 11-foot manhole on downtown Yonge Street Wednesday.

Charles Bailey, 30, is suffering from burns to the eyes, face, forehead and neck. Jack Brennan, 18, received burns on the face and arms. Both are in hospital.

Brennan is credited with saving Bailey's life when the two almost became trapped in the blazing, gas-filled manhole. Brennan grabbed his dazed companion by the arm and dragged him up a ladder to the street when the explosion occurred.

TIME TO REMIND SCHOOL CHILDREN

The real time to find out if a boy or girl in school is in need of visual assistance is after they have been in school a little while and have been subjected to the demands of reading and study. Children who have been out playing all summer have had almost no visual demands and hence show rather few symptoms of visual trouble. Outdoors life calls for little or no close application of the eyes (and if they never went to school, they would rarely need visual assistance—but then they would lack important educational assets, so school is necessary). Beginning with the 3rd grade, the school child from there on has an increasing load of reading, study and application to close work. Biological evolution moves much slower than civilization and so the boy or girl in school usually needs optrometric assistance if he or she is to do the best work and derive the most good from school.

Remember, the benefits of school must be paid in terms of nervous energy.

Ontario Grant of $21,500 Given For New Hospital

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 13 (ENS)—"I present this check for $21,500 as Ontario's grant towards the new Memorial Hospital," said the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Provincial Minister of Welfare as he handed the order to A. J. Meyers at a banquet of the Rotary Club Wednesday night. Over 200 members and guests sat down to a turkey dinner, prepared by the ladies of the Parish Guild.

"It is the duty of government to encourage people to do things for themselves," continued Mr Goodfellow. "You will appreciate your hospital much better when you know your own efforts are behind it. However, in a project of such magnitude you must have material support as well as moral support. There is a great need in this area for a hospital," he added.

Dr. F. G. Robertson, M.P., assured his listeners that Canada had the best security system and the highest standard of living of any country in the world. "Great strides in public health in Canada have been brought about," he said, "by the co-operation of everyone. We are slowly winning a victory over tuberculosis and this is largely due to Ontario's Department of Health," he asserted.

Rev. J. C. Moloney said that during his short time in Campbellford he had been greatly impressed by the homely spirit shown in the little hospital. He hoped that the new hospital would not be so large that this friendly spirit would disappear.

Minister Speaks

"This is a history making day as far as Campbellford is concerned,' said guest speaker, Hon. Russell T. Kelley. "My department is prepared to help you with your problems but with the united support of this Rotary Club behind your hospital there should be no room for doubt."

Mr. Kelley said that there were 18,000 people mentally ill in Ontario. "At the present time," he stated, "there are 2,300 patients in Orillia mental hospital and another 2,000 on the waiting list. With our modern methods of treatment a large number is healed each year," he added.

"In our thirteen sanitariums, 13,000 are ill with tuberculosis," he said. "Tuberculosis is not always a fatal disease and when people learn to keep their bodies healthy and strong the disease will practically disappear," he declared.

Other speakers were H. M. Donald, Mayor of Campbellford; Dr. E. A. Stewart, Kingston; Ex-Mayor F. F. Long; J. Billen, Reeve of Seymour; Wilford Spencer, Reeve of Rawdon.

Bert Taylor proposed a toast to the guests and Tom Wilson president of the Oshawa Rotary Club, responded. Otto Sarginson introduced the Silver Star mothers who were guests of the club. Mrs. Frank DeCarrol sang a solo and George Nicholls led a singsong.

Seated at the head table were Hon. Russell T. Kelley, Dr. F. G. Robertson, M.P., Hon. W. A. and Mrs. Goodfellow; Mayor H. M and Mrs Donald; Rev. J. C. Moloney and Rev. W. J Lennox; T Wilson and Col. Chappell, both of Oshawa; Dr. E. A. Stewart, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs A. J Meyers; Mr and Mrs Ralph Locke, W. A. Hogle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Calver. Charles Calver, president of the Rotary Club, was master of ceremonies.

$8 An Hour For New Rink

COBOURG, Oct. 13 (ENS).—The sports facilities of the new recreational centre, scheduled to be ready for use by December 15, were discussed at a meeting attended by representatives of various local organizations. Mayor Joe Smith, who will be manager for the first year's operation, said that the new rink will cost about $75 a day to operate and that teams using the ice will be charged $8 an hour. It was not to be expected that the arena would show a large profit, but it would at least have to pay its own way, the Mayor said.

Friday night will be reserved for the O.H.A. intermediate hockey team which the town will have in the group. Church league hockey, long dormant, will be reorganized with games every Thursday night and a mercantile league will have Monday nights. Wednesday and Saturday, will be for public skating. Ed Campbell is to form the church league while the mercantile league will be formed by Bob Cooper, the recreational director.

The meeting was mainly for the purpose of lining up some of the winter activities and all proposals still have to be approved by the board of management of the recreational centre.

Declaration Of Good Intentions

From a purely selfish Canadian point of view, if not from a belief in the values of unfettered international trade, the signing of the Annecy Agreement at Lake Success, N.Y. this week by Canada and thirty-two other countries should be welcomed in this country. The Agreement, now ready for use, will help to free international trade through the reduction of tariffs, and the more free trade and the less two-party bartering there is, the better for Canada.

• • •

The Third Session of the Contracting Parties to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade as the 1948 conference was called, decided at Annecy, France, on detailed tariff schedules. It was a widening of the General Agreement concluded at Geneva in October, 1947, in which a schedule containing some 45,000 tariff concessions was agreed on. Trade in the products of which these concessions were made accounts for two-thirds of the import trade of the contracting countries. The basic objectives of the Annecy Agreement, as of the Geneva Agreement, are the reduction of tariff and other trade barriers, and the establishment of rules which serve to safeguard the tariff concessions. These rules are based on the principle of non-discrimination in the conduct of international trade.

• • •

In theory the signing of the Annecy Agreement is important. It augurs well for future international trade. In practice, at the present stage of world trade and awkward finances, the Annecy Agreement, like the Geneva concessions, seems more a declaration of good intentions than the fulfilment of them. Nations are still dickering under bargain counters and using their trade potentials as financial expedients and political weapons. Yet the direction given by these Agreements is good, and when current malajustments have been righted, the Agreements will prove to have been corrective agents as well as long-term instruments of beneficial international trade.

Have A Bit O' Common

Several private members of the House of Commons are in a tizzy about the importation and sale of crime comics in Canada. They feel that these magazines have a dreadful effect upon the minds of young readers, and contribute to juvenile crime in this country. They seek an amendment to the Criminal Code which would give the courts the right to decide what comic books may be sold in Canada.

We dislike comic books, and disapprove of them, in a mild way. But we disapprove even more of alarmists who think that they can set right the wrongs of the world by peewee repressive measures. Comic books are badly-drawn, ill-printed, nasty bits of literature, which can do no good and may do a little harm to young readers—about as much harm, we estimate, as the dime novels of an earlier era. But we are not prepared to believe that any child who has a good, decent home environment has ever been seduced to crime by a comic book; children who lack a good home environment are ripe for mischief, whether they read comic books or not.

The moral lather into which some people can work themselves on this subject is well shown in this remark, made by a Woodstock judge last week, when some little boys were brought before him on a charge of breaking into a house: "You boys have been involved in a very mean and dirty trick; I suppose it is caused by what you've seen in the so-called comic books we have in this country". As the Brantford Expositor says, "Without question, offenses of the kind now so glibly and conveniently attributed to comic books were committed years and centuries before comic books were ever thought of."

In Yorkshire people who fly off at tangents are asked to "Have a bit o' common". The parliamentarians who are fretting about the comic books should have a bit o' common. That is what we send them to Ottawa for

Great Moral Issue In South Africa

There is a particular sort of moralistic silliness in which the self-governing British Dominions lead the rest of the world. Sometimes Canada gets ahead in this respect, with a suggestion that the Decameron be banned, and sometimes Australia excells by refusing to permit the import of pictures by Modigliani. At the moment we think that South Africa leads in this respect, with its fuss about nude models in art schools; this row appears to have spread over the whole Union, and a theological professor at Stellenbosch is quoted as saying, "I will not allow my children to attend an art school where nude models pose for life studies." (By his "children" the reverend gentleman means his students, all of whom are over eighteen.) How this gentleman expects art students to learn to draw a human body if they are not permitted to look at one we do not know; perhaps he would prefer that they did not draw at all.

We doubt if the human body, male or female, has the power to surprise the gaze of any beholder of eighteen or over. It may be beautiful, it may be ugly, or it may be just ordinary; but it is certainly not a shock or a revelation. The sensible thing, surely, is to accept the body, and to allow people to look at it, naked or almost naked, under appropriate circumstances.

Surely the life class of an art school is a proper place for a naked model? And surely the South African moralists can see that their insistence upon clothing under all circumstances is obscene and prurient in a sense that nudity could never be?

Discovering The Discoverers

Some time ago we threw a few gentle remarks to the Brantford Expositor which had been gratified to find that history books are giving the Norsemen their due as discoverers of this continent. The Expositor was sure that school books of other days gave short shrift to the Norsemen, if they even recognized their existence. It cites the New Practical Reference Library (circa 1916). Pooh! we never use anything as practical and new as that. Next is the Ontario Public School History of Canada. Pshaw—that old blue thing! Next is The Story of the British People. Pish! A dirty yellow tattered mess, which never seemed to have both covers at the same time knew them in our school days, these hoary volumes, but we also knew about the Norsemen.

The point seems to be—what is meant by "discovering" Canada or this continent? Because some pedants discovered the Norse seafarers fifty years ago, are Columbus and Cabot and Cartier to be deprived of their glory? The Norsemen puddled around in the North Atlantic about the year 1,000, so it is now said, and touched down on Labrador and Newfoundland for a codfish sandwich and a cup of blubber now and then. But as their sandwiches have been forgotten, so were the men who ate them, for a number of centuries. If Columbus had not discovered America, if Cabot had not sailed to Newfoundland, if Cartier had not discovered the St. Lawrence, who would have given a fig for the fable of the Norsemen and their sandwiches? If we are going as far back as the Norsemen, let us push back farther, and credit the Indians with having discovered North America. They did not reach this continent from the Garden of Eden without some intrepid exploratory work of the greatest moment.

The New C.N.R. President

The appointment of Mr. Donald Gordon to succeed Mr. R. C. Vaughan as president of the Canadian National Railways comes as good news. Mr. Vaughan was an excellent president of C.N.R., and he gave that immense business admirable guidance under difficult conditions. But he was unable to change those conditions, and it is for that task that Mr. Gordon has obviously been appointed. He is known to be a man of uncommon force of personality, and it appears that he likes problems; the more difficult they are, the better he likes them. The C.N.R., with its huge debt and its muddle of freight rates, should provide the widest scope for his talents as a man of business, chopper of red tape, and cutter of Gordian knots.

The fact that Mr. Gordon is not a railway man by training may prove to his advantage. There are plenty of able men in the C.N.R. offices who can handle railway details. But the C.N.R. needs a man of imagination, resource and fortitude to tackle its difficulties, and Mr. Gordon is such a man. He has a great reputation in Canada as a doughty fighter and as a man of unquestioned integrity. It is clear that he has been appointed to get the C.N.R. out of a mess, and he will approach that job with the respect of the Canadian people and the railroad workers alike.

Europe And The Pound

By
D. W. BROGAN

AMONG the possible casualties of the devaluation crisis is European confidence that by West European union we mean anything or ever meant anything. For whatever the necessities of the case, whatever the intentions of our rulers, the sudden, drastic devaluation of the pound has been a blow to European political stability, and on some European Governments it has imposed economic policies and political problems that they were hoping, possibly with inadequate reasons, to avoid.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT is vain to expect that, even given the notorious purity of our motives, the countries affected will see in this latest stroke of policy more than that highly developed sense of national interest for which the English have long been admired. But admiration does not exclude irritation, and it is a part of wisdom for our rulers and our voters to note the irritation, no matter how complete is the conviction that the irritation is totally unjustified.

✧ ✧ ✧

WHAT are the grievances of, say, the French? As a result of a devaluation of which they were given no hint, and whose rate obviously took them by surprise, they were forced to devalue without adequate time for preparation and were faced with a fresh economic and political crisis in the shape of new doubts about the franc level, new wage demands, new strikes.

✧ ✧ ✧

NO doubt all of these dangers reflect something unstable inside France, but they are facts of the European situation and should be noted. And the smugness of British official announcements suggested, not the swimmer who shouts to a friend, "Come in—the water's fine," but the practical joker who dives in, taking the friend with him.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE smugness, too, has another awkward result. Devaluation represents a great failure in British economic policy. If it does not, then this beneficent remedy ought to have been tried months ago, when our financial position was stronger and the medicine would have had a better chance to work. So there seems to the Continental observer something ominous in our bland refusal to admit any mistake, or to realize that for the great trading nation to have to devalue its currency at such a rate, and in such circumstances, is not very reassuring.

✧ ✧ ✧

BUT the manner of devaluation and its possible consequences is not the only British attitude that worries believers in the necessity of European union. There was the unfortunate impression made at Strasbourg. The delegates had come there very willing to take lessons from the Mother of Parliaments. They had, instead, to give them, and came to the conclusion that some of the children of the Mother were very badly brought up. They got no lead from the representatives of the British Government. And they got the impression, too, that the Labour Party finds it hard to swallow the fact that for Europe Mr. Churchill is the Englishman—that wherever he sits, he is at the head of the table.

✧ ✧ ✧

THEY got, too, the impression that the Labour Party was still suffering from a school-marm attitude to Europe. Of the others it might be said that, like the Clerk of Oxenforde, "gladly wolde he lerne, and gladly teche." With H.M.G. it was all teach. This attitude might have been all right in the summer of 1948, when, we were assured, our recovery problems were solved and we could look with kindly contempt on the countries that were trying to recover by methods not certified by the Fabian Society. Then a little of the spirit of Pitt was permissible. "England has saved herself by her exertions and Europe by her example." By the summer of 1949, with the storm signals flying, and noticed even by H.M.G. (as well as by all Europe), this self-admiration was out of place.

✧ ✧ ✧

IF Europe could be united only on a Socialist basis, then, as far as one could see, it was not going to be united. And the identification of British policy with the success of the nearest Continental equivalents of the Labour Party has very serious drawbacks. It gives rise to such complications as that created in Germany, where Dr. Schumacher can be especially indignant because the dismantling policy is defended by a Labour Foreign Secretary. It gives rise to the genuine distress of M. Leon Blum at the devaluation being carried out so secretly by a Labour Government. It gives rise, also to widespread (and I think unfounded) French complaints that the disastrous decline of the French Socialist Party is due largely to its faithful following of the Labour Party.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE fact that we have a Socialist Government is far from securing us against suspicions that our economic policy is as selfish as ever and far more harmfully selfish than in the bad old days of laissez-faire. For it is not paradoxical to say that European economic unity has no more potent enemy than the conjunction in the same hands of political and economic control. This may not be accepted here, but it is widely believed in Europe, so there is no market for vague professions of international sentiments unaccompanied by concrete offers that would involve the risk of economic disadvantage for some group of Labour voters, whatever national and international advantages they may offer.

✧ ✧ ✧

IF it is worth while in this critical, indeed terrifying, period to reassure Europe, then it should be realized that general international chat given from superior heights will no longer do. It is perhaps forgivable that, at the moment of writing, no member of the Government has given any public sign of realizing that British action has had important and ambiguous European results. But it is important to realize that faith in British policy and in British verbal exactitude (I avoid the unBritish word, "truthfulness") has had a shock.

✧ ✧ ✧

EUROPE and America will receive rather peevishly any repetitions of Mr. Mayhew's proud boast that we had turned the corner. The Belgians will gladly do without economic predictions about Africa from Mr. Strachey, and even Sir Stafford must expect his word, for a time at least, to be taken, at a rate possibly above $2.80 to the £, but not at the old parity. And as for the declarations that "we will never" do this or that, well, I recall the advice given by the tough Yankee skipper to his new first mate. "What I want from you is silence and not too much of that."

The $64 or £20 16s QUESTION

Letters To The Editor

PLENTIFUL FOOD AND COMMUNISM

Sir: Your editorial entitled "The Egg A Yegg" caught this reader's imagination, and gives me the temerity to remind other readers of an item in the "Fifty Years Ago" column of your Stratford contemporary, which says: "Prices were good on the market today. Butter sold at 20 to 23 cents a pound. Eggs were 12-13 cents a dozen. Potatoes 60 cents a bag."

I concur in the Examiner's view that "an egg selling at 7½ cents is not at all admirable", and feel sure that eggs at a cent apiece would win the same comment from you? On the other hand, while my personal experience does not reach back that far, I feel that the average urban Canadian had to work much harder for his 23-cent pound of butter in 1899, than the 60-cent pound calls for from the equivalent Canadian today?

However, I liked your incisive question at the foot of the above editorial: "A scarcity of eggs impends in the eastern United States, but in the mid-west they are a glut on the market. . . Could not a few thousand dozen be imported from the mid-west, at thirty or forty cents a dozen?"

Without attempting a reply, I would like to bring a few related points in my reading into the same column, for the good that it may do: "Peterborough is too comfortable . . . its housing, wages and food too good, for the C.P." (Communist Party) "to make much headway" (From Notes and Queries" by Alpha). It was Lord Orr who, as director-general of the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) warned forthrightly: "Hunger—it must be remembered—breeds Communism." Then, only last month, said President Truman at Des Moines, Iowa: "The Government has had to build-up big stocks of dried eggs and is wondering how to get rid of them."

Were there not hundreds of millions of hungry and undernourished people around the world at the present hour, it would be easier to understand the above compulsion "to build-up big stocks of dried eggs"? Surely a few thousand tons of "dried eggs" could have been appropriately mixed with the vast flood of ERP dollars to the needy countries? That would clear the road for the processors?

CROWN EMPLOYEES IGNORE CITIZENS' RIGHTS

Sir: When John Diefenbaker and Alister Stewart, Members of Parliament, made their pleas in the House of Commons at Ottawa, in reply to the Speech from the Throne for the enactment of a national civil rights law of fundamental freedoms for all Canadians, they hit the nail on the head.

Basic civil freedoms and liberties of the Canadian people should be protected by law. In the meantime, where are the laws on our statute books that guarantee the Canadian people protection against sharp legislative or police practices?

To entrust basic civil liberties of the Canadian people to the judgement of Crown employees is like driving an automobile without a brake. Crown employees get the protection and the public get the boot.

How much longer must the Canadian people stand for this kind of nonsense where the privileged rights of Crown employees ride over the rights of private citizens? Why not change this one-sided discriminatory law? A co-ordinated national civil rights law of fundamental freedoms for all Canadians should be made the law of the land without further delay.

CIVIL LIBERTIES.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven . . . And it came to pass, when Jesus had ended these sayings, the people were astonished at his doctrine. (Matt. 7: 21, 28.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And he began to teach them, that the Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected of the elders, and of the chief priests, and scribes, and be killed, and after three days rise again . . . And when he had called the people unto him with his disciples also, he said unto them, Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. (Mark 8: 31, 34.)

This Race Was Fixed

(Financial Post)

It is rather doubtful whether Mr. Gardiner's boasting about butter in the House of Commons will evoke much enthusiasm among Canadian consumers and taxpayers: The stocky Minister of Agriculture said this:

"About a year ago people were saying you couldn't tell the difference between oleomargarine and butter. Well, last summer the price of margarine went down from 40 cents to 30 cents a pound. I don't think they would have let it go down if they could have got a higher price. All that time butter was selling at more than 58 cents a pound and people were paying it."

That is only part of the story.

Had Mr. Gardiner wanted to be perfectly fair he should have added two facts: First, that Ottawa for the past year has supported a floor price for butter and has spent close to $25 millions of public money in doing so. Second, that provincial governments through grossly unfair legislation have done their best to make margarine as unattractive as possible. Though manufacturers of butter, cheese, jams and a score of other products are permitted to use colouring to improve the appearance of their wares, manufacturers of margarine have had that privilege cancelled.

One doesn't go round boasting about whipping a handcuffed opponent. Before Mr. Gardiner and others try to convince the public of the superiority of butter they should get the handicaps removed from margarine.

British Colonial Secretary Stands Firm Under Insults

By STUART UNDERHILL

LONDON, Oct. 13 — (CP) — A conservative member of Parliament told the House of Commons that "for an example of pure blundering folly the colonial secretary takes a lot of beating."

"I cannot think of one thing since he took office that he has not made a mess of," he declared. He added that the secretary "should hand in his resignation because he is obviously not fit for his job."

His remarks were made a year ago. Arthur Creech Jones is still colonial secretary. Despite the plaints and gibes of the Conservative party he is likely to remain so at least while the Labor government is in office.

The 57-year-old minister is used to insults. As colonial secretary since 1946, and undersecretary for a year before that, he has had to administer a colonial empire that is seething with change.

Against local aspirations for independence he has had to balance the right of European investors and the hopes of the United Kingdom for greater supplies of raw materials. If one faction is satisfied, another is displeased and quickly vents its wrath on the quiet, sober-faced minister.

Creech Jones is not given to spectacular counter- attacks in Parliaments, although on occasion he has been known to hit back hard at his critics.

He has borne worse things than sneers. During the First World War he did three years hard labor as a conscientious objector. His cell, he disclosed afterwards, was directly opposite the prison's hanging shed.

As colonial minister the problems laid before him day by day are enough to make a man of genius quail. One of his biggest tasks concerned the British mandate in Palestine. Troubles in Malaya, Malta's economic difficulties, development in the British West Indies, unrest in central Africa, have since crowded close on one another.

Creech Jones said recently in an address that the public was apt to overlook the social and economic developments taking place in the colonial empire, and to expect great projects of a dramatic kind. Most progress could only be of long-term character.

"It is essential to enlarge production in order to improve colonial living standards and meet the demands for good and social services," he said, "just as it is important for colonies to export raw materials and foodstuffs if they are to pay for the capital goods they require."

Collegians Lose To TCS 13-2 In Exhibition Fray

Thoughts of Wednesday night's school homework must have been too much for the PCVS senior footballers yesterday as they succumbed to a well-balanced Trinity College squad 13-2. The boys from down Port Hope way had too much drive in their plunges as well as some nifty punting to hold the PCI'ers in the first half and to have a definite edge on play in the last half.

Twice in the first half the Peterborough boys pounded at the Trinity College door but only managed to squeeze out one point. Hughes answered the door in the third with runs through the centre and end positions which averaged about eight yards each and the third quarter ended with Trinity College up 5-2 as PCVS only managed to eke out another point. Again Hughes was cut loose in the fourth and set up another Trinity major with a safety touch and an extra point being added to make it 13-2.

Northcott's snap passes which went for about five yards each in the first half were most effective against the College boys. But in the second half only one of these plays was tried and it was again complete. Long passes seemed to be the specialty but went for no sale. Armstrong's long pass from the PCVS five to Evans on the 35-yard line was a desperation pass. The Trinity College squad tried few passes but one by Hughes to Wood for 15 yards put Wood in the clear for Trinity's second touch.

A Strong Wind

All the singles were scored with the wind behind the kicker. A fairly strong west wind helped the kickers. Northcott of PCVS and Wood of Trinity, but also hindered then when they faced it. Wood had the edge on Northcott in this department. He kept the PCI'ers hemmed in their zone in the last half whenever they threatened to break out.

PCVS picked up their two points both on Northcott's boots to the deadline. The first came on the last play of the first quarter after Armstrong had intercepted a Hughes pass at the Trinity 25. A pass from Northcott to Coon started the rally in the third for the other point with plunges by Armstrong and Evans taking the ball to the Trinity eight. A penalty took the ball back to the Trinity 18 where Northcott booted.

Trinity College's first major came early in the third quarter after Hughes, Southam and Wood had carried the ball on runs and plunges to the PCVS 10 from midfield. Lawson scooted across for the five points. The converts was wide of the mark. Hughes again after a brilliant end run to start the fourth quarter passed to Wood for 15 yards to put him in the clear for the second major. Again Wood's convert was bad. Gandy intercepted a Hughes pass behind the touchline and was downed for a safety touch. Wood on the last play of the game booted to the deadline for the last point.

Hughes was the standout man of the game with his shifty runs around the ends of the PCVS line. Southam went well in the plunging position but was held for low yardage by the centre of the PCVS line. Wood stood out with his long kick. Heard at middle, Peirce at inside and Cox at inside were the pisk of the Trinity College line. Hubert Knox, who was hurt in the East York game, was solid at middle in his return PCVS game as well as in on a number of important tackles. Killingbeck at snap and Robinson at end played a steady game. Evans plunging and Northcott booting were the standouts of the PCVS backfield throughout the game with Armstrong standing out in the last half.

Line ups—Trinity College School, flying wing, Hughes; haves, Wood, Southam, Little; quarter, Wright; snap Baker; insides, Cox, Pierce; middles, Timmins, Heard; outsides, Greenwood, Selby; alternates, Maier, Lawson, Luxton, Gordon, D. Smith, Wilson, McDermid, Martin, Pepler, Brodeur, J. Smith, Emery, Dennis.

PCVS—flying wing, Sargeant; halves, Brown, Evans, Grafstein; quarter, Northcott; snap, Killingbeck; insides, Grainger, Burns; middles, English, Knox; outsides, Robinson, Ward; alternates, Grant, Jopling, Curtis, G. Wood, Telford, Lanciault, Mongraw, Northey, Armstrong, Coon, Gandy, Taylor, Galoska.

Carpenter Gives Baseball List To Santa Claus

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13 (AP)—Give Bob Carpenter two pitchers and a hard-hitting outfielder for Christmas and he'll predict a National League pennant for his Philadelphia Phillies.

It's still more than two months before Santa Claus puts in his annual appearance but the youthful owner of the Phils today asked that we forward his requests to the jolly old gentleman.

Without naming them in order of preference, Bob would like dropped down his chimney:

1. An outfielder who'll hit over .300. He doesn't care whether he's a lefthander, righhander, or a switch hitter. All he has to be able to do is to hit that apple hard and often.

2. A southpaw and righthanded pitcher. Of course Santa, if you'll guarantee they'll win 20 games each Bob wouldn't mind one bit.

Willing To Shell Out

And furthermore, if cash will help you produce what Bob wants he is perfectly willing to shell out some of that.

And Bob is a little doubtful if Santa Claus, even with cash as an added inducement, can fulfill his needs.

"There's several outfielders around, that we would like to have but they are not for sale," said Carpenter.

"And as for pitchers," he added "we may have my desires right in our system."

Carpenter referred to Jocko Thompson as the southpaw most likely to come through. And for his righthander he named Bubba Church, who won his last eight games for Toronto of the International League.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

Altruistic Eddie Murphy is having the OBA senior "B" sudden-death final staged in Riverside Park at 10.30 Saturday morn, Ottawa St. Anthony's playing the Petes for the provincial crown. Ed previously promised to have the Petes in Oshawa on Saturday aft for a Red Jubenville benefit game, and he aims to keep his word. Hence this important a.m. fixture here day after tomorrow. Ottawa isn't drawing well, either, at this late baseball date, so the Saints agreed on a sudden-deather in Peterborough for expenses. It ought to be a fine fray, if the weather is right, and should draw a fair-sized gallery on the week-end. Lefty Dadson and Bill Edger are both available for duty on the home mound.

* * * * * *

And the grid setup locally. Oakville Braves wind up their ORFU schedule against the Panthers here tomorrow night at 8.15 under the arcs in Morrow Park. It is season's end for both squads and they'll shoot the works ere hanging up their gear. PCVS juniors and seniors are both at home in the Oval to Toronto Humberside teams Saturday afternoon, and they should be right interesting exhibitions. St. Peter's High have a group game the same day in Lindsay. A week from tomorrow, the senior PCI-ers are off to play Sarnia in the Red Feather tourney of champions.

* * * * * *

Meteors And Legion

Puck attraction in Peterborough tomorrow night is a senior "B" exhibition at 8.30 in Civic Arena between Lindsay Meteors (a Toronto team playing out of Lindsay) and the local Legionnaires, provincial champs. Under Rotary Club auspices, a car will be drawn for at this time and they'll have 18 door prizes. Jim Ellis will have Nicholls in the Legion goal, with Godfrey, D. Mortimer, Burns and Hicks on defence. Forwards picked from Montgomery, Free, Coombs, Rochetta, Fryia, Greenlaw, Hill, Vitarelli, Parnell, Stewart and maybe F. Mortimer. No doubt, a nifty hockey number will result.

* * * * * *

A possible OHA senior "B" grouping is mooted of the two local teams, the Meteors, Markham and Stouffville, getting away to an early start on artificial ice. And, in passing, a word of advice to Petes and Legion—don't jump the prices unnecessarily when playoffs roll around. Raise them just enough to cover the OHA playoff cut or for longer trips, if any, but not otherwise. Don't make the mistake the senior lacrossers did in late August when they jumped admission charges 50 per cent to take care of a 15 per cent cut taken by the OLA. A lot of fans didn't like that a bit and may remember it next spring. In fact, the Petes' OLA playoff crowds fell off when that extra gouge was announced.

Heading For Sin Bin

Couple of new rules are listed in hockey this term. One says that if a goal is scored on a penalty shot, no minor penalty shall be imposed—though any other type of penalty still goes. No goal and there's a penalty. Another deals with penalties to goalies. A minor to a goalie or a major penalty shall be served by a teammate, but the goalie himself must serve a second major, a match or a match misconduct penalty, his place in goal being taken by a teammate (not the sub goalie) who gets 15 minutes to don the goaltending equipment. A goalie is not sent to the bench for a misconduct, such penalty being served by a teammate who was on the ice at the time. A netminder leaving his crease to take part in an altercation is subject to a minor penalty.

* * * * * *

Badminton commences this Saturday night in the Market Hall. A larger membership is indicated and new members may apply there any night but Friday and Sunday. Officers this year are: President, Bob Baker; vice-prexy, Ed Johnston; secretary, Vince O'Donoghue; treasurer, L. Collingwood; conveners, Helen Mathias and Beth Jackson; captain, Ralph Charlton. Inter-club matches will be arranged at a meeting of the Central Ontario body in Cobourg this week-end. Several members have been getting the jump on the rest by working out lately at the Armouries. The folks who watch the birdie (but sharply) look for an enjoyable winter.

Central Victorious

Central and Queen Mary were the only soccer teams which played in the public school senior league Wednesday afternoon at King George school grounds; other games were cancelled owing to ground conditions. Central won 1-0 to annex two league points.

A high wind prevailed across the field thereby making the ball uncontrollable at times. Eventually Central gained a foul kick that proved productive of a count when Mongram tallied from close in after the custodian had saved twice. In the second period, Queen Mary were more aggressive but lacked finish in front of the goal; in fact, a penalty kick awarded the west-end boys, taken by Dunn failed to be converted as Grey, Central goalie, saved the drive. Delahey was chased for questioning the referee.

Queen Mary—D. Houghton, goal; B. Watson and F. Hillier, full backs; T. Roberts, R. Dunn and B. Merritt, half backs; B McIlwain, L. Finn, D. Nisbett J. Stewart and K. Cullen, forwards. subs: G. White, B. Jackson, T. Harrison and G. Franks.

Yankees Buy Two Stars Can't Stand Pat—Stengel.

By JOE REICHLER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP). — New York Yankees, announcing they won't "stand pat" on their present world championship team, today bought two of the brightest stars in the Pacific Coast League.

Manager Casey Stengel announced the purchase of Jackie Jensen, outfielder who is a former California football star, and Alfred (Billy) Martin, an infielder.

They were bought from the Oakland Club, which Stengel managed last year.

No price was divulged, but it is rumored the Yankees shelled out about $100,000 and five players for the two athletes, who were widely sought after by major league clubs.

They will report for the spring training next March.

"You never sit tight," Casey told newspaper men in the Yankees' final press conference of the season Wednesday

Can't Stand Pat

"You can't afford to stand pat in this league. We are going to try to strengthen our pitching staff, although it looked pretty good in the last week. Sure, we could use a couple of pitchers. I would like to improve my outfield a little, too."

Jensen 22, is the former football star at the University of California. He is a bonus player. Oakland owner C. L. (Brick) Laws, in beating 14 big league clubs to his services, lured him at the close of the college baseball season last spring with a bonus of $40,000 plus a three-year contract at $15,000 a year.

In 126 games with the Oaks, Jensen batted .261 this season. Included in his 122 hits were 21 doubles, seven triples, and nine home runs. He drove in 78 runs.

Bartin, 21, hit .277 for Oakland when Stengel's club won the pennant in 1948 and upped that figure to .284 this year. He hit 29 doubles, three triples, and 13 homers this season, and drove in 91 runs while batting in eighth slot.

Red Wings Edge Bruins 2-1 Off To A Flying Start

By JACK MITCELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

George Gee, Detroit Red Wings rugged centre, recovered his scoring eye and sent the Wings off to a flying start in the National Hockey League for their 10th year in a row. The 27-year-old native of Stratford fired both goals as the Wings defeated Boston Bruins 2-1 before a crowd of 11,061 at Detroit Wednesday night. Both came after Paul Ronty's early tally gave Boston a 1-0 lead.

The Wings now have won their schedule-opener 10 straight years. The last time they were beaten in their season's first game was in Chicago in 1939.

The two points earned by the victory also put Detroit all alone on top of the standings. The League's other four teams don't start until later.

The Canadiens open against Chicago Black Hawks in the only game tonight. Toronto Maple Leafs, Stanley Cup champions, are at home to Chicago Saturday night while New York Rangers, perennial doormats of late years, make their first start at Montreal.

Ronty Starts It

Ronty put Bruins ahead before the seven-minute mark, slapping John Peirson's corner pass-out behind goalie Harry Lumley. Gee rifled a 30 foot angle shot home to tie the score 7½ minutes later, with Leo Reise drawing an assist.

The Detroit centre broke the deadlock at 3:26 of the final frame popping home Ted Lindsay's goal-mouth pass on a play started by defenceman Red Kelley.

Jack Gelineau, the former McGill University goalie starting his first season in the Boston nets, looked good despite his loss. The 24-year-old rookie, brought up when Frankie Brimsek was traded to Chicago, handled 28 Detroit shots compared to Lumley's 22 saves.

Present Trophy

In a between-periods ceremony NHL president Clarence Campbell presented Detroit with the Prince of Wales Trophy they won by finishing first in the regular schedule last season. Boston was second.

Campbell also awarded the Hart Trophy to Abel, Wings captain, as the league's most valuable player last season.

If you take Dick Irvin's word for it, the Wing's won't end their 70-game schedule in first place this season. The Canadiens' coach last night picked Chicago (not his own team) to make the top spot.

After watching the Hawks work out in the Montreal Forum Irvin said that Brimsek's presence in the Hawk nets is one of the factors that should see Chicago win the league title by 10 points.

Ramblers Trip Providence 7-5 Barons Triumph

By The Canadian Press.

Four games were played in the American Hockey League Wednesday night with New Haven Ramblers, Cleveland Barons and Pittsburgh Hornets picking up victories. Buffalo Bisons and Indianapolis Capitals played to a 2-2 tie.

The Ramblers outscored last year's champion Providence Reds 7-5 at Providence while Pittsburgh tripped Hershey Bears 4-2 and the Barons blasted Springfield Indians 6-1.

At Providence, New Haven spotted the Reds a 3-0 lead and then blasted home five goals in seven minuntes in the second period to pick up their initial win this year.

Paul Denis started the drive with a goal at 5:55. Wes Trainor delivered from close in at 8:49 and Steve Hrymnak tied the score 23 seconds later. Chick Webster and Fred Brown followed with two goals and the Ramblers were never headed after that.

Commanding Lead

Cleveland took a commanding 4-0 lead in the first period. Both teams scored once in the second and the Barons added another marker in the final frame.

Three rookies enabled Pittsburgh to get their home season off to a good start against the veteran Hershey Bears before a crowd of 3,136 fans.

Andy Barbe, Ray Hannigan and Bob Robertson netted one goal each to assure the Hornets of their first victory this year. They were defeated 3-2 by St. Louis in the league opener Tuesday night.

The other Pittsburgh goal was scored by Les Costello. Herbie Cain and Gordie Bruce accounted for the Hershey markers.

Tony Golab Bereaved

Tony Golab, plunging star of the Ottawa Rough Riders, received word Wednesday that his mother, Mrs. Michael Golab, of Windsor, had died in a Detroit hospital.

Golab, in a full leg cast at RCAF hospital in Ottawa due to injuries suffered in last Saturday's game against Montreal Alouettes, will be unable to attend his mother's funeral.

The Ottawa player's left leg was placed in a cast Wednesday. He is suffering from a badly torn cartilage and the cast runs from his ankle almost up to his hip. In addition, his right elbow was placed in a splint. It was dislocated in the same game. He will be confined to hospital for two or three weeks.

Guelph Ties Barrie In Overtime Gens Shade Irish, 32 Penalties

By The Canadian Press.

Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A loop know how it feels to blow a three goal lead while their opponents move steadily ahead to tie the score.

That's just what happened to the Flyers last night before a hometown crowd of 3,000. After being held scoreless for two periods, Guelph Biltmores came roaring back in the third, rapped in three goals and kept the rampaging Flyers from breaking loose again during the scoreless overtime period.

In the night's other league match, Oshawa Generals shaded Toronto St. Mike's 3-2 in a bruising, penalty riddled encounter in Oshawa Arena. In all, referees Ticker Crombie and Pearcey Allen handed out 32 penalties, most of which were protested vigorously by the offending players.

In the Barrie thriller, Johnny Bobenic cashed in on a neat passing play to put the Flyers one up in the first period. Teammates Real Chevrefils and Rick Hogg made it 3-0 in the second.

Roof Falls In

The roof fell in on Barrie in the third period. Herb Dickinson started the Guelph sniping when he picked up a loose puck and beat goalie Jim Basley with a close-in shot. While Flyers had a two man advantage, Bud Palmer broke away and made it 3-2. The tying shot came from Frank Bathgate during the closing minutes of the period.

The flurry of penalties at Oshawa was attributed to the keenness, but inexperience, of many of the players. There were no misconducts, but minor penalties were handed out for practically everything in the book, including fighting, drawing blood, holding, high-sticking, slashing, boarding, tripping, interference, having too many men on the ice and falling on the puck and holding it.

The first penalty of the game went to Nicoli of St. Mike's and, while he was off the ice, Doug Towers scored for Oshawa from a scramble after an Oshawa gang play. On a lone rush, Sabourin tied the score. In the second period, Oshawa's Don Hall broke the deadlock with a screened shot and Generals made it 3-1 early in the third on a tally by Robertson. A stick-handling sortie by Roy gave St. Mike's their second goal but nothing came of a determined Toronto bid to tie the score during the game's final minutes.

But for the 3,000 spectators, much of the game's excitement stemmed from the penalties—11 in the first period, 14 in the second and seven in the third.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

The Cesarewitch handicap worked out just like a movie script Wednesday—with a movie maker's brother directing the action.

At least, that is how it seemed to about 75,000 racing fans at Newmarket, England, who watched J. V. Rank's Strathspey stride to victory in the first of the autumn double. Rank is a brother of J. Arthur Rank, Britain's milling magnate and movie mogul.

Strathspey, a 25-1 shot, got home by a head from P. Thompson's Coubrador with W. Hutchinson"s Blue Coral two lengths farther behind.

What made the race like a movie script was the classic riding of veteran jockey Eph Smith who handled the winner just as if he had been rehearsing the scene for hours. Everything worked out to schedule.

Smith nursed the four-year-old along under wraps the greater part of the 2¼-mile course over Newmarket Heath while Blue Coral and then Fair Speech made the early running. Strathspey's time was three minutes and 50 4-5 seconds.

Sammy Renick, former jockey who lost a $50 win ticket on a 72-to-1 shot at New York's Aqueduct Aug. 31, got it back Wednesday and collected $3,680.

Renick purchased one of the horse Orange Sun. After his two $50 win tickets sold on the brother, Joe, booted the long shot home on top, Sammy couldn't find his ticket.

Jerry O'Grady, head of the track police, returned the lost ticket to Renick. O'Grady didn't disclose how it had been recovered.

Eddie Dyer will be back as manager next year, but some player changes are in store for the St. Louis Cardinals if deals can be arranged.

Owner Fred Saigh, still smarting over the collapse of the Cardinals in the final week of the baseball season that cost them the National League pennant, left no doubts about Dyer's status.

"I am completely satisfied with Dyer, and he will manage the Cardinals in 1950," Saigh said at St. Louis.

Although Dyer's two-year contract doesn't expire for another year, there had been some speculation that he might be replaced. The Cards lost out to Brooklyn in the pennant chase by one game.

Saigh disclosed he has already sounded out four National League clubs on possible player trades. He observed it might be difficult to arrange for trades since other clubs hesitate to strengthen a pennant contender.

The Wayne County prosecutor's office said Wednesday night no evidence of neglect has been uncovered in the Detroit ring death of Talmadge Bussey, Detroit lightweight boxer.

Bussey was knocked out Monday night by Luther Rawlings, of Chicago. The 25-year-old Negro died Tuesday.

Assistant Prosecutor John Ricca said there was nothing in them to indicate that the fight was a mismatch or that Bussey was not in good condition for the bout.

CBC Defends Program Calibre

WINNIPEG, Oct. 13 (CP) — A CBC official Wednesday defended the corporation before the Royal Commission on Arts, Letters and Sciences against criticisms of both the standard and the origin of its programs.

J. R. Finley of Winnipeg, the CBC's prairie representative, said "we feel we are trying to give a well-balanced program structure for musical activities in Winnipeg."

Submitting the CBC prairie region brief, he replied to criticisms made Tuesday by the Arts Council of Manitoba and the Federation of Canadian Music Festivals. Their briefs charged that the standard of much CBC material was low and that too many of its "live" programs originated in eastern Canada.

Three privately owned radio stations also submitted briefs to the Commission on the second day of its three-day sessions here. Their chief complaint was that the CBC which regulates private stations, also competed with them for listeners.

NeedRenovating Liberals Told

MONTREAL, Oct. 13—(CP)—More than 500 young Liberal federation of Canada delegates settled down to business here today after being warned not to rest on laurels of past successes.

The delegates, representing 10 provinces, are attending the Federation's third biennial convention.

Prime Minister St. Laurent is scheduled to address the main convention banquet tonight.

At the first general session Wednesday, delegates were told that the Liberal party in all the provinces needs "renovation."

J. O. Asselin, chairman of Montreal's executive committee, said "the strength and solidarity of the Liberal party in the Maritime provinces and the new-found evidence of Liberal strength in Newfoundland provides grounds for understandable gratification."

The Liberal party in Quebec, however, must make important decisions "with respect to its future organization and other matters."

"What is true of Quebec is also true of Ontario and no less is it true in other parts of Canada," he added.

Claims Hospital Most Imposing Site In Ontario

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 13 — (ENS)—"Look on the sunny side of life," was the advice offered for longevity by the Hon. Russell T. Kelley, Ontario's Minister of Health, when he laid the corner stone of the new Memorial Hospital on Wednesday. Due to inclement weather a small crowd witnessed the ceremony.

"We are much richer," Mr. Kelley continued, "with a million friends than with a million dollars. A morning smile and doing a kind act every day should be part of our daily living."

He said that a well balanced diet was one of the essentials of good health. "A cup of coffee and a cigarette will not take the place of substantial food," he warned.

"Good posture is the open door to a good job," he asserted. "Employers choose young men who walk and stand erect and who are not afraid to face the hardships in life.

"Eyes are rationed," he said 'One pair must last us a life time." He pointed out the importance of proper lighting in schools and homes. He stressed the need for sufficient rest. "Plenty of rest is necessary," he stated, "to withstand the strain and stress of our concentrated civilization."

He said that it was the aim of his department to help build hospitals that will serve farming communities. Seeing the doctor when you are well, he stated, will lessen the danger of contracting cancer and tuberculosis.

Dr. F. G. Robertson, MP, said that a hospital was an integral part of community life. He stated that the country doctor had to sacrifice family associations, pleasure, freedom and often his own life in his vocation of serving and healing. To do away with the family doctor, he said, would have a disintegrating effect upon our Canadian way of life.

Others who spoke were Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Provincial Minister of Welfare; Mayor H. M. Donald, Rev. W. J. Lennox and A. J. Meyers.

Sponsored By Rotary

The ceremony was sponsored by the Rotary Club with president Charles Calver presiding. The Rev. D. M. Smith of St. John's United Church offered prayer. Hon. W A. Goodfellow introduced his colleague, Hon. Russell T Kelley, and A. J. Meyers presented Mr. Kelley with a silver trowel

Four years ago the hospital was only an idea in the minds of a few local enterprising business men. Today it is about to become a reality and the $250,000 structure of brick and cement will stand not only as a memorial to those who served in two world wars, but as a retreat for those afflicted with mental and physical ills.

The hospital overlooks a wide sweep of the magnificent river Trent with the rolling countryside beyond. The architect claims that it occupies the most imposing site of any hospital in Ontario.

It is situated in a quiet section of the town on the corner of Oliver Road and Isabella street. The entrance is from Oliver Road and the spacious grounds in front will in time be attractively landscaped.

The hospital will have facilities for 38 beds, a nursery with 10 bassinets in cubicles, an emergency and a major operating room, a case room and a labor room, diagnostic X-ray and laboratory department and rooms and facilities as needed for other health and welfare services.

START OF TREK—From Fort Dufferin, then a hamlet of dingy saloons and half-breeds' shanties, the North West Mounted Police, forerunners of the present RCMP, started their trek across the Canadian prairies to become the first law enforcement agency in that wide area. This sketch by a newspaper artist of 75 years ago shows the start of the 2,000-mile march. The column included 274 scarlet-coated officers and men and 50 half-breed guides. Accompanying the group were 810 horses, 142 oxen, 114 Red River carts and 92 head of cattle.

Printers On Strike

ROME, Oct. 13—(AP)—News was a scarce commodity Wednesday night among Italy's 48,000,000 people. A printers' wage strike that closed down the country's newspapers at 6 p.m. Tuesday is scheduled to continue until the same time today. The national radio, however, made its regular news broadcasts.

Mystery Man Sought In Case

VANCOUVER, Oct. 13 (CP) — A Vancouver paper said Wednesday in a newspage story a "mystery man" is sought in the case of Joyce Monasterski, 25-year-old cashier who disappeared on a downtown street Sept. 17.

The nude body of a young woman found on the rocks of a west Vancouver beach Saturday has been tentatively identified as that of the missing cashier.

Eva. Teslak, who occupied a two room suite with the missing girl said the man visited her last week, but refused to give his name.

"He pumped me for information and left without giving his name" Miss Teslak said. "He identified himself as a friend of the family."

A check with Mrs. Mike Konlak the cashier's sister, in Goodeve, Sask., showed the family had not sent anyone to question Miss Teslak. Miss Monasterski came here from Toronto four years ago.

Police said an autopsy showed the woman was not drowned and there were no marks of violence.

A contribution from every citizen will help to roll up the total required. Buy a Scout Apple Saturday, October 15 and do your bit to help the Scouts carry on for the next 12 months.

Federal Veteran Allowances Ruled Income

OTTAWA, Oct. 13 —(CP)— The Income Tax Appeal Board has ruled that Federal allowances paid to veterans attending university are income for taxation purposes.

In a judgment made public today, the Board ruled that the allowances, while tax free, can prevent the wife of a veteran from getting the tax exemptions of a married person supporting a husband or wife.

The Board rejected the appeal of Mrs. Celia Bergart against her assessment for 1947 when her husband, an RCAF veteran, was attending Osgoode Hall Law School.

Mrs. Bergart worked as a stenographer while her husband took classes and worked part-time as a clerk in a law office. During the year he earned $312 in the law office and got $720 from the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Mrs Bergart claimed the $720 could not be considered income and she was a married person who supported her husband and was entitled to an exemption of $1,500.

In similar decisions, two members of the Board, Fabio Mone and W. S. Fisher, ruled that Parliament had intended the allowances as income. In a minority decision, Board Chairman R. T. Graham said he believed the allowances were a capital grant, not income, and that Mrs. Bergart's appeal should be allowed in part.

Slot Machine Contraceptives Branded Evil By Archbishop

LONDON, Oct. 13 (CP)— The Archbishop of Canterbury today lashed out at the uncontrolled sale of contraceptives in Britain.

The Archbishop, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, said even adolescents can obtain them—from slot machines.

He called this "entirely evil and of the gravest concern."

A "healthy and wholesome sex education" is immensely important, Dr. Fisher told the 43 Church of England Bishops and 228 clergymen attending the annual convocation of Canterbury at Westminster.

But he warned that "children and adolescents are growing up in a world in which—thanks to their elders—it is hard for them to avoid knowing too much and thinking too much about sex."

"There is a profound difference between knowing about sex and, to put it bluntly, actual experience of sexual intercourse," the Archbishop added.

"As things are now, everything is made easy, blatantly easy, for the child and adolescent to turn his knowledge into experience. It is a very horrible think that it should be so."

He said the church is studying to see if any law can be invoked to prevent the indiscriminate sale of contraceptives, particularly by means of slot machines in public places.

If there isn't such a law, he said, the church will work for one.

"I am not saying the obtaining of contraceptives in the ordinary way by adults should be in any way curtailed," Dr. Fisher said.

"It is this indiscriminate, uncontrolled provision of them that is entirely evil."

No Surrender Reuther Pledges

BUFALO, NY, Oct 13 (AP). — Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers (CIO), Wednesday night told Bell Aircraft Corporation strikers "come hell or high water, we are not going to surrender."

Reuther addressed about 6,000 persons at a mass meeting sponsored by striking Local 501, UAW-CIO. He said: "As far as the International is concerned, we are in with 501 with everything we've got."

"We are going to see it out until we raise the flag of victory over union headquarters in Buffalo," he added.

Local 501, representing 1,700 production workers at the Bell plant, went on strike June 13 over wage and pension demands. The dispute now is under review by a State Board of Inquiry.

Reuther said that "big business was deliberately provoking" disputes such as the Bell strike and the national steel strike to "prove the need for more stringent labor legislation."

EIGHT PARACHUTES are used to lower three-ton paratechnicon, new heavy equipment container, during demonstrations of transport supply flying at Netheravon, England, RAF station. The paratechnicon is a complete blister fitted to aircraft to enable payloads to be dropped without dispersion. This one dropped from 1,200 feet by a Halifax bomber, was carrying a six-pounder gun and a jeep. The parachutes are 42-footers.

Mildly Approves Trade School

Representatives of the Bricklayers' Union will be asked to discuss with the board of works a suggested school for apprentices of the trade.

J. Hubert Eastwood of Eastwood Construction Co. expressed hesitant approval of the idea in a letter to the finance committee last night, and promised co-operation if any action was taken.

The proposal was put forth recently by Ald. H. Dodds who said he had noticed quite a number of houses with bricks piled in their yards as winter drew near. Scarcity of help was his opinion of the cause of the delay in getting those houses completed.

"Might be scarcity of money in some cases," Ald. Adam Sands remarked.

A trade school during the war, with Albert Cuffe instructor, turned out a group of young bricklayers.

"Frankly, I was disappointed in the results of that first one," Mr. Eastwood wrote. "Several of the boys left the trade, others went to the States, and the net gain was not as large as we had hoped."

Further, Mr. Eastwood commented: "No useful purpose could be served by such a school unless with the co-operation of the Bricklayers' Union." He mentioned the established ratio of apprentices to journeymen in the trade.

In the previous school the Union had waived that restriction as a concession to the communuity, "so that we could train a larger number of boys at one time," and thereby make the school economically possible.'

Mr. Eastwood referred to the regular apprenticeship training carried out under the authority of the province. It provides training and instruction on the job over a period of years, and they also have time at the Department's training school in Toronto.

"We have one such apprentice at present, but he is from Lindsay and will not be of much value locally."

Mr. Eastwood gave his opinion that bricklayer apprentices beginning now "would have excellent prospective future welfare, provided they were the right type. I agree theoretically with starting a second school, but from actual experience in the first school, I do not think I could recommend it."

However, Mr. Eastwood said he was willing to co-operate if the council decided to go ahead.

Probably in jest, Ald. J. E. Gillespie: "Maybe it might be all right if some of us asked for a motor mechanics school."

Some one else suggested that a school for plumbers should be set up. City Clerk Outram was instructed to write the secretary of the bricklayers.

Russia Ousts Canada In Fish Market

OTTAWA, Oct. 13 — (CP) — Russia is supplanting Canada in the United Kingdom fish market.

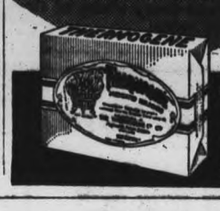
Thus, Canada has lost "a considerable business" in fresh and frozen fish, lobsters and salmon, the Fisheries Department says in a review of current and future marketing trends in fish.

Although Britain is receiving a Marshall Plan allocation to buy Canadian salmon this year, "practically the whole" of Britain's canned salmon imports during the first six months of 1949 "originated in the Soviet Union," the department adds.

Looking over possibilities of Canadian fish sales in Canada and elsewhere, the department sees greater room for expansion in the domestic market and a continuing strong hold by the industry on its biggest export market—the United States.

The department is less optimistic of sales possibilities beyond American shores.

Exclusive of the Marshall Plan allocation of $7,150,000 to buy 400,000 cases of Canadian salmon and a token shipment of canned lobster and tomalley, Britain "will not likely purchase any other fishery products from Canada for some time."



Other overseas countries, as well, were cutting down on Canadian fish purchases to conserve dollars. Those with fish to export such as the Scandinavian countries probably would attempt to make greater headway in U.S. markets to earn more dollars.

Movie Actors Tour Europe

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13 (AP) —Want a first-class, prepaid vacation in Europe, staying at the spas and hotels?

Natch, kid. And it's available to you at no cost and little obligation—provided you're a top-flight film star.

Take Joseph Cotten. In the last year or so, he has made three pictures in Europe—in London, Vienna and Italy. But he isn't complaining about constantly packing up his duffle-bag, or whatever movie stars pack up.

"This is the only way I could afford to take a European trip first-class," Cotton says, with perhaps unwarranted modesty about his money status.

Italy Ideal

Vienna was the most inconvenient place to work, said the actor. "We had black bread and cheese for breakfast while Valli, Orson Welles and I made 'the third man'," he related.

But in Vienna he had the only milk he tasted in Europe. It was flown in from Denmark.

Conditions were pleasant in Italy, where he just shot "September" locations. He and Joan Fontaine were filmed at Rome, Naples, Capri, Florence and Pompeii.

Cotten didn't even grouse about England, where he spent nine austere months. "You soon find what you put in your stomach is not too important," he remarked.

Capsule Review

"Christopher Columbus" (Rank) is Britain's version of the founding of our continent. Too much of the film deals with the dull court machinations, leaving the actual discovery with little punch. Fredric March's fine portrayal and some good sea shots are the sole bright thing in the film. Strangely, the hot-blooded Spaniards in the picture all sound like stuffy Britons.

Atomic Firefighting

TORONTO, Feb. 13 (CP)—Methods of fighting fires caused by atomic bombs will be discussed at a three day firefighting course starting Oct. 26 at the University of Toronto. Some 150 Canadian fire chiefs and members of their departments are expected to enroll for the series of lectures covering almost every phase of fire prevention work.

Both extremely talented, they are shown some of their paintings done from real life. Josephine specializes in dogs and animals while Mrs. Crumrine concentrates on Indians, Eskimos and landscapes.

Epidemic Ended

LITTLE CURRENT, Ont., Oct. 13 (CP)—Doctors say a dysentery outbreak which recently killed 13 Indian children on Manitoulin Island reservations appears to have ended. Only one child, a 10-week-old girl, now is under treatment here.

Abandon Appeal

TORONTO, Oct. 13 (CP)—An appeal against a $3,000 award in a libel and slander suit involving two labor unionists has been dropped. Val Bjarnason, Ontario organizer of the United Textile Workers (AFL), Wednesday announced he is abandoning his appeal against the award in the suit brought by Sam Baron, Canadian director of the rival Textile Workers Union of America (CIO), over statements Bjarnason was alleged to have made in a broadcast from a radio statement in Brantford.

Canadian Ballet "Tittle Tattle" Hits New York

MONTREAL, Oct 13 (CP) — A group of gossips may help to establish Canada in the world of artistic modern ballet.

Their tale is unfolded in the new Canadian ballet, "Tittle Tattle," written by Jean Papineau Couture, Montreal composer and musician, with choreography by Ruth Sorel, one of Canada's leading exponents of the modern ballet.

The plot centres on a young girl who drops a rose at a garden party. Then starts the whispering campaign. Mischievous minds so attack the innocent girl that she becomes to them an evil woman, grasping, drunken and man-crazy. They realize their mistake too late for the girl loses faith in humanity. Later, however, she turns to God and the church for comfort.

Couture, 32-year-old father of two daughters, has drawn from his profound knowledge of Canadiana to impart a sincere and highly-dramatic feeling to the musical score. And Madame Sorel, whose dance stylizations have been applauded in many parts of the world, has applied the basic movement and feeling of Canadian steps to her choreography.

The entire two-act play, says Madame Sorel, is a "small piece of Canadian life."

Besides Madame Sorel, some of Canada's most talented artists will star in the ballet which will have its premiere in New York Dec. 17.

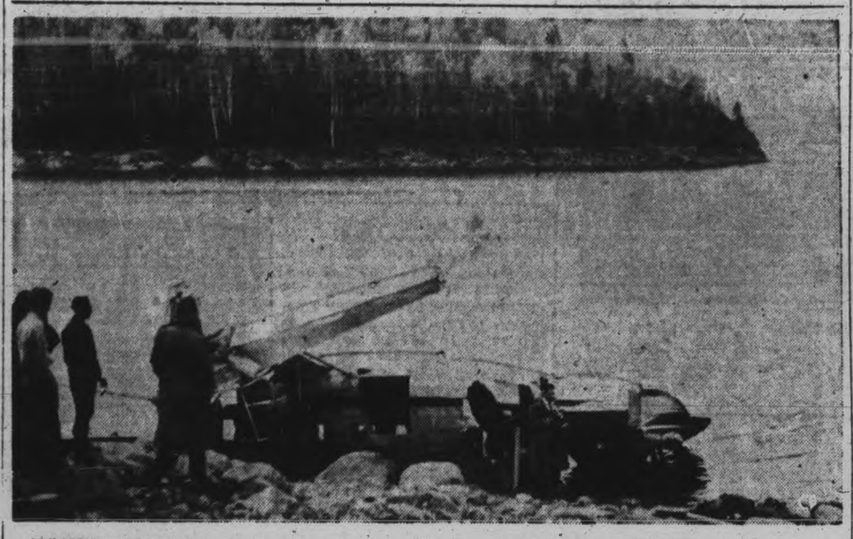
Lindsay Finds Adequate Site Sewage Plant

Lindsay council has reached the site stage with their sewage disposal project.

Dr. A. E. Berry of the Ontario Department of Health visited proposed properties in Wednesday's rain. It is understood that choice of location points to a 40-acre area which the town bought some time ago for sewage disposal plant location. It is on the west bank of the river in Ops township, and although it would require an additional 2,000 feet of pipe, it afforded the advantage of delaying indefinitely any secondary treatment that might eventually be needed.



Dr. Berry undertook to arrange for a visit of council representatives to see disposal plants at Galt, Waterloo, Guelph and Oakville on Wednesday, October 26.

Mr. A. L. Allely, Lindsay municipal clerk, told the Examiner that the council may be ready to begin work before this season ends.

Step Toward Water Authority?

Mr. Vincent Eastwood, who recently suggested the setting up of some Trent-Kawartha authority for the purpose of maintaining the waters of that entire area free from contamination, remarked today that Lindsay's enterprise should be regarded as an encouragement in that direction.

When communities like Lindsay and Peterborough invested large sums of municipal money in modern sewage disposal methods they were taking steps on their own initiative to that end. Their next consideration should be toward collective supervision of Kawartha waters. Mr. Eastwood said that this water system was a great asset to the communities like Peterborough, Lindsay, Lakefield, Campbellford and others. Taking a long view of water values, it seemed to him both practical and timely that some kind of organization of the proposed authority should not be indefinitely postponed.

WHERE FIVE DIED—Only 20 yards from a safe landing, this heavily damaged aircraft crashed on a rocky promontory (in background) at Lake Taureau Sunday night during a severe storm which blanketed the St. Michel des Saints hunting area, 100 miles north of Montreal. Three Montreal physicians, a guide and the pilot of the aircraft were killed. Russell Hoomes of Toronto was at the controls of the World-Wide Aviation Company Norseman when it crashed.

New Hospital At Bancroft Costs $200,000

TORONTO, Oct. 13—(AP)—A new 20-bed Red Cross outpost hospital was opened today at Bancroft, 60 miles north of Peterborough, Red Cross officials announced.

Valued at $200,000, the institution replaces the old eight-bed hospital which served the North Hastings area for 22 years. The new hospital, with seven nurses, will be operated by the Ontario Division Red Cross. It is one of 29 such outposts maintained by Red Cross in Ontario.

One third of the capital cost is contributed by the Ontario Government; one third by Ontario Red Cross, and one third by the local community.

Shortage of nurses still is creating serious problems for Red Cross Outpost hospitals, L. G. Mills, chairman of the Ontario division executive committee, said at a meeting.

Winnipeg Ballet Plays To Enthusiastic Audience

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

The Winnipeg Ballet, which was presented at the P.C.V.S. auditorium on Wednesday night, was the first ballet troupe to visit Peterborough since the visit of the Trudy Schoop Ballet before the war. The hall was completely filled, and the audience was enthusiastic. It is clear that there is an excellent audience for ballet in this city, and it is to be hoped that the Winnipeg Ballet will return next season, perhaps for two nights.

The first ballet on the program was "Romance", a study in the classical technique, which is what most people think of when they think of the ballet. It was a charming arrangement in the familiar pattern which never grows tiresome. The technique of the dancers was better shown in this than in either of the succeeding ballets, and technically they are admirable. As a group, they show a discipline and a sureness which exceeds that of some groups with greater reputations, and when the smallness of the PCVS stage is considered they gave a really remarkable performance. But just as this sort of dancing demands the finest in technique, it also demands qualities of romantic suggestion and of personal authority which these dancers were not quite able to give. Time, grateful audiences and recognition will do much to supply this want; when the dancers of the Winnipeg Ballet learn to impress their personalities more firmly upon their audience they will have added a new and extremely valuable quality to their excellent technical work.

Showier Number

The second ballet was "Visages" which was showier but not really so different as the first. There was some first-rate dancing in this production by Jean McKenzie and Arnold Spohr, as the lovers, and by the corps de ballet as a variety of well-characterized emotions; effective use was made of masks, and the costumes were excellent. This was in many ways the most completely successful performance of the evening.

"Chapter 13," the final ballet, suffered most from the smallness of the stage; it clearly needed twice as much room as was available. But the lurid story of the gangster and his girl, the honest cop and the struggling artist was danced with charm, clarity and great humor. At the end of the performance the company was given an ovation by the audience, making perfectly clear the friendly and appreciative spirit which had been evinced in bursts of applause all through the evening.

Too Modest

If we may presume to offer the Winnipeg Ballet some advice, let us say this: it is too modest for its own good. Its technique is good really good, but its spirit is needlessly retiring. Half the battle in ballet is technique; the other half is enchantment of the audience, and this means a vigorous self-esteem. The Winnipeg Ballet is courageously taking ballet to Canadian cities which would not otherwise see it; it is giving Canadian dancers, musicians and designers a wonderful chance to show their abilities. Its attitude is thoroughly professional; it asks no concessions or supensions of criticism. Canadian audiences know these things and appreciate them. Canadian audiences will like the Winnipeg Ballet all the better if it will adopt an attitude of greater self-esteem; we are quite sure that these excellent dancers know the difference between proper self-esteem and mere conceit.

Two further points deserve comment. The first concerns the new curtains at the PCVS, which are a great improvement on the old ones, just as the new lighting is an improvement on the old. The second concerns the odd attitude of the audience toward the ballet music, which was excellently played by Gordon Kushner and Edumund Assaly; the Peterborough audience, which is unfailingly courteous toward concert artists, chattered noisily all through the overture to the ballet, and was clearly audible when the ballets were in progress. The enjoyment of a ballet includes the enpoment of the music, and the talkers were cheating themselves out of part of their legitimate pleasure. Silence broken by bursts of merited applause, is the proper atmosphere for a ballet.

Peterborough Males Are Out In Large Number for Musical

"The number of men in Peterborough who like good music appears to be far more than I thought," said Harry Yudin, manager of Centre Theatre, in an appreciative reference today to the attendance at the Mozart musical picture Wednesday.

They were greeted not only in the sense of customers, but especially as associates, with a real interest in such things as the music and the personality of one of the world's most gifted men.

"You rather expect to see ladies at such affairs, but somehow we don't often think of men having strong musical tastes," Mr. Yudin said, "and especially the number of young men."

Public response to this Yudin monthly feature was convincingly encouraging, and the Centre manager's next problem is to find a screen concert program suitable for November. That is a personal wish that can't be entirely separated from a business aspect, but Mr. Yudin likes to think of it as contributing to the cultural enjoyment of many of the citizens.

"Six or seven of the clergymen of the city were with us, priests and ministers, and I am sure they enjoyed it. Did you notice the applause of that kind of audience at a picture? That was a sure indication to me they liked it. I felt like clapping myself just to hear those harmonics in the violin piece, the favorite "Ave Maria" by Schubert. That was perfection. Did you notice the encore idea, in Brahms Hungarian Dance, the popular No. 5?

I believe there is a practical idea in these good concert programs for the films."

Seeing the Centre full is no novelty to Harry Yudin, but when it is full of music lovers, all but a row or two at the front, that's something special.

"And remember" he said, "the Collegiate was packed for the Winnipeg Ballet. So, I think our Mozart Story did well."

One of the delightful surprises, too brief, was a splendid bass voice and excerpt from the opera "The Abduction from the Seraglio."

The film sketched against a background of his music the pathetic story of the Mozart, his prodigious gifts as composer and virtuoso, his lovable disposition, and the frustrations of his life, one of the greatest of mankind, living out his years in penury and heartbreak among an Austrian nobility for whom the world has no memory. He was only 35 at his death, and yet he left a tremendous library of music.

Farmer Held Not To Blame In Truck Crash

OSHAWA, Oct. 13—A stray cow wandering on the road was deemed responsible for an accident which caused the death of Frank Clark, 39, 480 Reid Street, Peterborough, who died when the heavily laden transport he was driving jack-knifed on Highway No. 2 near Newtonville, early on the morning of October 5. A coroner's jury enquiring into the fatality, attached no blame to the owner of the cow.

Robert Cumpson of Toronto, who was following Clark on the morning of the accident in another transport, said that he saw the tractor and trailer swerve over the right side of the road apparently to avoid something. It seemed to get in trouble on the shoulder of the road.

The next thing he saw, Mr. Cumpson told the inquest, was the lights of the transport tractor "seem to go right up in the air". The huge vehicle fell on its left side and skidded along the road enveloped in flames caused by fraction.

Driver Under Motor

He managed to stop his vehicle Cumpson said, only 15 feet away from the overturned transport and rushed up At first he couldn't find Clark. He wasn't in the cab and he wasn't in the ditch at the side. However, when he went back to his own vehicle he saw his headlights shining on the soles of the man's shoes. He was pinned under the motor. There was no pulse beat.

The cow which was involved was found on the side of the road sixty feet from the scene of the accident.

Dr. C. W. Slemon of Bowmanville, said that Mr. Clark died instantly from a fractured skull and a broken neck.

Provincial Constable Ray Kowal, who investigated said when he arrived a few minutes after the accident the tractor-trailer covered the whole road blocking it to other traffic. Only dent was in the left front fender.

The bumper and license plate were spotted with cow dung and with bits of hair from the beast, Constable Kowal said.

Fence In Good Shape

Carcass of the cow was found in the south ditch 165 feet east of where the vehicle came to rest the police officer said. The animal apparently was owned by John Edgar VanAllen who admitted that it was his animal which had been struck. The fence along the highway was in good condition, Constable Kowal said.

Mr. Van Allen refused to admit that the animal might have got through the fence. The only way it could have got on the road, he said, was for someone to come along and let it out the gate. There has been a lot of transients wandering around that district lately. His evidence was corroborated by his brother-in-law, Morley Willbanks, who lives with VanAllen and who said that he could see the gate was closed from the house, a distance of 50 feet or more away at seven o'clock in the evening.

Dr. C. J. Austin, Coroner, presided at the hearing. He was assisted by Crown Attorney H. R. Deyman, of Cobourg. Members of the jury, all from Bowmanville, were Alfred Bickell, Fred Hellyer, Fred Baker, Glen Virtue and Jack McNaulty.

TRAVEL IN SUNSHINE

A busload of Peterborough plowmen took off this morning in the moonlight of 7 o'clock for the big plowing match in Brant county. The sky was full of stars and the travellers were not sure whether Alex Huston or Henry Batten brought the luck of promise of a sunny day for the international league plowing. They expected to be back tonight before the moon was up in its last quarter.

PLAN FIELD DAY

Central School is staging its annual field day for girls and boys Friday afternoon in Nicholls Oval, commencing at 1:30. While 39 events are on the program, the jumping competitions will be held this afternoon at the school.

ONE FLOODED BURNER

Firemen were called to 120 Hazlitt St. residence of F. Shine, shortly after 7 p.m. Wednesday when a flooded oil burner was reported. An extinguisher was used on the blaze. No damage was reported.

St. John Ambulance Begin First Aid Class

First Aid training classes start Wednesday, October 26, at 8 p.m. in Ashburnham Hall under the local St. John Ambulance Brigade. Anyone wishing to register in the classes which will be held once a week, Wednesday nights, for eight weeks should phone 8236 or 4755 or write to Harry Ferguson, 471 Albert St. or James Amyotte, 359 Euclid Ave. On completion of this course enrolment in the St. John Ambulance Brigade is possible.

Recently Philip Doherty, a member of the local brigade sacrificed his life while serving the people as a voluntary First Aid worker. The Noronic disaster in Toronto again brought public recognition to the humanitarian work of this organization.

Jackson Blames Department In CGE Delay

Responsibility for delays in Conciliation Board proceedings with the CGE have been placed on the Ontario Department of Labor by C. S. Jackson, Canadian president of the UE-CIO. A letter to this effect has been written to the Hon. Charles Daley, Minister of Labor.

Mr. Jackson claimed that by reason of the delays the Board has unwittingly been placed in a position of favoring an employer against employees.

In his concluding statement to the Minister, he said: "We are calling on your government at this time to accept its full responsibility in this matter and to have your Chief Conciliation Officer, Louis Fine, immediately return to the Conciliation table in order that he may assist the Conciliation Board and the parties in arriving at a settlement."

Negotiations Reviewed

Mr. Jackson reviewed the progress of negotiations between the Company and the Union from May through June, and the decision in the latter part of that month to take the matter to conciliation. At that time, he recalled, he pointed out that an "injustice" was being done to CGE workers by reason of the long delays. And some assurance was wanted that the Board would be ready to commence immediately following the annual vacation shut down.

Following assurances given to the Union that the Board should be established by August 3, and the indication that the Board would meet immediately thereafter, everyone had the right to assume some decision would have been forthcoming before the end of August, the letter said.

Mr. Jackson elaborated by pointing out that the Union now had a notice there would be no further meetings till October 28, and this worked to the disadvantage of the CGE employees.

"We suggest that the responsibility for the bringing of this issue to a head still lies with your Department," the letter continued, "and the existence of a Conciliation Board does not absolve your Department of its basic responsibilities."

Judge J. C. Reynolds of Kingston is the present chairman of the Board. J. L. Cohen of Toronto is the Union nominee and C. B. C. Scott, vice president of the Massey Harris Co., nominee of the Company.

If Mr. Jackson's recommendation were acted upon, Mr. Fine, Chief Conciliation Officer, would assist in trying to break the deadlock.

ADDRESSES COBOURG MEETING

Harry Baptie, personnel manager of the Western Clock Company, was the guest speaker on Wednesday night at an Industrial Accident Prevention Association rally held in Cobourg. Representatives of the industrial plants in Cobourg, Port Hope and surrounding district attended the meeting.

Port Perry Driver Acquitted Of Cruelty To Horse During Exhibition Race

David Dowson, Port Perry, was acquitted in city police court today on a charge of wantonly, cruelly and unnecessarily beating a horse while sulky racing at Peterborough Exhibition Aug. 26. Acting on information laid by Gerald Dunford, Peterborough Humane Society Inspector the Crown accused Dowson of beating a horse driven by Romeo Miville when the two horses were well in the lead near the end of the heat.

When Dowson, driving Silk Gratton, owned by Clayton Hodgson, federal member of parliament for Victoria and Haliburton finished the race first, Miville made a complaint to the judges but after examination of the horse Dowson was acclaimed the winner.

Detective Bud Clarke, chief Crown witness, said that Dowson had been driving within three feet of the rail and beat Miville's horse with his whip as it tried to overtake him. The Humane Society Inspector admitted that he was unable to find any marks on the horse's head to indicate suffering.

Dowson claimed that he had been close to the rail and that Miville, referred to throughout the case as the Frenchman, had tried to run him down instead of pulling out to overtake.

Admitting that he "flicked" the Frenchman's horse four times with his whip, Dowson said that he also yelled to the other driver to get over.

"I could have been thrown into the centre of the field, underneath the oncoming horses or into the crowd," Dowson claimed.

Merely Flicked Whip

Detective Clarke argued that Dowson's horse was three feet away from the rail and that when the racer tried to turn further in, the driver pulled it back towards the centre of the course. He said Dowson hit the horse more than four times, demonstrating with a wide sweep of the arm. Dowson maintained that he merely flicked his whip, indicating with a turn of the wrist.

"The Frenchman was trampling on my wheel," the accused said, and that he won the race despite the fact that his wheel was damaged.

Mr. Hodgson said that when he examined the wheel which had been trampled by the Frenchman's horse, he found there were only seven good spokes out of 36 left. The rim was bent and the tire flat.

Dr. Art Johnston, Peterborough veterinary surgeon, said that as the horses passed the spot where he was watching the race, he heard the spokes of Dowson's bike being hit by the Frenchman's mare. He said Dowson yelled to the other driver to get out more.

Examines Horse

The following day the vet examined the Frenchman's horse but found "no evidence whatsoever of any punishment." He said that Dowson could have been fatally injured or there might have been more serious injuries involving the other drivers.

At most racing meets there were patrol judges around the field to watch for any infringement of racing rules, but there had been none at that meet, he said.

Jack Thompson, one of the judges said he examined the Frenchman's horse after the race but saw only an old scar.

A. W. S. Greer, K.C., of Oshawa, defence counsel, said that people not familiar with racing often thought there was cause for alarm, especially when there was keen competition. He did not suggest that the detective was manufacturing his evidence, but said he appeared to be unfamiliar with racing.

Although he denied that Dowson had beaten the horse wantonly, cruelly or unnecessarily, Mr. Greer said that if the horse had been beaten, even then he would have argued that Dowson had done it necessarily.

In acquitting Dowson, Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C., said that for a conviction it would have had to be proven that pain or suffering had been inflicted. It was not the function of that court to decide why the horse was struck.

Crown Attorney John Bradshaw conducted the prosecution.

U.K. Advertising Under CDNA Fire

TORONTO, Oct. 13 (CP)—The Canadian Daily Newspapers Association in a statement Wednesday said that at the recent CDNA meeting in Halifax publishers expressed great concern over the "apparent lack of understanding" by United Kingdom manufacturers of correct merchandising practices in Canada.

The statement said the meeting "deplored the present practice of many United Kingdom advertisers who omit to specify in their advertisements the names of retail outlets where their goods may be purchased" and added that the advertisements mislead many Canadian consumers with assurances of goods being "available at all good stores" when such is not the case.

The statement said surveys showed distribution of many advertised products in the principal cities of Canada was extremely spotty, and, in some instances, non-existent. The statement concluded: "The newspaper publishers felt that this inaccuracy tends to destroy public confidence in United Kingdom advertising in general. The CDNA considers that continuance of this practice is detrimental to the sale of British consumer goods in Canada."

Get New Strato-Cruiser

SEATTLE, Oct. 13 (AP)—British Overseas Airways Corporation Wednesday took delivery here of its first double-decked Boeing Strato-cruiser. It's named the Speedbird. BOAC officials said that after Jan. 1 they plan to start the only all-stratocruiser Transatlantic service. At that time all present equipment will be placed on the London, Montreal and Caribbean routes.

Robert Baker Chosen President Of Badminton Club

The Peterborough Badminton Club opens its 1949-50 season this Saturday night at the Market Hall. Prospects indicate the largest membership in the club in years. Officers are: President, Bob Baker; vice-president, Ed. Johnston; secretary, Vince O'Donoghue; treasurer, L. Collingwood; conveners, Miss Helen Mathias and Miss Beth Jackson; club captain, Ralph Charlton.

A meeting of the COBA will be held this weekend in Cobourg when officers will be elected and arrangements for inter-club matches drawn up for the season. Shuttlecocks will be better than last year, one company putting out a bird that is reported quite good.

The local club can take some new members this season, but they should apply early to the Market Hall on any playing night, which means any but Friday and Sunday nights. The Market Hall floor has been scrubbed clean and new lines marked on all the courts for the opening night. Some members have been getting in a few pre-season games at the Armouries for conditioning.

MONTREAL, Oct. 13—(CP)—More than $100,000,000 has been spent in Quebec province by various mining development companies, Provincial Minister of Mines C. D. French said here Wednesday. Speaking before the Advertising Sales and Executive Club of Montreal, Mr. French said "our mining industry in 1948 has contributed $150,000,000 to the economic welfare of the province and it is already taking its place among the most important industries of the province."

Canadian, American Tourists Prefer Museums To Night Life

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

LONDON, Oct. 13 —(CP) — Canadians and Americans do not look for night life in Europe—they prefer museums, says the British Travel Association.

Historic buildings, rustic villages and theatres attract them most, with museums, concerts, and athletic events next in order.

Night clubs, whether in London or Paris, are well down on the list of favored attractions.

"Most Canadians and Americans— and particularly Americans—tell us there is quite enough night life at home without seeking it here," an official of the travel association said. "They prefer to concentrate on things that typify British and European life."

French perfume is the most softest of furs are stiffened to half of this year's North American visitors bought it, while one-third of them purchased Swiss watches. French and Italian gloves and Italian leather goods and silks were the next most popular items.

Close behind—but behind nevertheless—were purchases of British antiques and woollens.

Lukewarm on Cooking

Canadians and Americans generally speak highly of cooking in France, Italy, Switzerland and the Netherlands, but are only lukewarm about British cooking.

"Where visitors show signs of being ultra-fastidious about their food, we often direct them to restaurants that have French or Italian chefs," the official said.

By the end of 1949 it is expected that 135,000 or more visitors will have come from the United States, and more than 35,000 from Canada.

I evaluation of the pound is likely to attract still larger numbers to Britain next year. Provisionally, the travel association is reckoning on 165,000 Americans and 50,000 Canadians. Tourist revenue from the two countries should exceed $100,000,000 during 1950.

Visitors to Britain from all countries will probably total 560,000 for 1949. Next year the figure may well be 650,000.

Need Indian Workers

GALT, Oct 13 — (CP).—Funds for operation of Indian boarding schools in Canada are obtained now more easily than in the past but it is becoming increasingly difficult to find workers for the schools, Rev. Canon H G. Cook of Ottawa said Wednesday. Canon Cook, superintendent of Indian Schools for the Missionary Society of the Church of England in Canada, addressed the semi-annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Anglican Diocese of Huron.

Truck Driver Killed

TORONTO, Oct. 13 — (CP).—Joseph Zoberman, 44, died Wednesday night in hospital of injuries suffered earlier in the day in a traffic accident. Police said a panel truck driver by Zoberman crashed into a ditch on the Queen Elizabeth Highway just west of Toronto. Zoberman and two other persons were trapped in the wreckage of the truck until freed by other motorists. Max Yarmo, 40, and Mrs. Martha Woodward, 35, still are in hospital.

News Statement Encouraging

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor.

Two statements in the current news rate consideration when making plans for the future.

Says John W. Snyder, American Secretary of the Treasury: When the present strike situation is over, the United States is in for the greatest period of prosperity it has ever known.

This from a country which a few months ago was depression-minded.

And Donald Gordon,, incoming head of the Canadian National Railways, foresees a "great new era of progress" for all Canada, with roots in oil, iron ore, titanium, base metals and numerous other sources.

It is pleasant to be talking thus in this fall of 1949, a full two years after the post-war depression was supposed to be upon us—the one that has not come.

The most striking thing about the world today is not its difficulties but the stirring among its peoples.

Something Different

In the last 30 years or so there have been two illusions. One, after 1918, that the world would go back to the "normalcy" of pre-1914. The other, after 1945, that it would go back to the depression-mind of the '30s. There may, some time in the future, be something to correspond to the "normalcy" of pre-1914, and there may again be something akin to the '30s, but there is little chance that either can occur in the time of those now living There could be chaos, but not these.

Another thought-provoker from the day's news:

Sir Stafford Cripps says Britain's productivity is increasing at a rate of about 4 per cent a year, adding that it is not yet sufficient to make up for the loss of overseas investment income that used to pay for one-fifth of her imports.

Well, sometimes we get a bit discouraged about the progress of post-war Britain. So be it, but if she does continue to raise her productivity to the point where it will replace the investment income she has lost, we may smile a few years hence that we once feared Britain was through. In addition, she will be winning back the investment income.

HARD RIDER — Charley Bright, 19-year-old apprentice jockey from Muncie, Ind., is currently setting records at Toronto's suburban Long Branch track. With a big five-winner performance in one eight-event card and several four and three-winner days, Bright is nearing the 100 mark for the year. He rode his first horse last May and scored his first win less than a month later. He has done all his riding on Ontario tracks and is under contract to the J. Montana stable of Buffalo.

Heads Conservatives In Saskatchewan

REGINA, Oct. 13 — (CP). — Alvin Hamilton, 37, of Saskatoon, organizer for the Progressive Conservative Party in Saskatchewan, Wednesday was elected its Leader. He succeeds Rupert Ramsay, also of Saskatoon.

Mr. Hamilton was chosen over Ed Hudson of Moose Jaw, only other candidate. Mr. Hudson moved that Mr. Hamilton's election be made unanimous.

During the two-day convention, both candidates denounced any possibility of coalition with the Liberals in their efforts to upset the province's CCF government.

WOMAN AMBASSADOR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13— (AP) —Mrs. Eugenie Anderson, of Red Wing, Minn., was nominated Wednesday as United States ambassador to Denmark. She will be the first woman to hold that rank in the American Diplomatic Service.

Bride Honored At Kitchen Shower

Mrs. Elton Herlihey formerly Lorraine Davidson was widely honored before her marriage.

Mrs. Ross Parkin, Miss Rose Miller, and Mrs. Basil Hurley were joint hostesses for a kitchen shower at the latter's home.

Mrs. Wm. O'Donel entertained at a misceellaneaus shower with a large number of friends and relatives being present.

Mrs. Fred Breen, Reid St., held a dinner party at her home where members of the Ready to Wear Department, Eaton Co. Peterborough Branch, presented the bride with a satin housecoat and a pressure cooker.

The management and staff of the T. Eaton Co. here presented the bride with a table lamp.

FIRST DUTCH RAIL

The first Dutch railroad was constructed in 1839.

MR. ELTON J. HERLIHEY AND HIS BRIDE, the former Lorraine Davidson, cut their wedding cake at the reception which followed their Thanksgiving Day wedding in St. Peter's Cathedral. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. T. W. Davidson and the late Mrs. Davidson of Janetville. The groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Herlihey of Downeyville.—(Roy Studio Photo)

Herlihey-Davidson Union

The wedding took place in St. Peter's Cathedral Monday of Laura Lorraine Davidson and Elton Joseph Herlihey with the Rev. R. Garvey officiating, assisted by the Rev. V. G. McFadden of Downeyville. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. T. W. Davidson and the late Mrs. Davidson, Janetville, and the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Herlihey, Downeyville.

Chrysanthemums and ferns decorated the church. Mrs. R. G. Aman played the wedding music and Miss Pauline O'Donnel sang "Ave Maria" at the signing of the register.

Ivory slipper satin fashioned the bride's beautifully draped gown which fell gracefully into a slight train. It had a yoke of sheer nylon marquisette and long sleeves which came to lily points at the wrists. Her veil of tulle illusion fell from a satin halo which had white ostrich plumes at either side. The bouquet she carried was of Bettertime roses and white 'mums.

Mr. W. O'Donnel gave the bride in marriage and she was attended by her sister, Mrs. Don Cresswell and Miss Carmel Leahy. The bridesmaids wore similar dresses of American beauty and Perrywinkle blue corded taffeta, fashioned with tightly fitted waists, high puff sleeves and flowing skirts edged with self flowers. Each wore matching mittens and a halo hat and they carried bouquets of pastel shaded baby 'mums.

Mr. Edward Herlihey was groomsman and the ushers were Fred Breen and Joseph O'Leary.

A reception was held afterward at the Empress Hotel. The bride's aunt, Mrs. Laura Ingram of Millbrook assisted to receive, wearing a dress of fuchsia crepe with grey accessories and corsage of white 'mums. The groom's mother also received and she was gowned in mist blue crepe and wore black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For their wedding trip to Warren, Michigan, the bride donned a suit of autumn green gabardine, matching hat, and accessories of suede, and wore a corsage of bronze baby 'mums.

Mr. and Mrs. Herlihey will live in Downeyville.

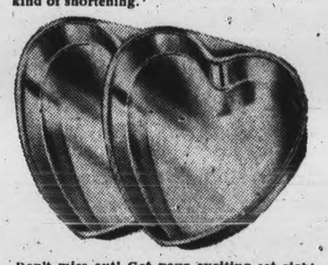
"A SPECIAL TREAT?... BAKE A CHOCOLATE BAVARIAN PIE!"

"Yes! For a treat that your family and guests will talk about for days, serve this flaky, tender pie," says Martha Logan, celebrated home economist. "It's made with Swift'ning—that makes the flakiest pastry you've ever tasted!"



CHOCOLATE BAVARIAN PIE

Baked pie shell
1¼ tbsps. plain unflavoured gelatin
2 cups milk
2 ozs. unsweetened chocolate
2 eggs
1 cup granulated sugar
⅛ tsp. salt
1 tsp. pure vanilla
½ cup whipped cream
½ cup chopped walnuts

Bake and cool a 9-inch pie shell. Soften gelatin in ½ cup of the cold milk. Place remaining milk in top of double boiler; cut up and add chocolate, heat until chocolate melts, then beat smooth with rotary beater. Beat egg yolks slightly and beat in ¼ cup of the sugar, and salt. Stir in chocolate mixture, turn back into double boiler and stir over gently boiling water until the mixture thickens so that it will coat a spoon. Add gelatin, stir until dissolved, then strain. Chill with occasional stirring, until as thick as a very heavy syrup. Add vanilla; fold in whipped cream; fold in also the egg whites, which have been beaten until stiff but not dry, and into which the remaining sugar has gradually been beaten. Add walnuts. Turn into the pie shell and chill until firm. Top with whipped cream and cherry flowers.

Paris Furs Emphasis Top Fullness

By BARBARA STEVENSON

PARIS —(Reuters)— Radical changes in the silhouettes of fur coats shown this season follow the styles first introduced in the new season's fabric models, featuring much more top width than last year.

The emphasis this year is on the transformable collar. Big shawl collars can be turned up over the head, framing the face in an oval of furs.

Huge cape collars, both single and double, are popular. One of these "double" cape collars, used over a slim coat, has a lower cape which touches the wrist while the second just tops the elbow. Another double-tiered model has the upper layer forming both collar and sleeves.

Small round collars in the softest of furs are stiffened to stand up around the ears.

Sleeves are full, some balloon, some pushed up and several leg-o'-mutton versions. One of the most popular sleeves on both coats and long jackets it cut with a crescent effect in three-quarter length.

Linings are news in every fur collection this winter. Big cape and shawl collars which can be tossed over the head are lined with pleated pure silk. Brilliant embroidery, braid, and even diamente is revealed when the fur coat is unbuttoned, the face framed with the collar or the loose wrist-length sleeves turned back into a cuff.

Lamb Treated Like Cloth

The silhouette includes slim-fitting coats in Astrakan, Persian lamb and broadtail draped and treated like cloth. Fullness, if any, is concentrated in the back and falls from a yoke in ripples which grow in width to the hem.

One model in broadtail is fan-pleated at one side. The pleats narow at the top into a slim waistline and are held in place by a long row of jet buttons.

Tent coats, popular in both brown and black seal, are in direct contrast to the fitted fashion but are equally popular.

Shades of the 1920's are visible in both trimmings and wrap-around effects. A long strip of fox runs round the neck and down the length of wrap-around model in short fur adapted from the popular fashion evolved shortly after the First World War.

Belted coats have bloused backs and more dressy models show scalloped hem lines. Both jackets and full-length coats are several inches shorter than the similar models of the previous season.

One innovation on the Paris fur scene which definitely belongs to the 1950's is created by a wide double panel which is in reality a cape sleeve falling from the shoulder to below the hip with a slit in front through which the wrist passes. From the side, this coat has the appearance of a cape.

French treatment of rabbit as a lining gives it a deceptively luxurious look. It can be, and is, dyed to the most amazing shades and treated with a new finish which prevents the fur from falling out.

A RICH NEW FALL FABRIC —ottoman wool—is used by Canadian designer Nat Gordon to fashion one of the newest skirts for fall. Godet panels of butterfly pleats add tapering fullness to slim skirt silhouette.

Challenge Facing All Catholics

WINDSOR, Ont., 13 (CP) — Most Rev. R. H. Dignan, D. D., Bishop of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., told delegates to the Catholic Women's League Convention Wednesday that they are faced with a challenge— by good example, "in season and out, to win souls to Christ."

Bishop Dignan spoke to delegates gathered here from coast to coast for the 29th annual national convention.

"Your first duty to your fellow men is charity; the love of good first and foremost and then the love of your neighbor." Bishop Dignan told the C.W.L. women in his sermon. He said there should be no distinction between the love shown their fellow Catholics and that to their "separated brethern." he cited the practice of the corporal and spiritual works of mercy as the best way of carrying out the injunction to love your neighbor.

The spiritual works of mercy urged working for those not of the Catholic faith, Bishop Dignan said, adding: "It is for us to lead them to Christ by word, or at least by example. And then he warned his congregation not to give scandal by the non-practice of the rules of the Catholic faith, such as eating meat on Friday and failure to attend mass on Sundays and holy days.

Delegates were urged to stress two aspects of their work in the coming year by most Rev. John C. Cody, national director of the league, at the opening business session.

Bishop Cody asked that all members increase their prayers and their work on behalf of immigrants and displaced persons in Canada. His second plea was for active support and prayer for a newly-formed Foreign Missionary Organization, the missionaries of our lady.

GAS VIA LOGS

Natural gas was first used in North America about 1824, when a village in New York State tapped a gas flow and piped it into town through hollowed-out logs.

Canadian Styles Shine In Showing of Best Wools

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, —(CP)— Canada, the United States, Britain, Indian and many continental countries contributed the fabrics and fashions displayed at the International Wool Exhibition in London — held to show the world-wide progress in wool and woollen materials.

There were overcoatings from Quebec, tartans, rustic homespuns, gabardines, flannels and broadcloth from the United States, tropical suiting and reversible overcoatings from Switzerland, crepe georgettes from Denmark and worsted suiting from Sweden.

The British section showed tartans and tweeds from Scotland and the border country, hunting scarlets, furnishing fabrics and billiards cloth from England, honeycomb quilts, colored blankets, knitting wools and tweed from Wales.

And the fashions — covering everything in wool from evening dresses to heavy travel-coats — were the product of the most notable couture houses of each country.

Queen Mary, an interested spectator, showed approval and appreciation of the art in design and fabric shown by Canada and other countries.

Essentially Canadian was the attractive ski suit made by Gerhard Kennedy of Winnipeg. In a light-brown gabardine suiting from Dupont Textiles, Toronto, the tuck-in shirt and slim "downhill" slacks give a perfect simplicity vividly offset by the bright green jersey helmet.

Blauer Brothers of Montreal chose a beige, winter-weight, wool suiting from Ayers Ltd., Quebec, to create the fur-lined suit with its pencil skirt and three - quarter - length stroller jacket. The sleeves are wide and cuffed, the pockets concealed by a self-trim banding of scroll design and the collar and edge front are trimmed with fur.

Indian Weaving

Woven by Indian girls of the Caughnawaga tribe of Quebec was a hand- woven worsted tweed of navy with red and green stripes and overcheck used to create a classic suit by Merino of Montreal. The jacket, in the overcheck, has simple classic lines with cuffed sleeves and cuffed pockets of diagonal check. The straight, pencil skirt is striped without the overcheck.

A tailored dressmaker suit by Lou Parry of Toronto is in brown worsted charmine from Fawcett and Grant of Quebec. It has a form-fitting princess-line tunic-jacket with deep, folded shawl collar and large, smooth pocket flaps with a diagonal slant. The skirt has a simple gore with front vent.

The latest fashions in every type and style of dress, suit and coat were presented by: the "First Eleven" of Britain; Pattullo, Mangone, Rosenstein and Carnegie of the U.S.A.; Jacques Fath, Molyneux, Paquin and Schiaparelli of Paris; Neumann of Holland; Noberasko or Italy; Forde of Oslo; Grieder of Zurich, and many others.

The exhibition, although international, was held in London with a sterling eye to dollar markets. Coming as it did, simultaneously with devaluation, it has raised those hopes considerably.

Names of Fallen To Be Inscribed

First fall meeting of the Silver Cross Women was held Wednesday evening in the YWCA. President Mrs. B. W. Harvey advised the parchment from Dept. of Veterans' Affairs has been received and placed in the hands of Mr. A. B. Burrows for inscribing of names. She also called attention to the splendid effort of Mrs. J. Patte and committee in obtaining a full list of names of fallen from each of the three forces.

Mrs. E. Pruner told the members of her trip to Great Britain this summer. She was particularly touched by the kindness she received and by the way the English people were helping each other in time of difficulty and the effort they are making to see that children get proper food.

Mrs. B. D. Hall was chosen to place a wreath on Remembrance Day. The hospital chapel committee gave a report which will be continued at next meeting. Plans were made for a rummage sale.

Mrs. J. Young and assistants served a cup of tea at close of the meeting.

DOROTHY DIX

Lonely Girl in Large City Despairs of Making Friends

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl of cultured tastes, caring for music, art and literature. Too reserved to make friends easily. Too liberal to appeal to the conattract the radical, too independent to attract the man who likes the clinging vine. So for the four years in which I have lived in this city I have not made a single man friend.

I am so tired from the strain of work and attempted study, from the lack of sunshine and gaiety and trying to make ends meet that I have been wondering what it would be like to slip over the side of a ferry. There must be thousands of girls like me. What do they do?

Dorothy Dix

LOIS.

ANSWER: Speaking personally, for I, too, have been through that inferno of loneliness in the same great city in which you live, you summon all your courage and determination and you dig in and carry on until by some miracle you win through. Suddenly, it seems to you, the people about you change. Doors open to you, and you find yourself one of a warm, affectionate, human group.

But while it lasts there is no experience more terrible than the loneliness that every one experiences who goes to a big city in which he or she has no friends or acquaintances. How to remedy this situation and provide some way in which the strangers of a great city can get in touch with congenial acquaintances, nobody seems to know.

Special Case

In your particular case, Lois, the problem of how you are to end your isolation is made more difficult by your personal idiosyncrasies. Especially by your reserve. You want friends, but you want them to cultivate you. Think how egotistic this is. What is there about you that would lead anyone to think it worth the trouble to break down your barriers and get at what is fine within you?

You need others more than strangers need you, so my advice to you is to take the initiative. Perhaps the reason that you do not attract people is because you are not adaptable. You bristle with opinions and get into arguments. Put the soft pedal on your personal views and see if it does not make you a more agreeable companion.

◇ ◇ ◇

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a boy of 16. Until a year ago I was a member of a petty thievery gang, but I broke away from them and am going straight. But my trouble is with my parents. Mom had me put in the county jail once for three days and she says that she can put me back in whenever she wants to. We are always in a quarrel about something and when I ran away she had the police bring me back. I have an offer of a good job away from here, but I am afraid to tell dad about it. He would tell the man not to give it to me and say I was irresponsible or something of the sort. Can you help me?

EDWARD

ANSWER: I have never heard of such unnatural parents, or of a situation in which a father and mother did not try to help a son who was trying to go straight.

The only explanation of your mother's conduct that I can conceive is that she is one of the high-tempered women who do things in their rages to gratify their spite without counting the cost. If this is the case, as long as you are a minor, all you can do is stand from under as well as you can and avoid doing things to rouse her anger. You will soon be grown and can leave such an uncongenial home.

But it is a pity that your mother and father do not understand the power of suggestion, and that if they keep before you the idea that you are wayward and untrustworthy they will make you so.

We all unconsciously live up to people's ideals of us, and if fathers and mothers are forever telling their children that they are dull or bad or hoodlums, the children give up the struggle to be anything else and drift into being the characters their parents have assigned to them.

DEAR MISS DIX: Do you think five years is too long for an engagement? Do you think there is a probability of either changing during that time? Does it matter if the girl is a year older than the boy?

BROWN EYES

ANSWER: A year's difference in age does not make any difference in the suitability of a marriage, but I think five years is entirely too long for an engagement. It wears itself out and generally both the man and the woman get tired of it and disillusioned with each other.

OTTAWA, Oct. 13—(CP)—The CBC employs 1,323 persons, including 191 in its international service, it was shown Wednesday in a return tabled in the Commons. The return declined to give salaries of employees on the ground that "production of this information would be detrimental to the position of the Corporation in obtaining progressional services and staff in a competitive field and would therefore not be in the public interest."

He predicted that Congress will approve it in 1950.

Resident Engineer On Sewage Job

Finance Committee of the council is giving Gore and Storrie, Toronto, consultants on the sewage disposal plant job, authority to appoint a resident engineer for the period of construction.

Their letter suggested that possibly the council might wish to make this advisable appointment.

Contract has been let to George Hardy Limited, Toronto. It is general practice to have an engineer on the work as an observer in the interests of the city. Gore and Storrie will send one of their top men probably every two weeks, it was said last night, but that supervision would not be sufficient for the purposes of the city.

The contractor is ready to begin work immediately. The last barrier is the Ontario Municipal Board to whom the council has submitted its construction bylaw. Two readings were given this bylaw accepting the Hardy tender, and Ald. H. Dodds, chairman of the Board of Works, said he expected the bylaw back from Toronto in time for the council meeting next Monday night.

Vivid Flash In Night Said Fireball

Mystery Phenomenon Seen By People Timagami—Toronto

OTTAWA, Oct. 14—(CP)—Dr. Peter Millman, the Dominion Observatory's expert on meteors, said today a gigantic flash of light over Northern Ontario Thursday night "must have been a very large fireball" or meteor.

From descriptions of the flash given by observers, he said, "there is not much doubt about what it was."

Dr. Millman said a fireball was a large meteor, a fragment of stone or metal entering the earth's atmosphere and ignited by the tremendous heat produced by the friction of the atmosphere.

Puzzled Residents

The blue-white blaze of light, which one Timagami observer said resembled a monstrously-magnified short-circuit, occurred at midnight, EST. It was also seen at Dunlap observatory at nearby Richmond Hill and by a control officer at Malton airport, 17 miles northwest of here.

All observers stressed the strangeness of the light. One witness said it looked like a comet, another like a rocket. There was no immediate indication whether the phenomenon was natural or man-made.

Air Force and Army officials at Ottawa offer no explanation. An Army spokesman said the Army was not carrying out any exercises that might account for the flash.

Walter A. Rukeyser, mining engineer on a visit to Timagami, first reported the flash. In company with several friends, he saw the midnight sky "brilliantly lit up by a bluish, white flash."

Looks Like Smoke

"I've never seen anything quite like it," he said. "There was a sudden burst of light . . . I looked up and saw a snake-like flash . . . It was like a short-circuit, the biggest short-circuit I've ever seen. It remained perhaps six or seven minutes. After the first flash the sky remained brightly lighted.

"A tremendous area was covered. A luminescent glow covered the sky. Gradually, at the end of about five minutes, it began to die down. It had the appearance of a Chinese snake."

No sound accompanied the light, said Constable James Tappenden, who saw it at Cobalt, 30 miles north of Timagami.

"And it wasn't northern lights," said the Provincial Police officer.

OLD RELIABLE—In striking contrast to the many hundreds of tractors and pieces of modern motorized farm equipment at the International Plowing Match near Brantford this week is the somewhat outdated yoke of oxen. Owned by Hubert Carruthers of Eau Claire, Ont., the oxen showed their capabilities during the plowing events.

Sault Quads Thriving In Incubator

SAULT STE. MARIE, Oct 14—(CP). — The quadruplet daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Oswald C. Hargreaves continue to thrive in their hospital incubators while their father ponders his housing situation.

The birth of the quadruplets on Thursday suddenly made a five-room wartime house too small for the Hargreaves family. Mrs. Hargreaves 26, had two children, Sandra 6, and Kenneth 4, by a former marriage.

Housing acommodation in this prosperous Northern Ontario steel city is as scarce as in other parts of Canada, especially for couples with six children. The 34-year-old Hargreaves, assistant repairman at the Great Lakes Power Company plant here, told an interviewer

"We'll just have to manage somehow."

The quadruplets, first in this city's history, were born within 20 minutes. The heaviest baby weighs 3 pounds 7 ounces, the next 3 pounds 6 ounces, and the lightest of the four tipped the scales at 3 pounds 3 ounces.

Few Recorded

Only scattered cases of quadruplet births are recorded in all Canada in recent years. There were two in 1945, one in 1944, and two in 1937.

But one of the world's most famous multiple births, that of the Dionne quintuplets in May, 1934, took place some 285 miles east of here at Callander.

Both Hargreaves and his wife, the former Eileen Knight, were born here. Hargreaves served overseas 1944-1946 with Headquarters Company of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, and was stationed in England and North-west Europe. The couple was married 1½ years ago.

The maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Kendall Knight, said they were "very pleased." Mrs. Knight added:

"We are very pleased and will give any assistance we can to Oswald and Eileen with the children until they get settled."

11 Top Red Leaders In US Convicted of Treason

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—The 11 top Communist leaders in the United States were convicted today of conspiring to teach forcible overthrow of the United States government.

Immediately after the verdict, five defence lawyers and one of the defendants were convicted of contempt of court. Mrs. Thelma Dial, foreman of the jury, in announcing the verdict said, "we find each and every one of the defendants guilty."

The jury entered the courtroom after deliberating exactly seven hours.

The maximum penalty possible for each defendant is 10 years imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

Told Not To Talk

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina thanked the jurors, eight women and four men and said:

"Before I discharge you, I would like to tell you a few things. I need not tell you of the importance of this case, as stressed by counsel for both sides. I tell you now when you leave here do not discuss with anyone, anything about this case, about the deliberations, about anything that has to do with the case from the beginning to end.

"Do not discuss the case with relatives or friends or members of the press, magabine writers or anyone who seeks to elicit from you any information about the case."

No date was set for sentence of the Communists. Sentences were set at once for the lawyers.

Sacher and Gladstein received six months. Crockett was convicted under nine specifications and sentences to four months on each to run concurrently. McCabe was given 30 days. Isserman was sentenced to four months.

Ask 2 Million To Aid Strike

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. Oct. 14 (AP)—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers (Ind.) today asked AFL president William Green to throw in $2,500,000 a week to assist CIO president Philip Murray in his steel strike and promised the miners would help.

Lewis, in an amazing bid for labor union co-operation in the two major strikes now on, called upon Green to create a fund in which 10 AFL unions would each put up $250,000 every week to help the steel workers "won beyond peradventure."

Lewis said he would match the $250,000 every week from the treasury of the United Mine Workers. His 400,000 miners have been on strike since Sept. 19.

In a letter to Green, Lewis urged the AFL president to "subordinate every other consideration and rise to meet in this fashion the giant adversaries which would decimate the major units of organized labor."

In this way, Lewis who has fought both Green and Murray in the AFL and CIO, appeared to be making a tremendous bid to bring all of the major labor organizations into a drive to fight what he called Thursday "a combination" of powerful steel and financial interests to break down unions.

Meet Conciliators

MONTREAL, Oct. 14 (CP). — The railways and 15 International Brotherhoods seeking shorter hours and higher pay will meet here Tuesday at their first hearings with a pair of Federal-appointed conciliators, it was announced today. The conciliators, M. M. MacLean, Federal Director of Industrial Relations, and H. R. Pettigrove, Industrial Relations officer, were named this week to hear the dispute.

Clergy Made Civil Servants Under Latest Czech Law

PRAGUE, Oct. 14 — (AP) — Czechoslovakia's Communist-dominated parliament today adopted by unanimous show of hands two bills aimed at imposing strong state contral over religion, especially the Roman Catholic Church.

The measures were:

1. A church control bill which would make all clergymen and bishops civil servants paid by the state and grant the government full control over all church appointments, finances and administrative affairs.

2. A bill for the establishment of a new cabinet ministry to supervise church affairs.

The parliamentary action was preceded by two hours of speeches sharply attacking the Vatican and the Roman Catholic hierarchy which is headed by Archbishop Joseph Beran of Prague.

The bitterest attacks were delivered by Communist Minister of Justice Alexei Cepicka and Father Joseph Ploghar, a suspended Roman Catholic priest who serves in the Communist-led government as minister of health.

The minister of justice warned that when the church control measures became law Nov. 1 the government would tolerate no opposition to them.

Bishops and priests who attempt to resist these measures would be "broken as enemies of the state," Cepicka declared.

Cepicka lashed into Archbishop Beran, who says he has been "interned" in his Prague palace since June 19 when Communist hecklers drove him off his throne in St. Vitus Cathedral.

E. A. Maguire Ex-Mayor Dies

TORONTO, Oct. 14 (CP) — Charles Alfred Maguire, 74, former mayor of Toronto, died suddenly here today.

He was a past president of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association and former chairman of the Toronto Hydro Commission.

Entering city council as an alderman in 1909 he was a member of Board of Control from 1917 to 1921, and served as mayor of Toronto in 1922 and 1923. He had not been active in recent years.

Mr. Maguire was confined to hospital some weeks ago after breaking his hip in a fall, but later was removed to his home.

Puts Legs In Fire Farmer Saves Life

OLUSTEE, Okla., Oct. 14 (AP) —A farmer was alive today because, his doctor said, he had the courage to push his bleeding and amputated legs into a fire.

C. B. Hughes 33, lost both legs Thursday when he tried to free his arm pinned in a hay baler.

He attracted his wife's attention two hours later by setting fire to a bale of hay.

Doctors described his condition Thursday night as "fair." They said his arm will be amputated later.

Hughes' wife said he pushed his legs—severed below the knees—into the flame to stop their bleeding and relieve the pain.

Workers Fail To Start At Noon Hour

Closed Down Tight Is Report Made By Union President

C.G.E. works "closed down cold", at one o'clock this afternoon. That was the way John G. Morton, head of Local 524 of United Electrical Workers Union described the work stoppage where 3,200 employees clocked in at one o'clock stood by their machines but did not start work. The organized work-stoppage affected every department at the huge works, except clerical staffs, and a third of the families in Peterborough. Whether the work-stoppage will extend beyond the half day is not known. Union officials say laconically, "The next move is up to the Company."

Ian F. McRae, works manager when contacted by the Examiner said, "No statement".

Present Ultimatum

This was the "immediate and decisive action" which Local 524 UE threatened in an "ultimatum" presented to the company Thursday night at a meeting of union and company representatives. The ultimatum was drawn up that morning at a joint emergency meeting of stewards and executive members of the union.

The meeting discussed "all aspects of the Induction Motor Winding situation." The union claims that the company has failed to carry out an arbitration award handed down in February, 1949, 2which restored piecework rates which had been cut. This had affected about 30 girls in the Induction Motor Winding Department.

The "ultimatum" handed the company declared, according to a union leaflet circulated among workers this morning, "that if the company failed to give the Union Committee a written statement that they would immediately reinstitute the old prices affected by the award, and/or failed to pay the girls their back pay within eight days then Local 524 would take immediate and decisive action."

Orderly And Quiet

Thee work-stoppage, not called a strike, gave every sign at the time of going to press of being completely orderly and quiet. Men on the seecond floor of the Albert and Park streets building were sitting around on the ledges under open windows taking a sunning. Nowhere around the plant was there any sign of activity, except one loaded Canada Metal truck which came out of the gate a half-hour after the stoppage began. It may have been loaded in the morning.

President Morton said that everything was shut down tight as a drum excepting for those operations which the employees and union consider would involve a loss of material if they were suspended.

A man whom the gateman took to be a truck driver was told, "Well, you can come in, but they won't unload you".

There was no wild-cat walkout. The few men who came through the gates early this afternoon all had passes and were being passed out in the usual routine fashion.

Men in the Wolfe and Park streets building standing idly by the windows silently indicated to a reporter by means of the "thumbs down" sign that the stoppage was general throughout the plant, but absolutely quiet.

Say Lewis' Price Fantastic Offer

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 14 (AP)—Soft coal operators today labelled John L. Lewis' price of peace in the United States mine strike as "fantastic."

Lewis said his demands for a new contract would add 30 or 35 cents a ton to the cost of producing coal but that could be absorbed out of $1 a ton average profits of the industry.

George H. Love, spokesman for northern and western commercial operators, promptly challenged the Lewis figure.

Love said the pit owners had their "backs to the wall" in the race for markets against competitive fuels like gas and oil.

"What we need is more customers, not orations," Love told reporters after hearing a recording of a 75-minute press conference held Thursday by Lewis.

The United Mine Workers' boss in addition to announcing for the first time the package cost of his undisclosed contract demands, suggested that the government could end the four-week walkout of 400,000 soft coal miners by seizing the pits.

President Truman said at his White House conference that he had no immediate plans for taking over the coal mines but that he was looking into his powers.

Hungarian Court Upholds Death Penalty

BUDAPEST, Oct. 14 — (AP)— Hungary's Court of Appeal today confirmed the death sentence decreed for Laszlo Rajk, former Communist Foreign Minister who was convicted of treason and attempts to overthrow the government.

The court also confirmed the sentences passed upon five of Rajk's co-defendants—death for two others, life imprisonment for two and a nine-year jail term for the fifth. The sentences were imposed September 24 by a Budapest People's Court.

Scheduled to die with Rajk are Dr. Tibor Szoenyi, 46, and Andras Szalai, 32.

Head For New York

LONDON, Oct. 14—(AP)—The dashing Marquess of Milford Haven left for New York today with Mrs. Romaine Simpson, American divorcee whom he plans to wed in Washington next month. Mrs. Simpson, who is 26, self-consciously flashed her engagement ring for reporters and photographers and said, "I am wearing it for the first time—we only bought it yesterday." It is a large ruby, circled by 20 diamonds, in a gold mounting.

Police Inspector Exonerated In Inyestigation

TORONTO Oct. 14 (CP)—Inspector Sidney Hunter of the Ottawa No. 11 detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police has been "exonerated" of charges of maladministration of his office, Attorney-General Porter announced Thursday following the release of an inquiry report.

Mr. Porter said the inquiry was launched by Deputy Commissioner E. T. Doyle of the Provincial Police after 14 constables charged Hunter with maladministration of office and requested transfers from his district.

Two of the constables — Lyle Smith and Hugh Robertson—were found to have "infringed the disciplinary code of the Provincial Police Force," the report said and their resignations have been requested.

Mr. Porter said the inquiry revealed that the two constables had "incited dissatisfaction among the constables." The 12 other policemen have now withdrawn their applications for transfer and will remain in the Ottawa district under Inspector Hunter.

The maladministration charges arose from an early morning surprise visit made by Insp. Hunter last Aug. 28 to the detachment offices in Ottawa after a report that the Provincial Police radio station in Ottawa could not be contacted, the report said.

Inspector Hunter reported evidence of lack of discipline and reprimanded the constables on duty. One of them was Const. Smith. The report said the inspector had found one of the constables asleep on the desk and the other sitting with his shoes off.

Following Insp. Hunter's report the constables requested their transfers and charged maladministration, the report said.

Mr. Porter said "prior to the inquiry . . . there was mention in the press of the possibility of a "racket" being carried on on the part of the police in the Ottawa detachment.

"It is not certain as to how the word 'racket' came to be used, and what it might have implied," he said. "It is quite clear from the inquiry that nothing in the nature of a racket existed in that detachment."

PICK ANTI-RED OFFICERS

VANCOUVER, Oct 14 (CP) — Anti-Communist officers were elected by the Trail Local, No. 480, in the first returns of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union election for provincial officers. Claire Billingsley received 892 votes against 194 for the BC presidency, defeating Ken Smith, former district secretary.

Favorable Trade Balance Slips Badly, Worst Since '38

OTTAWA, Oct. 14 — (CP) — Canada's foreign trade swept to an all-time high during the first eight months this year, but the favorable trade balance fell to a post-war low.

Bureau of Statistics figures show that the country exported and imported $3,788,400,000 worth of goods during the eight-month period, exceeding the previous peak of $3,600,500,000 last year.

But the favorable trade balance slipped to $83,700,000—the lowest since pre-war 1938.

It appears skimpy when compared with such war-time balances as $1,139,400,000 in 1944 and $1,266,400,000 in 1945.

It is even lower than the $121,600,000 balance in 1947—the year the government slapped on import controls against the United States in an attempt to conserve Canada's dollar and gold reserves.

Some of those import barriers now have been lifted. Just how much effect the remainder have is shown in the increase in imports from the U.S. of from $1,170,000,000 in the first eight months of 1948 to $1,312,600,000 in 1949.

Even though exports to that country also were increasing—from $829,900,000 in 1948 to $923,500,000 in 1949—Canada's traditional deficit with the U.S. continued climbing.

The deficit for the first eight months was $389,100,000, greater than the $277,100,000 deficit last year but not nearly as big as the 1947 deficit of $644,500,000.

Anglo-Canadian trade also appeared to be climbing, but Canada's favorable balance dropped to the lowest since 1946.

Canada bought $218,800,000 worth, compared with $193,200,000 last year.

Slip-up Night Of Ship Fire Patrol Officer Fast Asleep In Bunk

Three-Foot-High Refuse Cartons Kept In Noronic Linen Closets; Helped Rescue Women In Blazing Cabin

TORONTO, Oct. 14—(CP)—Three-foot-high cartons for refuse were kept in linen closets aboard the cruise-steamer Noronic which burned with heavy loss of life in Toronto harbor Sept. 17, the Federal Commission inquiring into the disaster was told today. This evidence was given by W. R. Brown of Port Arthur, Ont., one of two of the Noronic's special officers whose duties were to patrol the ship. He said that refuse picked up by the maids on their last rounds would be put into the linen closet cartons.

Evidence earlier in the inquiry, now in its 12th day, testified to having located the fire in a linen closet on the port side of C deck.

Brown said that at sea refuse was dumped overboard. In port, porters were supposed to take the contents of the cartons to D deck.

The 68-year-old special officer said that due to a "slip up" he failed to report for duty on the night of the fire. He went to sleep immediately after he returned from a visit ashore.

Brown said he had spent six seasons as special officer on the Noronic. On the night of the fire he went ashore at 7 p.m. EST and returned at 11 p.m.

"When did you go on duty?" asked Commission Counsel J. W. Pickup.

"I didn't go on duty," replied Brown. "There was a slip-up and I wasn't there."

The witness said he went straight to his room on D deck on his return to the ship.

"Did you go to sleep?"

"Yes. I figured I would have an hour and a quarter before going on duty."

Brown said he should have been on duty from 12:20 a.m. until 6:20 a.m. He also worked a day shift—from 11:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Strict Instructions

The witness said the ship's master, Capt. William Taylor, gave him special instructions about fires. He told of being asked to check the fire alarm stations and of once finding a hammer missing. On another occasion he found a nozzle missing from a fire hydrant.

Brown said he was instructed to report any absentees at fire drills. At Duluth in 1948, he said

Five New Stamps On Sale November 5

OTTAWA, Oct. 14 — (CP) — Five new stamps, bearing new pictures of King George, will go on sale Nov. 15, the Post Office Department announced today.

The stamps, in denominations of one to five cents, will be the same as stamps now being issued and will be the same color except for the two-cent stamp which will be a darker shade of brown.

The department said first-day covers of the new issues will be handled only by the Postmaster at Ottawa and will be mailed from Ottawa.

Explosions Rock Canton City, Reds Very Close

HONG KONG, Oct. 14 (Reuters)—Three series of terrific explosions rocked Canton tonight according to radio telephone reports reaching here.

The city lights went out and at the same time fire broke out.

Another explosion destroyed the middle span of the only bridge crossing the Pearl River.

The other explosions were in warehouses along the waterfront. A British official said he thought some of these explosions were arms and ammunition dumps.

Canton was reported under the control of Communist underground and city police as the city awaited the entry of Communist General Chen Keng's troops.

A giant arc of advancing Communists had swung in to within five miles of the heart of the former Nationalist temporary capital.

Thousands of soldiers left the city during the night. They moved westward, indicating there will be no fight for the city which only a few hours before was the provisional capital of Nationalist China.

There were persistent rumors that the mayor and police will arrange a peaceful turnover to the Communists.

Other reports said the Communists had made contact with sources inside Canton appealing to them to avoid looting. There has been little looting so far, apparently.

Approve Moch French Premier

PARIS, Oct. 14 (AP)—The National Assembly early today approved Socialist Jules Moch as the next Premier of France by the narrow margin of two votes.

An official announcement said 311 votes were cast in Moch's favor and 223 against. He needed a bare minimum of 310 votes.

The 620-seat Assembly was reduced to 619 by the resignation of one deputy Thursday making 310 instead of 311 the minimum necessary for approval.

Mickey Cohen's Boys Hiding Out In Jail

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14 (AP)— Here's a switch: Mickey Cohen and his boys want to get into jail.

Professing fear for their lives, four of Cohen's dwindling band of henchmen asked to be locked up yesterday. And they were.

Cohen, who accompanied the quartet to court, indicated that he, too, might seek refuge behind bars in view of the strange disapperance of two of his aides, Frank Niccoli and Dave Ogul.

"I'm ready to go to jail right now—for reasons of safety," the little gambler told reporters. "I'm worried. I wish I knew the answers to these strange things that are going on."

Cohen and the uneasy quartet are all that is left of the group originally charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice in an assault case last summer. Niccoli and Ogul are missing. Edward (Neddie) Herbert is dead, victim of the ambush that almost got Cohen.

Won't Ask Farmers Produce More Hogs For Britain Gardiner Tells Commons

U.K. Lacks Dollars To Pay For Bacon So Canadian Government Gives Producers Free Hand On Selling

OTTAWA, Oct. 14—(CP)—While Canada is anxious to retain part of the bacon market in the United Kingdom, the federal Agricultural Department has no intention of asking farmers to produce more hogs for Britain, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Thursday night in the Commons. Mr. Gardiner said 'United Kingdom officials have stated they have not the dollars to pay for Canadian bacon. The Canadian Government replied that Canadian farmers have got into the habit of sending a lot of bacon to Britain and they would like to continue to do so. The British were asked how many dollars they could spare for bacon purchases and then the quantity in the contract was fixed.

The Canadian farmers then were told the contract price for the bacon and what it represented in the price of hogs. They were told that if they could sell their hogs elsewhere at prices higher than provided in the contract to go ahead and do so. The United Kingdom, as a result of the dollar shortage, would just as soon not buy Canadian bacon.

(The 1949 Anglo-Canadian bacon contract calls for the shipment of 160,000,000 pounds. So far only about 30,000,000 pounds have been shipped. Officials believe no more than about 50,000,000 or 60,000,000 pounds will be sent during the current year. Britain is paying for Canadian bacon out of Marshall aid funds at the rate of $36 per hundredweight for No. 1 Wiltshire sidings.)

Get 7 Cents More

Mr. Gardiner said farmers were able to sell hogs at seven cents a pound higher than they would get under the U.K. contract. This was because of the high domestic consumption of pork products and no one could blame the farmers for wanting to sell on the home market.

As long as the farmers could get those prices at home, the department was not going to worry about getting farmers to send bacon overseas. However, the government would ask the United Kingdom for a 1950 bacon contract because Canada wished to retain part of the bacon market which could take up some of the Canadian surplus.

Buy Irrigation Company

The government, he said, has approved purchase of the irrigation company at Medicine Hat for $2,250,000. The irrigable area of land involved is approximately 110,000 acres.

"The reason for the purchase is to enable the dominion to carry out a more active program," he said. "The intention is to move farmers from those lands in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba where crop production is unsatisfactory due to continued drought conditions."

He indicated that construction work on two other western water developments are still some distance away. He said the Dominion is not yet in a position to sign an agreement with the Alberta government on the projected $20,000,000 St. Mary River irrigation plan in that province because Alberta wants the federal government to assume too big a share of the cost.

He declared, too, that some $2,000,000—the amount in this year's estimates—will have to be spent before it can be determined whether construction can proceed on the proposed $60,000,000 South Saskatchewan River irrigation project.

Sudden Light

"I've seen them before. It was something I can't explain. I was walking down the main street some time after midnight when the sky lit up . . . the flash seemed to hang on, for maybe a minute or two. It came like lightning."

Plotted Course

"It was like nothing I've ever seen," said Don Stone, control officer at Malton airport. He said he plotted the course of the flash which he said was a light blue, tailing off to a whitish blue. It shot from about due north to north-northwest, travelling toward the earth at about a 45-degree angle.

"It seemed like a skyrocket that didn't explode," he said. "It vanished at about 45 degrees above the horizon. It had a band about eight to nine time the width of a shooting star.

"I doused the lights and put the glasses on the spot. I may have been imagining it, but where the flash died out, there seemed to be a slight light blue remaining. It had no definite form and I would not say it was an object."

Barry Gunn, observer on duty at Dunlap observatory, described the flash as a brilliant bluish-white light travelling across the zenith.

"It was too bright to be a meteor or fireball," he said. "For a moment I thought that a plane had crashed in the vicinity."

Residents at Canada's Chalk River atomic plant said the light was not seen there. Officials at Dorval airport near Montreal and at Winnipeg also had no reports on the light.

Seen In Buffalo

Buffalo airport tower observers said they had received reports of "something flying through the sky," one from State Police, one from the "Niagara Tower" and one from a Ransomville farmer.

James Kelly of Cheektowaga, a Buffalo suburb, said he and his wife, Clarka, were driving along a road shortly before 2 a.m. EDT when:

"We saw it. It was a big ball of fire with a long tail. I've seen shooting stars, but this was something altogether different."

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

Stop Tree Roots Blocking Sewer

Homeowners! This is the season when tree roots force their way through joints and block the sewer pipe that connects your home with the street sewer or septic tank. And this adds up to costly trouble!

To avoid this trouble, Johns-Manville makes a white sewer pipe called Transite House Connection Pipe. It has special "Taper-Tite" joints designed to keep roots out and guard against stoppages. Made of asbestos and cement, Transite is tough and strong, yet light and easy-to-handle. Long 10 foot lengths make it easy to lay, with minimum disturbance to lawns.

Board Delays Action On Student's Charge

STRATFORD, Oct. 14—(CP)—The Board of Education Thursday night discussed the case of John Boyden, 13-year-old collegiate student who is alleged to have been forced to take army cadet exercises with a cast on his leg, but after hearing the father it laid over the whole matter for further investigations.

The student was said to have broken the cast during push-ups and to have required further hospital treatment.

A. W. Boyden, father of the youth, told the Board he was preferring no charges, and "all I want is this man brought u pand told not to do it gain." He referred to the sergeant-major instructor involved in the case, and who was called from Walkerton to Stratford to be questioned by army officers from London.

Long Range Plan School Building

If the present increase in secondary school attendance continues some sort of agreement will have to be reached with the High School areas on the building of schools, the Board of Education was informed Thursday night.

K. S. Wightman, Superintendent of Schools, said the matter was not yet urgent but it was something the members should bear in mind.

He was specifically referring to the difficulties that might arise should the Board of Education proceed with construction of a school, and then the High School area do likewise. A long-range method of planning would be necessary to avoid this.

A comparison of present enrolment at PCVS shows that non-resident students are increasing four times as fast as the resident. This September there is a 16.7 per cent increase in non-resident compared with 4.13 per cent resident; both based on last year's figures.

The Superintendent said PCVS was already overloaded, and the disproportionate increase in rural students was due to the operation of the various High School areas.

Caught Taking Gas From Car On Street

William Burns, 69 Maple St., and Raymond Lester, 309 Reid St were caught in the act of taking gas from a car on Burnham St. owned by Fred Mulcahy 236 Burnham St., at 4 a.m. today. They pleaded guilty in city police court later today to stealing the gas.

Gordon Biglow, also of 236 Burnham St., told Constable S. Keliele and Don Mackay that his wife heard footsteps in the hall of the apartment building and when he went out he saw a rubber hose in the gas tank of Mr Mulcahy's car.

The magistrate reserved sentence.

Seek Increases

60 Per Cent Increase

During the past four years, there has been a 60 per cent increase in the number of telephones in service in Peterborough and local calls have increased by 50 per cent, Mr. Tulford said today in reviewing the record-breaking post-war demand for service. Long distance calls originating here have risen by 75 per cent in the same period, he said.

There are now 12,000 telephones in use in Peterborough, compared with 7,500 four years ago. Local calls average 68,250 per day against 43,600, and telephone users here originate about 2,050 long distance calls daily or 880 more than in 1945.

In order to meet this unprecedented demand for service the company has continuously improved and enlarged its facilities. Extensions to the dial equipment were completed in December, 1945, January, 1947, April, 1948, and March, 1949, providing, in all, facilities for 4,600 additional telephones. The exchange building was enlarged in 1948 to accommodate new equipment.

In spite of this improvement progress which has resulted in the addition of 4,500 telephones in four years, there are still 420 applicants waiting for service here, Mr. Tufford said, and construction of outside wire and cable is expected to continue at a high level in order to keep pace with demand.

Auto Wrecking Permit Refused

A renewed application for a license to continue his auto wrecking business on Monaghan Rd was refused Tom Hughes by the Police Commission Thursday. Mr. Hughes told the Commission, in his written application, that he was making alterations to meet with the requirements of the city bylaws.

Mayor Max Swanston said that the city council was at present seeking permission to take over the land, which was the proposed site for a new secondary school. Other members of the Commission remarked that it was in a residential district and not a suitable place for auto wrecking.

Robert Ardie, whose firm had handled Outboard Marine advertising in Canada for some 20 years, was among those to pay tribute to the president.

Harry White, general sales manager expressed regret at Mr. Campbell's withdrawal from the company's activities and wished him good health to enjoy retirement.

Junior School Site Chosen

Site for a new junior public school in Ashburnham has been decided on by the Board of Education.

A motion was passed at the Thursday night meeting of the Board to accept the City's offer of a four-acre property on McFarlane St., immediately east of the old Erskine estate. The cost as proposed by the City, would be $2,900.

G. Wilson Craw, chairman of the Accommodations Committee, stated the Board had previously tried to secure a site on Park Hill Rd., but the bid had been turned down by Parkdale Company.

It is part of the land purchased earlier this year by the city when Council decided to secure lots for 125 houses. Since then the Council changed its mind and more of the new houses are being built in the south end.

It was explained that the property is on the side of a hill and there is a gully at one end. Despite the fact that the top has to be taken from the hill and the gully filled in before a school can be built, Board members who commented were of the opinion it was an excellent site.

Mrs. F. W. K. Harris said she thought it was an improvement on the proposed one in the Park Hill area.

Mr. Craw pointed out it was adjacent to the most populous area in the city.

City Council will be advised that the Board would like to secure the property as had been proposed in a letter dated September 14.

Slip-up By Officer

he had seen the first officer pull three bell boys from their bunks after they had failed to appear at a drill.

The witness said he had been advised to let none of the crew off at Duluth until after the usual Tuesday fire drill.

Brown said the chief steward always was "nervous about fire." The steward had been on the Hamonic, another Canada Steamship Lines vessel, when she burned, and he had told Brown three bell boys should be detailed to patrol the ship anytime after 1 a.m. Brown said the steward talked about fire regulations after the last post-season cruise in 1948.

Worried About Drunks

"He was worried because there was a bunch of drunks on board," said the witness, adding that it was difficult to check whether the bell boys carried out their patrol.

He made no systematic patrol of the ship aside from punching the time clock once each hour.

"I just used my own judgment."

He told the Commissioner that on post-season cruises, passengers were given a little more "latitude" and special officers were "not too strict about quietening" them.

On regular season trips passengers usually "settled down" about 1 am. On post-season cruises it was 2:30 a.m.

The witness said that normally he was roused to report for his night tour of duty by the Noronic's other special officer.

First Occasion

"It was the first time in my six years on the ships that this had ever happened," Brown said referring to not having wakened in time to report for duty.

He said he was roused from sleep by the sound of a woman's voice asking, "Which way will I go." I put on my uniform and ran out as quickly as I could."

"....When I reached C deck, I saw three men at the after doors with a hose. There was another hose no one was using, and I picked it up. Then I saw a woman at the window of Stateroom 467."

Brown said he dropped the hose, pulled the shutter from the window and helped the woman through. She told him another woman was in the cabin and he played a hose into it.

"A passenger came along and I told him: 'There's a woman in there.' He said: 'There's people in a lot of rooms,' and he went on forward.

Rescue Woman

Later two crew members helped him rescue the woman while he played a hose into the flaming stateroom.

"I took the woman back to the entrance to the crew's stairway and left here there on the deck. She was alive, but lived only two hours after they got her off ship."

The witness said he had to kick open the door to the crew's stairway on his way to C deck. It had jammed.

Brown said he saw Capt. Taylor and two crew members with a hose.

"He (the captain) was there all the time and he told me 'smash in these other windows.'" At another stage when he was near the captain, the witness said the fire was like "a furance."

He said he had the impression of hearing the klaxon alarm amid the 'commotion and din' he heard on leaving his quarters after he awakened.

No Sign of Life

Brown said he waited until there was "no sign of life" aboard before abandoning ship. When he left, the captain and another crew member were still on board.

He had "no idea" at the time of the loss of life. From where he had been working, he was unable to see scenes such as "people jumping from the ship and things like that." He thought all persons aboard had got off safely.

Brown said there was a carton for refuse in the linen closet on the port side of C deck where previous witnesses testified to having located the fire.

He said contents of ash trays were not dumped into cartons but were put into metal containers which were emptied overboard.

The witness told Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock, the Commissioner, he could not be sure whether he had looked inside cabin 463 after rescuing women from 467.

The Commissioner, noting that a Mrs. Buckley who occupied 463 was listed as missing, asked:

"Was your primary consideration in playing the hose into those cabins keeping the inside walls wet and the fire from spreading rather than try to enter and get those people out?"

"It never entered my mind that there were people in there."

"The fact you had found this woman in 467 didn't change your mind?"

"No."

Can Do Business With Reds—Envoy

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14 (AP) —T. C Davis, Canadian ambassador to China, arrived Thursday on the American evacuation liner from Red Shanghai and said he believed it possible to do business with Communist China.

Davis was called home by the Canadian Government for consultations. He came here on the first evacuation ship cleared by both the Chinese Nationalists and Communists—the American President Lines' General Gordon, a converted army transport. She carried 1,450 passengers, 800 of them from Shanghai.

Davis said the Chinese Communists appeared eager for business with the West. He refused, however, to say whether he would consider recognition of the Red Government advisable.

Urges Germans Fight For Peace

BERLIN, Oct. 14 — (AP) — Prime Minister Stalin has told East Germany's new Communist Republic that the Germans and Russians together could keep Europe peaceful by fighting as hard for peace as they fought in war.

Stalin's message of congratulations to East Germany's Communist leaders brought predictions today from pro-Soviet sources here that the Russian bloc would sign peace treaties with the new Red satellite by January.

Stalin's congratulatory message Thursday night to East Germany's President Wilhelm Pieck and Chancellor (Premier) Otto Grotewohl called establishment of the satellite regime a "turning point in the history of Europe."

He declared that the Russian and German peoples made the greatest sacrifices in the second world war.

"If both peoples," Stalin continued, "will show the same determination to fight with the same intensity of effort for peace with which they waged war, then peace in Europe can be regarded as secure."

Native Lands Reclaimed For Farming

NONDUGAL, New Guinea, Oct. 14 —(CP)—Tucked away in the New Guinean highlands between the Markham ranges and the unexplored central mountains Here at the upper reaches of is an experimental farm that may be responsible for opening up this country for millions of people.

the Middle Whargi valley, about 200 miles west of Lae, Edward J. Hallstrom, wealthy Sydney philanthropist, has made one of the first big attempts to introduce modern agriculture and livestock to the rich valleys of central New Guinea.

Hallstrom gave $64,000 to the Australian government to buy land in the Middle Whargi and set up a sheep ranch.

Sheep and pigs bought from a trust fund established from Hallstrom's gift, were flown in early this year and, landed on an airstrip made on near-level ground between the mountains at Kerawagi. From there they were driven up the valley to Nondugal. The sheep of the Romney Marsh breed, are hardly enough to stand wet conditions caused by rain that falls almost every afternoon.

Hallstrom's idea is to get meat to the natives and to teach them to spin the wool into blankets and clothing. The days here are hot, but the nights get very cold and the natives have no protection except that provided by fires in their huts.

The huts are built of kunai grass and banana leaves and stand no more than four feet feet high. The small opening that serves as a door is the only ventilation. On most nights even that is closed. The natives build their fires inside the huts and sleep on fibre mats that also serve as umbrellas when they are caught in the afternoon rain.

Pneumonia Prevalent

There are few furred animals in the highlands, consequently the people have no clothing or blankets. The result is a very high percentage of deaths from pneumonia.

Recommendations have been made to the Australian government, who control the land under a trusteeship from United Nations, that will improve the natives' lot, but it is difficult to change centuries old habits and standards of living among a primitive people.

The government through its patrol officers and medical 'boys' trained in first aid and personal hygiene are trying to teach the tribes that a blanket is merely something to keep them warm and that the introduction to it of such things as native pig fat do not improve it.

By growing the wool, shearing the sheep and then spinning the wool Hallstrom believes they will get used to it and treat the finished product with a certain amount of pride.

The natives are showing considerable interest in the experiment but it is still too early to learn whether their interest is in the wool or the mutton. They are a meat people inclined toward head-hunting.

But whether they eat them or use the wool as directed, Hallstrom is being looked upon as "the big white Lulual (chief) from down the valley."

Should his experimental farm succeed—and there is every indication that it will—he may be "the big white chief" to more than the natives. It is estimated that 3,000,000 people could settle on the land in these parts.

CWL To Give Support To Pre-Natal Lectures

HASTINGS, Oct. 14—(ENS)—Members of the CWL Hastings Sub-Diocesan pledged their support Wednesday to the pre-natal lectures to be held in the council chamber in November. The lectures are to be given by the District Health nurse and the league was in favor of co-operating with those in charge.

This was decided at the October meeting in the parish hall when the president, Mrs. Joseph Powers, was in the chair.

Mrs. Joseph Collins read a letter from Father Farrell, S.J., thanking the Hastings League for seven boxes of clothing for Europe received recently; a card of thanks from the family of the late Miss Gertrude Coughlin, a letter from the Diocesan president regarding a farewell gift from the league to Bishop Berry on his departure for Rome.

Mrs. Powers read the treasurer's report in the absence of Mrs. A. Lynch. She also gave a detailed report of the expenditures and receipts of the two bingo games held during the past month.

The next bingo will be held on Oct. 21 in the Town Hall. Mention was made of an "at home" to be held in the near future.

Tickets were distributed on a draw in aid of Canadian Jesuit Missionaries in India. The new Separate School Auxiliary was fully explained.

Fails To Prove Gaming Charge

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 14 —(ENS)—The Crown failed to prove in police court Thursday that the machine found in John Carlaw's place of business, Warkworth, was a gambling device. The machine was confiscated by Provincial Officer Arthur Kellogg, of Hastings, on Aug. 29. Magistrate R. B. Baxter dismissed the charge.

The officer told the court that the machine was sitting on an oil stove in Carlaw's place of business. He said that he placed a nickel in it, pressed a lever, and two stars and a moon appeared with the number four opposite. "This operation," he added, "had locked the machine."

He stated that he had removed the machine to ris office and after manipulating a mysterious knob for considerable time, wheels began to spin and the machine released itself.

"This gave me four free games. I placed another nickel and three stars appeared," he asserted.

Questioned by Carlaw's counsel, J. F. R. Douglas, the officer said that Carlaw would not divulge the machine's secrets nor name the man who installed it. He admitted that the machine had not returned any money, tokens, discs nor slugs.

Harry Deyman, K.C., argued that the machine came within the definition of the act. The defence claimed that the machine was not a gambling device because nothing was returned from it.

Britain's Shifting Political Allegiance

A week ago in these columns we expressed the opinion that in the approaching General Election in Britain the Labour Party would be returned to power with a greatly reduced majority. We are not shaken in this belief by the results of the latest Gallup Poll in Britain which gives the Conservatives 39 per cent. of the vote, Labour 36 per cent., the Liberals 9 per cent, with 16 per cent. to be divided among other groups and to include the undecided vote. The Conservatives and the Labourites have been on a see-saw of popularity for a year or more, and luck or strategy will decide which is uppermost when the election comes.

• • •

The last presidential election in the U.S.A. has greatly reduced the faith which can be placed in polls as indicators of political trends. The undecided vote in this British poll is just about the same size as that which the pollsters recorded in the American contest. If that group or a large part of it were attracted toward the Conservatives or the Labourites in the election, the winning party might have a very comfortable majority. But such a major shift in the vote would only follow a very striking change in Britain's fortunes—for better or worse.

• • •

Devaluation of the pound has given the Conservatives a strong fighting ground, not because of the action itself, but because of the chicanery which led up to it. The Labour Party, and Sir Stafford Cripps in particular, made several categorical denials that there would be any lowering of the exchange rate on the pound; then they lowered it farther than anyone had foreseen. This move has undoubtedly weakened the faith of the middle-class voter in Labour's integrity.

• • •

There will be hundreds of thousands of voters, however, who will not care a button for devaluation, for they will not see that it has any direct effect on them. They will see only that Labour has given them benefits that they have long desired, and they will stick with Labour. For this reason, poll or no poll, we continue to think that Labour will be returned, though perhaps with a very slight majority. Another strong mandate is, we feel, beyond their hopes.

Let The Moths Eat The Woolsack

The House of Commons has been enjoying—if that word may be used in this connection—a calm. Little seems to disturb the even tenor of the Liberal's huge majority, judging from the reports of the debates given verbatim in Hansard. It was with a feeling almost of relief therefore that we read Hansard for last Tuesday, and discovered that M. Jean-Francois Pouliot the independently Liberal member for Temiscouata, had been on his feet. M. Pouliot can usually be depended on to produce a ripple, if not a squall.

The honourable members were discussing the bill to abolish appeals to the Privy Council. Mr. Davie Fulton, Conservative member for Kamloops was saying his piece when M. Pouliot interjected a few hear-hear's and later some questions and remarks like "silly judgements of the privy council" and "the privy council, that silly court."

Our eyes were fascinated when we came to the following which we quote fully:

Mr. Pouliot: Would the hon. member be kind enough to tell the committee what is the link between the privy council and the Supreme Court of Canada as it is now?

Mr. Fulton: I do not know what the hon. gentleman means by that term. Perhaps he would be good enough to enlarge upon it.

Mr. Pouliot: It is the woolsack. It is a bag of cotton covered with cloth, and it is put in front of the Speaker's chair in the Senate at the time of the opening and prorogation of parliament. The judges sit on it, like urchins. Some of them face His Excellency the Governor General, while the others turn their backs o . him. But they sit on the woolsack because it was done in England in the middle ages. The privy council sit on the woolsack—indeed we should have a woolsack here in the House of Commons, and we should sit on it, so that the hon. member for Eglinton and the hon. member for Kamloops might sit at opposite ends, each with his back to the other.

Mr. Fulton: Not so long as this government is in power.

Mr. Pouliot: No, because those who sit on the woolsack are not supposed to take part in the deliberations; therefore while sitting on the woolsack they would not keep their minds in such a state of effervescence as to deliver unforgettable orations.

I am glad my hon. friends are smiling; it shows they have a greater sense of humour than I expected them to have. I want them to ask the Clerk of the Senate to take them to the attic of the Senate so that they may brush away all the cobwebs and look at that bag of wool before it is all eaten by the moths. They might sit on it, just to see what it is like to be lord chancellor.

The woolsack has such importance in the history of the British parliament that the position of lord chancellor is sometimes described as the woolsack. Occasionally they refer to the lord chancellor in terms of the bag of cotton on which he sits. I find, sir, that it is a tremendous joke; and the first thing to do, as soon as this bill respecting the supreme court as a final tribute is passed, is to dispense with the woolsack and to let the moths eat it completely. If my hon. friends want to see it they will have to rush to the attic of the Senate.

Mr. Fulton, who was thus being instructed, remarked that it was beyond him "to deal with the wit and wisdom of the hon. member for Temiscouata". We find ourself in at least partial agreement with Mr. Fulton.

Highway 7

The Provincial Highway from Perth to Peterborough, cutting through more than a hundred miles of the Pre-Cambrian Shield and its bush and lake country, is a remarkable traffic artery and a favourite with motorists between Toronto and Ottawa. Fifteen years ago only the wanderers on wheels ventured along the country roads which the highway has replaced. Now it is a wide, well-graded modern thoroughfare; its surface is good, and in many places excellent—for instance the newly-surfaced sections in the Madoc-Marmora stretch. Yet despite the openness of the road, its route lies still through primitive country, sparsely inhabited, and spectacularly beautiful in early October days. The Ontario Department of Highways is to be praised for this route, and thanked for the amenities, such as camp sites, it has provided.

In the wake of the road-builders have come hot-dog stands, gasoline stations and garages, tourist cabins and little cafes. Now there is a gasoline pump almost every dozen miles. New lake shores have been opened to tourists and summer cottages are rising where a decade ago there was not one. The roadside stands and the cottages have their uses, and it is good to see the area developing. We mention the matter only to point out that there can be good and bad developments. As it is now Highway 7 is a scenic route. Let us hope that it does not become tawdry and unpleasant, with every cross-road corner and junction a sight to make the eyes sore and the heart ache. Man is still the greatest ravager of natural beauty, but he can be kept in check either by a voluntary or imposed sense of the fitness of things. There are already indications that the check should be applied along Highway 7.

Wednesday Night, C.B.C.

The other evening we had the pleasure —and it was a pleasure — of listening in on the C.B.C.'s Wednesday night program. It is, as our readers know, a slightly middle-brow, perhaps even high-brow, special weekly program. It is a unique evening on the continent's air-waves. But the C.B.C. must not be judged on Wednesday evenings alone. Throughout the week, at intervals, are programs of the highest kind, culturally if not technically. We thought what a pity it would be to lose the C.B.C., which is precisely what some special interests would bring about, because the C.B.C. seems to interfere with commerce.

The C.B.C. is relatively young, as are its ideas and staff. It has a dragon called Dr. Frigon, and an amiable, sharp-minded and extremely intelligent young man called Dunton at its head. Under them the C.B.C. is blossoming. It should not be cut down in full flower. We do not give blanket approval to the C.B.C. — some of the blossoms turn out to be crab-apples. But here in this organization are Canadian young men and women with artistic perceptions, dreams, technical skill, and, best of all, fine enthusiasm. If the C.B.C. outlet is denied them, what will happen? They will go outside this country, their talents and enthusiasm lost to the Canada which they want to serve.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A woman in Bournemouth, England, gives this advice to those who wish to live a long life. "Never hurry". She admits being 105, but if she had dawdled all her life it has probably taken her at least 115 years to reach that score.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

ALPHA: Did Champlain ever pass through Peterborough, or is that only a legend?

ANSWER: It has been fairly definitely established that Champlain did pass through the Kawartha Lakes from Lake Couchiching in the summer of 1615, and returned to winter with the Indians in the vicinity of Orillia. You probably know the big Champlain monument at Orillia, which commemorates the event. Champlain, his party of about fifteen Frenchmen, and 50 Huron braves made the expedition through the Otonabee and Rice Lake to Lake Ontario, with the intention of wiping out or at least subduing the Iroquois on the American side of Lake Ontario. (At the site of the present Syracuse, N.Y.) They were lamentably unsuccessful — a contrast with the Champlain expedition of 1609 in the Lake Champlain district. The immediate success there was almost a fluke—by the first volley two chieftains were killed and one was injured. Such a display of superiority of killing power was also magical—or devilish—to the remaining Iroquois, and they were subdued without further ado.

I shall have more information about Champlain's excursion through Peterborough waters next week, I hope. Professor Needler of Toronto has lately done some research on the matter, and I shall pick his brains for your benefit.

DEAR ALPHA: Why do they call the card-game "bridge"?

ANSWER: I guess because it bridges the boring interval between the evening meal and bed. It has been my observation that few people can put up with themselves between periods of animal activities (such as eating and sleeping) without artificial stimuli. One prominent Peterborough teacher long ago realized this, and when his pupils came in from games in which they expended their animal energy, he was able to keep them at the three R's by guile for a while, and then allowed them to play bridge (the bright ones) until they could again go out and act like animals.

I have looked up the etymology of the word, and find it to be unknown. The game, a form of whist, was first played in ancient Greece and Constantinople.

Bridge is widely considered intellectual entertainment, and even good training for the brains. That may be so, but I have noticed that few people are able to take bridge without gambling on it; the intellectual aspect is not enough or is too much. Most bridge games in Peterborough are played for prizes. This is, of course, a direct appeal to the gambling instinct. The trend now is to give a money prize—a dollar to the winning couple, the kitty from the 25 cents which each player puts up before the game begins—instead of some useless bauble which nobody wants.

CONTINUATION of the account of the Rogers family. Last Friday I gave a little of the story of Rogers of Rogers Rangers, who was the bachelor brother of the great-great-grandfather of Mr. Claude Rogers and Mr. Heber Symons Rogers. This progenitor was James Rogers, son of the first North American Rogers.

James Rogers was born in Ireland in 1726, came with his father to New Hampshire, served in the Queen's Rangers until Montreal was taken in 1760, secured a grant of land in Vermont, which he called Londonderry and married. When the American revolution broke out he raised a battalion, the King's Rangers, and commanded a key post, St. John, which was taken. When the Americans won their war, Colonel James Rogers organized a band of loyalists, and ended up with a grant of land on the Bay of Quinte, the township of Fredericksburg, where he died in 1790. He had two sons, and three daughters, and it is with the second son, David McGregor, that I am here concerned.

David McGregor Rogers was born in Vermont in 1772, and came to Upper Canada with the United Empire Loyalists. He was several times elected to the Legislature, for the county of Northumberland. He died highly esteemed at Grafton in 1824, leaving two sons and two daughters. It is the second son, Robert David, who is our immediate local concern.

ROBERT DAVID ROGERS was born near Grafton in 1809. When his father's estate was partitioned, he moved to Otonabee and began clearing farm land in 1834. He took part as an officer in putting down the William Lyon Mackenzie rebellion of 1637 at Niagara. In 1840 he married Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Richard Birdsall, Public Land Surevyor, of Asphodel. In 1842 he moved to the Peterborough area and set up business in Ashburnham, and became one of the earliest and first citizens of the village which was not incorporated as a separate place from Peterborough until 1858. He organized a volunteer company in 1863 for service against the Fenian Raiders. His wife died in 1875. He married again in 1878 at the age of 69, but his second wife did not live the year out.

He had five sons and four daughters, whose names have local connotation: James Zacheus, born 1842, founder of the Peterborough Canoe Company and the father of Mr. Claude Rogers, now living in the southern States for reasons of health; George Charles Rogers, Richard Birdsall Rogers, Edwin Robert Rogers, Alfred Burnham Rogers; and Eliza Marie, married to Robert A. McNab of Peterborough, Sophia Louisa, married to Richard Mead of Peterborough, Maria McGregor, married to John Burnham, M.P. of Peterborough, and Amelia Mary, married to Samuel Roberts Price, also of Peterborough.

This brings the Rogers' family tree down to our own century. James Zacheus, the founder of the Canoe Company was born in Otonabee in 1842. He commanded his father's volunteer company and in 1879 became commander of the 57th Battalion, Peterborough Rangers. He married at Guelph Louisa Evatt Evatt in 1869. She died in 1870. He then married Margaret Acheas, daughter of Francis Burnett of Cobourg, by whom he had two sons and one daughter Claude Henry of Peterborough, Keith Archibald and Miss Mary Winnifred, who is now in poor health. Mr. Claude Rogers has two sons and two daughters: Jim of Edmonton, David of Peterborough, Beverley (Mrs. Ted Howard) and Margaret (Mrs. Sorby) of Kingston.

James Zacheus' second brother Richard Birdsall Rogers, born in Ashburnham in 1857, graduated from McGill as a civil engineer, and was appointed superintending engineer in charge of the Trent Valley Canal. He married the second daughter of Henry Calcutt (Calcutt's Brewery) and had three sons and three daughters: Henry George (whose son is John A. Rogers, formerly on the city police force), George Norman, Heber Symons Rogers, now vendor at the Liquor Store; Edna (Mrs. Fairweather) of Hunter Street, Miss Lillian Isabella Rogers, who lives with her sister, Leah (Mrs. J. J. Geale) of Reid Street.

The members of the Rogers family in this district are too numerous to name in this column. Mrs. Helen Marryat of Hastings, one of them on a collateral branch, is probably the best informed historian of the Rogers family.

FOR THE RECORD: Tourist and hotel accommodation in Peterborough is apparently still inadequate. Two men from Peterborough, New Hampshire, came to the city earlier in the week unable to get a room in the city, they said; this at a time when the tourist summer season had ended, the hunting season had not started, and when Thanksgiving visitors had departed. There are eight hotels in the city, but a couple of them seem to be hotels for licensing purposes and not for transient guests, and only two or three are large enough to accommodate more than a baker's dozen.

"INVITED" GUEST?

Letters To The Editor

CRITICAL OF DAYLIGHT SAVING

Sir: We are still on Daylight Saving Time thanks to a couple of city aldermen who pushed the motion through in a surprise move without any thought of the wishes of the people of our fair city. I expect most people took it for granted we would go back to God's time as did a large number of cities in Canada as well as the States. But it seems we must do whatever Toronto does or so a few of our aldermen think. One alderman said: "We didn't ask the Utilities Commission when we passed Daylight Saving Time in the first place." That was well said. No they didn't ask anyone. The City Council has got to the point the last few years where Daylight Saving is taken for granted. I can get along fine on fast time as many others can. But I still think the democratic thing to do would be to let the people vote on it every year. But if we must do as Toronto does I am looking forward to some of our aldermen giving us a vote next election on the question of an open Sunday; as Toronto is going to do. I am wondering if the Council could push things through and get away with it if we had the ward system.

Yours truly,
THE BYSTANDER.

SUGGESTS LESS INTENSIVE PROGRAM

Sir: I would like to address myself to the executives of the Optimist Club through your paper. I am voicing the opinion of many parents and teachers when I say that Boys Town is taking up too much of their time. Please understand that I think it is a fine thing in itself, this Boys Town, but I think affairs should be arranged so that the boys would only need to attend at the most, twice a week—one night for crafts and another for meetings etc. In fact, one night would be better—the meetings could be held Saturday or Sunday afternoons for a couple of hours. So far they have had to go quite often for practices for concerts. I think these should be cut down. The teachers have been complaining to parents about the boys yawning in class and not being able to concentrate, in mornings after they have been to Boys Town. The raising of funds should not be left so much to the boys' efforts.

The weekly dances could also be dispensed with, and held once a month. I don't think the Optimists intended Boys Town to take the place of home life, or that the boys' school work should suffer, so I hope they will take this criticism in the spirit that it is given—as a helpful suggestion.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valued space, I am, yours for the success of Boys Town,

"PARENT".

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

He that walketh in his uprightness feareth the Lord: but he that is perverse in his ways despiseth him. (Prov. 14: 2.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit...So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of this. (Rom. 8: 5, 8, 9.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Wherefore remember, that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh, who are called Uncircumcision by that which is called the Circumcision in the flesh made by hands; that at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world; but now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ.

For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us; having abolished in his flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances; for to make in himself of twain one new man, so making peace; and that he might reconcile both unto God in one body by the cross, having slain the enmity thereby....

For through him we both have access by one Spirit unto the Father. (Eph. 2: 11-16, 18.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Wherefore, my beloved, as ye have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling. For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure. (Phil. 2: 12, 13.)

Unconsidered Trifles

A businessman gave a lawn party at his home to which he invited all of the prominent residents of his town.

His wife, serving cocktails to arriving guests, suddenly withdrew a glass she was holding out to one large, middle-aged man.

"Pardon me," she apologized, "you are president of the temperance league, aren't you?"

He drew his hand up to the lapel of his coat and struck a pose.

"No, I am chairman of the vice commission," he replied, testily.

Smiling graciously, she thrust the glass into his hand.

"Forgive me for being mistaken," she said, "but I knew there was something I shouldn't offer you."

Red Cross Opens New Hospital In N. Hastings

BANCROFT, Oct. 14 (ENS) — Official opening of the Bancroft District Red Cross Hospital took place at the new hospital grounds Thursday. W. E. Wiggins, honorary president of the local Red Cross Board acted as chairman.

The new building replaces an eight bed hospital which served the North Hastings area for 22 years. It will be the medical hub of North Hastings County, serving surrounding districts for 40 miles. Although Bancroft has a population of only 1,500, there are some 9,000 persons in the surrounding area.

Leslie G. Stringer, Ontario Red Cross Commissioner from Toronto raised the Union Jack and Red Cross flags on the newly erected flag pole on the hospital grounds. Mrs. R. W. Blatherwick, president of the local Red Cross Board unveiled the hospital name "Bancroft District Red Cross Hospital." This was followed by a dedication prayer by the Rev. C. S. Wright, rector of St. John's Anglican Church, Bancroft.

Miss Ida Brand, director of Outpost Red Cross hospitals in Ontario, cut the ribbon which was across the main entrance of the hospital. The assembly was then escorted through the spacious and modernly equipped hospital by students of North Hastings high school. After the tour of inspection the guests attended an afternoon tea at St. John's Parish Hall as guests of the local Hospital Auxiliary.

At the beginning of the opening ceremony pupils of Bancroft public school led the singing of "O Canada." Reeve Theodore Tyron of Bancroft welcomed the guests to the village.

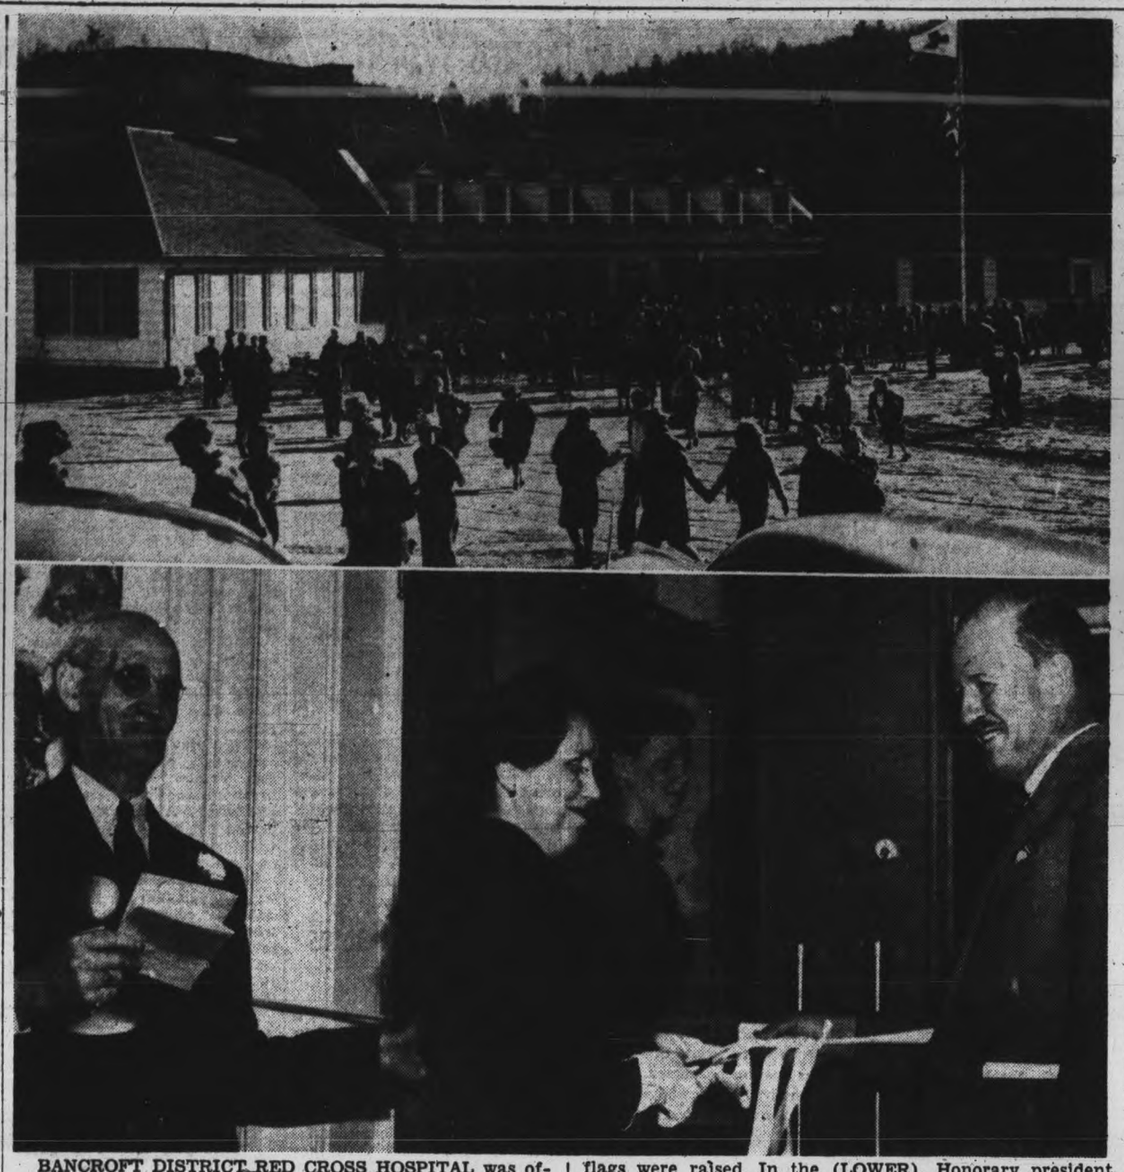
Guests at the opening ceremony included Leslie R. Stringer, Red Cross Commissioner; Miss I. B. Brand Director Outpost Hospital Department; Mr. Roscoe Robson, MPP, Mr. Elmer Sandercock, MPP,; Mr. S. McCarey, Warden of Hastings County and many other speakers from the local district.

Thursday evening a capacity crowd was in attendance at the Red Cross ball held in the North Hastings high school auditorium, music being supplied by the Bancroft Troubadour seven piece band. Hostesses were Mrs. G. W. Jones, Mrs. O. W. Anderson and Mrs. R. W Blatherwick.

Win Reward

Money to build the hospital came one-third through a provincial government grant; another third from the Ontario division of the Canadian Red Cross, and the remainder from the residents of Bancroft and district.

To those who worked for years to raise that money, today was a red-letter day. Among them was Mrs. Gordon Jones, who, 10 years ago, wrote letters to some 150 persons — merchants, industrialists, citizens—asking for contributions.



There was Jack Follis, who organized the showing of movies in the community hall to raise money and, with volunteers, gathered for sale scrap iron, old tires and other saleable junk.

There was a committee which included, among others, Cpl. Sam Palmateer of the OPP and local bank manager Jack Hahn, which persuaded county council to contribute $2,500 and then visited Health Minister Kelley to see about (and get) a grant.

There were donations from Dungannon and Faraday townships, from the Kingston Red Cross Branch, from the Bancroft chapter (No. 157) of the Order of the Eastern Star, from the Peterborough Canoe Club.

There was the work of Miss Langman, then head of the local Red Cross Hospital, who joined Mrs. Jones in sub-zero weather during the depression years, driving a borrowed truck and gathering food donations to be sold to raise money for their destitute little hospital.

Most of them were at the ceremony today to see Walter E. Wiggins, 70-year-old honorary president of the Bancroft Red Cross, officiate at the opening ceremony —and to hear Dr. D. Rouse, Bancroft dentist who has given much time to Red Cross work, sum it up when he said: "The new hospital is a credit to the Red Cross and to the whole community."

BANCROFT DISTRICT RED CROSS HOSPITAL was officially opened on Thursday afternoon while a crowd of about 1200 adults and children watched the ceremony and afterwards visited the interior. Red Cross 22-Bed Hospital At Bancroft Cost $200,000

BANCROFT, Oct. 14 (ENS)—The new Red Cross hospital, opened Thursday at Bancroft, was built at a cost of $200,000. Combining beauty with utility the building is considered one of the finest in this district. It is situated on the outskirts of Bancroft village on the east bank of the York river, nestled in a pocket with scenic hills about it.

The institution represents the combined financial effort of the people of North Hastings, the Ontario Government and the Canadian Red Cross Society, each contributing one-third of the cost. The two-storey frame structure contains 22 beds and every facility including operating room, case room, emergency and X-ray services. It will serve not only the people of Bancroft and district but the many tourists who take up summer residence in this area.

The building is 150 feet long, has a centre section of stone and two wings of frame construction. It is fully fireproof. The centre section contains the offices, nurses' dining room, a fully modern kitchen. The second floor is used entirely for the staff and contains eight bedrooms and a beautiful staff sitting room.

Pastel Color Scheme

The color scheme throughout the hospital building is in pastel shades of green and peach—colors soft and cheery for the patients. The wings include one four-bed ward, six two-bed wards, four private rooms, one children's room, nursery, a fully-equipped operating room, a case room, and an out-patient department for emergencies.

The plans of the hospital were drawn by Charles B. Dolphin, a well-known Canadian architect. The general contractors were Hill Clarke and Francis Ltd., of New Liskeard, Ontario. The building was started in 1947 and in March 1948, the laying of the corner stone was observed by some 400 persons. This new and modern hospital will replace the present seven bed hospital which was erected in 1926.

In recent years the building was found to be inadequate to handle the increasing number of patients.

Donors Listed

The following is a list of the donors who have helped furnish the new building.

Private rooms—McKenzie Robertson, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Adams, Detlor; Mr. and Mrs. Clarke T. Rollins, Coe Hill.

Two semi-private wards—Residents of Dungannon and Faraday Townships.

Children's ward — Bancroft Chapter No. 157, Order of the Eastern Star.

Laundry equipment and sewing machine—Kingston Red Cross Branch.

Steam inhalator and identification beads—Junior Red Cross Branches.

Electrolux—Leaside Red Cross Branch.

At present the hospital will be staffed by Miss Ruby Franks who is in charge, assisted by four graduate nurses and a certified nurse's assistant. Miss H. Singer, superintendent of outpost hospitals, has been in Bancroft for the past two weeks making arrangements for the opening.

Mike Sharpe Gets Main Go As Pro Wrestling Returns

Professional wrestling returned to the Brock Arena last night with a good-sized crowd seeing an exciting three-bout card. Mike Sharpe took the main bout over Hi Lee, the Red Devil won the semi-final against Faro Renaldi, and the prelim went to a draw between Ben Sharpe and Dan O'Connor. Bert Maxwell refereed, with Fred Scates announcer and timer.

Handsome 250-pound Mike Sharpe gained the deciding fall over Lee, scaling 295, in slightly more than seven minutes of the final round. He scrambled back into the ring, to beat the count, after the pair had mixed furiously outside and practically in the lap of ringsiders. Earlier, Lee had Mike in trouble with a toe hold, using the ropes for leverage. They had opened the round up with a slugfest as the crowd roared. The fall was a popular one.

Ducked a Tackle

Sharpe also took the second fall in just 11 minutes when he ducked under a flying tackle and fell on the prostrate Lee. Hi demanded a recount, claiming his shoulders weren't pinned for three seconds. Mike had tired of the referee missing illegal tactics used by Hi and went to work on his shaggy-haired and huge opponent. He twice kicked Lee out of the ring in a wide-open joust with both getting in some hard licks. There wasn't much wrestling in this part as they threw fists and pulled hair all over the ring. The fans cheered the fall.

Lee took the opening fall after 21 minutes of stiff going. He won it after throwing Sharpe three times into the turnbuckles and then flattening his dazed rival. Mike was thrown out of the ring once, and some good grips were seen at times. Mike's speed offset Hi's extra weight, but the latter roughed it up a lot more and got away with plenty as Maxwell missed too much. There were fists thrown and Mike had his lip cut and later knocked a knuckle out of joint. It was a rough session and had the fans yelling plenty in every round. The first fall was unpopular.

Really Different

Making a dramatic entrance to the muted strains of "Fire Dance", the 233-pound Red Devil proved quite a show in the semi-final. He was complete in red mask and all, and wore a bejewelled and flaming dressing gown, with a tail, into the ring. He made fairly short work of Faro Renaldi, going 237, to win in 11 minutes after twice applying his specialty, "the devil dance head twist"— a sort of rolling necklock with the Charleston thrown in. The more popular Renaldi nearly had him with two flying tackles but ran into a knee on his next attempt and was a setup then.
